POLITICAL EQUALITY

An Interesting Letter from the Governor of Colorado on the Subject—Comment by Miss Florence Darling Before Political Equality Club of This City.

The following letter, received by Mrs. Florence Darling, a member of the Political Equality Club of this city, is self explanatory. It relates to equal suffrage in Colorado and Mrs. Darling's paper, commenting on the subject which was read at a recent meeting of the Club will be of interest to our readers:

State of Colorado, Executive Chamber, Denver, December the fifth, 1903.—
Florence G. Darling,
313 Seneca Street,
Fulton, N. Y.

Madam:—I am instructed by His Excellency the Governor to reply to your favor of recent date, relative to his views on the suffrage question, and to say to you that he believes that "equal suffrage" in Colorado has been extremely beneficial to the people of this State in purifying politics in numerous ways. The larger number of our woman take an active interest in politics, a great many of them holding office with much credit to themselves and with great satisfaction to the public. I simply cite one instance, that of Mrs. Helen L. Grenfell, who is now serving her third term as State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and it is said by every one "that she makes the best school superintendent Colorado ever had."

Respectfully,
Samuel H. Wood,
Secretary to the Governor.

Your learn from this subject that there stands a possible chance for a better Government. And to whom may we look for the right help in this direction? We will first consider the basis upon which the Constitution of the United States is founded.

"We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union; establish justice; insure domestic tranquility; provide for the common defense; promote the general welfare; and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America."

As we follow this Preamble carefully we fail to find one clause in which man is supreme as to the making of the laws of Government. As in the beginning all were created equal, both male and female. [illegible] made for the people and by the people. But [illegible] the people? Who if not, according to the Preamble, both male and female. The law was to form a more perfect union. But where is that union? What right had man to step to the front and ignore the same right to woman, and say we make the laws for both. As Miss Clara Barton said when addressing the Women's Suffrage Association in Boston in May 1888, "I believe I must have been born believing in the full right of women to all the privileges and positions which nature and justice accord to her in common with other human beings; perfectly equal rights—human rights. There was never any question in my mind in regard to this. I did not purchase my freedom with a price; I was born free and when as a younger women I heard the subject discussed, it seemed simply ridiculous that any sensible rational person should question it, and whenever I've been urged to ask for this privilege, a dazed bewildered feeling has come over me as to whom I should ask for this privilege? Who possessed the right to confer it? Who had greater right than woman herself? Was it man, and if so where did he get it? Who conferred it upon him? He depended upon woman for his being, his existance and rearing. More fitting that she should have conferred it upon him. Was it government? They were but the voice of the people! What gave them their power? Was it divinely conferred? Alas, no! They would have been better, purer, more just and stable. Was it force of arms? War! Who furnished the warriers? Who but the mothers? How many men to-day if called to the front would take up arms against their mother's, wives, sisters and daughters to prevent them from coming into their full rights and equality of the law?

Was it labor? Women have always as a rule worked harder than the men. Was it capital? Woman has furnished her share up to the present hour? Who then can give her the right and on what basis? Who can or has the right to withhold it?"

And this question is becoming one of universal discussion, not only in this state but all over the United States. As to women's right to vote? The questions arise, shall women vote? Some of the objections again: It will be a great injury to feminine delicacy and refinement for women to mingle in business and politics.

Let us look at this objection and see wherein a woman must place herself among that class of men who have no respect for women, any more than when attending public political meetings in which they have the right to listen but not to act; or the church in which all classes are mingled. In our State and County Fairs, men and women associate in both the work of managing and she has the right in some departments of the overseeing and taking charge of articles in her care. Women as well as men have shown great ability in nearly all positions of life where responsibility, trust and justice predominate. We all have learned of ladies being admitted to the courts and proved themselves as efficient and as learned as their opponents.

We also know that lady physicians are as thoroughly competent in their special profession as their opposite. Ladies of this day can stand on an equal footing with men as to capability and learning.

We refer to the states that have full suffrage; that is that the right to vote on all questions that come before the state. Take Wyoming: Gov. Campbell was in office in 1869 when the Womens Suffrage law was passed Two years later he stated in his message to the legislature: "It is simple justice to say that the women entering the first time upon these new and untried duties, have conducted themselves in every respect with as much tact, sound judgment and good sense as the men." Gov. Thayer who succeeded Campbell said in his message: "Women Suffrage has been in practical operation in our territory for 6 years, and has increased, during that time in popularity, and in the confidence of the people. In my judgment its results have been beneficial and favorable to the best interests of the Community." Gov. Hoyt who succeeded Thayer said in his message in 1882. "Elsewhere objectors persist in calling this statute of our's "an experiment." We know it is not so. Under it we have better laws, better officers, better institutions, better morals, and higher conditions in general. Be it resolved by the Second Legislature of the State of Wyoming: That the possession and exercise of suffrage by the women in Wyoming has wrought no harm and has done great good in many ways; that it has largely aided in banishing crime, pauperism, and vice from this state, and that without any violent or oppressive legislation. We point with pride to the facts that after nearly twenty five years of Woman Suffrage not one county in Wyoming has a poor-house, that our jails are almost empty, and crime except that committed by strangers in the State almost unknown. and as the result of experience we urge every civilized community on earth to enfranchise its women without delay.

Resolved, That an authenticated copy of these resolutions be forwarded by the Gov. of the State to the legislature of every State and Territory in this country."

Gov. Warren who was in office when this Territory became a State said: "Our women consider much more carefully than our men the character of candidates and both political parties have found themselves obliged to nominate their best men in order to obtain the support of the women.

Hon. J. W. Kingman for 4 years Judge of the United States Supreme Court in Wyoming says: "The women manifest a great deal of independence in their preference for candidates and have frequently defeated bad nominations. Often the men set aside applicants for office, because their characters would not stand the criticism of the women."

Ex Chief [illegible] Fisher of Cheyenne says: "I wish I could show the people who are so wonderfully exercised on the subject of female suffrage just how it works. The women watch the nominating conventions and if the Republicans put a bad man on their ticket and the Democrats a good one, the Republican women do not hesitate a moment in scratching off the bad and substituting the good. It is just the same with the Democrats. I have seen the effects of female suffrage and instead of being a means of encouragement to fraud and corruption it tends to purify elections and give better Governments."

As Rev. Dr. David Gregg, applies the Golden Rule, "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you? Would men have women rob them of their ballots? No! Then let not men rob women of their right to ballot.

As George William Curtiss says: "A woman may vote as a stock holder upon a railroad from one end of the country to the other, but if she sells her stock and buys a house with the money, she has no voice in the laying out of a road before her door, for which her property is taxed to keep and pay for."

While men owning property under the same condition vote to distribute or pay out the amount taxed on both his own and property owned by women, or any property under taxation. This shows that taxation without representation is unjust.

We learn that to be elgible to any office the party must pay taxes or a provision is made wherein they must be responsible to a trust. This fact alone shows to us that a person paying taxes is better qualified to have a voice in stating what shall be done with the funds; yet women paying taxes as great and in some instances to exceed those of her neighbors, have no voice in controlling the funds in the Treasury.

Previous to women's voting, polling places were often located in untidy and most unsuitable places. Since the advent of women in politics polling-booths are erected in cleaner and more respectable localities, and profanity in and near the booths has disappeared.

In Colorado Equal Suffrage has reformed the polling places. If half the bad things that used to be told us about the polls were true—that drunken men stood there in rows, and that two-dollar bills flew to and fro between the politicians and the voters—the polls certainly were no place for decent women; but neither were they any place for decent men. Now they are fit for either decent men or decent women.

As Hon. Jas. S. Clarkson of Iowa, after witnessing Denver election says: "Instead of rough or viscious men or even drunken men treating women with disrespect, the presence of a single good woman at the polls seemed to make the whole crowd of men as respectful and quiet as at the theatre or at church."

As I've mentioned before the name of Hon. John W. Kingman of Wyoming Supreme Court who says, "At our first election, before women voted, we had a perfect pandemonium. At the next election women voted, and perfect order prevailed, and has prevailed ever since. In caucus discussions the presence of a few ladies is worth more than a whole squad of police."

In Kansas, women have had Municipal Suffrage since 1887. In answer to the question how it had worked, all concurred in substance with Judge W. A. Johnston who wrote. "In consequence our elections are more orderly and fair, a higher class of officers are chosen, and we have cleaner and stronger city government." In Idaho equal suffrage was granted in 1896. The women in Idaho voted in a State election for the first time in November 1896. The election passed off very quietly in this city, with no disturbance. The voters came and went depositing their ballots quietly. The saloons were closed and the absence of private bottles was noticeable, which was all attributable to the presence of women.

C. W. Blackett of Mass. writes: "I have never seen a good reason why my wife who graduated in the same class with me both in high school and college should not have an equal opportunity to record her political preferences. Woman Suffrage in my judgment must finally rest on the basis of equality. It is Women's Right."

Did you ever consider that the emblem or monument for this our Empire State, stands emblamatic, of freedom, liberty and protection, is a woman, the Statute of Liberty.

The opinions of our most noted men, men of high standing. authority, and influence, are legion, and for the general public to oppose these opinions is to lessen his influence with his associates.

And as O. W. Scott of Maplewood Mass. writes: "God speed the day, when man shall have his rights and no more, and when woman shall have her rights and no less."

Then the East will join with the West, in confirming the now western opinion that from practical demonstration the Government will be better, purer and of a higher standing, through the enfranchisement of the women, who will use their influence through the ballot to elect better men and those best qualified for the office.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Fulton, N. Y., Dec. 8, 1903.

A special meeting of the Common Council was held on Tuesday, Dec. 8, at 8 p. m., in compliance with an order of the Supreme Court, for the purpose of recanvassing the election returns after the clerical errors were corrected.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Foster. The members present were Aldermen Burden, Brooker, Taylor, Hunter, Russell and Waugh.

Alderman Russell introduced the following and moved its adoption:

Resolved, That in obedience to a peremptory writ of mandamus, issued out of the Supreme Court, directed to us, bearing date the 5th day of December, 1903, we now reconvene as a Board of Canvassers of the city of Fulton and recanvass all of the certified statement of the result of the election held in the said city on the 3d day of November, 1903, in the several election districts of the city, as corrected and now on file in the city clerk's office, for the offices of mayor and supervisors. Carried.

The clerk then read the returns of the vote cast for mayor and supervisor from each ward and district.

Alderman Russell introduced the following and moved its adoption.

Resolved, That having reconvened in obedience to a peremptory writ of mandamus issued out of the Supreme Court, directed to us, bearing date the 5th day of December, 1903, and having reconvened as a Board of Canvassers and recanvassed all of the certified statements of the result of the election held in the city of Fulton on the 3d day of November, 1903, in the several election districts of the said city, as corrected and now on file in the city clerk's office, for the offices of mayor and supervisors. That in obedience to said writ we add to the whole number of votes appearing on the face of said returns four votes for George W. Brooker for mayor and one vote for Marvin A. Thomson for mayor. Don't forget the old man with the fish on his back.

For nearly thirty years he has been traveling around the world, and is still traveling, bringing health and comfort wherever he goes.

To the consumptive he brings the strength and flesh he so much needs.

To all weak and sickly children he gives rich and strengthening food.

To thin and pale persons he gives new firm flesh and rich red blood.

Children who first saw the old man with the fish are now grown up and have children of their own.

He stands for Scott's Emulsion of pure cod liver oil—a delightful food and a natural tonic for children, for old folks and for all who need flesh and strength.

Police Orders That Last Rites of the Dead Be In No Way Interfered With.

Chicago, Dec. 22. — Picketing of houses from which funerals are to start, whether peaceful or violent, by union livery drivers, who went on strike four days ago, is to be prevented by the police under orders issued by Chief of Police O'Neil.

J. B. Wadsworth, secretary, and Charles Stevens, business agent of the Liverymen's union, were summoned before Chief O'Neil and told that they must settle their differences away from houses of mourning.

"This picketing of the homes from which funerals are holding is beyond the toleration of a civilized community," said Chief O'Neil. "Your zeal has carried you beyond the pale of endurance and such unheard of performance as the carrying of labor troubles to the houses of the dead will not be allowed by the police.

"Law or no law, picketing of every kind around these houses will have to stop. I shall take my chances with the courts on the question if my conduct is questioned in any court."

Chief O'Neil then issued a general order instructing officers to accompany funerals in carriages if circumstances seemed to require it and see that the last rites of the dead be in no way interfered with.

While the courts have inclined to the permitting of peaceful picketing Chief O'Neil's order prohibits picketing of any kind around houses of mourning. He declared that in his opinion no court could be found which would fail to sustain his act.

On top of Chief O'Neil's order came the announcement last night that peace plans had been launched through the efforts of the Chicago board of arbitration.

MOVING ON ST. LOUIS

NATIONS OF THE WORLD WILL BE REPRESENTED AT THE FAIR.

Crowned Heads, Titled Personages and Notables Will Be Thick as Leaves in Vallombrosa—Some Early Arrivals In the World's Fair City.

With the arrival of the first contingent of dignitaries from foreign lands in connection with the world's fair of 1904 St. Louis is experiencing a foreshadowing of the social brilliancy that will mark the assembling there next summer of notables from all nations. Several of the official delegations of foreign governments have already taken up their residence in the world's fair city, and more are on the way. They form quite a foreign colony and are being hospitably entertained.

THEODOR LEWALD. [Germany.]

Dr. Theodor Lewald, imperial commissioner general from Germany, was one of the earliest of the representatives of the great European powers in the field. Commissioner Lewald has engaged an elegant residence on Lindell boulevard, the finest drive in the city, which is flanked by many of the most palatial mansions in St. Louis. Dr. Lewald, with his retinue, will move into his quarters on Jan. 15. A private fund enables him to maintain a most luxurious establishment.

The tower of the German building at St. Louis will be equipped with cast steel bell chimes, consisting of three bells, which have just been completed at Bochum.

Dr. Lewald is very striking in appearance, being tall and fair, with erect military bearing. He is very polished in his manner, which shows a mixture of scholar and diplomat. He speaks English fluently.

M. Michael Lagrave, the commissioner general from France, will entertain in no less lavish style than the kaiser's representative. Although M. Lagrave has not yet decided on a residence, several of the finest in St. Louis have been under consideration. M. Serge Alexandrovsky, imperial chamberlain to the czar and commissioner general from Russia, will be established, with his family and servants, in one of the great houses on Lindell boulevard.

M. LAGRAVE. [France.]

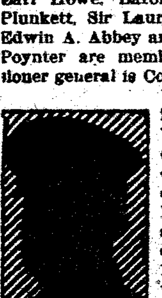
Among the crowned heads and scions of royalty expected at the world's fair next summer are King Menelek of Abyssinia, King Leopold of Belgium, Prince Henry of Prussia, the sultan of Johore and his consort and the sultan of Sulu. President Loubet of France may also honor this country and the fair with a visit.

Japan will spend more than $400.000 on her building and exhibits, the greatest display ever attempted by this enterprising nation. The Japanese pavilion was dedicated a few weeks ago with imposing ceremonies. The commission from Japan is composed of Baron Sirata president; Baron Matsudara, vice president; Mr. S. Tejima, commissioner general; Mr. Isobe, secretary of the department of agriculture; Mr. K. Yabashi, architect of the treasury department, Mr. Jushiro Kiuchi and Mr. Y. Wooyeno.

S. TEJIMA. [Japan.]

Prince Pu Lun, nephew of the emperor of China, has already engaged a handsome suit of rooms in the new hotel on the fashionable Kings Highway boulevard. The prince is the imperial commissioner from China, the assistants being Messrs. Wong Kai Kah and F. A. Carl. The Chinese social arrangements provide for entertaining after the manner of the orient. The family of Assistant Commissioner Wong is receiving much attention in St. Louis, his bright young son, Master Wong, being a popular member of the foreign colony.

The British royal commission for the world's fair includes the Prince of Wales, president of the commission, and Viscount Peel, chairman, while Earl Howe, Baron Castleton, H. C. Plunkett, Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema, Edwin A. Abbey and Sir Edward John Poynter are members. The commissioner general is Colonel Charles Moore Watson of the British army. Colonel Watson is a native of Dublin and was educated at Trinity college of that city. He is also a graduate of Woolwich and entered the army in 1866. He served with General (Chinese) Gordon in the Sudan and later was in India. During the Egyptian war of 1882 he was an officer in the khedive's army with the rank of pasha, serving four years. Before his present appointment he was a deputy inspector general of the British army. The British government has erected a pavilion which is modeled after the orangery or banqueting hall of Kensington palace, London.



C. M. WATSON. [England.]

Whistling For Wind.

No sooner had we rounded the cape than the wind dropped and we nearly came to a standstill. Our "kamudi"—i. e., captain and steersman—did the best he could do for us, but in vain. We were doomed to drift about some hours without much progress. He would whistle softly and enticingly or would change his tone and with pouted lips whistle angrily and viciously for the wind that would not come to help us on. I have often wondered what can have been the origin of whistling for the wind. That the custom is of undoubted practical utility is the firm belief of many races of seafarers, from the English sea captain to the humble Malay kamudi. I was on one occasion very roughly spoken to by a captain in the Irish channel for casually whistling in a gale of wind. He thought it a piece of gross carelessness on my part which might lead to serious consequences. Here in Celebes, too, I was warned to be careful not to laugh when the kamudi screwed his face up into an intensely ludicrous expression of feigned passion and whistled angrily for the wind to come, for the Malay seaman's belief in the efficacy of this mode of raising the wind is a serious one and will not brook being made an object of derision. Soon after midnight a favorable breeze sprang up, and by sunrise we were passing the little islands of Ganga and Tindela.—Sidney J. Hickson in "A Naturalist In North Celebes."

Shouted as Loud as Li.

There was much rudeness in Li Hung Chang's manner, but if he was answered back in his own coin he melted into graciousness. Once a junior member of a British consulate was sent to interview the viceroy on some matter. In the vast audience hall he found no one to receive him, so he took a chair near the door. Eventually Li and his following appeared at the other end of the hall on some lofty seats, and the viceroy started shouting to him in the difficult Anhui accent. To the utter dumfounding of every one present, contrary to all principles of Chinese etiquette, the young Englishman shouted back his answer in the same loud, rough voice as far as he could imitate it in which Li had spoken to him. Every one in the suit was stricken with horror. Even Li started and spoke lower. Gradually the conversation assumed a convenient tone, and after a bit Li, with a humorous smile, beckoned the young man to come up higher and sit down beside him. They soon became excellent friends.—London Men and Women.

A Defense of Slang.

So far from being an evidence of a national levity and lack of seriousness slang is the language of sincerity. It is the result of an instinctive effort to get as far away as possible from everything like pretentiousness. It is the antipodes of bathos. It is the language of the whole people, because it is expressive of the national sense of humor that is never so keen as when it contemplates with a joy likewise unutterable the spectacle presented by a fake exposed. It is blunt, it is crude, it is brutal sometimes, but it is always sincere. It directs against the citadels of evil the mighty enginery of laughter. It does for our nascent abuses what the mordant satire of Martial and Juvenal failed to do for decadent Rome.—Professor Herman Spencer in Booklovers' Magazine.

His Study of the Heart.

In his memoirs Adolf Kussmaul relates a curious story of a Heidelberg banker. This banker was known for his haughty, forbidding manners; consequently Dr. Nuhn, the professor of anatomy, was much surprised one day when the banker came and sat with him in a railway car and, after a pleasant chat, asked him all sorts of questions, especially about the anatomy of the heart. The next day he even called by permission in the medical department and watched the professor dissecting one of those organs. Then he drove home, and a few hours later it became known that he had committed suicide by skillfully plunging a dagger into his heart.

Copley, the English painter, was commissioned by a wealthy Bristol merchant to paint the latter and his wife. "But I want to have my deceased wife introduced as well," he said. The order was filled, but soon after the patron, half in mourning, half in wedding splendor, hurried into the studio. "I have had the misfortune to lose my second wife," declared he. "I wish to have included in the portrait the lady who now takes the head of my table." The three wives are in the picture.

Apprehension.

"Why, yes; my boy is quite ingenious—in fact, he is so interested in machinery that I'm afraid he may become an inventor."

"Afraid?"

"Yes; because, you know, if he should invent anything of value the chances are a hundred to one that somebody else will make all the money out of it."—Judge.

MIGHTY STEEL SPAN

NEW SUSPENSION BRIDGE ACROSS EAST RIVER, NEW YORK.

Old Link Connecting Manhattan With Brooklyn Outshone by Its Great Rival—Size and Capacity of the New Structure—Chief Engineer Buck.

The formal opening of the new suspension bridge across the East river Dec. 19 marks the practical completion of the second of the four links of steel that eventually will connect the island of Manhattan with the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens, situated on Long Island, and all component parts of the great city of New York.

The new bridge, known as the Williamsburg bridge, is one of the most remarkable structures of its kind in the world. As a suspension bridge it stands unrivaled, and as an engineering feat only one bridge can approach it—its near neighbor, the Brooklyn bridge, which has now lost its distinctiveness. The completion of its far greater rival has robbed the old structure of much of its glory, but the old structure is still the more beautiful of the two.

The greatest contrast between the two lies in their relative strength. Roughly, the Williamsburg bridge is four times as strong as the older structure. Each of its four cables is eighteen inches in diameter, six inches greater than those in the old bridge, each of the cables containing 10,399 No. 8 steel wires. The breaking strength of each cable is 25,000 tons, and their combined weight and fittings is 5,000 tons. The actual dead load which they carry is 8,000 tons, and they are calculated to carry a moving weight of 4,500 tons. The engineers estimate that the suspension power of the bridge is four times greater than the maximum demand that will be made upon it.

The width of the new structure is 118 feet as compared with the eighty-five feet of the Brooklyn bridge, and the character and amount of its traffic will be proportionately greater. It has two decks instead of one, two footwalks, each ten and a half feet wide; two bicycle paths, each seven feet wide; two roadways, each twenty feet wide; four trolley tracks and two elevated railway tracks. The old bridge has one footwalk fifteen feet wide, two roadways, each eighteen feet wide, half of which space is used by trolley tracks, and two elevated railway tracks.

LEFFERT LEFFERTS BUCK.

In actual channel span the two bridges do not present a great difference, merely a matter of four and a half feet, but in total length the new structure holds the record by 1,200 feet. The channel span of the Brooklyn bridge is 1,595½ feet and its total length 6,000 feet. The figures of the new bridge are respectively 1,600 feet channel span and 7,200 feet total length.

The steel towers of the new bridge are about fifty feet taller than the masonry spires of the Brooklyn bridge, the cap of the steel work above high water being 335 feet. Similar measurements on the old bridge give a height of 276 feet. The minimum height of the new bridge for 200 feet on either side of the center above mean high water of spring tides is 135 feet. The old structure has the same height, but only at the central point.

In the arrangement of the trolley tracks alone the increased facilities are clearly shown. With four trolley tracks running in a space for their exclusive use they afford a capacity of at least 350 cars an hour, carrying 70,000 persons against 40,000 on the old bridge. In addition the arrangements for handling the elevated railroad traffic provide for the carrying of at least 58,000 persons, thus making the maximum capacity of the new bridge 128,000 passengers an hour in case of emergency.

The timber used in the construction of the new bridge amounted to 6,500,000 feet, mainly for "false work" and temporary footbridges. The excavating equaled 125,000 cubic yards. Of concrete masonry there are 60,000 cubic yards and of stone masonry 130,000 cubic yards. The steel used amounted to 40,000 tons.

Leffert Lefferts Buck, the chief engineer of the great work, is a native of Canton, N. Y., and during his sixty-six years of life has been connected with many great engineering works. He designed and was the engineer of two steel arch bridges at Niagara Falls, the Columbia river bridge at Pasco, Wash., for the Northern Pacific railway; the Verugas bridge, Peru, and many other notable structures. Mr. Buck is a veteran of the civil war, serving from 1861 to 1865 in the Sixtieth New York volunteers.

SEES LIFE'S SUNNY SIDE.

Rev. Robert Collyer, Who Says the World Grows Better.

Rev. Robert Collyer, pastor of the Church of the Messiah in New York city, who for many years has stood among the foremost pulpit orators in the land, is still active and alert despite the fact that he recently celebrated his eightieth birthday.

Dr. Collyer is a native of Keighley, Yorkshire, England, and at the age of eight was put to work in a cotton mill. Six years later he was apprenticed to a blacksmith in the town of Ilkey, and he worked at the anvil until 1850, when he came to the United States.

REV. ROBERT COLLYER.

The only schooling Collyer ever had he got from an odd character of the name of Willie Hardie. In those days by favor all cripples were either teachers or fiddlers. Willie Hardie was both and, according to his distinguished pupil, was a great marksman with the ferule. There was no use dodging. If you did the ferule would find you out and thump all the harder. Collyer and one of his young companions vowed to thrash Hardie when they grew to be men. They went over to the old home together many years after they came to America and found Willie Hardie, very old and feeble, sitting in his chimney corner.

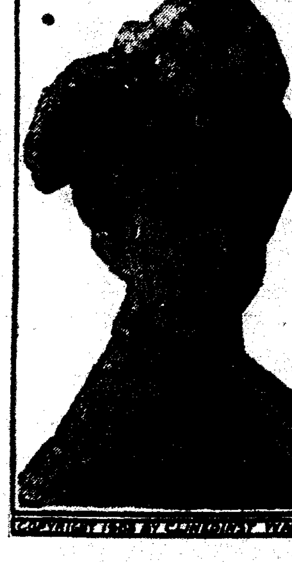
"Is this Willie Hardie?" they asked. "Yes," he answered. "And how are you getting on, sir?" "Middling weel for an old man. But who are ye? I don't know yer faces." "It's Robinson Gill and Robert Collyer. We were your scholars lang syne," and then, with a laugh, they said, "We have come to settle that old account of the lickings you gave us." "Nae, lads; ye will not do that. I'm an old man now, and time has settled that bill a lang while ago." "But you will play us a tune on the old fiddle?" "Aye, gladly," he answered. So they had many tunes, and Mr. Gill, who was a rich man, settled the bill in good gold.

When Dr. Collyer came to this country he settled in Shoemakerstown, Pa., where on week days he worked at his trade in a hammer factory and on Sundays preached in the Methodist church. Later he joined the Unitarian church, went to Chicago in 1859 to labor as a missionary and there founded the Church of the Unity. His fame as a preacher spread, and in 1879 he was called to the Church of the Messiah, New York. In the spring of 1896 the church called the Rev. Minot J. Savage to be associate minister. Dr. Collyer is still hale and hearty and in looks and manner resembles the late Henry Ward Beecher. He says the world grows better every day.

AN ARMY FAVORITE.

Mrs. Adna R. Chaffee, Wife of the Coming Chief of Staff.

Mrs. Adna R. Chaffee, who will be the head of the military circle at Washington when her husband, General Chaffee, becomes chief of staff, with the rank of lieutenant general, in January, is a real army wife and has always shared her husband's camp life.



MRS. ADNA R. CHAFFEE.

Mrs. Chaffee is a woman of remarkable tact and during her residence in the Philippines was the most popular woman in the army set. Her social affairs were the most important in Manila. It is expected that she will make the winter season the most delightful in army circles the capital has ever seen.

Mrs. Chaffee, who is the general's second wife, is slender and graceful, with blue eyes and hair lightly touched with gray. They have three children, the eldest being the wife of Captain F. G. Hamilton of the Ninth cavalry; Adna R. Chaffee, Jr., who is to become a soldier, is now at West Point, and the youngest, Helen, who is fifteen, is with her parents.

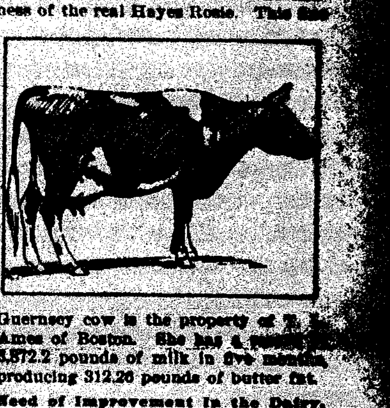
Two cases of salty milk have [illegible]ly come within the writer's [illegible]. Samples of this salty milk were [illegible] and allowed to sour naturally. [illegible] twenty-eight hours' duration the [illegible] coagulated at room temperature. [illegible] curd was normal looking, but the [illegible] and smell were very putrid and noxious. No terms would be [illegible] enough to express the degree of [illegible]ness in this milk. The thought [illegible] at once, What an injurious effect [illegible] milk is likely to have on the quality [illegible] butter if it were allowed to be used [illegible] the factory, together with the remainder of the milk! This kind of milk [illegible] evidently one of the causes of [illegible] butter that are likely to steal in on [illegible] creamery operator.

These two salty samples had a [illegible] content of 1.8 and 1.6 per cent respectively. It is interesting to note [illegible] both came from cows that calved [illegible] spring. They were both in good condition and about seven years of age. [illegible] owner of the cows told the writer [illegible] they never used to "go dry," but [illegible] a good quantity of milk the whole year round. "And now," he declared with special emphasis, "as soon as they start to give this kind of milk [illegible] quantity decreases to about one gallon daily, and this occurs soon after calving. They have been out of pasture and fed on dry food without [illegible] change in the milk." Both cows were allowed to dry up. What the quality of milk will be when they calve again remains to be seen.

It is likely that the cow, having been milked so long without any rest, might have been the cause of the secretion of this abnormal milk.—C. Larsen in Creamery Journal.

The Real Hayes Rosie.

A picture of another cow has been going the rounds labeled "Hayes Rosie." Herewith is shown an excellent likeness of the real Hayes Rosie. This [illegible]



Guernsey cow is the property of [illegible] Ames of Boston. She has a record of 6,872.2 pounds of milk in five months, producing 312.26 pounds of butter fat.

Need of Improvement In the Dairy.

The larger part of dairy products is produced in such poorly kept and insanitary dairy barns, dairies, creameries and cheese factories and they are of such inferior and uneven grade that it not only discourages the use of all dairy products, but keeps the price of first class products much below what it should be.

It is largely owing to the present insanitary practices in dairying, causing the poor quality of milk, butter and cheese, that people are reducing the amount consumed, even in these prosperous times, when money is spent freely. On account of this increase in demand the price is not so high in proportion to the price of other foods as it should be.—Cor. Chicago Tribune.

Homemade Starters.

A homemade starter can be made by saving one or two quarts of milk from some healthy cow, as near fresh as possible. The milk should have a good flavor, be well aerated, placed in a sterile vessel, covered with a cloth and allowed to develop the required acid naturally. This is used instead of the commercial culture, and from this point the treatment would be the same as with the culture. When the starter is added to cream it should be thoroughly strained through a small enough mesh strainer to insure a thorough breaking up of the coagulated parts. No arbitrary rule as to the length of time a culture or starter will retain its purity can be given, but to a great extent it is in the hands of the operator to prolong or shorten the time.—W. E. Griffith in American Agriculturist.

A Big Dairy Syndicate.

Hon. George D. Meiklejohn, former assistant secretary of war, and a party of capitalists have been purchasing from the Union Pacific Railway company large tracts of land on the "divide" in Nebraska. This syndicate proposes to bring 500 families of Danes to settle on these lands and engage extensively in dairying, the cream to be sent to Omaha and Denver. This land lies contiguous to the Burlington and Union Pacific railroads and is considered the finest grazing land in Nebraska. The Danish Emigration society of Minnesota will furnish these emigrants with ten cows each to start and enough money to erect houses, purchase farming implements and necessaries of life for one year, the money to be paid back in small installments at a very low rate of interest.

MAYOR FOSTER TO HOLD OVER.

Mayor Foster has filed his reasons with the County Clerk for his decision, in conformity with the Public Officers' law, to remain in office until his successor has duly qualified. The present city officials will also hold over.

The following letters have been placed on file with the city clerk:

To the Honorable Mayor and Common Council of the City of Fulton, N Y.:

In order that there may be no possible doubt of my position in the matter, I desire to disclaim any right whatever, under, or by virtue of the certificate of election which was issued to me since the last city election. I do this principally for the reason that the present Mayor may not be embarassed by any action which he may see fit to take hereafter.

Respectfully,
G. W. Brooker,

Dated Fulton, N. Y., Dec. 22, 1903.

To the Honorable Mayor and Common Council of the City of Fulton, N.Y :

I desire to call your attention to the facts contained in the annexed affidavit, as bearing upon any action which may hereafter be taken by the city or any of its officers.

Respectfully yours,
Fred'k G. Spencer,

Dated Fulton, N. Y., Dec. 22, 1903.

State of New York, Oswego County—ss.:

Fred'k G. Spencer, being duly sworn, says: That he is an elector of the city of Fulton, N. Y. That at the election held in said city, Nov. 3, 1903, Marvin A. Thomson, George W. Brooker and I. Ernest Marsh were candidates for the office of Mayor of said city, and were voted for at said election. That neither said Thomson nor his wife at the time of his nomination, as well as at the time of said election, was the owner of any real estate assessed to him or her on the last assessment roll of said city previous to said election. That said Thomson was and is ineligible to hold the office of Mayor of said city, or to be elected thereto, and he is not lawfully entitled to file an oath of office or to obtain a certificate of election or perform an act, as such pretended Mayor. That neither said Thomson, Brooker or Marsh was elected Mayor at said election, and said election was a failure and of no force or effect as far as the office of Mayor is concerned.

That at the election duly held in said city April 15, 1902, for the election of city officers, James A. Foster was duly elected Mayor of said city and thereupon duly qualified and entered on the duties of his office, and ever since has been and now is the legally elected, duly qualified and legally acting Mayor of said city. That by virture of Sec. 5 of the Public Officer's Law, said Foster is lawfully entitled to hold over and continue to discharge the duties of his office, as such Mayor for a full term, or until his successor shall be chosen and qualified.

Fred'k G. Spencer.

Sworn to before me this 22nd day of December, 1903.

Nellie M. Roach,
Notary Public.

Dr. S. A Russell on Tuesday received a New Year's gift from the Ontario & Western Railroad, of the appointment as surgeon for their road. This is a fitting tribute to Dr. Russell's ability as a physician and surgeon.

Our re ders will bear in mind the fact that the concert for the benefit of the city hospital fund, which will be given in the Opera House on Thursday evening, will not commence until 8:30 o'clock, so that all who desire may first attend their prayer meeting.

The $75 parlor suite in the window of E P. Cole's furniture store is attracting a great deal of attention and admiration. It is to be drawn at the Odd Fellows' Fair in February, and a one-dollar ticket entitles the purchaser to admission to the Fair every evening and to one chance on the suite. Many tickets have already been sold.

Mr. Jesse I. Carrier of Maple Grove Farm, has the finest lot of pure bred Shropshire sheep in New York State. He purchased three head from the well known B W. Brace flock, in Albion recently, and a few days since he went to Fonda and purchased a portion of a carload from the famous George Ingersoll stock which was being reduced. He was the first purchaser on the ground and secured first choice. Mr. Carrier now has the largest and finest flock to be found.

Mr. William J. Tucker, son of Mrs. J. C. Tucker of this city, has recently been made manager of the Carrie Nation Theatrical Company which is playing in New York city and meeting with excellent returns. Mr. Tucker has had splendid success since he undertook the management of the company and he is receiving the congratulations of his friends over the fact that while other attractions are playing to empty houses, the Third Avenue theatre in which his company is playing, is crowded each night. Mr. Tucker's Fulton friends will be pleased to learn of his successful venture.

Attorney and Mrs. S. B. Mead on Sunday entertained at dinner, Collector and Mrs. N. N. Stranahan of New York; Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Gage, and Mr. and Mrs. F. E Weeden.

A son of Mr. and Mrs Samuel Waldhorn fell upon the ice last week, but it was not known for several days that he had sustained any injury. When he complained of his arm hurting, he was taken to Dr Bacon's office and it was found that the boy's collar bone was broken.

The dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hanna on Xmas day was one of the jovial events of that joyous season. The menu was delicious and the waiters fully understood the more important detail of their work For information regarding the orchestra and bank of palms, consult Mr. W. H. Patterson or Miss Adelaide Schenck.

The Times is indebted to Mr. John S. Parsons, ship chandler of Oswego, for one of the handsomest and most unique calendars seen this year. The mount is a gray, heavy canvass, on which is a gallant of the Louis XIV. period, the head of a handsome young woman and the calendar. The coloring is beautiful and the entire make up most effective.

Mr. Edward Waugh, who is in the Excise Department at Albany, is receiving the congratulations of his many friends upon his approaching marriage, which will occur on Wednesday, Jan. 6. The prospective bride is Miss Tessie Ryan of Albany, who has visited in Fulton. The marriage will be a very quiet one, no invitations having been issued. The Times extends congratulations and hearty good wishes.

The attention of farmers is called to the advertisement of the Fort Stanwix Canning company in another column of this paper. The company has given the best of satisfaction to all with whom they have had dealings, and they have paid exceedingly high prices for the products which they have purchased. They have kept every contract and their promises mean business and a paying one, for those who will call upon them and talk the matter over.

The dry goods stores of Fulton are about to start the greatest clearance sales our city has ever known. The shelves are filled with seasonable goods and the merchants need the room and cash which they represent; consequently our residents will profit by deep cuts. The sa e in J. C. O'Brien's store opens on Thursday morning; in the W. H. Patterson store on Saturday morning, and in the F. P. Connell & Co.'s store on Thursday morning, Jan. 7; the M. Katz & Co. store will conduct a sale throughout the month of January. The picking will be profitable for those who shop early.

WILLIAM II. OF GERMANY

The Crown Prince, Who May Succeed Him, and the Kaiser's Only Daughter

WILLIAM II., emperor of Germany, whose indisposition has caused widespread alarm among his subjects and attracted the attention of the world, is now in the forty-fifth year of his age and the sixteenth year of his reign. He succeeded his father on June 15, 1888.

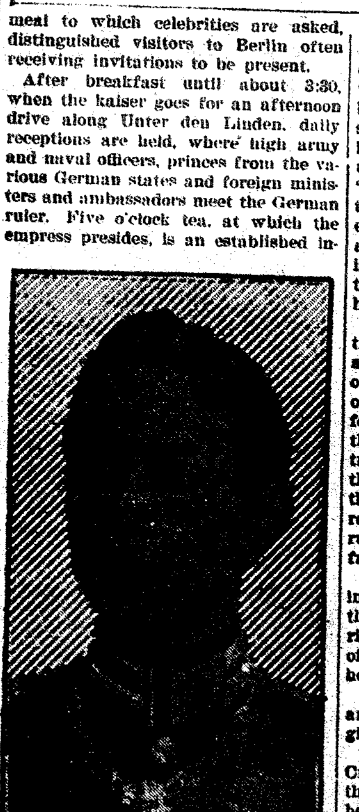
The fact that the kaiser's physicians discovered that their royal patient was afflicted with laryngeal polypus is regarded by medical men the world over with apprehension, especially in view of the fact that his father died from cancer of the throat and his mother of cancer of the heart.

The kaiser until his recent illness has been one of the hardest workingmen in the fatherland. From early morning until late at night his time is mapped out. In summer his majesty rises at 5 o'clock, in winter an hour later, and after a cold bath and a cup of coffee he sits down to work alone until about 8. He then dresses for his morning ride, drive or walk in the thiergarten. The exercise usually lasts about two hours, and into that time the emperor usually manages to press a multitude of minor duties—a visit to an artist or sculptor or a call on the foreign minister to look over the telegrams received during the night.

At 10 o'clock the kaiser is back at the palace, where a minister or chief of some department is awaiting his arrival. Breakfast is served at 11, and it seldom happens that the imperial family breakfasts alone. This is usually the meal to which celebrities are asked, distinguished visitors to Berlin often receiving invitations to be present.

EMPEROR WILLIAM II. AND EMPRESS AUGUSTA VICTORIA.

After breakfast until about 3:30, when the kaiser goes for an afternoon drive along Unter den Linden, daily receptions are held, where high army and naval officers, princes from the various German states and foreign ministers and ambassadors meet the German ruler. Five o'clock tea, at which the empress presides, is an established institution in the kaiser's palace. Dinner occupies only an hour and except on the rarest occasions is a simple affair. From dinner until midnight the kaiser is busy with affairs of state. The above is his regular daily programme when he is well.



CROWN PRINCE WILLIAM.

Emperor William II. was married on Feb. 27, 1881, to Princess Augusta Victoria of Sleswick-Holstein, the present empress, and seven children have been born to them, six sons and one daughter. Crown Prince William, heir to the imperial crown of Germany, celebrated the attainment of his majority three years ago last May, when he reached the age of eighteen.

He is strong, healthy, versed in all manly sports and a well drilled soldier. After going through the military school at Ploen, in Holstein, he received his practical army education in the First guards on foot at Potsdam, rapidly rising until at present he has attained the rank of colonel and is considered by good judges to be proficient in practical service. It is not believed, however, that he has the making of a great soldier in him.

With his majority he was also granted as an imperial fief the little duchy of Oels, in Silesia, which he has since governed. Mentally, it is said, the crown prince does not rise above mediocrity and has not inherited his father's brilliancy and quick perceptive faculties. On the other hand, he is more steady and far less impulsive. While his political convictions are hardly as yet matured, he has taken a strong stand against the Socialists and has earned the ill will of that party.

The crown prince is the best of brothers to his only sister, the Princess Victoria Louise. He romps with her in her childish games, and when she was a baby he spent hours in the nursery with her.

As the only girl of the imperial family the princess has always come in for a great deal of attention from her parents and brothers, her father being devoted to her. Lately the little princess has become interested in cooking and spends two hours every forenoon in a kitchen that has been fitted up for her use in the palace. Besides her three "R's" and the new cooking venture Victoria Louise, who only passed her eleventh birthday last September, is an adept at plain sewing and gives promise of decided musical talent, playing the piano with great skill for one of her years.

The princess likes to be as other little girls when the chance offers, and an amusing story is told about her. On one occasion she escaped the vigilance of her attendants and could not be found. Her nurses scurried through the park as soon as she was missed, trying to find her, but it was not until the royal family was at dinner that the princess came into the state dining room. Before she could be scolded for running away she dropped something from her dress into her mother's lap.

The empress found that she was holding a little pig in her arms, and even the kaiser, who is a stern disciplinarian, could not be angry at the shout of glee that Victoria Louise set up at her mother's astonishment.

Princess Victoria Louise is a blond and has blue eyes, a typical German girl, and looks like her father.

In the event of the kaiser's death Crown Prince William will succeed to the imperial crown of Germany, thus becoming one of the great figures of Europe and of the world. Germany will lose the strong and extraordinary personality of the kaiser, which is so highly respected and even feared in Europe, but it is not likely that Germany will suffer.

Crown Prince William is a tall, slender fellow, with pleasant blue eyes and blond hair, is somewhat vain and considers himself very good looking. He is much handsomer in form than his father and looks well in civilian dress, which the kaiser does not.

Mortgage Sale.

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the first day of November, 1900, made and executed by Electa S Clark, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, New York, on the 2d day of October, 1900, at 9:51 o'clock a. m., in liber 194 of mortgages at page 460, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and

Whereas, the amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice, is the sum of three hundred sixty-three dollars and eleven cents ($363.11), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property described in said mortgage as follows:

"All that tract or parcel of land, situate in the village of Fulton, County of Oswego and State of New York, upon great lot number twenty-nine (29) of the sixteenth township of Scriba's patent, bounded as follows: Beginning in the centre of the Emery road at a point two (2) chains and thirty-five (35) links west from the point of intersection thereof with Burdick street, and running thence westerly along the said Emery road three (3) chains and seven (7) links; thence northerly to the angle in the easterly line of land formerly owned by John C. Babcock; thence easterly four (4) chains and five (5) links to the centre of Burdick street; thence southerly along the centre of Burdick street three (3) chains and fifty-six (56) links; thence westerly about one (1) chain and ninety-three (93) links to the northwest corner of lands occupied by one Townsend; thence southerly along the said Townsend's west line to the place of beginning, reserving a right of way to the well on said premises and the right to draw and use water from said well, and being the same premises conveyed to J. Edith Corrie by deed from James M. Chesbro and wife, recorded in Oswego County Clerk's office in liber 170 of deeds at page 35, and by deed from George W. Wright and wife, recorded in said Clerk's office in liber 172 of deeds at page 518", at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, New York, on the 30th day of January, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Freight Discrimination Denied.

Washington, Dec. 22.—The officials of the Northern Pacific railway deny the statement attributed to Frank Waterhouse, manager of the Boston Steamship company of Seattle, in his recent testimony before the interstate commerce commission that his company had a contract with the Northern Pacific which prohibited that railway company from accepting freight brought in by tramp ships. They assert that it is the general practice of railroad companies to make a concession to establish lines over transient tramp ships.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas, Default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the 1st day of December, 1902, made and executed by Mabelle Root, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage, with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, New York, on the 3d day of December, 1903, at 3:39 o'clock p. m., in Liber 203 of Mortgages, at page 68, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and,

Whereas, The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of eleven hundred seventy-three dollars and seventy-six cents ($1,173.76), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided, and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property, described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as lots numbers six and seven (6 and 7) of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, being twenty-five (25) feet in width on Second street. Also all that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, being part of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, bounded as follows: Beginning on Second street one hundred and twenty-eight (128) feet southerly from Seneca street, running thence easterly one hundred twenty-one and a half (121½) feet; thence southerly twenty-five (25) feet; thence westerly three and a half (3½) feet; thence southerly twelve (12) feet, thence westerly parallel with Oneida street to Second street; thence northerly along Second street thirty-seven (37) feet to the place of beginning," at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego, New York, on the 12th day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated December 16, 1903.

How Wells Clock Strikes.

The great clock of Wells cathedral in England was built in 1322 for Glastonbury abbey and ran 250 years before it was removed to Wells.

The striking mechanism of the clock is very curious and elaborate. Above the dial is a little battlemented turret, with four knights on horseback, armed with lances, standing guard round it. At some distance from the clock itself, near the end of the transept, is a life size painted figure, quaintly ugly, with a battleax in its hand, while outside the cathedral is a second large dial, guarded by two tall figures of knights in armor.

When the gilt stars point to the hour, the painted figure (Jack Blandivir, as he is called by the country people about Wells, no one knows why) strikes the quarters by striking his heels against two bells behind him and then tolls the great bell of the clock by striking it with his battleax. The two standing knights in armor strike the outside bell with their halberds, and at the first stroke of the great bell the four knights on horseback over the inside dial start at a gallop and rush round and round the turret in a mimic tournament, in which one knight is thrown from his horse and regains his seat in every revolution.

A Timely Suggestion.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is certain to be needed before the Winter is over, and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system. In almost every instance a severe cold may be warded off by taking this remedy freely as soon as the first indication of the cold appears. There is no danger in giving it to children for it contains no harmful substance. It is pleasant to take—both adults and children like it. Buy it and you will get the best. It always cures. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Out of Tune.

A piano tuner employed by a city firm was sent to a certain suburb to tune a piano. He found the instrument in good condition and not in the least need of attention.

A few days later the firm received a letter from the owner of the piano, a lady of musical intention, stating that the piano had not been properly tuned. It was no better than before.

After receiving a reprimand from his employer the hapless tuner made another trip to the suburbs and again tested every note, only to find, as before, no fault with the instrument. This time he told the lady so.

"Yes," she said, "it does seem all right, doesn't it, when you play on it but as soon as I begin to sing it gets all out of tune again."

What Shall We Have for Dessert?

Silenced Mamma.

"Now," said the anxious mother, "you do not want to marry that reporter. Think of having a husband who never gets home until 2 or 3 in the morning."

"But," said the shrinking maiden, "aren't all husbands like that? Papa is not a reporter, and—and yet"—

But the anxious mother declined to listen.

CONSTIPATION CURED.

A Barrytown, N. Y., Man's Experience with Cal-cura Solvent.

Dr. David Kennedy's NEW Medicine Cured Him Promptly.

Constipation leads to worse. Often it is the cause of appendicitis. Always it leads to dangerous chronic disease. It should not be neglected, nor should it be temporarily relieved with drastic purgatives. Here is a case in point:

Mr. C. S. Osterhoudt, of Barrytown, N. Y., was distressed with indigestion, chronic constipation and kidney trouble for four years. He tried many medicines without relief. He heard of Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's new medicine, used it and began to improve rapidly. All of his old complaints have disappeared and he owes everything to Cal-cura Solvent. $1.00; all druggists.

At the Reception.

"I'm anxious to get the names of all present," said the reporter. "Will you oblige me"—

"Oh," said the meek man, "you may put down 'Mrs. Henry Peck and husband.'"

"You mean 'Mr. and Mrs. Henry Peck,' don't you?"

"I would prefer that," he replied, with a furtive glance over his shoulder, "but for goodness' sake don't say I gave it to you that way."

The Persian Way.

They have curious methods in Persia of insuring law and order. A failure of the crops had resulted in a dear loaf, which much enraged the populace. In order to quell the tumult the shah ordered a number of bakers to receive several hundred strokes with a rod, besides a few minor little attentions, such as the amputation of an ear or two.

How to Prevent Croup.

It will be good news to the mothers of small children to learn that croup can be prevented. The first sign of croup is hoarseness. A day or two before the attack the child becomes hoarse. This is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy freely as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the rough cough appears, and it will dispell all symptoms of croup. In this way all danger and anxiety may be avoided. This remedy is used by many thousands of mothers and has never been known to fail. It is, in fact, the only remedy that can always be depended upon and that is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Great Scheme.

"Have you decided yet upon a name for that new suburb of yours?"

"Yes. I am going to call it Lookout."

"I can't see anything striking or original about that."

Javanese Music.

The Javanese musical instruments are made mostly of bamboo. They also played upon a pipe or whistle, which was about three feet long and six inches across. This sounded like the hollow roar of a lion. Another was a bundle of tubes of different lengths, which covered the small boy who carried it like a big saddle. A log hewn out with two strings stretched across it served as a drum. A zither of sixteen strings and a mandolin of two completed their outdoor band, while inside one could hear other music made by gongs of wonderfully pure and beautiful tone.

One Hundred Dollars a Box

is the value H. C. Tisdale, Summerton, S. C., places on DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. He says: "I had the piles for 20 years. I tried many doctors and medicines, but all failed except DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It cured me." It is a combination of the healing properties of Witch Hazel with antiseptics and emollients; relieves and permanently cures blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles, sores, cuts, bruises eczema, salt rheum and all skin diseases. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

A Donkey Decoy.

A traveler in central Africa tells of a native hunter of the Wanderobe tribe who was the possessor of a most accomplished donkey, which, with an antelope's horns strapped to its head, its body covered with a skin or painted to resemble the animal its master intended to stalk that day, was the means of deluding many an unwary creature into falling a victim to the poisoned arrows of the hunter crouching behind his four footed assistant.

Good for Children.

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief in all cases of Cough, Croup and LaGrippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. It draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes and cures permanently by enabling the lungs to contribute pure life giving and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood and tissues. Dr. Armstrong of Delia, Tex., prescribes it daily and says there is no better cough remedy made. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

RUDOLPH'S DAUGHTER.

Princess Elizabeth Marie, Who, It Is Alleged, Shot an Actress.

Princess Elizabeth Marie of Windisch-Graetz, who, it is alleged, recently shot an actress in the apartments of her husband, Prince Otto, at Prague, Bohemia, is one of the most beautiful women of the Austrian court and the granddaughter of two reigning European monarchs.

Prince Otto is about thirty-two years old and before his marriage to the Archduchess Elizabeth Marie of Austria was a simple lieutenant in the First Uhlan regiment. The marriage was a love match, and the emperor of Austria, whose favorite granddaughter she was, at first opposed it. Before the wedding, however, the archduchess renounced her right of succession to the dual throne of Austria and Hungary.

The princess is the only child of the unfortunate Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria, whose tragic death stirred the whole world in 1889. Rudolph and the Countess Marie Vetsera were found dead together at the royal hunting lodge, Meyerling, the supposition being that the prince had killed the countess and then committed suicide. Princess Elizabeth Marie was only six years old when her father died.

Her mother, Princess Stephanie, who is the daughter of Leopold, king of the Belgians, took a second husband a few years ago, Count Lonyay, a Hungarian nobleman. King Leopold was much incensed because of the marriage of his daughter to a social inferior and for a time refused to receive either.

Prince Otto Windisch-Graetz belongs to one of those former sovereign houses known as mediatised, the members of which differ from the ordinary nobles even when the latter are of ducal rank in that they are free to marry into reigning families on a footing of perfect equality. The union of the archduchess and the prince was therefore no misalliance, although she became the niece of the celebrated ballet dancer, Marie Taglioni, who years ago married Prince Joseph Windisch-Graetz.

When Princess Elizabeth Marie was married the Austrian emperor gave to the bride securities valued at $1,000,000, a yearly allowance of $250,000 and jewels worth another million. She also inherited a great fortune from her father, Crown Prince Rudolph.

THE MANTILLA A FAD.

It Is Very Charming, but Is Also Very Expensive.

Maltese lace, which has been so much employed as a dress trimming of late, is now made into fascinating mantillas which smart women are learning to wear, Spanish fashion, in the evening.

A beautiful Maltese lace mantilla was recently worn by Mrs. Collis P. Huntington, widow of the Pacific railroad king.

A MALTESE LACE MANTILLA.

So exquisitely lovely and becoming was this fetching little bit of lace that it has become a fad among New York's famous Four Hundred.

There is no fear that the Maltese lace mantilla will ever become too popular. A scarf like the one illustrated takes seven months to make, and naturally the price is in proportion to the work, which places it beyond the ken of the average woman.

No two mantillas are alike in design, hence their assured exclusiveness.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR.

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

Soldiers and Weight.

These facts are given by two officers who conducted experiments to determine the effect of weight on soldiers in full marching order. The five men who volunteered as subjects marched a distance of fifteen miles and eighty-two yards. The different weights carried were forty-eight, fifty-nine and sixty-five pounds. With the first weight it was found that a man at a moderate temperature could cover the distance with ease; in hot or close weather slight inconvenience was experienced, which disappeared when the march was over, so that the men could begin the next day as well as ever.

The weight of fifty-nine pounds did no harm in moderate weather, but proved fatiguing when it was hot, and effects were felt the next day. When the men carried the third weight the ill effects were very marked.

Willing to Assist.

There was a worthy Irish member of parliament who was so generous that a request for financial assistance was never refused. But his checks had one little drawback—they were never honored. The shortcoming naturally in time became known, but it did not affect his popularity. A visitor to the district, hearing of the member's peculiarity, asked a leading politician how it was that public faith in the member was not shaken. "Why, sure, it is because he shows his willingness to assist but for lack of funds," was the reply.

Mme. Roland's Request.

When Mme. Roland was on the scaffold she asked for pen and paper to note the peculiar thoughts that hovered about her on the last journey. It is a pity they were refused, for in a tranquil mind thoughts rise up at the close of life hitherto unthinkable, like blessed inward voices alighting in glory on the summits of the past.—Goethe.

Letting Him Down Easy.

"'Cause, ma, I ain't forgot what you told me—to always take sister's part."

A Diplomatic Official.

During the reign of Emperor Napoleon III. he and the empress visited Normandy and had arranged to spend a couple of days at Evreux. M. Janvier de la Monte, who was the prefect, learned that the revolutionaries intended to hiss the sovereigns as they passed, and so he summoned the leaders of the movement and told them that he knew of their plot. "If you carry out your plan," said he to them, "you will get six months in prison. If you do not your friends will accuse you of cowardice and treason. As a way out of the difficulty I propose to lock you up at once until the emperor has gone." The conspirators accepted the terms offered them, and so the emperor was greeted only by cheers, as the revolutionaries, frightened at the arrest of their chiefs, had not dared to utter a sound. After the emperor and empress had gone the prefect went in person to release his prisoners, who had had such a pleasant time that they greeted him with cries of "Long live the prefect!" to which M. Janvier de la Monte, who was a man of wit, replied, "My friends, do not overdo it."

New York's "Diamond Rooms."

Only men and women who want to purchase an expensive set of jewels, say $10,000 worth or upward, get a glimpse of the "diamond rooms," as they are called, in the big New York jewelers' shops. Gems worth less than that usually are kept in show cases and examined in trays at the counters. But if a customer wants to make a larger purchase—a diamond necklace with pearl pendant worth from $40,000 to $50,000, for instance—he is shown into a parlor where he can examine the jewels more at his leisure and see the salesman weigh them on the most carefully balanced scales. These parlors as a rule are luxuriously but simply furnished and are convenient to the safes.

It is not an unusual thing during the holiday season for a salesman in a well established store to make three or four sales a day ranging from $12,000 to $30,000.—New York Press.

250th Anniversary of Land Deal.

Barrington, R. I., Dec. 22.—Simultaneously with the observation of Forefathers' day in New England the residents of a tract in this territory known as Sowams celebrated the 250th anniversary of the purchase of the land from the Indians. The section includes Barrington and portions of Bristol and East Providence and also extends over the line into Massachusetts. Chiefs Massasoit and King Philip were the Indians party to the agreement. Miles Standish, William Bradford, John Adams and Thomas Prince were among the white signers of the treaty.

Possible Tie-Up of Glove Industry.

Gloversville, Dec. 22.—The prospects are bright for another general tie-up of the glove industry of Fulton county affecting in the neighborhood of 12,000 persons. For some weeks a series of conferences have been held between the Glove Manufacturers' association and representatives of the International Glove Table Cutters' union over a clause in the schedule of wages submitted by the manufacturers, allowing of no discrimination as regards union and non-union glove cutters.

Mail Clerk Arrested.

New York, Dec. 22.—William E. S. Melling, a clerk in the foreign department of the postoffice, was arrested charged by Postoffice Inspector Michael B. Boyle with robbing the mails. Inspector Boyle says he saw Melling fumbling at an envelope and arrested him. The letter, which evidently contained money, was found to be partly opened.

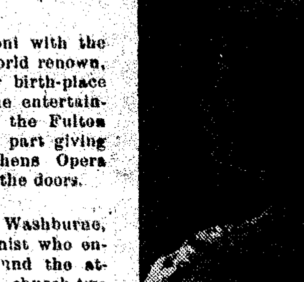
STEPHENS OPERA HOUSE

Fultoni Recital.

For the exclusive benefit of the Fulton City Hospital Fund, Madame Fultoni will give a song recital Thursday Evening, Dec. 31, 1903, in Stephens Opera House.



Ranking as does Fultoni with the singers of National and world renown, and because Fulton is her birth-place and home, and because the entertainment is for the benefit of the Fulton City Hospital (all who take part giving their services free), Stephens Opera House should be packed to the doors.

Miss Carolyn Agnes Washburne, who will assist, is the violinist who enchanted and held spellbound the attendants at the First M. E. church two weeks ago. She is included in the program for several violin solos and will play two obligatos with Fultoni.

MISS CAROLYN AGNES WASHBURNE
Violinist of Syracuse Will Assist.

The Syracuse Post-Standard said of Miss Washburne's part in a concert:—"Miss Washburne contributed the only violin number, Schubert's 'Tarantelle,' which she played with a touch of professional assurance. Her climaxes were especially well approached and taken."

The Syracuse Herald said:—"Miss Carolyn Agnes Washourne had the only violin solo on the program, 'Hanser's Rhapsodie Hongraise,' a difficult work, calling for a command of technique which was well met, the violinist playing brilliantly and easily, deserving well the applause which followed her effort."

MRS. W. L. SAWTELLE WILL BE THE ACCOMPANIST.

A. Bristol & Son will furnish a McPhale Piano for this Concert.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Attorney George Fanning of New York city has been enjoying a few days sojourn with his parents in this city.

Mr. and Mrs William Green were called to Homer last week by the death of their sister, Mrs. White, who was formerly Miss Lillian Pullen of this city.

Attorney James R. Somers of New York city was called to Oswego on legal business last week, and he made his mother, Mrs. Thomas Somers, a pleasant visit in this city.

The John Doe proceedings instituted by Hope Grange of Southwest Oswego some time ago, will be continued, it is reported. The proceedings were not productive of anything before and the supposition is that the present activity will not amount to any more.

The class of 1902, F. H. S, enjoyed a straw ride to the home of Miss Anna Sinclair in Lysander on Monday evening, where they were royally entertained with supper and an evening of mirth.

There will be a free supper served in Grace Chapel this Wednesday afternoon to hungry children, and in the evening adults will be fed. Preparations have been made to such an extent that no one need go hungry to bed tonight within our city.

M. Linn Bruce of New York city has been appointed receiver for the tannery which formerly belonged to the Henry Nichols estate, but is now owned by Gordon & Myers of New York. The value of the tannery is said to be about $25,000, and the property will be sold.

The coal office of Henderson, Thomson & Co., was entered between Saturday night and Monday morning and the safe door, which had been left unlocked, was damaged and the lock broken, the thieves evidently not noticing that the combination was not set. Nothing was taken from the office.

Judge Ray of the United States District Court, handed down a decision on Saturday directing trial in the Supreme Court, Oswego county, of the action brought by the Oswego Falls Pulp and Paper Company against the United Box Board and Paper Company, to retain possession of its present plant at Fulton.

Herkimer dispatch to Syracuse Post-Standard: George Jones of Little Falls was arrested in that city this afternoon by Deputy Sheriff E. E. Kelly on a bench warrant charging arson. Jones was employed in the store of B. C. Brown, a furniture dealer and undertaker in Little Falls. Two fires broke out in the store during the month of November, and the indictment accuses Jones of being implicated in their origin.

Mr. Samuel Green, Humane Officer for this city, has been requested by Mr. J. H. Townsend to recover his children for him. Mr. Townsend had as assistant bill distributor, a fellow by the name of Burchim, who boarded at his home. Recently Mr. Townsend told his boarder to look elsewhere for a boarding place with the result that Mrs. Townsend insisted upon his remaining or that she would leave, which she did, taking her children with her. She has leased a house on the flats and it is reported that Burchim is boarding there.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

The humorous and dramatic entertainment to be given under the auspices of the Helping Hand society for the benefit of the Mount Pleasant church, has been postponed and will be held on Jan. 4. The entertainment will be given by Miss Ina Isabelle Millward of Emerson college of Oratory, Boston. The program will consist of humorous and dramatic selections, varied by musical numbers by the South Scriba musicians. All who heard Miss Millward last year will be glad to hear her again, as the program will be one that will please everyone. The entertainment will begin at 7:30 p. m. in the church. All come and enjoy a pleasant evening.

The P. of I. will meet at the home of Mr. Truman Grant on Thursday evening. The election of officers will take place and it is hoped there will be a good attendance.

Miss Edna Distin entertained on Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. Howard Hall of St. Paul, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Austin of Fulton spent Christmas with friends here.

Mr. Arthur Distin and Miss Florence Distin of Syracuse are guests of their parents during the holiday vacation.

Mrs. Jasper Rowlee was the recent guest of her sister, Mrs. S. Rowlee, in South Hannibal.

Mr. E. Delos Distin has received a letter notifying him that he is to deliver the Welcome address at the Farmers' Institute to be held in Oswego in the near future.

Several of the young people from Fulton were entertained at the home of Mr. Arthur Lewis on Christmas night.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Sanford are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Fred Simons, at Hoosic Falls.

Mr. Peter Ward is in a critical condition.

A son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bartlett.

Miss Elorence Frost continues very ill. Little hopes are entertained for her recovery.

Mrs. Cora Hubbard and children of Bowens Corners, spent Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Simons.

Sick Headache,

—largely a woman's complaint—is chiefly caused by indigestion, constipation and torpid liver. You can prevent it by taking a dose of Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. David Kennedy's new medicine, once every few days immediately after a meal. Pleasant to the taste. No nausea or griping. Write to the Cal-cura company, Rondout, N. Y., for a book and free sample bottle.

Board of Supervisors.

By Mr. Coville: Directing that a tax of fifty cents be levied on all dogs in the county, one dollar for the second dog owned and two dollars for all female dogs. Adopted.

By Mr. Palmer: Levying $60.86 to pay Richland's expenses for ballots. Adopted.

Mr. Palmer moved the adoption of the report of the Committee to Apportion School Commissioners' expenses. Carried.

By Mr. Palmer: Levying $1.80 against property of Mrs. William Hinsdale, Granby, for cutting brush. Adopted.

The Board of Supervisors were addressed by T. Cole Filson, Superintendent of the Jefferson Farm School, in reference to the school. He urged an appropriation of $500 for conducting the school, saying that of late he had not received proper support from the charitably inclined people of Watertown. He said the school was an ideal place for truants, and he expected appropriations from Jefferson, St. Lawrence and Lewis counties. Mr. Distin said that if the school was all right it should receive the hearty support of the authorities of Northern New York. He said it had been the custom to send children from Volney and Fulton to a truant school down near New York at a great expense. He questioned, however, whether the Board had a right to make an appropriation for such a cause.

Mr. Spoon presented the bond of County Clerk-elect Lewis. The sureties are W. E. Lewis, Levi Lewis, Thomas Wilkinson, Charles Patchen, Robert Falls, R. G. Wilson, D. H. Tuttle, Fred Jamieson, A. L. Jennings, M. J. Reed, J. S. Clelland, Amboy. The amount of he bond is $5,000.

Mr. Palmer moved a levy on Granby of $102.25 for election expenses. Levy ordered.

By Mr. Palmer: That collectors' warrants be made returnable on March 1, next. Adopted.

$100 Reward,

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Notice of Sale of Franchise.

Notice is hereby given that a franchise for a street surface railroad within the city will be sold at public auction at 3 p. m., Dec. 26, 1903, at the council room in the City Hall, in the city of Fulton N. Y., to the highest bidder for a sum of not less than $1,000, which is the sum fixed by the Board of Public Works of the city of Fulton as a fair compensation to the city for such franchise.

Each person, firm or corporation desiring to bid on said franchise shall, before the bidding is opened, and before a bid will be accepted, deposit with the city chamberlain of the city of Fulton ($1,000) one thousand dollars in cash, or a certified check of that amount, payable to William P. Hillick, city chamberlain, to be and as for liquidated damages to the city in the event of the failure of the successful bidder to file an acceptance of said franchise within ten days after the sale thereof, and to file the bonds required by the terms of said franchise within the times therein prescribed, and to pay the amount bid for said franchise within the time prescribed therein; and in the event of said failure, the said sum of ($1,000) one thousand dollars shall be forfeited to the city and paid into the Improvement Fund, otherwise such [illegible] Copies of [illegible] and the conditions upon which the same is granted will be furnished to all persons, firms or corporations desiring to bid thereon upon application to William M. Hinsdale, city clerk, Fulton, N. Y.

By order of the Common Council.

Dated Dec. 7, 1903.

W. M. HINSDALE, City Clerk.

Ayes—Burden, Brooker, Hunter, Waugh

No—Russell. Carried.

I hereby certify that the above resolution was duly adopted at a meeting of the Common Council of the city of Fulton, held at the City Hall on the 7th day of December, 1903.

W. M. HINSDALE, City Clerk.

Approved this 7th day of December, 1903.

J. A. FOSTER, Mayor.

At a meeting of the Common Council, held Saturday, Dec. 26, Alderman Brooker introduced the following and moved its adoption:

Whereas, A temporary injunction has been served on this Common Council and the respective members thereof, restraining the sale of the franchise advertised and noticed to be this day sold by this Board, and authorizing the said sale to be adjourned until Jan. 9, 1904; be it

Resolved, That the said sale be adjourned until Jan. 9, 1904, at 2 p. m.; that the city clerk cause a notice of the said adjourned sale to be published in The Fulton Times and The Observer in issues of the said papers until the said 9th day of January, 1904.

I hereby certify that the above resolution was duly adopted at a meeting of the Common Council of the city of Fulton, held at the City Hall on the 26th day of December, 1903.

W. M. HINSDALE, City Clerk.

Approved this 26th day of December, 1903, and I hereby designate the above papers for the above purposes.

Public rhetorical exercises were held in the High School the afternoon preceding the holiday vacation. They were in charge of the second division of the senior class.

The Board of Education has had the Pre-Academic room redecorated. It affords a glaring contrast with the other rooms of the building.

The public schools opened on Monday. All the teachers of the Fourth street school had returned, but the stormy weather detained many pupils who live outside the city.

Eight framed pictures have been received from the Regents for the High School department.

A laboratory fitted for individual work will be a reality before the opening of the next term.

Injunction Argument Postponed.

Upon the consent of all parties, the argument in the motion to continue the temporary injunction restraining the Mayor and Common Council from granting a trolley franchise, which was to have been argued in Special Term before Justice Wright in Oswego on Saturday, was postponed until Saturday, Jan. 9.

Broom Factory for Fulton.

This Wednesday evening the Chamber of Commerce will hold a special meeting for the purpose of taking some action relative to the locating of a branch factory of the International Broom Co., in this city. Among the gentlemen who will be present and address the meeting will be Mr. Jarus of New York city, representing the parent company; Mr. Wilcox of Syracuse, who is desirous that a branch be established in this or a nearby city; Mr. Calkins, who is Industrial agent for the N. Y. C. R. R. Within a few years the International Broom Co. will control the broom industry of the United States and if a branch could be induced to locate here it would mean a very great deal for Fulton and surrounding country. It will surely be a splendid thing and should not be allowed to slip through our fingers.

Members of the Chamber and all who are at all interested, are urged to attend the meeting and become informed as to this proposition.

"That Man and I"

Mrs. Francis Hodgson Burnett has just delivered to Mr. Frank L. Perley the final installment of her latest play, "That Man and I". It is with this vehicle that Robert Hilliard is to be launched again as a star. This will be by far the most pretentious production that Mr. Perley has ever undertaken. The cast that Mr. Perley has engaged to support Mr. Hilliard represent the best known people on the stage. Miss Maude Fealy, so often recorded as being "the youngest leading lady" is to have a part wherein it is possible for her to shine with greatest grace. Mr. H. Reeves Smith has been especially brought from England for this production. The play is to be staged by Frederick Arthur Stanley, England's greatest stage manager.

Artists have been dispatched to North Carolina to make sketches of the locality, in order that the scenic environments may be aptly atmospheric Nothing is being left undone in order to continue the unintermittent success of Mrs. Burnett as a successful playwright. The premier is to take place about the middle of January, and after a week on the road will go into New York in order to obtain the Metropolitan seal of success.

Building Forty Stories High.

The tallest building on earth is to be erected on lower Broadway, New York, if present plans are carried out. With five stories below the street level, forty stories high from the entrance to the top floor, and surmounted by a sixty-foot tower, the gigantic new building will have a total height of 615 feet, making it ever twice as high as the Flatiron building and almost as tall again as the Park Row building, which at present holds the record. This building is to extend one full block on Broadway and its cost, including the site, wi l reach 10,000,000.

Dyspepsia Makes One Afraid to Eat.

It whips us with a lash braided from nature's own violated laws. It turns a pleasure into a torment. But Calcura Solvent, Dr. David Kennedy's new medicine, cures dyspepsia. Sunday Morning Fire.

About nine o'clock on Sunday morning the fire department was called to the beautiful brick residence of Mr. J. C. O'Brien, in Third street, by a fire which had started in the cellar where an employe had been thawing out water pipes which were between two partitions. The draught carried the fire through the partition and it followed the openings between floors and outer and inner walls until it reached the roof, where the most damage was done. The household furnishings were removed to places of safety by neighbors and friends, and the fire was under control soon after the arrival of the firemen. The most damage was done with water, which had to be used freely, owing to the fact that the flames were hemmed in between walls and floors.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien wish to extend their earnest thanks to all who so kindly assisted in the care of their property, and especially to the firemen, who displayed excellent judgment in the management of the stubbornly threatening flames.

JANUARY CLEARANCE

Suits, Furs, Dress Goods and All Departments

The first season's business of this great new store has been phenominal. Enormous buying each week has been necessary to supplement the vast new stocks with which we opened fifteen weeks ago. As a result we have many broken lines—in quantity great as the complete stocks of many stores.

We are going to close everything out in the next week or two. We shall not carry anything over to another season.

Every new season we are going to start in with stocks new, clean and fresh as those with which we opened this store. We cannot tell you here of a tithe of the inducements that we offer.

Women's apparel is the main subject. Timely and seasonable. No job lots in the cloak store—or in any department. All goods are practically fresh from the manufacturers—no stock-room loungers. Most of them bought—and made—within thirty days. Here is a rough outline sketch of the reductions:

THE SUITS

Lot 1—$70 to $100 Suits—Sale price $49 20—Long coat and medium length. Blouse and straight front; broadcloth and English Kersey. These suits are handsomely braided and Persian trimmed; fancy and plain tailored skirts drop silk lining. Also a few evening costumes in Crepe de Chine, Liberty satin and other soft materials

Lot 2—$50 and $69.50 Suits—Sale price $44.28—Materials Zibeline, broadcloth, cheviots and Scotch mixtures, light and dark colors; Etons, English cut coat, corset coat, long and blouse front, with dress length or walking skirt. Silk drop lining.

Lot 3—$40 to $49.50 Suits—Sale price $29 86—Cheviots, broadcloths, Zibelines, Scotch mixtures, Venetian cloth, covert and all the latest materials; dark and light colors; blouse with small or large fancy cape; corset coat, stitched front, 26-inch coat, walking skirt and dress length with train.

Lot 4—$30 to $39.50 Suits—Sale price $23.80—Best quality, all shades, light and dark mixtures and plain, instep length, latest cut coat. Full line of sizes.

Lot 5—$25 to $31.50 Suits—Sale price $18 80—Blouse, Eton and English cut coat, long and medium length; taffeta silk lining, fancy cape, trimmed with bands of satin and fancy braid. Skirt made with nine gore flare; a perfect hanging skirt

Lot 6—$18 to $24.88 Suits—Sale price $14 40—Brown, blue, grey, light and dark mixtures, handsomely tailored; the best quality of material, fancy trimmed and stitched,

Lot 7—$17.60 Suits—Sale price, $11 8—Extra fine quality Cheviot, Venetians and Scotch mixtures. Full line of stylish suits and colors to choose from.

Lot 8—$14 50 Suits—Sale price $9 80—A good line of styles and materials, dark and light colors, plain and mixtures. Instep length skirt.

Lot 9—$9.67 Suits—Sale price $5.70—Plain and Scotch mixtures, blouse and straight front, with or without capes; nicely tailored:

THE WAISTS

Lot 1—50c and 57c Waists—Sale price 38c—Alabatross with neat stitching, full front and sleeve, assorted colors. Also black sateen, finely tucked front and back.

Lot 2—98c Waists—Sale price 69c—Sateen, entire front finished with fine tucks.

Lot 3—$1 and $1.25 Waists—Sale price 73c—Wool flannel, neatly stitched, excellent style; blue, red and black. Red and blue flannel, trimmed with pleats each side of front. Tucked back. Assorted sizes.

Lot 4—98c and $1.10 Waists—Sale price 85c—Black sateen, tailor stitched, pleats; full sleeve. Black sateen, six stitched bands from waist line to bust line, forming yoke

Lot 5—$1.68 Waists—Sale price 98c—Black brilliantine, neatly stitched; full front and sleeve

Lot 6—$2.00 and $2.50 Waists—Sale price $1 44—French flannel, stitched straps down front, pearl buttons, old rose, red, blue and black. Neatly stitched and pleated

Lot 7—Our $1.96 Leader—Sale price $1.50. Black brilliantine, tucked and hemstitched front, duchess effect

Lot 8—$2.43 and $2.75 Waists—Sale price $1 88—Black and blue Brilliantine with white polkadots, tucked back front tucked in clusters. White brilliantine with black polkadots, a very neat waist.

Lot 9—$2.98 Waists Sale Price $1 96—French flannel, embroidered front, very pretty designs.

Lot 10—$4.50 to $4.86 Waists—Sale price $2 95—Plain tailored waists red, black or blue white pipings down front and on sleeves and collar. Twelve rows of stitching down front. Dark red with white polkadots, stitched, trimmed with narrow bands of black velvet. Challie Waists with dainty rose-bud pattern with bands of nile green silk down front with tab collar. Brilliantine, twelve rows stitching down back to waist line; trimmed with pipings; tab collar of silk. Colors blue, red, white and black.

The Largest Store in Oswego County

First and Cayuga Streets - - - - Fulton, N. Y.

DIED.

Francis J. Burns, aged 87, former president of the New York State Volunteer Firemen's Association, died last week at his home in Oswego.

Everet Barnes, a life-long resident of Granby, died on Sunday at his home near Hinmanville. A widow, two daughters and one son, all of Granby, survive.

Sarah Riggins, a former cook in Falley Seminary, died at the County House in Mexico on Sunday. The body was brought to Fulton and interred in Mount Adnah on Tuesday.

Augustus Durgan, aged 62, died at his home in Utica street on Monday afternoon, after a long illness. The funeral will be held from his late home on Thursday afternoon at one o'clock, and interment will be made in Mount Adnah.

Charles Nichols, aged 88, died at the home of his son, Mr. Clinton Nichols, in Sixth street, on Dec. 31, after a brief illness. The funeral was held from his late home on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the Rev. W. L. Sawtelle officiating. Interment was made in Mount Adnah.

Nancy Cooper, widow of the late James Cooper, died at the home of her nephew, Mr. Howland, at Bethel, on Wednesday. The funeral was held from Mr. Howland's home on Saturday and interment was made in the Ira Union cemetery. The deceased was a member of the First M. E. church in this city and owned the house on the corner of Fourth and Oneida streets.

Florence M., wife of Mr. William Bero, died at her home in Second street on Wednesday evening, after an illness of a few days with typhoid fever. The deceased was 25 years of age and had been clerking in the S. Waldhorn store up to the time of her illness. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon and interment was made in Mount Adnah. A husband and six-year-old daughter survive.

Charles A. Davis, a former resident of this city where he conducted a marble yard, died at his home in Grape street, Syracuse, on Monday night, after a four weeks illness with a complication of diseases. The deceased was aged 52, and is survived by his widow, a brother and a sister. The funeral will be private.

Daniel D. Eames, aged 80, was suddenly summoned by death on Wednesday while visiting at the home of his brother in Constableville, N. Y. The deceased, accompanied by his son from Michigan, and his daughter, Mrs. Arnold, from Bowens Corners, left Fulton on Wednesday morning, and had only been at the home of the relative whom they had journeyed to visit, for a short time when he suffered a stroke of apoplexy, from the effects of which he did not rally, dying within a few hours. The body was brought to the undertaking rooms of N. R. Cole in this city on Saturday, and were later conveyed to the late home of the deceased, about three miles east of this city, from which the funeral was held on Tuesday at one o'clock. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah. Mr. Eames was one of the best known and most highly respected residents of this vicinity. He was a charter member of Volney Grange and was an officer in the Grange insurance company. He had resided in the home from which he was buried for over forty years.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Supervisors' Organization.

The Board of Supervisors at their banquet in Oswego on Wednesday night, accepted the suggestion of Chairman Glynn that a permanent organization be effected, of which all Supervisors and ex Supervisors may become members. The object of the organization is purely social, and for the purpose of keeping men who have served on the Board in touch with each other. The following Supervisors have been appointed a committee to arrange the details: J. W. Distin, Volney; W. D. Streeter, Richland; F. A. Glynn, Oswego; E. L. Huntington, Mexico; Joseph R. Gill, R. L. Moore, W. H Selleck, Oswego.

STEPHENS OPERA HOUSE.

Thelma

will be seen at the Opera House on Wednesday, Jan. 13. This play is now well advanced in its third successful season, and has lost none of its powers to attract by repeated presentation. It is a play of many strongly drawn scenes, among the most dramatic and telling being the "tomb scene" Corelli is noted for her conception of weird characters and is an adept in surrounding them with atmosphere suitable to the theme on which she builds, and suitable to the type she draws. We are given all the assurance of the management of the attraction that the several players to be seen shall fully meet all of the exacting requirements of the play, and the cast is said to be much superior to that of former years.

The Moonshiner's Daughter.

Among the attractions billed for presentation in the near future is "The Moonshiner's Daughter," which will be given at the Opera House on Saturday, Jan. 9. This play is recognized as one of the best melodramas now on the road and has been playing to great business in houses all over the country. "The Moonshiner's Daughter" is a realistic presentation of the doings and dangers of locating and destroying illicit stills by the revenue men in the mountain districts of Kentucky and Tennessee, containing a story of noble heroism and a recital of brave deeds, an exhibition of recklessness, courage, nerve of the Moonshiners and how the women can shoot; a romantic love story prevails throughout and is so cleverly combined with the sensational features that a truly dramatic success has resulted. There are four acts and eight scenes and each is equipped with a scenic environment. Plenty of happy fun which furnishes many hearty laughs. Specialties throughout, portrayed by a cast that have won distinction heretofore in other prominent productions. Prices, 25, 35 and 50 cents. Seats now on sale at Watson's and Pollard's stores.

In recognition of his long and fruitful labors in promoting the fine arts in America, Dr. George F. Comfort, director of the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts, has been elected to membership in the Society of Arts, London. This is one of the oldest and is the most comprehensive in scope of the learned societies of Great Britain, being antedated when it was founded in 1754 only by the Royal Society and the Society of Antiquarians. For a long time it filled alone a field which is now occupied by over fifty societies for the promotion of special branches of art, science and industry, most of which owe their origin and early development to the stimulus given by the Society of Arts.

Board of Supervisors Adjourn.

The Board finished its business on Wednesday, Dec. 30, and adjourned, and the banquet in the evening was a successful ending to a successful session. A large amount of business has been transacted by the Supervisors and the session has been one of, if not the shortest on record.

Mortgage Sale.

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the first day of November, 1900, made and executed by Electa S Clark, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, New York, on the 2d day of October, 1900, at 9:51 o'clock a. m., in liber 194 of mortgages at page 460, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and

Whereas, the amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice, is the sum of three hundred sixty-three dollars and eleven cents ($363.11), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property described in said mortgage as follows:

"All that tract or parcel of land, situate in the village of Fulton, County of Oswego and State of New York, upon great lot number twenty-nine (29) of the sixteenth township of Scriba's patent, bounded as follows: Beginning in the centre of the Emery road at a point two (2) chains and thirty-five (35) links west from the point of intersection thereof with Burdick street, and running thence westerly along the said Emery road three (3) chains and seven (7) links; thence northerly to the angle in the easterly line of land formerly owned by John C Babcock; thence easterly four (4) chains and five (5) links to the centre of Burdick street; thence southerly along the centre of Burdick street three (3) chains and fifty-six (56) links; thence westerly about one (1) chain and ninety-three (93) links to the northwest corner of lands occupied by one Townsend; thence southerly along the said Townsend's west line to the place of beginning, reserving a right of way to the well on said premises and the right to draw and use water from said well, and being the same premises conveyed to J. Edith Corrie by deed from James M. Chesbro and wife, recorded in Oswego County Clerk's office in liber 170 of deeds at page 35, and by deed from George W. Wright and wife, recorded in said Clerk's office in liber 174 of deeds at page 515", at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego New York, on the 30th day of January, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgagor, Robert H. Stowe. Mortgagee, Mrs. C. C. Pettis. Mortgage dated August 14, 1903, and recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the Clerk's office of Oswego County, N. Y., on the 15th day of August, 1903, at 8:25 a. m., in Liber 204 of Mortgages, at page 528. The sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is fifty one dollars and nineteen cents ($51.19), being the whole sum secured by said mortgage. (Said Mortgagee above named, also holds two prior mortgages upon the same premises, on which is unpaid the sum of $400, together with interest on $150 from February 14, 1903, and on $250, from March 18, 1903.)

The mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, and State of New York, known and described as Lot No five (5) of block five hundred and four (504), according to the map of the village of Fulton on file in Oswego County Clerk's office. Default having been made in the payment of the sum secured to be paid by said mortgage, and no action having been brought to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof; therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained, recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said mortgaged property at public auction, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, N Y., on the 2d day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said sale will be made subject to the lein of the above mentioned prior mortgages.

Dated, January 6, 1904.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas, Default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the 1st day of December, 1902, made and executed by Mabelle Root, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage, with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, New York, on the 3d day of December, 1903, at 3:39 o'clock p. m., in Liber 203 of Mortgages, at page 68, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and,

Whereas, The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of eleven hundred seventy-three dollars and seventy-six cents ($1,173.76), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided, and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property, described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as lots numbers six and seven (6 and 7) of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, being twenty-five (25) feet in width on Second street. Also all that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, being part of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, bounded as follows: Beginning on Second street one hundred and twenty-eight (128) feet southerly from Seneca street, running thence easterly one hundred twenty-one and a half (121½) feet; thence southerly twenty-five (25) feet; thence westerly three and a half (3½) feet; thence southerly twelve (12) feet, thence westerly parallel with Oneida street to Second street; thence northerly along Second street thirty-seven (37) feet to the place of beginning," at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego, New York, on the 12th day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Review of Reviews.

The country's business outlook is a subject of compelling interest at the beginning of the new year. This fact is recognized by the Review of Reviews, which devotes a large part of its January number to a survey of the situation. "The New Year: Prosperity or Depression?" is the title of a group of articles in which C. Kirchhoff, the editor of the Iron Age, treats of "The Outlook for Steel and Iron," R. W. Martin of "The Prospect for Railway Earnings," Charles M. Marger of "Good Crops and Good Times in the West," and F. W. Hawthorne of "The Promise of 1904 for Trade in General." The same number has an illustrated article on the "Status of the Southwestern Oil Industry," by Day Allen Willey; an account of the long and successful fight waged by science against the Texas cattle fever, by Professor Charles S. Potts, and the story of English walnut culture in Southern California, by Elizabeth A. Ward. The magazine is also unusually strong in its biographical articles; the character sketch of Elihu Root, the retiring Secretary of War, by Walter Wellman, is especially noteworthy, while the career of Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow, the investigator of the postal frauds, is attractively presented by Clarence H. Matson, and the life and work of the late Herbert Spencer, the great English philosopher, are sketched by Professor F. J. E. Woodbridge. The threatened war between Japan and Russia claims attention in the editorial department, as does the Panama situation, while the cartoon department ably supplements the editor's paragraphs on current American politics.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Cured After Suffering Ten Years.

B. F. Hare, Supt. Miami Cycle & Mfg., Middletown, O., suffered for ten years with dyspepsia. He spent hundreds of dollars for medicine and with doctors without receiving any permanent benefit. He says, "One night while feeling exceptionally bad I was about to throw down the evening paper when I saw an item regarding the merits of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I concluded to try it and while I had no faith in it I felt better after the second dose. After using two bottles I am stronger and [illegible] in years, and I recommend Kodol Dyspepsia Cure to my friends and acquaintances suffering from stomach trouble." Sold by H. C. Giesler

Class of '03 Reunion.

The first annual reunion of the class of 1903, F. H. S., was held at the home of Miss Agnes Brown on Wednesday evening. The class colors, blue and gold, predominated in the house decorations and at the table where the banquet was served. Toasts were enjoyed at the conclusion of the repast. Those present were the Misses Agnes Brown, Grace Arnold, Dora Harding, Beulah Kelsey, Jennie Terry, and Messrs. Orla Druce, Fred Tuerk, William Townsend, Victor Kimball, Herbert Mooney, Louis Rice and Everett Wettengel, the class mascot.

In reply to inquiries we have pleasure in announcing that Ely's Liquid Cream Balm is like the solid preparation of that admirable remedy in that it cleanses and heals membranes affected by nasal catarrh. There is no drying or sneezing. The Liquid Cream Balm is adapted to use by patients who have trouble in inhaling through the nose and prefer spraying. The price, including spraying tube, is 75 cents. Sold by druggists or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

Wireless Telegraphy and Fast Trains.

To show the importance of Wireless Telegraphy in connection with Twentieth Century railroad travel, an instance is cited which will give some idea of the inestimable value of this wonderful invention, writes a New York correspondent.

On Dec 7, a gentleman wrote from Bremen, Germany, to the New York Central, saying that he would arrive in New York on the Hamburg-American Liner "Blucher," Monday or Tuesday, Dec. 21 or 22, and requesting that space be reserved for him on the Twentieth Century Limited, leaving New York for Chicago, Wednesday.

Tuesday, a wireless message was received in New York, sent from some point off the coast via Sagaponack, Long Island, saying: "Steamer day late. Reserve two compartments Thursday, Twentieth-Century Limited."

All arrangements for the party to leave for Chicago on Thursday were made, thus establishing as a practical success the wireless telegraph as an adjunct of the Twentieth Century travel.

Consump

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

FOUNTAIN PEN PERFECTION.

The Quaker City Self-Filling Fountain Pen Fills itself and Thereby Fills a Long-Felt Want.

Free Press.

Any reliable time saver is eagerly welcomed by the modern business man. Probably the most forceful illustration of this condition of things in recent years was the enthusiasm with which the fountain pen was greeted. It seemed to mean the saving of so much time and annoyance for so many people that its sale was simply phenomenal.

But the fountain pen was not by any means perfect and its users soon discovered that the bother was only concentrated, instead of being dispensed with. The finest fountain pen would write indifferently well as long as there was ink in it, but, when that gave out our busy man had to stop, unscrew an inky cap, hunt around for a filler and the particular ink recommended by the manufacturers of that particular pen and so on through a long process of annoyance.

The manufacturers of the Quaker City Self-Filling Fountain Pen have overcome all this bother and produced a practical writing tool which is as easy to use as if one were simply writing with the filler needed for the old pen. There is nothing to unscrew, nothing to squirt, nothing to lose or get out of order. Its construction is simple and substantial and the operation of filling it so simple that you wonder nobody thought of it before.

It is merely necessary to dip the pen pressing it slightly, lift up as usual and go on writing. Its capacity is no less than the bothersome kind.

We feel that we are not overpraising the Quaker City Self-Filling Fountain Pen when we say that it represents the acme of fountain pen achievement.

Only fountain pen that never spills ink, never inks the fingers, needs no filler, can be filled from any inkwell, anywhere! For business men, students, school children—all who use a pen!

COSTS $1.00

Looks as well and works far better than any high-priced pen on the market. Doesn't get out of order, doesn't write by fits and starts. Built simply and well, lasts long and writes perfectly all the time.

It Cost $3700 to Perfect. Protected by Patents

$1.00 Brings It to Your Door

Money refunded and no questions asked if you are not ENTIRELY SATISFIED. As far ahead of the old-fashioned fountain pen as the modern one is ahead of the quill. No syringe used.

Oscar Hammerstein has written a new song, concerning which his publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, are very sanguine. They think it will rival in popularity the song success of the Paradise Roof Garden, "If I Were Again a Baby." The new number is called, by permission from David Belasco, "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," and the melody of it is just as sweet and neat and charming as the personality of Kitty Bellairs herself in the Belasco play of that name.

Justice Wright on Wednesday handed down his decision in the case of Margaret Fuller against Addie M. Blackburn, setting aside a deed of real estate valued at $1,000 in this city. Miss Blackburn is a niece of the plaintiff, and soon after the death of the plaintiff's husband in June, 1902, came to Fulton from Chicago and induced her aunt to deed her the house and lot in Fulton. Subsequently the plaintiff sought to set aside the deed and the case was tried. Justice Wright holds in his decision that the defendant took advantage of the dazed condition of the plaintiff, brought about by the tragic death of her husband, and by the decision the property will go back to Mrs. Fuller.

The Salvation Army in Syracuse, through the co-operation of the citizens of that city, gave a dinner on Christmas day to over 4,000 hungry ones. After the dinner E.W. Edwards & Son, who are well known to our readers as the proprietors of "the busy store," gave away between 6,000 and 7,000 toys from a huge, brilliantly illuminated Christmas tree, six energetic men, headed by Mayor-elect Alan C. Fobes, handing them out to the eager little boys and girls. When the supply was exhausted scores of youngsters were still clamoring for toys, and D. M. Edwards announced that there would be a supplemental distribution at the South Salina street store of E. W. Edwards & Son. Marshaled into line by policemen, a small army of children marched to the store, where 1,000 little carts were given away to the happy young ones.

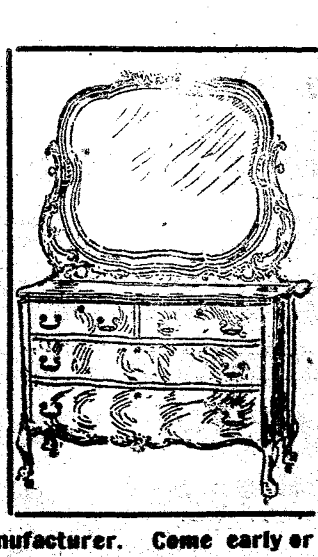
Reductions that are Reductions

at the Brown & Hunter Store
...January 7th to 31st, 1904...

Values that are Values



The paramount object of this sale is to reduce stock to its lowest minimum. To reduce quickly means price reductions—big price reductions. We have made these reductions, made them honestly, made them intelligently. We want our public to feel that this is the supreme selling effort of a most successful season. Printed promises prove nothing. We invite you to visit our store, look over the goods, and you will need no further proof of our earnestness in this matter. Every piece of furniture in our mammoth stock has been cut to a price that will astonish the most conservative buyer. Some broken suits odd and pieces are cut far below the original cost.

We have given you some remarkable values during the past year, values that have gained us the furniture business of our new city, but in this sale you will find bargains that are positively unmatchable in price, except by the manufacturer. Come early or they may be gone. Such bargains are soon picked up. Below we quote a few of our offerings, which show just how we've marked our entire stock.

Three-piece Bed Room Suit, all quartered and polished, actual value $50, sale price... $37.50
Bed Room Suit, value $48, sale price... $36.00
Bed Room Suit, in our show window, actual value $32.00, sale price... $25.00
Other Oak Suits as low as... $14.00
One Bird's Eye Maple Suit, actual value $60, very special... $45.00
We are showing 19 different styles of Sideboards, all new patterns, ranging in price from $15 to $40, which are marked for this sale from... $11.00 to $29.00
DINING TABLES—We have too many of these and all are cut to original cost.

THESE PRICES ARE FOR CASH ONLY and the Sale Will Positively Close JANUARY 31, 1904

In fact, if you can use any of the following goods, you will find the a golden opportunity to make a purchase:
Ladies' Desks in Golden Oak and B. E. Maple; Ladies' Toilet Tables in Solid Mahogany, Oak or Birds' Eye Maple; Chiffoniers in Oak, White Enamel or B. E. Maple; Fancy Upholstered Parlor Chairs in Gold and Mahogany; Fancy Rockers; Willow Rockers; Morris Rockers, Morris Chairs; Dining Chairs; Gentlemen's Arm Chairs; Couches, either Turkish or those with adjustable ends; Parlor Tables in all woods; Mirrors, Hall Racks; Hall Seats, Springs and Mattresses—and everything usually found in a modern furniture store.
None of our goods are seconds or bought at auction, but every piece comes direct from the manufacturer and is dependable.

VOLNEY PAPER CO.

New Mill in Active Operation. First Paper Made This Week. Important Industry Added to Manufacturing Interests of City.

The first sheet of paper was made in the new Volney Paper Mill on Tues, day, and a new industry is added to the manufacturing interests of our city, the officers and members of which are numbered among the young but capable business men of Fulton.

The mill is an excellent example of modern concrete and steel construction, and is located on the site of the old plaster mill at a point on the hydraulic canal most advantageous for the intake and discharge of water through its wheels. Two 48-inch horizontal Trump water wheels are installed to drive the beater shaft by direct connection and operate the rag cutters, pumps, agitators, etc. A magnificent tail-race 40 feet in width and 15 feet deep has been cut through the solid rock, necessitating the removal of more than 5,000 cubic yards of rock and creating an unsurpassed water privilege at this point. This raceway passes directly beneath the mill and is spanned by concrete arches supporting the basement floor.

The mill proper is 200 feet long by 100 feet in width. The basement is 14 feet in the clear, affording ample room for the driving shafts to the beaters and paper machine above, and for the concrete stuff chests, the Sturdevant blower which heats the buildings, the Murray Corless engine that drives the paper machine; for the Reever speed changer, the pumps, etc.

On the floor above are located the eight 1,200-pound Dilts beating engines and the paper machine, a 90-inch three-cylinder machine built by the Sandy Hill Iron and Brass Works. The heater room is 35 by 200 feet, while the machine room is 55 feet by 200 feet, and foundations have been installed for a second machine of 135-inch width to be placed in position at some later date.

Over the front end of the beater room is the rag room, while at the front end of the machine room the building is carried up another story to the street level, where are located the company's offices, and the shipping room, reached by a Houser elevator from the machine room floor.

Near the rear of the building on the south side is situated the boiler house, a concrete building 50x60 feet. Here are installed two Fitzgibbons boilers of 200 horse-power each, pouring their black smoke through the huge chimney that towers 150 feet above the ground. Here also is the Warren-Webster water heater and purifier.

Adjacent to the paper mill on the south is the large five-story building used by the company for storage purposes. This was formerly Gilbert & Nichols' flour mill, and affords ample room for the storage of stock, having been converted into a convenient warehouse by the installation of elevators, etc.

The paper mill itself is of concrete and steel construction throughout, and is a remarkable example of this modern method of building. The rapidity with which the mill has been completed is a source of surprise to those familiar with this class of work. Possession of the site was gained in April last, when the work of removing the old buildings was begun. The task of excavating for the tail-race was a huge one, involving considerable engineering skill in caring for the water, and the erection of the mill buildings was a feat of no mean importance. But the work has been completed without a mishap, even to the concrete bridge spanning the raceway at the rear of the mill and the concrete bridge and approach at the front. The machinery has been placed in position and the wheels turned for first time on the first day of January, 1904, only nine months from the day the work was commenced.

The fact that Fulton turns out more than 200 tons of pulp and paper daily and has six mills in successful operation, would indicate that the location is a good one for the manufacture of paper. Three lines of railroads and the Oswego branch of the Erie canal pass directly through the city, giving competitive rates of freight and affording unusual shipping facilities. The Volney mill is situated in the very heart of Fulton, close to all three railroads, while boats can be dropped down the race directly in front of the mill to discharge their cargoes of paper stock and coal.

The Volney Paper Company's mill will turn out roofing, deadening felts and building papers to the amount of twenty tons daily. They already have a large amount of raw stock on hand and are entering into the trade of 1904 with energy.

Mr. F. A. Emerick of Oswego, N. Y., is president of the company; Mr. F. B Dilts, vice-president, and Mr. B. W. Bennett, secretary. The active management is in the hands of Mr Walter Bradley, the company's treasurer, who has had charge of the construction of the plant, and Mr. G. G. Chauncey, a well-known business man of this city

POLICE DEPARTMENT.

Excellent Work Done by Police Since Organization of the Force.

The annual report of Chief of Police Ross is an excellent showing and one which reflects credit on the small but efficient police department In addition to Chief Ross, the force comprises six patrolmen who are on duty twelve hours each day, and for four days of each month they serve eighteen hours out of the twenty-four. A comparison of the work done the first three months the department was organized (June July and August, 1902), with the last three months (October, November and December, 1903), furnishes conclusive evidence that there is now a more wholesome respect for the law and a substantial decrease in the number of arrests. During the first period named there were 79 arrests, while during the latter there were only 39.

The following interesting statistics have been gathered:

Total number of arrests from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1903	221
Intoxication	155
Assault	12
Burglary	8
Petit larceny	13
Violations of Penal Code	14
Violations of liquor tax law	1
Violations of city ordinance	13
Common gambling	2
Vagrants	2
Violation of compulsory education law	1
	221
Number of convictions	121
Fines collected	$255 00
Received for services rendered the county	55 40
Received from Charity Commissioner Green for meals and lodgings furnished tramps	16 50
	$326 90

The amount received by patrolmen for the serving of papers in civil processes is not included in the foregoing, as such sums were turned over to City Chamberlain Hillick.

The members of the department are to be commended for their conscientious discharge of duty and the citizens of Fulton are to be congratulated for having such capable officers and so well-managed a department.

City Attorney Matter.

Attorney Claude E. Guile still retains possession of the papers and books belonging to the city attorney, and Attorney W. S. Hillick was unable to appear and defend the actions against the city brought in Supreme Court in Oswego this week. Mr. Hillick was fortunately able to have the cases put over the term, but the city will be forced to pay court fees in two cases Mr. Guile contends that this city has had no attorney since his resignation. Mayor Foster holds that he appointed Mr. Hillick after he removed Mr Guile from office, and that Mr. Hillick is the legal representative of the city. What the end will be is a matter of conjecture at present.

DIED.

The remains of John Scott were brought to this city from Mexico on Monday afternoon and taken to the undertaking rooms of Mr. E. P. Cole, from which the funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon. The deceased was 95 years of age. The body was taken to Jacksonville for interment.

John W. Hammond, aged 48, died at his home in First street on Sunday, after a month's illness with typhoid fever and pleurisy. The deceased was one of the most valued employes in the Taylor Bros'. knife works, and had a host of friends who will be grieved to learn of his death. The funeral services were held from his late home this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the Rev John Richards officiating. He is survived by his widow, one son, Leon, of this city, one brother Frank, of Granby Centre, and two sisters Mrs. Addison Tooley of Bridwinsville, and Mrs. Bert Tomlinson of Ilion.

In the death of Frederick D. Johnson which occurred in Palermo on Jan. 4, another veteran has gone to join the silent majority, and a home and community have suffered a loss which cannot be described. The deceased was born in Oneida county, but the greater portion of his life was spent in Volney and Palermo, where he was greatly beloved and respected. He was a member of the 81st Regiment N. Y. V., and received a severe wound at Fair Oaks in 1862. A widow, a son, Mr. Clarence Johnson of Volney, and two daughters, Mrs. Mamie Wright of Palermo and Mrs. Luella Wright of North Scriba, survive to mourn his loss. The funeral was held from his late home on Jan. 6, and interment was made in New Haven.

Lydia Esther Dutcher, aged 55, entered into rest last Sunday morning, after a short but severe illness The deceased fell on the sidewalk near her home about three weeks ago, fracturing her thigh. In addition pneumonia set in, and although everything was done to alleviate her sufferings and prolong life, yet death ensued. Mrs. Dutcher made her home with her brother, Mr. John Cox, after the death of Mrs Cox, some three years ago. The deceased was an exemplary woman, an excellent neighbor and was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. In addition to her brother she is survived by Mrs. A. [illegible] Charles Farnham of Fairdale and Mrs. Frank Goodrowe of North Hannibal Funeral services were held this Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at 312 Hannibal street, and were conducted by the Rev. James Vincent, D. D. Interment in Fairdale cemetery.

The following obituary notice was clipped from the Columbus, (Ohio) Dispatch of Jan. 5. The deceased was a former resident of Fulton:

"Another veteran's name is added to the list of those who have gone beyond. Joseph Rath, a resident of Columbus for many years, died at his home on Winner avenue, Monday evening, at 5 o'clock, after a lingering illness, aged 77 years.

"Mr. Rath came to America from Ireland when 6 years of age, and learning his trade of tinner at Ogdensburg, N. Y. He was the inventor of hot air furnaces and many other useful articles pertaining to the trade.

"He fought through the Civil war from 1862 to 1865, losing his health thereby, receiving a sunstroke, from the effects of which he has suffered greatly the past three years. He came to Columbus in 1876. A widow and two daughters, Mrs. J. Palmer Merrill, and Mrs. John Cashatt, survive him.

"He was a member of the McCoy post, G. A. R., and of the ex-Soldiers' and Sailor's association.

"The funeral will be held at the residence, 80 Winner avenue, Wednesday morning, at 9:30, the Rev. Mr. McElroy of Broad street, M.E. church, officiating. Interment will be at Green Lawn."

FROM THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

EDITOR TIMES: Since the organization of the city Board of Health, of the period of one year and nine months, ending Dec. 1, 1903, fifteen cases of diphtheria and ten cases of scarlet fever have been quarantined, and in no case has the disease spread from the family in which it was found. There have been ten cases of typhoid fever, which, upon careful investigation of each case, were found to originate from local causes. Five samples of the city water have been sent to the Bender Hygienic Laboratory at Albany, one sample from each spring, and one from a faucet at the corner of Sixth and State streets. All were favorably reported as good drinking water, containing no disease germs or elements of fermentation. Water from six wells have been sent to the same laboratory, two of the six were condemned and, the wells were closed by the Board of Health; two others were reported as unfit for drinking purposes without boiling; one other was reported as not a first-class drinking water, yet ought "not to be condemned;" one other, a driven well, was reported as first-rate drinking water. The springs that supply the city have been repeatedly examined and all are in a first-class condition. Their surroundings are clean, their covers appear tight all around, and all have been newly painted; trap doors to the cover of each spring are well fitted and kept locked, so that they cannot be easily tampered with, and the water in all the springs is as clear as crystal.

These facts ought to do away with all uneasiness as to the cause of the typhoid fever, as it was not from the city water, but from wells that are becoming more and more impure from their surroundings, as they act as cesspools for the filth form the surrounding soil.

It is astonishing to go through our city and see how indifferent very many of our citizens are about keeping their premises in anything like a sanitary condition. It appears that if there is one piece of property on a man's premises that is neglected more than another it is the well. It is a singular fact that very many otherwise good citizens have to be compelled by the Board of Health to clean their premises, in order to prevent disease. It is clear that until these city wells are abandoned for the city water, and house connections are properly made with the sewers, many innocent persons, as well as those guilty of neglect, will have to suffer the consequences.

The sanitary conditions on the west side are particularly bad, on account of the absence of sewers, and the demand for them is of prime importance.

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB.

Mr. C. G. Bacon and Mrs Bacon Give an Interesting Resume of Important Events.

The Current Events Club met on Monday evening, Jan. 4, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunter. Dr. C. G. Bacon and Mrs. Bacon were the leaders, and an interesting resume of events which had transpired during the preceding two weeks was the result.

Dr. Bacon criticised the unwholesome methods adopted by some of the milkmen in serving their customers, believing that a milk inspector might find it consistent with a conscientious regard for the public health to insist on more hygienic methods. He also criticised the Common Council for adopting a resolution accepting the Carnegie Public Library proposition. His ambition and desire was to secure a hospital for Fulton, as he considered that it was a necessity and a library something of a luxury.

Mrs. C. G. Bacon presented in an interesting manner the increasing agitation against the seating of Congressman Smoot of Utah; the admirable work that was being done by the Daughters of the American Revolution in the States of Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York; undesirable foreign immigration; the cause of temperance, etc.

In response to a request from the Rev. S. D. Robinson, Prof. Clapp, the chairman, explained the cause of difference between the Department of Public Instruction and the State Board of Regents. It was simply a question of jurisdiction, the speaker said, as to which should administer the affairs of the elementary schools. The Legislature had endeavored to adjust the matter last year, but it was not yet settled.

Mr. E. R. Redhead spoke of the death of James J. Belden of Syracuse, stating that he had a very high opinion of the business ability and sagacity of the deceased, having been associated with him in the Board of Trustees of the Syracuse University. Some of Mr. Belden's idiosyncracies were also dwelt upon.

Mr. Louis Emerick thought the question of undesirable immigrants, referred to by Mrs. Bacon, was a burning one, and while he believed the great corporations in Pennsylvania were largely responsible for their arrival in this country, he commended the action of the Judges in that State in refusing the right of citizenship to applicants who had committed overt acts during the recent labor troubles in Pennsylvania and who would prove a most undesirable class as citizens.

Mr. James Vincent approved of the present method of immigration to this country. He did not consider it a necessary evil, but rather liked the idea that the nations of the earth might come, and, like grist to the mill, become amalgamated and imbued with the spirit of the great Republic and enjoy the privileges of citizenship.

Mr. Thomas Hunter endorsed the Carnegie Library project, and hoped when the opportunity was presented to secure a site for the building, there would be a ready compliance and a hearty co-operation on the part of all public-spirited citizens.

Mr. Redhead endorsed what Mr. Hunter said in favor of the public library, and he was confident that in the course of a few years, if the library were built, it will be something every citizen of Fulton should and ought to be proud of. He was also in favor of other objects of benevolence in Fulton, and thought that a hospital would come in due time.

A committee was selected, composed of Messrs. Duell, Redhead, Van Wagenen, Dr. Harriett Doane and Miss Woodcock, to consider the advisability of extending the scope and usefulness of the Current Events Club.

The next meeting will be held on Monday evening, Jan. 18, at the residence of the Rev. James Vincent, and will be under the leadership of Mr. [illegible] Hunter and Prof. G. B. Duell.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH CONCERT

Under the Auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Paul and for the Benefit of the Organ Fund

The Elliott Concert Company have arranged to give a high-class concert in the First M. E. Church on Friday evening, Jan. 22, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Paul, and for the benefit of the organ fund of the church. The company is composed of Messrs. Edward Elliott, pianist; Morris G. Williams, baritone, and Miss Edith VanWagner, violinist. Wherever the company has appeared they have been highly complimented by the press and have given perfect satisfaction. Mr. Elliott has been for eleven years director of the Elliott School of Music at Utica, N. Y., and has the reputation of being one of the most brilliant of our American pianists. Miss Edith Van-Wagner is an accomplished violinist. Her playing is vigorous and clean and artistic to a high degree. She has had rare advantages, having studied under Leopold Lichtenberg, one of the foremost of American teachers, and has also taken a full course under the celebrated Hans Sitt at Liepzig, Germany. Mr. Morris G. Williams is the possessor of a baritone voice of fine quality which he uses with great energy and effect. Tickets are 50 cents and they can be obtained from any member of the Brotherhood.

Congratulations.

Mr. John H. Cullom, editor of the Garland, Texas, News has written a letter of congratulations to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows: "Sixteen years ago when our first child was a baby he was subject to croupy spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup, we have never been without it in the house since that time. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results. One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdose. I congratulate you upon the success of your remedy." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Judgment Reversed

The Appellate Division in Rochester handed down a decision last week. In the action of James O'Brien, respondent, vs. the Victoria Paper company, appellant, the judgment of the lower court was reversed. In 1898, O'Brien, who was an employe of the Victoria company, was struck by a descending elevator at the paper factory and was seriously injured. He brought action through his attorney, C. N. Bulger, to recover damages and in November, 1901, a jury in Justice Wright's court gave a verdict of $3,912.50 for the plaintiff.

Jury Disagreed.

The jury in the case of Joseph Auringer of this city, against E. E. Hart, for damages to the amount of $5,000 for injuries alleged to have been received last Spring while engaged at his work in the Nelson coal yard, were out for twenty hours and were not able to agree, and Justice Wright discharged them. Attorney Owen Reilly states that he will have the case retried.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

FOUNTAIN PEN PERFECTION.

The Quaker City Self-Filling Fountain Pen Fills itself and Thereby Fills a Long-Felt Want.

Free Press.

Any reliable time saver is eagerly welcomed by the modern business man. Probably the most forceful illustration of this condition of things in recent years was the enthusiasm with which the fountain pen was greeted. It seemed to mean the saving of so much time and annoyance for so many people that its sale was simply phenomenal.

But the fountain pen was not by any means perfect and its users soon discovered that the bother was only concentrated, instead of being dispensed with. The finest fountain pen would write indifferently well as long as there was ink in it, but, when that gave out our busy man had to stop, unscrew an inky cap, hunt around for a filler and the particular ink recommended by the manufacturers of that particular pen and so on through a long process of annoyance.

The manufacturers of the Quaker City Self-Filling Fountain Pen have overcome all this bother and produced a practical writing tool which is as easy to use as if one were simply writing with the filler needed for the old pen. There is nothing to unscrew, nothing to squirt, nothing to lose or get out of order. Its construction is simple and substantial and the operation of filling it so simple that you wonder nobody thought of it before.

It is merely necessary to dip the pen pressing it slightly, lift up as usual and go on writing. Its capacity is no less than the bothersome kind.

We feel that we are not overpraising the Quaker City Self-Filling Fountain Pen when we say that it represents the acme of fountain pen achievement.

Only fountain pen that never spills ink, never inks the fingers, needs no filler, can be filled from any inkwell, anywhere! For business men, students, school children—all who use a pen!

COSTS $1.00

Looks as well and works far better than any high-priced pen on the market. Doesn't get out of order, doesn't write by fits and starts. Built simply and well, lasts long and writes perfectly all the time.

It Cost $3700 to Perfect. Protected by Patents

$1.00 Brings It to Your Door

Money refunded and no questions asked if you are not ENTIRELY SATISFIED. As far ahead of the old-fashioned fountain pen as the modern one is ahead of the quill. No syringe used.

ODELL'S ANNUAL MESSAGE

Governor of New York Submits His Recommendations on State Issues to the Legislature.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Governor Odell has submitted to the legislature his fourth annual message. Its principal features are as follows:

The condition of the state's finances is most gratifying. Our receipts are nearly equal to payments, and with the large surplus on hand it needs only prudence and wisdom upon the part of the legislature to make unnecessary a direct tax for the ensuing year. The bonded debt of the state is $9,665,660. If from this we deduct the sum of $3,074,566.09 now in the sinking fund and available for the extinguishment of this debt the net bonded obligation is but $6,591,093.91. It will be necessary at the present session to provide for the payment of $55,000 Adirondack and $200,000 of public defense bonds which will become due during the next fiscal year.

The total receipts into the state treasury from indirect revenues were $22,341,-802.97 and from all other sources $1,967,-695.73, a total of $24,309,498.70. The total payments were $24,346,723.27, showing a defiency in receipts of but $37,224.57. The actual cash balance on Oct. 1, 1903, was $10,192,629.34. If from this we deduct all appropriations in force on Sept. 30, 1903, the free balance for the current fiscal year, which may be classed as surplus, was on Oct. 1, 1903, $8,562,277.85, a sum sufficient to guard against unforeseen contingencies.

Canal Improvements.

The adoption of the referendum for the enlargement of the canal system of the state brings to us responsibilities which call for sound judgment and conservative treatment. The policy of the state having been determined, neither factious nor personal opposition should hinder its fulfillment. Unnecessary delay is as undesirable as undue haste. A businesslike treatment of every detail is demanded. Verification of the engineer's estimates of the most important and difficult portions of the work by actual bids should be obtained at once. The expert board provided for in the act will be soon appointed by me. I hope to take such action at this initial period of the work as will take the whole project out of political surroundings. Merit should and will be the sole test in the selection of its individual members. That the board may be unhampered in its work it is desirable that the terms of office of its members should be coincident with the period of construction and that removals should be for cause only upon charges duly sustained. Thus safeguarded and working under the restrictions imposed by the statute and in harmony with the state's officials this board can be relied upon to properly protect the state's interests. The change in route, the abandonment of the present canal in part, the purchase of other property, should receive careful attention. To this end we should not alone purchase the land necessary for the canal itself, but we should also secure such releases as will minimize the claims which may arise as the result of its operations. A board of appraisers of, say, three members should be authorized to effect settlements with owners and thus bring down to actual figures and certainty that which at present is at the best but mere conjecture. Every detail having been provided for and the accuracy of the estimated cost of the work determined, there will then come the positive knowledge that either the canal can be completed within the sum authorized or that a necessity exists for a greater expenditure.

If, as I am firmly convinced, no mistakes have been made, then the most important subject left for the consideration of the legislature is that of providing ways and means for the raising of the money to be expended. While the referendum provides for a yearly direct tax and the payment of the debt in eighteen years, I am sure that the general expectation is that some other method may be devised. To return either to a direct tax or to seriously disturb existing tax laws is far from desirable. New York, with its vast interests and wealth, has resources which would seem to make it almost a profligate use of funds to burden the people with unnecessary interest charges. The present law proposes to pay in eighteen years for interest $54,540,000. If the period be extended to fifty years the expenditure for the same purpose would be $151,500,000. The principal sum in both cases is in addition to be provided for. What is it we seek to escape and what benefits do we derive from this absolute waste of public moneys? New York has a valuation of nearly $6,000,000,000. One hundred and one millions of dollars is probably one of the greatest sums ever appropriated for a single public work, and yet if in the wisdom of the legislature it should be all levied and collected in a single year the tax would be but $17.12 per thousand of valuation. While this sum is large for state purposes, yet there are but few municipalities in our commonwealth that can boast of so favorable a local tax rate. If the expenditure were spread over ten years, the probable period of construction, the yearly tax would be but $1.71 per thousand.

Enormous Interest Charges.

Therefore in order to escape or rather to put off for eighteen years the extinguishment of the debt the intention is to burden ourselves with interest charges equal to 54 per cent of the principal. True, with mathematical accuracy the whole proposition is worked out in annual payments, yet the result will be practically as I have outlined. If we could pay this debt in twenty annual installments without interest our obligation would call for $5,550,000 annually, or but $2,470,000 in addition to the proposed yearly interest charges. This could be done if the state's revenues from indirect sources were large enough, but unfortunately our present revenues are not sufficient for this purpose. If, as I have indicated in prior messages, however, advantage is taken of opportunities to correct some very manifest inequalities in our tax laws the increased receipts which would result would then in twenty years provide for the total expenditure. If the state had additional revenues of $5,500,000 annually it could furnish probably all of the money that might be required for the first five years without recourse to the sale of bonds or levies upon the localities. During the last five years of the work there will be of course a necessity for such a sum as may remain unpaid, or an aggregate of about $75,000,000. The payment of interest if the bonds were issued under the referendum plan would take nearly two-thirds of this new revenue if it were to be paid annually, and therefore no saving would result. It is therefore necessary that the interest should be deferred—that is, the bonds to be issued should be of such a character that the principal and interest might be paid at maturity. Such bonds, however, might not prove attractive to investors, and it would be necessary, therefore, to have recourse to the counties in order to perfect and make successful the plan I have in mind for the best method of financing this public improvement.

Assuming, therefore, that the localities will be called upon to bear this burden, the proper financing of this loan would be by the issuance of bonds upon which there would be the smallest possible interest charges. Assuming that new revenues will be provided and that the period of construction will be ten years, $25,-000,000 could be paid by the state by the end of five years without levies upon the counties. If levies were then made for the remaining five years of $10,000,000 annually upon the counties in proportion to their assessed valuation, this, with the continuance of the state's contribution of $5,000,000 annually, would provide the whole sum that is necessary for the completion of the work. Bonds could be then issued which would represent the aggregate of principal and interest and could be given to the localities in return for their levies, provision being made for their retirement after the state's primary payments for ten consecutive years had been completed. The period for which these bonds can be issued is but eighteen years because of the constitutional limitation. There is no reason why they cannot be paid off sooner, however, and a great saving in interest charges would be thus effected, and there would then be no necessity for creating a sinking fund if the bonds were retired annually as the state had the ability to do it. The bonds could be issued in annual series of $5,-000,000 each five years after the commencement of work and completed in twelve years, which would make the life of the last series of bonds seventeen years.

Odell's Play For Bond Issues.

The first series would be paid in six years from the first contribution from the counties, the second in seven years, and so on to the final payment. The bonds which I propose should be issued would be first for the first levy of $10,000,000, upon which there should be computed six years' interest at 3 per cent upon $5,000,-000 and seven years' interest upon $5,-000,000. The second levy of $10,000,000 would be covered also by two series of bonds of $5,000,000 each, upon which seven and eight years' interest would be computed respectively. This form of bond issue would be continued until the final levy and $50,500,000 had been provided for in twelve annual installments. The total amount of principal and interest which would be thus required would be $62,750,000, which would require a yearly annual payment for twelve years of $5,230,000. These bonds then could be placed with the counties in proportion to their contributions or levies at their then present worth. This I am led to believe would not be inharmonious with existing law which provides that they shall not be sold for less than par, as the face value of the bond would be par and accumulated interest for the period which it was to run. The delivery of these bonds to the counties would be a guarantee that finally the state would reimburse every locality for such levy as might be made annually for the necessary funds with which to build the canal. They could be used by the counties as a sinking fund for the retirement of their own bonds which might be issued if it is so desired. The latter bonds, being county bonds, would not interfere with the borrowing capacity of any municipality.

Under this method the only burden which would be placed upon the counties would be the interest charge upon their own bonds, which would be recouped to them finally, so that their own bonds could be retired and there would be a constant decrease in the amount necessary for interest charges after the maturity of the first series of bonds. Therefore the counties would suffer no loss. The necessity for a direct tax would not exist, and the whole cost would be borne by the state from its indirect revenues. To accomplish this a constitutional amendment which would permit the payment of bonded indebtedness from indirect revenues would be required. It might be necessary to provide also for a constitutional amendment which would permit the loaning of moneys to the state by the counties, although I am convinced that if the contributions of the localities are treated as tax levies such a necessity would not arise. But it would be better perhaps to provide for this by amendment to the constitution. Other constitutional objections might be raised, but ample time can be taken without in any way interfering with the progress of the work, and such amendments as are considered necessary could be presented to this legislature and be readopted by the next legislature and then submitted to the electorate of the state in 1905. Assuming that the total expenditure will be $101,000,000, the whole cost will be as follows:

State's proportion in ten years..	$50,500,000
Counties' proportion to be repaid	50,500,000
Interest to be repaid to the counties	12,750,000
Total	$113,750,000

Forty Millions Saved.

Under the present law the payment, principal and interest, would be $155,-540,000, or $41,790,000 more than by the plan suggested. All that is necessary to accomplish this are new revenues to the amount of $5,500,000 annually, thus saving to the people of the state this great sum of money. To provide for the present $10,000,000 of bonds could be issued for two or three years to meet immediate needs and then be retired.

As $101,000,000 is authorized and but $62,750,000 for this purpose is required, this temporary use of $10,000,000 of bonds would not affect the plan I have outlined. In order that the practicable working out of these results may be shown I have applied them to the greater city of New York, Erie, Dutchess and Seneca counties on the 1903 valuation, showing first their contributions and the value of bonds with accumulated interest received:

	Payment.	Bonds.
New York	$33,397,275	$41,719,337.50
Erie	2,624,485	3,261,117.50
Dutchess	378,245	469,997.50
Seneca	123,222	153,110.00

While under the present law the contributions would be as follows for principal and interest:

New York city	$103,410,769.00
Erie	8,083,413.[illegible]
Dutchess	1,164,994.[illegible]
Seneca	[illegible]

In this latter computation the working of the sinking fund is disregarded because the loss upon yearly payments would counterbalance the benefits which would accrue. To accomplish this saving is it not better to disregard conditions which while apparently securing local benefits are in reality more than overbalanced by payments which will be necessary under a direct tax system for the purpose of rebuilding the canals? There may be a suggestion that indirect taxation will in effect be a tax upon the localities, but the revenues should be derived mainly from sources which do not at present form any considerable part of the local revenues.

Public Education.

In the administration of our school system two authorities are in control. The one, the board of regents, has for its particular function the charge of higher education, while the so called primary or common school education was placed by statute under the superintendent of public instruction. From time to time friction has arisen, with results which have been in no way beneficial to the cause of education. Dual inspection and greater expense have resulted, with no compensating benefits. A well defined line between the two departments would in a large measure remove these unhappy conditions. Both are necessary. Neither should trespass upon the rights of the other. Mere disbursements of public moneys do not mean efficiency. What is more necessary are plans formulated by competent educators. If therefore all so called academic departments were placed under the charge of the regents and every grade of school up to the academic under the superintendent of public instruction better results would be produced.

A joint committee appointed at the last session of the legislature has this subject under consideration, and it is to be hoped that from their report and these suggestions needed legislation may result. In order to accomplish and carry out such changes as I have suggested chapter 556 of the laws of 1894 should be so amended as to provide for a three-year academic course in order to secure state aid as an academic department. Second, the superintendent of public instruction should be relieved of his power over academic schools as to the approval of the course pursued by amendment to chapter 1031 of the laws of 1895.

Cornell School of Forestry.

By chapter 122 of the laws of 1898 the state purchased townships 23 and 26 in the county of Franklin, and Cornell university thereupon took title and undertook practical demonstration and instruction in the school of forestry. Its operations had for their object the substitution for so called worthless timber valuable growths, but this has resulted in the practical destruction of all trees upon the lands where the experiment was in progress. No compensating benefits seem possible to the present generation. The preservation of the forests is primarily for the protection of the water supply, and this is not possible through the denudation of the lands. Therefore this school failed of its object as understood by its founders, a failure which was not due, however, to the work of the university, which followed out the letter and spirit of the law. The report of the committee of the assembly at the last session of the legislature and the knowledge of the disapproval of many of our citizens led me to veto the item for its support in the appropriation bill of 1903.

The question therefore is before you, and to the legislature we must accordingly look for such action as will properly protect all interests. Cornell university undertook this work at the request of the state and as such was its agent. In so doing it has made contracts for which it is primarily responsible, but which responsibility as the agent of the commonwealth it should not be called upon to assume. Neither should the school it founded be discontinued, because with the lapse of years a proper understanding of scientific forestry will become more and more a necessity. This is particularly true of farm forestry, which will form an important part in the future of agriculture within the state.

Forest Preserve.

The purchase of land in the Adirondacks and Catskills by the state was discontinued two years ago because of the belief that some comprehensive plan should be formulated for the continued acquirement of property and for avoiding the constant increased price of land which followed each appropriation. A committee appointed in accordance with the recommendation made in my last annual message has investigated this subject and will doubtless report some method of arriving at the desired results. It would seem to me that in every private camp, since it is the object of the state to protect the water supply, that at least the timber rights should be secured either through purchase or condemnation and that all other lands should be acquired in full. There are in private preserves 705,-914 acres and in other holdings 1,356,816 acres. Much of this land has been lumbered over. Much has been burned and destroyed. In both cases replanting and protection should begin at once. The numerous forest fires, causing great destruction, call for greater vigilance upon the part of the state. Restrictive laws and additional means for properly patrolling those points where danger exists should be provided.

The many disputes, with consequent litigation as to ownership, it seems to me, call for a comprehensive plan to prevent the acquirement of lands by people who rely upon vague titles for possession. It is of the greatest importance that the state should eventually own every acre of land within the preserve. Some action, therefore, should be immediately taken to acquire quasi possession at least and thus prevent speculation in that which it is the policy of the state to own.

Charitable Institutions.

The more modern methods of treatment of insanity, the consequent increase in requirements, have brought us to an anomalous condition. Notwithstanding the additional space in hospitals we apparently have not added to the dormitory capacity of our institutions. This to the uninformed seems like overcrowding and unwise economies. During the past three years appropriations amounting to $3,-170,000 have been made to meet these growing demands. In 1898 the capacity was rated at 20,656, and in 1901 it was reduced to 18,678. Thus it would appear that the state's ability to properly care for its insane population was lessened notwithstanding that large sums had been expended to increase the dormitory facilities. During the past three years provision has been made for 5,147 new beds, so that if the old measurement of capacity of 1898 were in force we should have when all changes are made facilities for a population of 25,403. The present population is 24,187, with a rating in capacity of 23,825. From this statement it will be readily seen that under modern methods more cubic space per capita is allowed, with resultant advantage. In every direction that which is for the benefit of the patient has been furnished. The total cost of maintenance for the year was $4,104,689.23. Better discipline prevails among the employees, and the increased pay for the nurses has produced results which more than justify the additional expenditures involved. Up to the present, therefore, there seems to be no just cause for complaint.

Notwithstanding that we have now almost provided for our present population, with the expiration of the lease at Flatbush, with our average annual increase by October, 1905, we shall again have a deficiency of nearly 3,500 beds. Immediate steps are necessary to provide for this increase. The separation of the chronic from the acute insane seems in every way to be dictated by wisdom and experience. Pavilions for the acute insane at New York, Brooklyn and other state hospitals, together with the necessary appropriation for the new building in northern New York, will call for an expenditure of $2,175,000. This sum probably will be all that will be required for the next three years.

There is urgent necessity for an increase in the capacity of the Custodial Asylum For Feeble Minded at Rome to care for the rapidly increasing population of this class of state wards. Provision should be made at the present session of the legislature for additional buildings in order that the transfer from county to state care of idiots and degenerates may be speedily made.

Home For Juvenile Delinquents.

The complaints made as to the management of the Home For Juvenile Delinquents on Randall's island has brought about two investigations, one by the management and one by the state board of charities. Both investigations have shown mismanagement, and both demonstrate the need of immediate action. Peculiar in its character, with but limited power exercised by the state, it seems to me that the time has arrived for a change and for the assumption of this work by the state. While it is true that the fiscal superintendent has power over expenditures so far as the approval of estimates is concerned, the management of this asylum is entirely under the control of a private corporation. With a board made up of busy men, it is largely in the power of its superintendent to dictate its policies.

If the state should replace the asylum at Randall's island with a similar state institution at some nearby point in an adjacent county it would be of advantage both to its inmates and to those who could thereafter make use of the grounds now occupied by it for recreation. The separation of sexes in the reformatories is very desirable. Ample space is now available at Hudson and Bedford for this purpose if wisdom is exercised in separating old offenders from younger incorrigibles. This subject is recommended to your earnest consideration in the hope that proper legislation may follow.

Amendments to the Election Law.

The necessity for a still further amendment of the law controlling the primary and the general and local elections in the state has been demonstrated by recent experiences. In order, therefore, that the freest and fairest methods may prevail it is necessary that that which is lacking in the present so called primary law should be supplied at this session of the legislature.

At the session of 1903 an amendment to the primary law was made which provided in effect that party declarations should be made only on the day of registration for general elections. This was intended to prevent transfers and so called padding of enrollment lists. During the past year the supreme court of the first department decided there was no power vested in the court to remove from the enrollment lists nonresidents or illegal voters. While the right of challenge obtains, yet this method of reaching those who were not entitled to vote was not thought to be sufficient to properly guard the interests of those who were honestly entitled to participate in primaries. So far as the registry lists for all general, special and local elections are concerned the right of review rests in the courts, and they may order stricken from the rolls the names of nonresidents and others whose names remaining upon the list might prove a temptation for illegal voting. The same rule should apply to primary elections, and the deficiencies which exist in the present law should be supplied by amendment to the general law.

I again direct your attention to the increasing number of defective ballots cast at elections throughout the state and the virtual disenfranchisement of many voters which thereby results. In the hands of dishonest people technicalities often are taken advantage of to destroy ballots. Some action should be taken at the present session to properly guard and to specify the requirements for a fair counting of the votes cast at elections.

State Prisons.

For humanitarian reasons ample provision should be made at once for remodeling the present state prisons. That source of disease, the foul, damp and unhealthy cell, should be relegated to the past. The object of punishment should be not only a deterrent one, but should aim also to reform and to send the inmates of our prisons out into the world competent to take up useful work and to become useful members of society. So many inequalities and so much injustice results under our present statutes that it would seem desirable that a commission to be appointed either by the legislature or the executive should take up this work and give to it careful consideration, with the end in view of making the penal code and prison administration more practical than they are today.

As an instance of these inequalities it may be stated that a young man over eighteen years of age convicted of a felony may be sent to a reformatory, but if convicted of a misdemeanor he must be sent to prison for a definite term. If the object is punishment alone, then the law is right. If, however, it is also reformation, because probation or suspension of sentence is not always wise, then we are committing a wrong against society. The parole board and children's court, which followed a suggestion made by me, have produced beneficial results. It is quite important, therefore, that the beneficent influences which our charitable people are exerting in this direction should also receive encouragement from the legislature.

If the present law which provides for electrocution is to remain in force, and there seems to be no immediate possibility of its modification, then the state should erect a central prison for condemned prisoners. This would permit a certain amount of freedom which the state owes in the way of exercise and which it is impossible to give under existing conditions. It would be well for you to give this branch of prison administration careful consideration.

Labor Department.

The labor department has been administered in a judicious manner. The authority and power vested in the department have been exerted whenever possible toward effecting settlement of strikes and lockouts. I understand that numerous applications will be made to the present legislature for amendments to existing statutes affecting labor. There is too often a misunderstanding of the relations which should exist between the employer and his employee, and frequently laws are enacted which are burdensome and oppressive to one or both of these great interests. In the protection of both the commonwealth is equally interested. Care should be exercised, therefore, by your committees and by the legislature in the enactment of new statutes. While it is your duty to protect equally both labor and capital, neither should seek nor be afforded advantages which are detrimental to the interests of the other.

While the legislature should make ample provision for the protection of the workingman, it should not disregard the rights of the employer. The elimination of those conditions which produce strikes and lockouts is desirable, but it is as much the duty of the state to protect individuals in the complete enjoyment of their rights as it is to protect aggregations of individuals combined for specific purposes. Stringent laws which will protect the employer against blackmailing designs are as important as the protection of the workingman in his rights. I believe the time has come when every sensible man recognizes the propriety of legislation which will accomplish these results.

Good Roads.

Four hundred and eighty-four miles of road have been improved by state aid since the enactment of chapter 115 of the laws of 1898. The counties have already contributed their half of the expense for building 619 miles for which plans are now ready. Petitions have been presented for the construction of 3,250 miles. The total mileage of roads in the state is 74,097. In order to form a perfect system of highways through the state it is estimated that the improvement of not more than 10 per cent of the total mileage will be necessary. In other words, in order to secure a system of good roads throughout the state the total ultimate mileage would be about 7,500 miles. The counties have provided for their half of the expense for 1,103 miles of improved roads, while the state has contributed its proportion for only 484 miles. It is estimated that $2,801,000 will be required from the state to complete this 1,103 miles.

While it has taken a number of years for this system of road improvement to grow into popular favor, it will be seen that probably within the next six or eight years all necessary roads will be under construction or will have been completed, provided funds are available, which will give a perfect system of highways throughout all portions of the state. This, with the state's contributions for the repair of roads in counties which have adopted the money system, ought to give to New York a magnificent system of highways.

Grade Crossings.

With the improvement of the canals, with better roadways and with greater facilities of all kinds for transportation the resultant benefit should be of a satisfactory character. The approval of an item in the last appropriation bill for the change of grade crossings in the city of Schenectady brings up an important question for consideration by the legislature. As is well known, heretofore almost all of these improvements so far as the state has been concerned have been restricted to rural communities. The state has declined to aid in the construction of roadways within the boundaries of the cities. But it is the state's duty to protect the lives of its citizens whether in the cities or rural communities. Under existing laws the state contributes 25 per cent, the locality 25 per cent and the railroads 50 per cent for removing crossings at grade. There have been, however, no appropriations for any single piece of work such as that approved by me for the removal of crossings at grade in the city of Schenectady. If the policy of the state is to continue along this line it would be well to define some maximum limit to which it should go, and the whole work thereafter should be under the control of the railroad commission, appropriations being made in accordance with their recommendations. It would be well also to prohibit by statute any future grade crossings in the state in the construction of railroads so that this expense may be guarded against in the future. It will certainly grow to alarming proportions otherwise unless the localities have their interests in this direction sufficiently protected.

Personal Tax Assessments.

The personal assessments of the state, according to the equalized valuations of 1902, amount to $672,149,054. Of this amount of personal property assessed locally for state purposes, so that the total amount of personal property assessed locally for all purposes is $556,736,239. It is well known that while the assessed valuation of real estate has grown very largely each decade the percentage of increase of personal assessments is very small. The total personal property standing upon the assessment rolls of Greater New York amounts to $526,400,-139, or about 78 per cent of the total for the state, while its percentage of the state's real estate assessment is but 66 per cent. It would appear from this that in Greater New York personal property is assessed to a greater degree than in almost any other county of the state. Much of this assessment in New York city is occasioned by taxation upon mortgages which should not exist and which is a positive burden to many and in frequent cases takes at least 50 per cent of the income from such property. Power should be vested somewhere for such treatment of this class of personal property in its contribution to the expenses of government as would tend to minimize this unjust proportion of payment of taxes.

Corporation Laws.

The corporation laws enacted in 1901 show gratifying results. Prior to the passage of these laws for the year 1900 there were but 2,329 incorporations, with a total capitalization of $306,613,355, while for the year ending Sept. 30, 1903, there were 3,828 incorporations, with a capitalization of $424,830,500. The number of companies increasing their capital stock during this year was 572, with a total increase of $261,834,150. These figures show that the recent laws are encouraging corporations to domicile within New York.

It is suggested that the insurance law be so amended as to provide that cooperative insurance companies' certificates be filed in the insurance department instead of in the secretary of state's office, as this class of companies is provided for by the insurance laws. It is also recommended that certificates of corporations incorporated under the insurance law shall be filed with the insurance department alone. As the law stands today the certificates of incorporation of such companies are not filed with the secretary of state, but subsequent certificates of such companies are required to be. The recommendation which I have made is to avoid a duplication in the filing of certificates.

It is also suggested that the code of civil procedure be amended so as to protect the name of a corporation when it is proceeding to effect a change of name under section 2111 of the code of civil procedure.

Department of Health.

The report of the state commissioner of health shows that nearly 25,000 cases of typhoid fever, with a mortality of 1,688 cases, occurred in the state during 1903. Similar epidemics have occurred in other states. Inasmuch as typhoid fever is very frequently caused by polluted supplies of potable water, a complete record of the sources of public water supplies and the possible conditions which may produce epidemics of typhoid fever or other infectious diseases should be secured by the health commissioner, and I recommend that an appropriation be granted by the legislature for this purpose.

Home Rule.

The object of certain articles in the amended constitution was to give to every locality in the state a measure of home rule which had been denied theretofore. The many interferences with the rights of cities, it was thought, had been sufficiently guarded against by placing within the hands of the respective mayors veto power over all acts affecting their cities. A protection in another direction was by giving to them the absolute control of all franchises in their localities without interference from the state. The state has placed within the municipalities the absolute power to prevent the disposal of valuable rights without securing adequate compensation therefor. Judicial findings have frequently set aside laws which interfered with these rights which for partisan or other purposes were sought to be secured by other than municipal control. The power which the state from time to time has thus placed with the cities would seem to be almost ample for absolute and positive autonomy.

While the state has reserved to itself certain taxing powers, the object of which is of as much benefit to the cities as to the state, there seems to be yet misunderstanding and friction which it should be your duty to eliminate. Police power is often exercised for partisan effect. Laws of long standing on the statute books and which for political effect or other reasons have been left unrepealed have been made agencies frequently for persecution and intolerable abuse of authority. A sentiment has grown up that the cities are not securing adequate return for their support in maintaining the state. The rural communities, on the other hand, resent the imputation that they are escaping their just proportion of the expense of the state's maintenance. These disagreements have been the [illegible] growth of a misunderstanding of the [illegible] conditions. Laws, however, were made to be enforced, and no complaint can be made of an honest enforcement. It would seem natural and proper, inasmuch as it has been the policy of the state to afford home rule to municipalities, that in every respect majorities should control. That which the people of a locality demand within their own boundaries should be accorded without interference by other sections of the state, provided, however, that their action does not interfere with the rights of any or all of the people.

Special Laws.

The legislature annually passes many bills under the guise of general acts which in effect are purely local in their character. It is not always possible to entirely eliminate this class of legislation. In prior messages I have directed the attention of the legislature to this subject and have requested the framing of bills which would enable localities to take advantage of general statutes rather than special acts. This is particularly true of measures having to do with bond issues, the legalizing of the acts of notaries, amendments to village and city charters and permission to go to the court of claims. It would seem that general statutes ought to be provided whereby some authority would be empowered to act upon these matters without the necessity of recourse to the legislature. These statutes which are intended apparently for specific cases sometimes have very serious general effects. Legislation which had for its object the simplification and codification of our laws would be of incalculable benefit to every citizen of the state. I commend these subjects to your thoughtful and careful consideration.

Agriculture.

It has been the policy of the state to secure and disseminate such information as might be of benefit to the farming interests of the state. Laws have been enacted and rigidly enforced for the protection of food supplies against adulteration with the object of guarding the health of the people and of securing to the farming interests such advantages as they are entitled to. Competition with the richer lands of other states makes scientific farming today more necessary than ever before. A thorough understanding of our resources and the necessities of our cities is important, because it will make the farming industry more profitable and consequently of greater benefit to the commonwealth. We have now two institutions in the state which devote attention to agricultural interests, one working along on experimental scientific lines and the other teaching the science of farming. Other commonwealths have contributed largely in support of agricultural education, and it is important that we should also make adequate provision for this necessary instruction. There have been many applications from the agricultural interests for such recognition. Without making any specific recommendations as to the line which you should follow I do desire to impress upon you the necessity for complying with these demands, which I believe to be reasonable and in the interest of New York.

Reports of Departments.

The reports of the various departments which will be submitted to you all show results which are satisfactory. They are commended to your careful consideration because a synopsis of [illegible] in a communication [illegible] would fail [illegible]

THE CARNEGIE LIBRARY PROPOSITION

The adoption by the Common Council of the resolution appropriating $1,500 per annum for the maintenance of the proposed Carnegie library building and thus accepting the proposition, has met with the hearty approval of a large number of our citizens. Some opposition to the measure has developed, principally, we believe, on the part of those who are desirous of establishing a hospital—a good, beneficent and wise purpose—but it will undoubtedly be possible to secure both in due time.

The library is established—it has become one of the city's most valuable institutions—but it has been supported largely by public-spirited citizens, most of whom are possessed of abundant means to purchase all the books they might require for their own use, so that they have not been actuated by any selfish purpose or design. Great sacrifices have been made in time and money by those who were pioneers in this movement to aid those who are less fortunate but equally intelligent and ambitious to improve every opportunity for advancement.

The wage-earners and public school scholars have been the largest patrons of the library—it is a valuable adjunct to the schools and one which would now be sorely missed. It can not fail to increase in importance as the years glide by, and be such institution that those who have inadvertently raised opposition to it will want to blot the recollection of their opposition from the tablet of their memory.

Let all unite to add to the importance and value of Mr. Carnegie's munificent gift. A desirable and centrally-located site will have to be procured which will be paid for by voluntary subscription. It is hoped that the building will be located somewhere on First street, adjacent to the business section, making it easy of access to all—east and west side.

It might be well to add that Mr. William F. Yust, a library inspector from the State Regents Department, was in Fulton on Tuesday and visited our library. To a Times representative he spoke very highly of the excellent manner in which the technical work is done. The collection of books, he stated, was a good one and the library was doing splendid work. He paid a high compliment to Mrs. Emeus, the librarian, pronouncing her one of the best he had met in his professional journeys throughout the State, adding that without doubt her work was thoroughly appreciated in our city.

Mr. Yust also wisely suggested that before any decision is reached regarding a suitable building, it might be a good plan to invite Mr. W. R. Eastman, one of the head librarians, to visit Fulton and give one of his interesting lectures on library buildings, illustrated with lantern slides.

PROF. FAIRGRIEVE SELECTED AS SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

Last Friday night, by a unanimous vote, the Board of Education elected Prof. J. R. Fairgrieve of Walton, N. Y., to fill the position of superintendent of schools, made vacant by the resignation of Prof. Clapp. The high state of efficiency to which our schools have been brought by the energy and ability of Prof. Clapp and the Board of Education, will probably be the argument that can be used to induce Prof. Fairgrieve to leave his present position.

It is doubtful if Prof. Clapp can realize the profound respect in which he is held by the citizens of Fulton. He came to Fulton just as the public schools were beginning to emerge from their cramped state and give a higher and broader education. He has worked unceasingly, with rare ability and with such marked success that the Fulton school has become one of the best schools in the State. Prof. Clapp's work in Fulton is a monument to him of which any man could feel proud.

Fulton will be very fortunate if it can secure the services of Prof. Fairgrieve. He went to the Walton schools about twelve years ago, and during these years has developed into one of the most prominent educators of the State, and Walton, which was comparatively unknown, has become celebrated as an educational center. In one of the reports of Bishop Doane, the Walton school is mentioned as a model High school. Between twenty and thirty of the students of the school are now in attendance at the various colleges in the country. Prof. Fairgrieve has a very remarkable faculty of creating ambition in students and inspiring them to do earnest work.

Chamber of Commerce.

A special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held in the court room, City Hall building, at 7:30 p. m. this (Wednesday), Jan. 13. The committee sent to investigate the International Broom Company's plants in Brooklyn and New Haven, Conn., will report at this meeting. A full attendance is desired.

Delightful Social Event.

New Year's night the most brilliant social function enjoyed in Fulton in many years was given in Church's hall by the Misses Sara Lewis and Marguerite Case, and Messrs. Victor and Murney Lewis. The hall was elaborately decorated with red and white crepe paper, and the electric lights were mellowed by encasings of Japanese lanterns. The guests were cordially received by the Hon. and Mrs. T. D. Lewis, Miss Lewis, Miss Case and the Messrs. Lewis, and nearly all of the two hundred invited guests were present. Promptly at nine o'clock Buell's full orchestra played the first number for the dances, and the scene waf entrancing beyond description when the floor was filled with the happy young people in the mazes of the dance. The gowns worn by the ladies were very artistic, and the young men in their evening clothes formed a good background for their beautiful attire.

A dainty luncheon was served at midnight in the spacious dining room of the Hotel Lewis. Mrs. G. W. Morton, Mrs. G. S Piper, Mrs. S. B. Mead and Miss Franc French presided at the salad bowls and the coffee urns. The dining room had been very elaborately decorated with smilax and carnations and presented a very inviting appearance. Mrs. John Woodin presided at the punch bowl, which occupied a position in the ball room during the evening. At the conclusion of luncheon, the guests repaired again to the ball room, where dancing was continued until a late hour. Among the out of town guests present were Dr. A. A. Rosenbloom of New York city, Messrs. Charles Rogers of Alleghany, Pa., Irving C. Gary of Richmond, Va., and George Charlton of Tonawanda; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Betts of Phoenix, Miss Harriet Boomer of New York, Miss Laura Sennett of Wolcott, the Misses Ora Chrisman, Marie Mulvihill and Nellie McMahon of Syracuse.

Broom Factory Proposition.

Messrs. L. W. Emerick, A. Bristol, Elmer Taylor and C. M. Allen, the committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to visit New York City and New Haven, Ct., and investigate the manner and method of doing business by the International Broom Company, which proposes to establish a branch in our city under certain conditions, have returned and will make their report at the Chamber of Commerce meeting this evening. Mr. Emerick states that he and the other members of the committee were most favorably impressed and he believes the proposition a practicable one and that it could not fail to be a substantial enterprise.

Firemen's Services Appreciated.

Mr. J. C. O'Brien has sent his check for $25 to the Volunteer Fire Department, accompanied by the following letter, which is self explanatory:

George H. Wilson, Treasurer Fulton Fire Department:

Dear Sir—I wish you would kindly accept the enclosed check for $25, to be used for the benefit of the Fire Department, as a slight token of my appreciation of the valuable and efficient services rendered by the Department at the recent fire at my residence in South Third street. Respectfully,

J. C. O'Brien.

Bowling Tournament.

Ten teams will compete in the bowling tournament to take place in Griffin's alley on Jan. 19. The purse will amount to $100, divided into prizes of 50, 30 and 20 per cent. The event will be of unusual interest in view of the fact that the best bowlers in Central New York will be present. The Central City, Salt City and Long Branch teams are the three leading teams in the Syracuse League, and they and a team from the Kuntzh alley will represent Syracuse bowlers. Oswego will be represented by the Lake City team and the Oswego's, from the Lake City Business Men's club. Baldwinsville has one team entered with a possibility of two, and Fulton will be represented by a picked five. Entries are expected from Oneida and Rome.

The Central City's and the Salt City's will represent Syracuse at the National Tournament to be held in Cleveland, Ohio, the second week in February.

The opening game at Griffin's alley will commence at 1 o'clock on Tuesday, and the games will extend through the afternoon and evening. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged spectators.

Freeman Boat Company.

The Freeman Boat company has reorganized and Mr. Edward J. Jenkins has become a member of the firm, which is now composed of Mr. M. C. Freeman, Mr. W. M. Dunham and Mr. Jenkins. The company has incorporated for $10,000 and they propose to refit their plant and install modern machinery and power in sufficient amount that they will be able to manufacture anything in the boat line. The company is one of the rapidly growing industries of Fulton and bids fair to extend its lines far beyond the most sanguine expectations of its proprietors. It is a certainty that no better pleasure craft can be built than are built by the local firm, and their fame is rapidly spreading so that they already have a large number of orders booked for the year.

Ladies' Aid Society, S. of V.

The recently elected officers of the Ladies' Aid society, S. of V., were installed on Thursday evening by Mrs. Minnie Wheelhouse, past president. The officers for the ensuing year will be: President, Mrs. Hattie Wolever; vice-president, Mrs. Jane Flynn; chaplain, Mrs. Margaret Sweet; secretary, Miss May Wescott; treasurer, Miss Lola Rice; guide, Mrs. Dora Watson; assistant guide, Mrs. Ada Wells; outside guard, Mrs. Julia Youngs; inside guard, Mrs. Mary Chetney; Trustees, Mrs. Albert Miller, Mrs. Ada Wells, Mrs. Jennie Brown; judge advocate, Mr. Harry Fletcher; advisory board, Messrs. Amos Z. Wolever, Thomas Wheelhouse, Frank Connell, Frank Watson, Charles Graham.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. E. A. Putnam is slowly convalescing from her recent severe illness.

Mrs. William Byrne attended the funeral of a friend in Hannibal on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Diedrick are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Green from Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Giesler have been entertaining Mrs. Mayme Whalen of Syracuse.

Mr. Orla Druce has accepted a position with the New York Advertising company.

Attorney William Schenck of Albany has been the recent guest of his parents in this city.

Miss Cornelia Whitaker pleasantly entertained a few friends at whist on Saturday evening.

Mr Jud Carey of New York city has been the recent guest of his mother, Mrs. A. Carey.

Mr George Smith is recovering from the effects of serious injuries received in the Victoria Paper mill several weeks ago.

This Wednesday evening, "Thelma" will be presented in Stephens opera house by a large and capable company. The sale of seats has been large.

Miss Fannie Reynolds and Mrs. G. G. Whitaker have returned from Syracuse, where they attended the funeral of the late Charles Davis.

Miss Agnes Avery pleasantly entertained the Young Ladies Whist club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wettengal on Saturday afternoon.

The four weeks membership contest by Tent No. 257, K. O. T. M, has closed, and Mr. Michael McKenna was the fortunate winner of the gold watch which was offered as a prize.

Miss Ethel Wood delightfully spent a portion of the holiday vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Andelfinger in Oswego, who gave a very enjoyable party for her on Dec. 31.

The Daughters of Rebekah installed officers and initiated a class on Tuesday evening. At the conclusion of the work, a social session and refreshments were enjoyed.

The Rev. Father Auger, a greatly beloved priest of Oswego, died suddenly with heart disease at the home of his physician whom he had gone to consult, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. O'Brien have leased one of the Harry Seymour houses in Seneca street, which they will occupy until they can have their home on Third street fixed over. They hope to return to their own home about April 1.

Dr. N. H. Haviland, in renewing his subscription to THE TIMES, stated last week that he had been a regular subscriber to this paper for twenty-seven years. Who among its readers can beat that record?

Mrs. Harvey McMurchey entertained at dinner on Saturday evening in honor of her husband's birthday. An elaborate menu was served, the Spanish dishes especially proved a surprise and delight to all who were present.

Several of the members of Post Schenck, G. A. R., enjoyed a strawride to Oswego on Friday evening, where they attended the camp fire given by Post O'Brien of that city. A program was enjoyed and an evening of reminescences was spent.

F. P. Connell & Co.'s sweep-out sale is proving a great success. The store is daily thronged with customers eager to get their money's worth, and that they succeed beyond their expectations is a fact. The sale will end on Monday evening next.

"Ladies' night," given by the Fulton B. P. O. E. at their lodge rooms in the O'Brien block on Friday evening, was most enjoyable. A musical and literary program was rendered, refreshments served and dancing indulged in until the "wee sma' hours." Guests were present from Syracuse, Hannibal, Phoenix and Oswego.

A club to be known as the Dinner club was organized last week and the first dinner was enjoyed at the home of Alderman and Mrs. Frank B. Dilts on Friday evening. The club will meet each alternate Friday night at the home of a member who will serve a dinner.

Mrs. F. E. Weeden delightfully entertained a number of friends at "hearts" at her home in First street last Wednesday afternoon. The king prizes were won by Mrs. F. A. Gage and Miss Marguerite Case, while Mesdames Harvey McMurchey and R. D. Parsons secured the consolation prizes. Five o'clock tea was served and an enjoyable afternoon spent.

General John Brown Gordon, whom it will be recalled spoke so entertainingly in Stephens Opera House two years ago, died at his Winter home in Miami, Fla., on Saturday. The deceased was the last of the great Confederate leaders, and while he was the idol of the Southern soldiers, he had since the war become a great favorite with Northerners as well.

All of the factories and plants in Fulton are running full time, and with slight exceptions, with a full quota of hands. Among the plants which have run on full or over time, all through the year might be mentioned the Emeny Machine works, the Taylor Brothers knife works, the Diamond Excelsior works, the C.M Allen Excelsior works and butter tub factory, the Freeman Boat company and others.

JANUARY CLEARANCE OF WOMEN'S CLOAKS and SUITS

Means Thousands of Dollars in Pocket for Syracuse and Central New York Women

The term "January" is not intended to imply that these great bargains will last all through the month of January. It is our present stock we are selling—a stock in which every detail of tailoring, style, trimming and finish was considered carefully as the materials themselves in making selections and purchases.

The lots that we are offering cannot be duplicated. There will be no buying "to fill in chinks." No running down to New York to pick up catch-penny baits. We are jealous of the reputation of this Great New Cloak Store of ours. It has a splendid reputation, which has been quickly yet not easily earned. However low the price may be at which you buy a garment here you may depend it was not bought by us at a price too low to enable us to sell it to you with every guarantee that it is all that it pretends or appears to be.

He was driving his horse across the bridge when a runaway horse from the other direction bore down upon him with fearful speed. Mr. Bogue turned his horse toward the right hand side of the bridge, but saw that the strange horse was turning in the same direction, so he jumped from his sleigh. The horse jumped right over his horse, knocking it down and damaging the cutter to a considerable extent. Mr. Bogue believes had he remained in the sleigh he would have been killed by the hoofs of the horse.

Friday, Jan. 29, will be observed generally throughout the country as Carnation Day. The observance is an annual memorial to the martyred President McKinley, and it is a fitting tribute that on his natal anniversary a nation which mourns his loss should remember his favorite flower. The Carnation League was formed for the purpose of making general the observance, and its hope was that the observance of the day would "in a quiet, unobtrusive way be made to wield an influence for good almost incalculable and to foster a spirit of true patriotism worthy of our country and of the man whose memory it is proud to honor."

The Manufacturer Stands the Loss.

ANNUAL SALE OF Women's Clothing.

"If you will sell me the balance of this season's Coats and Suits at 40 cents on the dollar, spot cash, I will take your entire stocks" said our buyer to three big New York manufacturers recently. His proposition was accepted and we got the goods.

Do you realize what this transaction means? It means that $10 garments cost us $4 and that all other prices were reduced in the same proportion.

We are selling them to you in the same way. Goods which would ordinarily cost you $4 to $6, you can buy now for $1.50. Prices on all better grades marked down in the same way.

We Cannot Say Too Much in Praise of These Garments.

Every Coat and Suit in the lot is of good material, well made, perfect fitting and of the very latest styles.

With absolutely no exception they are the greatest bargains we ever offered at any one of our now famous Annual Sales.

Representative John W. Dwight Discusses Republican Prospects In State and Nation.

The Party Is Ready and In Condition For the Great Contest of Next Year.

Reasons Why Republican Candidates and Policies Will Appeal to the People.

Hon. John W. Dwight, who represents the Thirtieth New York district in congress, was recently interviewed by the New York Tribune on the present and future political conditions. Mr. Dwight is a close friend of President Roosevelt, Senator Platt, Governor Odell and other organization leaders in New York state and has had long experience in the management of political campaigns. He was quoted as follows:

"I hear a good deal of talk from my Democratic friends about the demoralization of the Republican machine in New York state and about how easily they are going to defeat us next year. I have taken a good deal of pains to talk with every Republican that I know about his own attitude and about the attitude of his particular friends. Many Republicans bring rumors of how some other Republicans are going to desert the party, but when I talk with the men under suspicion I find that not for an instant have they contemplated voting the Democratic ticket. Our Democratic friends will find themselves up against the same old solid, effective organization in 1904 that has run over them with great regularity in New York state for the last ten years.

"In 1880 the Conkling-Platt men and their colleagues, making up the immortal 306 demanding Grant's nomination, went to the presidential convention and were captured by the Sioux. When they came back the air was full of wrath, and eight out of about every ten Republicans declared in favor of the Democratic candidate, whoever he might be. Republicans everywhere said that the organization had gone to pieces and that the Democrats would have a walkover. I recall that after a great deal of angry muttering on all sides Senator Conkling made his celebrated trip to Mentor, after which he unqualifiedly indorsed the nomination of Garfield. Then Garfield swung across the southern tier of New York, in company with Senator Platt and other Conkling men, and before our Democratic friends realized it all the ragged gaps had been closed up and we presented a solid front to our antagonists. That was not all. We elected Garfield that fall and carried the state of New York by a comfortable plurality.

In New York State.

"The outlook in our state, now that we are upon the eve of another presidential election, is ten times more flattering than it was in 1880. Certain people have done their level best in trying to get up a fight between Senator Platt and Governor Odell. It strikes me that they do this because primarily they wish to injure President Roosevelt and if possible prevent his nomination. They have failed in their attempts and will continue to fail. In his long record as a Republican leader in this state Senator Platt has never advised the Republicans to knife the ticket.

"I don't know who the Republican candidate for governor of New York will be next fall. I doubt if anybody else knows at this time. I do know, however, that when the time comes to nominate him the convention will pick out a great big patriotic Republican in whom the people of the state will have absolute confidence. Along with him will be nominated a state ticket.

Election of Ticket.

"Now, not all the candidates on that state ticket may be admirers of President Roosevelt or Governor Odell, but they will be great admirers of themselves, and they will work for their own election and the election of the ticket as a whole with undiminished zeal. Along with them will be a full set of presidential electors and alternates and electors at large, every one of whom will be anxious to win by a handsome plurality. More than that, in fifty senate districts will be fifty Republicans who, while they may not be dead in love with the state or presidential ticket, will be very enthusiastic for their own success, and with old fashioned ardor will work early and late to get out the full party vote. Add to this the efforts of the 150 candidates for assembly and various other candidates down the line, and it is not difficult to anticipate that the Republican organization in the entire state will be found united and enthusiastic.

The Federal Side.

"Then there is the federal side of the question. Pretty nearly every postmaster in the state of New York is a Republican. Perhaps 90 per cent of the [illegible] are Republicans. The postmasters who have been in office since 1897 are going to work just as hard for the ticket as they did four years ago, and for every federal position there will be three or four aspiring men who will expect that after waiting eight years for a postmastership their patience will be rewarded. For these reasons, among others, the Republican organization in New York will be in just as good fighting trim as it ever was.

"Speaking for the organization in the interior of the state, I can say truthfully and positively that the reorganization microbe has no terrors for us. It does not find a lodgment in our blood. We are reorganized all the while. We love the Republican party, its records and its platforms, and we are just as anxious to perpetuate its control as we ever were. The financial depression prevailing all over this country from 1893 to 1897 was a dose of medicine to the people up the state which still tastes bitter.

"The solid prosperity since 1897 has shown us the difference between simon pure Democratic and simon pure Republican administration. The before and after experience abides with us. And it will abide with our financial brethren in Wall street. Let them set over against the generally satisfactory and wholesome experience of the last six years the fantastic dreams of men like Livernash of California and Baker of Brooklyn, who week by week in the house of representatives exploit the doctrines of the free trade period of American industrial history. That object lesson will settle it for them. They will not jump out of what possibly they may deem at present to be the financial frying pan into the fire.

Anti-Roosevelt Propaganda.

"I have given considerable time of late to investigating the feeling in the northwest, where I have business interests. It is not true that James J. Hill of the Great Northern for any reason whatsoever is directing an anti-Republican or anti-Roosevelt propaganda. The people of the northwest have taken pains to inform Mr. Hill of how they feel upon governmental questions. That feeling is strongly Republican, and Mr. Hill is not doing anything to disturb it. No doubt this same drift of sentiment will be revealed in any section of the country where our Democratic friends think they have discovered Republican demoralization.

"Furthermore, we are having our hard sledding now, and it isn't very hard at that. Our Democratic friends are perhaps getting a good deal of fun out of it. Theirs will begin when snowshoes are laid away. We will have our fun at their expense at about the time the dove of peace attempts to stand with one foot resting on William Jennings Bryan and the other on Arthur Pue Gorman.

"Perhaps it is just as well for the country that we have our laugh then. They cannot point with pride to any platform on which they have stood in any campaign since 1860. It is a fortunate thing for the people of this nation that the Republicans are not confronted with a difficulty of that nature."

AUTHOR AND PREACHER.

Dr. Edward Everett Hale, Who Is to Be Chaplain of the Senate.

Dr. Edward Everett Hale, famous author, lecturer and preacher, who, beginning the new year, is to be chaplain of the United States senate, is a survivor of that class of writers and thinkers of which Emerson, Lowell and Parkman were conspicuous representatives.

He was born in Boston, and after graduating from Harvard in 1839 he studied theology and became a Unitarian minister. From 1846 to 1856 he was pastor of the Church of the Unity, Worcester, Mass., since which time he has been pastor of the South Congregational church, Boston.

Dr. Hale has published a large number of books, but the story that first gave him international fame was "The Man Without a Country," which appeared in 1861. Dr. Hale celebrated his eighty-first birthday last April and is an honored man in a green old age.

Personally Dr. Hale is a very striking figure, tall, slender and alert in movement, nearly always walking instead of riding or driving. He generally carries a little leather bag and an umbrella. His face, framed in luxuriant hair, reminds one a little of Webster, save that the deep set eyes are not so solemn, but have a twinkle of kindliness or fun about them. It is not a handsome face, but it is fascinating, for it is original.

Mortgagor, Robert H. Stowe. Mortgagee, Mrs. C C. Pettis. Mortgage dated August 14, 1903, and recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the Clerk's office of Oswego County, N. Y., on the 15th day of August, 1903, at 8:25 a. m., in Liber 204 of Mortgages, at page 528. The sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is fifty one dollars and nineteen cents ($51.19), being the whole sum secured by said mortgage. (Said Mortgagee above named, also holds two prior mortgages upon the same premises, on which is unpaid the sum of $400, together with interest on $150 from February 14, 1903, and on $250, from March 18, 1903.)

The mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, and State of New York, known and described as Lot No five (5) of block five hundred and four (504), according to the map of the village of Fulton on file in Oswego County Clerk's office. Default having been made in the payment of the sum secured to be paid by said mortgage, and no action having been brought to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof; therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained, recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said mortgaged property at public auction, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, N. Y., on the 2d day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said sale will be made subject to the lien of the above mentioned prior mortgages.

Dated, January 6, 1904.

Supreme Court.

The following Fulton men have been arraigned under indictments and bail fixed for nearly all of them.

Louis and William Fuller, who were indicted for destroying personal property in shooting a valuable Irish setter belonging to John N. Sharp, on December 8th last, pleaded not guilty. Mr. Sharp placed the value of the dog at $100.

Wallace Baker, indicted for burglary in the third degree and petit larceny in entering the store of Goodjon & Co., pleaded not guilty.

Amos Gilbert and Charles Costello, indicted for burglary in the third degree and grand larceny in the second degree in entering the store of John M. and Earl Foster, pleaded not guilty.

Justice Wright remanded all the cases over to the County Court for trial and placed the bail in each case at $500.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Moved by Alderman Bogardus:

Resolved, That the Committee on Printing be granted further time for deliberation. Carried.

The various amounts of the city budget as adopted for the tax budget were read; also, the county budget.

Alderman Russell explained that there were several important cases on the calendar of the Supreme Court, involving large sums of money, which, if decided against the city, would be come a serious burden to the taxpayers He, therefore, as acting Mayor, had instructed Attorney W. S. Hillick to procure counsel in order to have the cases put over the term.

On motion, the Council adjourned to Jan 14, 1904, at 8 o'clock p. m.

W. M. HINSDALE, City Clerk.

Fulton, N. Y., Jan. 9, 1904

An adjourned meeting of the Common Council was held on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the purpose of selling the street railroad franchise.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Foster. The aldermen present were Messrs. Brown, Dilts, Prince, Russell and Bogardus.

Alderman Dilts introduced the following and moved its adoption:

Whereas, As the Common Council is restrained at this time from holding the proposed sale of a street railroad franchise, as advertised; therefore be it

Resolved, That this meeting and sale be adjourned until Saturday, Jan. 23, 1904, at 3 p. m.

The resolution was adopted.

W. M. HINSDALE, City Clerk.

I hereby certify that the above resolution was duly adopted at a meeting of the Common Council of the city of Fulton, held at the City Hall, on the 9th day of January, 1904.

W. M. HINSDALE, City Clerk.

Approved this 9th day of January, 1904.

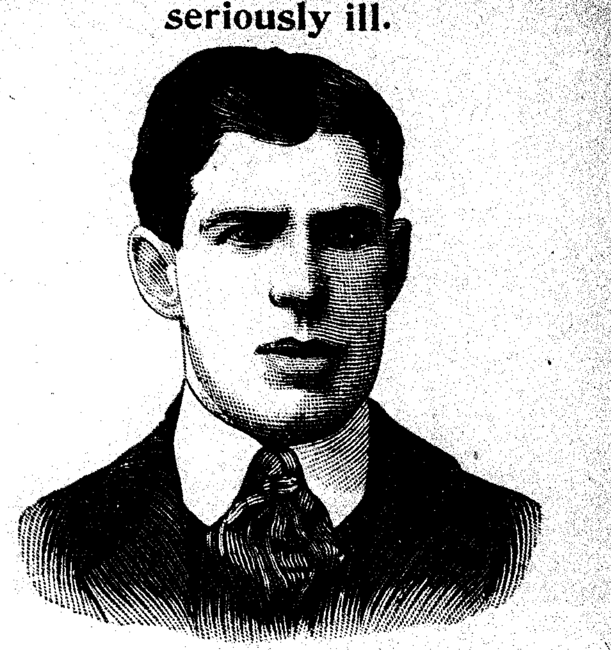
Much Run Down Health.

And was afraid he was going to be seriously ill.



FRED H. WATKINS.

Every sensible person knows that among the first signs of failing health the most noticeable are a failing appetite and a loss of flesh.

Nobody can tell all the reasons why health should fail. There has been a strain upon vitality, which vitality could not meet, the reserve energy has been called upon and the system begins to languish. It is just this condition actually which invites disease and chronic ailments. The digestive system is weakened, the appetite fails, there is no longer nourishment enough in the blood to meet the demand of ordinary daily life, and trouble threatens.

We invite your attention to a case in point.

1051 18th St., Des Moines, Iowa. November 30 1903.

Dear Sirs—I had been losing flesh and was feeling very much run down in health I could not rest well at night, seemed weak and was afraid I was going to be seriously ill. In this condition I began to take Ozomulsion, with results that were better than I even had expected. It quickly brought my weight back to a normal standard, my appetite became very much better, I rested well at night and, in fact, was restored to perfect health. I think Ozomulsion Food is a splendid remedy for building up the system.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Fred H. Watkins.

We trust that the foregoing letter makes our case quite clear. The reason Ozomulsion has the power to restore a weakened system back to health and strength is because it fortifies the nourishing properties of cod liver oil in a form which does not tax indigestion, and offers also the hypophosphites of lime and soda to stimulate the appetite, improve digestion and feed the nerves.

These standard remedial agents have been employed by the medical profession for over a century, and we believe that the facts bear us out when we say that never until Ozomulsion Food was originated were they in their best form to do the most good in the system.

It is superfluous to say that Ozomulsion is palatable, because every emulsion of cod liver oil is supposed to be more or less palatable. What we maintain is, that the world has moved in the last ten years in the perfection of cod liver oil emulsions, the same as in about everything else, and Ozomulsion has moved with it.

Ozomulsion is certainly the best emulsion of cod liver oil in the market to-day. It is the only emulsion that contains Guaiacol Whether it will be a quarter of a century hence, we can not say, but we know it is so to-day and we think any fair trial of it will be quite convincing. In all of those weakened conditions of the system for which cod liver oil has been so long known as a standard remedial agent, we most emphatically declare that Ozomulsion is the best form of oil for the patient to take.

Where babies and growing children do not thrive, its effects are really wonderful.

Ozomulsion Food is the Cod Liver Oil Emulsion "Par Excellence" that physicians use in their families and prescribe in their private and hospital practice, and druggists sell in extra Large Bottles weighing over One and Two Pounds each for Fifty Cents and One Dollar a Bottle.

If your druggist does not keep Ozomulsion in stock, he can easily order it for you, or, if you desire a small sample to see what it is like, you can obtain the same by mentioning the name of the paper in which you read this advertisement and sending seven cents in stamps, to cover postage, to the Ozomulsion Co., 98 Pine St., New York.

Injunction Proceedings.

The injunction proceedings growing out of the sale of the Fulton trolley franchise which was to have been argued on Saturday morning before Justice Wright, was again adjourned for two weeks by the consent of all concerned.

Found a Cure for Indigestion.

I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find that they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different remedies. I am nearly fifty-one years of age and have suffered a great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything I want to now — George W. Emory, Rock Mills, Ala. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Civil Service Examinations.

President Roosevelt, in his annual message, stated that for the last fiscal year there had been 25,566 persons appointed through competitive examinations under Civil Service rules. This was 12,672 more than for any previous year, and forty per cent. of all who passed the examinations. There will be a postoffice examination in this city the first Wednesday or Saturday after May 1. There will be examinations in several places in this State for railway mail clerks, stenographers and many other positions during March and April. The Columbian Correspondence College of Washington, D. C., has issued an announcement giving the dates and places for holding examinations, the age limits, physical qualifications, education required, and full information about the various positions in the Government Civil Service, and it will be sent free to all who write for it.

Mr. Wm. S. Crane of California, Md., suffered for years from rheumatism and lumbago. He was finally advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did and it effected a complete cure. This liniment is for sale by H. C. Giesler.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin chi'dren Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

A New Book on Timely Topics.

We have received advance sheets of a pamphlet entitled "The City Primer' which the owner says is to be published "Now and again to teach young people how to discriminate between good and poor citizens, to the intent that they may emulate the one and despise the other." We have space this week for only one extract, which is a lesson on "The Dromedary." This we print because it treats of a timely topic of great interest to most of us.

THE DROME-DA-RY.

What is a drom-e-da ry?
A drom-e-da ry is an an-i-mal with a hump.
Is a man a drom-e-da-ry?
Some men are.
What kind of men are they?
Pret-ty poor spec-i-mens gen-er-al-ly.
One fun-ny thing a-bout them is that the small-er men have the larg-est humps.
Are the humps on their backs?
No, No. Most of us wish that they were.
Are drom-e-da-ries born with humps up-on them?
O, no, not this kind.
They get them when they grow up.
Why do they get them?
Just to an-noy oth-er folks.
So you see they are mean men.
Where do they wear their humps?
On their front side-walks.
Can you see the hump?
O yes; and you can feel them too.
They are in the mid-dle of the side-walk,
They are cov-er-ed with snow so that they are slip-per-y.
See the la-dy slip on the hump!
One foot slides on one side and the oth-er foot slides down this side.
Does the la-dy fall down?
O no; but she wish-es that she had.
It hurts her worse than falling.
If she were a man what would she do?
She would say naught-y words.
She on-ly thinks them.
Is it fun-ny to see her slip?
The drom-e-da-ry thinks so.
He feels pret-ty good, which is the same as be-ing good to him.
Why do folks let the drom-e-da-ry have a hump?
Be-cause they hate to fuss.
Can you make him take it a-way?
O yes, if you fall down hard and break your leg.
Then he will bor-row an axe and chop the hump away.
Why will he do so?
Be-cause he fears you may sue him.
Shall we break our legs to bust the humps?
O dear no; we will do it eas-i-er.
We will tell the Su-per-in-ten-dent of Pub-lic Works.
He will send some men to take the hump a-way.
Who will pay the men's wag-es?
The drom-e-da-ry; that is all the joke there is in it.
[illegible] fun-ny thing to see him pay the [illegible]
[illegible] all the bad words that the la-dy [illegible] when she slip-ped.

Notice of Sale of Franchise.

Notice is hereby given that a franchise for a street surface railroad within the city will be sold at public auction at 3 p. m., Dec. 26, 1903, at the council room in the City Hall, in the city of Fulten, N. Y., to the highest bidder for a sum of not less than $1,000, which is the sum fixed by the Board of Public Works of the city of Fulton as a fair compensation to the city for such franchise.

Each person, firm or corporation desiring to bid on said franchise shall, before the bidding is opened, and before a bid will be accepted, deposit with the city chamberlain of the city of Fulton ($1,000) one thousand dollars in cash, or a certified check of that amount, payable to William P. Hillick, city chamberlain, to be and as for liquidated damages to the city in the event of the failure of the successful bidder to file an acceptance of said franchise within ten days after the sale thereof, and to file the bonds required by the terms of said franchise within the times therein prescribed, and to pay the amount bid for said franchise within the time prescribed therein; and in the event of said failure, the sum of ($1,000) one thousand dollars shall be forfeited to the city and paid into the Improvement Fund, otherwise such cash or certified check to be returned.

Copies of such franchise and the conditions upon which the same is granted will be furnished to all persons, firms or corporations desiring to bid thereon upon application to William M. Hinsdale, city clerk, Fulton, N. Y.

COMMON COUNCIL

Commissioner Green's Report—Mayor Foster Complains of the Action of Council in Organizing During His Absence--Official Papers Selected--Legal Department of City in Hopeless Tangle.

The Common Council met last Thursday evening, as per adjournment, the session being presided over by Mayor J. A. Foster. The members present were Aldermen Brown, Bogardus, Russell, Prince, Dilts and Brennan. After the calling of the roll and the adoption of the minutes of the previous session, Commissioner of Charities Samuel Green gave a brief outline of the work he had accomplished during the past year. This seemed satisfactory to many of the members, but Alderman Bogardus, who is chairman of the Finance Committee, wanted a detailed monthly report so that his committee could act intelligently. They desired to know the amount appropriated, the items of expenditure and the balance on hand. He was told by Mayor Foster that such information could be obtained from the monthly reports, which had been submitted to the Council; these were in possession of the city clerk and were accessible to the members. They could be compared with the annual report submitted by Mr. Green and the items verified.

After some discussion, which was participated in by several of the members—Alderman Bogardus averring that his committee simply wanted to act in accordance with the spirit and letter of the charter—on motion of Alderman Russell, the Finance Committee, to whom the annual report of Mr. Green had been submitted, was given further time before taking final action.

Mayor Foster, before proceeding further, stated that it was agreed by the members, before the adjournment of the special meeting which was called January 2 for the purpose of effecting an organization, that such organization would be deferred until the 16th, the date agreed upon. To effect an organization before that time on Tuesday, January 5, was discourteous, to say the least, and unparliamentary.

Mayor Foster was absent at the time in New York city on business.

Alderman Russell's contention was that the special meeting was not legal, inasmuch as the specific purpose for which it was called was not stated, and that it was proper and in accordance with good usage to perfect the organization of the Council at the first regular meeting.

Our readers are familiar with the fact that Alderman Russell resorted to extreme measures to bring the members to the council room, calling to his assistance the police department in order to effect his purpose, and secure a quorum.

Alderman Bogardus, who was chairman of the Committee on Printing, read his report.

The bids for publishing the proceedings and all matter authorized by the charter were as follows:

W. E. Hughes of the Times, 30 cents per folio.

A. P. Bradt of the Observer, 30 cents.

F. M. Cornell of the Patriot, 17 cents.

According to the charter two official papers must be designated, one on the east and west sides, providing the publishers and the Common Council agree on the compensation per folio, and as F. M. Cornell's bid was the lowest (17 cents), the Council selected the Patriot as the official paper for the east side and fixed the same rate of compensation for the Observer, west side. Both papers were therefore named.

The report of the committee was adopted.

President Chauncey of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners appeared before the Council in relation to some discrepancy which existed between the chamberlain's report, showing the balance on hand to the credit of the fund, and that submitted by the Commission in their annual report. He explained that the alleged discrepancy was caused by orders which had been issued not having been presented for payment. He would secure the figures and present them to the Council at the next meeting.

Clerk Hinsdale read a detailed report of the tax ratio for the east and west sides, as follows:

West side, $26.14 per $1,000 assessed valuation; east side, $24.76 per $1,000 assessed valuation. Soldiers' exemption: West side, $1.65 per $1,000 assessed valuation; east side, $1.23 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

In response to an inquiry by Alderman Brown, a comparison was made with the tax ratio of the preceding term.

Clerk Hinsdale read the letter which he had addressed to the Fulton Fuel & Light company, in accordance with instructions received from the Council, requesting an immediate compliance with the request to make connection with the City Hall for the purpose of lighting the building.

Alderman Russell read the account submitted by Ex-City Attorney Guile, and on motion it was submitted to the Finance Committee. Other bills presented were also submitted to the same committee.

As some contention had arisen over the payment of rent of the offices formerly occupied by the Fulton Light, Heat & Power company, in the Savings Bank building, Mr. L. W. Emerick, the manager, explained that he had twice presented a check for its settlement for the time his company had occupied the premises and in accordance with an agreement entered into between his company, the village water department, and that the present Board of Water Works had refused to accept it on the ground that it was not sufficient. He had not been informed that there had been any increase in the rental and thought it was only equitable to pay on the basis of the agreement. He had offered payment to Superintendent Allen and also to Alderman J. C. Hunter, and was most anxious that the matter be settled.

Superintendent Allen, who was present, stated that the Common Council had appointed a committee to adjust the matter with the Electric Light company and he supposed it had all been arranged. He was not aware of any agreement.

A committee composed of Aldermen Russell, Dilts and Bogardus was appointed by Mayor Foster to investigate the matter and report.

Alderman Dilts asked if it was within the province of the Common Council to investigate the condition of the Opera House, the safety of its patrons in case of fire, etc., and he was told by Alderman Russell, that it was the duty of the Board of Health to do so.

Alderman Dilts read section 48 of the city charter which authorizes any city officer to inspect any public building, to ascertain whether the same is in safe condition, and if not, may require it to be made so.

City Attorney Hillick regretted that the legal department of the city was in such a deplorable condition. Four cases were on the calendar of the Supreme Court for trial. He had not been able to procure the papers from Ex-City Attorney Guile, and realizing that a verdict for a large sum of money might be procured against the city, and as Mayor Foster was absent from the city, he had appealed to Alderman Russell, as president of the council, to authorize him to procure additional counsel and have the cases put over the term. The necessary authority was obtained, but the city would have to pay two term fees of $10 each, and he asked that the clerk be instructed to draw an order for the same; also, an additional $50 in settlement of the judgment which had been obtained by Supervisors Halloran and Fassell against the Board of Canvassers.

The clerk was so instructed.

Attorney Hillick went into some detail explaining his appointment and the subsequent action of the council in declining to instruct Attorney Guile to give up the papers; Attorney Guile's resignation and his retention of the papers belonging to the city. There were cases in the Supreme court to be argued next term. He thought the difficulty of the city attorneyship might be abridged by Mayor Foster reappointing him (Hillick) to fill the vacancy made by Attorney Guile's resignation, not, however, waiving any position he had taken by so doing. In order to secure the papers by legal process, long and tedious litigation would ensue, in the meanwhile the city might suffer.

PROPOSED BROOM FACTORY.

Chamber of Commerce Listens to Report of Committee of Investigation, Which Is Considered Favorable.

Unusual interest has been aroused over the report submitted by the committee recently sent by the Chamber of Commerce to New York city and New Haven, Ct., to investigate the affairs of the International Broom company, which proposes to establish a branch in this city. The committee was composed of Messrs. L. W. Emerick, Elmer Taylor, A. Bristol and C. M. Allen, and reported at a special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, held last Wednesday evening in the City Hall.

Mr. E. R. Redhead called the meeting to order and regretted that the severe storm which was raging prevented many from attending. He asked Mr. Emerick, as chairman of the committee, to report the result of his investigations. Mr. Emerick and Mr. Taylor were not fully satisfied with what they had seen in the Brooklyn factory, so they visited a branch which which was being operated in New Haven.

Mr. Emerick gave a most exhaustive report, not omitting any important detail. He had found the officers of the company controlling the patents eminently fair and anxious to promote the best interests of the business. He was satisfied that the proposition was sound and in his judgment the business could not fail to be profitable if it was properly managed. No skilled labor was required. A broom was exhibited which Mr. Taylor, who was inexperienced, made in two minutes at the Brooklyn factory. It seemed perfect. The New Haven branch was making seventy dozen ordinary brooms a day, and the intention was to average one hundred a day. Rattan and bass-wood brooms were also made. There were some fine patents on the broom which were unusually broad in their scope. Mr. Emerick, on his return, had shown the broom to several merchants in Syracuse who were quite enthusiastic regarding the selling qualities. Inside of two years, Mr. Emerick thought the company [illegible] company was to give each branch a sufficient large territory so that there would be no clashing of interests. The New Haven factory had cost about $1,800 to equip.

In response to inquiries from Mr. Redhead it was learned that about $8,500 worth of stock had been subscribed, and Mr. Bristol thought there would be little difficulty in securing the balance.

Mr. Bennett thought the Chamber of Commerce might endorse the proposition, but owing to the severe weather the quorum of fifteen members was not present, so that official action could not be taken. Mr. Bennett also believed if the matter was left entirely in the hands of the present committee they would make a wise disposition of it.

It was finally determined to authorize the committee to solicit subscriptions to the stock and the meeting adjourned.

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB.

Matters of Importance Discussed. Interesting Session Held.

The meeting of the Current Events Club last Monday evening at the home of Dr. James Vincent, proved perhaps the most enjoyable of the many interesting sessions which had preceded it.

Prof. G. B. Duell, chairman of the committe which had been appointed to consider ways and means for enlarging the scope and usefulness of the club, presented his report, which contained many valuable suggestions. On motion of Mr. E. R. Redhead, action was deferred until the next meeting.

The leaders for the evening were Mr. John Hunter and Prof. Duell, both of whom secured the co-operation of very valuable assistants.

Miss Chesley was introduced by Prof. Duell and a most instructive summary of the Russo-Japanese political entanglement was the result. Miss Chesley used a map of the territory in dispute, explaining to the assemblage the treaty rights, obligations and contentions of the nations who may at any time begin hostilities.

An interesting summary of Gov. Odell's message fell to the lot of Mr. F. D. Van Wagenen, who emphasized all the salient points.

Prof. Clapp, in response to an inquiry, stated that so far as he knew there was no change in the status of the contention between the State Board of Regents and the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The Panama question and the attitude of the dominant parties in the Senate toward it; the assistance rendered Syracuse University by the late James J. Belden and his recent bequest to that institution; the co-operative plan instituted by Andrew Carnegie at Homestead and its apparent failure, and the settlement of all disputes between capital and labor by arbitration, were topics fraught with interest and were made instructive by Prof. Duell.

Mr. John Hunter emphasized all Miss Chesley had said derogatory to Russia's diplomatic methods and heartily commended Japanese [illegible] ing a daily [illegible] exclusively to women; the settlement of the labor troubles in Colorado; the magnificent enterprise which is being shown by the residents of New York in improving transportation facilities, and he closed by paying a well-deserved tribute to Prof. Clapp, whose service to the schools of our city was a matter for keen appreciation and congratulation.

Mr. Redhead severely criticised an article which had appeared in a local paper in regard to the public library. The alleged business end of the proposition was what aroused Mr. Redhead's ire and he scored it in unmeasured terms.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Benedict. The Rev. W. L Sawtelle and Mr. C. W. Tippey will be the leaders.

County's Claim Against State, $63,141.

The decision of the Court of Appeals, affirming the judgment of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in the case of Ulster county against the State, was written by Judge Werner and was concurred in by Chief Justices Parker, Gray, Bartlett and Cullen. Judge Martin and O'Brien dissented.

Chairman Glynn, of the Board of Supervisors, says that Oswego county's claim is the largest of any county in the State, excepting Erie county. The latter will receive $76,186, while Oswego's claim amounts to $63,141.

It will be the duty of the present Legislature to look after the payment of the claims by placing the amount necessary in the next State levy.

WANTS TO TAKE OATH OF OFFICE

Marvin A. Thomson Formally Asks City Clerk Hinsdale for a Certificate of Election, But the Clerk Refuses to Comply

Mr. Marvin A. Thomson, accompanied by his attorney, Giles S. Piper, E-q., appeared before City Clerk Hinsdale on Thursday and asked for a certificate of election for the purpose of taking the oath of office as mayor-elect of the city.

Clerk Hinsdale refused to comply with the request until directed to do so by the courts. It is now considered probable that an application will be made to the courts to direct the clerk to issue the certificate or to show cause why he should not do so, when the burden of proof as to Mr. Thomson's elegibility will rest with the city authorities.

Attorney Piper, when seen in reference to the foregoing and asked if the time had not expired, according to the charter, when Mr. Thomson could make such application, stated that Mr. Thomson had not been officially notified of his election, and that he had been advised by eminent counsel that he was pursuing the right course.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE

Interesting Communications from States of Idaho and Colorado Read at Recent Meeting of Political Equality Club.

At a meeting of the Political Equality club, recently held in this city, the following interesting communications, in answer to inquiries submitted by Mrs. Florence Darling of Fulton, were read on the question of Woman's Suffrage in the States of Idaho and Colorado, where it has been in practical operation for some time:

STATE OF IDAHO,
Executive Office,
BOISE, Dec. 18, 1903.

Florence G. Darling, Fulton, N. Y.:

Dear Madam—Your favor of the 14th instant, relative to Woman's Suffrage in Idaho, has just reached me.

I am glad to report to you, that in my judgment, Woman's Suffrage is an advantage to the State; has had an elevating influence upon the politics of the State, and indirectly advanced the moral tone of all departments of activity.

Our State School Superintendent is a woman. The suffrage was extended to the women of Idaho by resolution of the State Legislature, submitting amendment to the constitution of the State to the electors of the State. At the election, the then electors (male), voted to so amend the constitution as to allow women to vote. There, of course, was considerable agitation during the campaign and sentiment was developed in favor of the movement largely by the ladies themselves.

Very respectfully yours,
JOHN T. MORRISON,
Governor.

DEPARTMENT PUBLIC INSTRUCTION,
DENVER, Colo., Dec. 19, 1903.

Florence G. Darling, Fulton, N. Y.:

Dear Madam—Your letter of December 14th is at hand. I shall be glad to send you any information within my power concerning Woman's Suffrage, and as you do not specify any particlar points upon which you desire me to touch, I send you a general statement concerning the conditions here.

This question was brought to a vote in the Legislature through agitation by those interested, petitions being presented requesting that a constitutional amendment be submitted to the people upon the question of Woman's Suffrage, and through individual influence. In 1893 the constitutional amendment, as shaped by the Legislature, was presented to the people and favorably voted upon.

Women have filled a variety of political offices in this State, but the chief one is that of county superintendent of schools, who are elected by the vote of the people of the respective counties. At first there were some half-dozen women elected to the position; now 33 of the 59 county superintendents are women, and their work is in every way as creditable as that of the men, not only so far as educational supervision is concerned, but in the business details of the office as well. We have also had several women county clerks and recorders and three women treasurers; in our State capitol a majority of the clerical positions are filled, and capably filled by women. We have a woman dairy commissioner, a woman deputy State land commissioner, a woman has been one of the three members of our State board of arbitration and women are members of the State board of charities and corrections and considered among the most useful there found.

Thanking you for your kind words, and appreciating the interest you have shown, I am,

Yours truly,
HELEN L. GRENFELL.

NOTES ON TEN YEARS OF SUFFRAGE IN COLORADO.

During the ten years of the establishment of Woman's Suffrage in Colorado, a great deal has been accomplished and in many ways.

We can point to more just laws for the securing of property rights to women, and for the protection of children and of animals, and to the best child labor and compulsory education laws in the country. We can instance improvement in public sentiment regarding the moral fitness for positions of trust, of the candidates nominated for office. We can not more widespread interest in philanthropic and charitable enterprises, and in the improvement and beautifying of city streets and parks.

But the chief effect of the granting of suffrage to women has been the education of the women themselves. That women have taken the suffrage as a responsibility, that they have set themselves seriously to the task of preparing to perform their political duties well, not even the opponents of the measure will deny. Clubs have been formed throughout the State for the purpose of studying political economy, parliamentary law and civic questions. During the year following the establishment of Woman's Suffrage, a greater number of works on civil government were purchased in Colorado than had been purchased in all time before in the State.

The sphere of women's activities has greatly broadened, and their interests today extend in many directions unknown to them previous to 1893. At the same time, there has been no loss in the home-making and the social qualities of our Colorado women.

To keep a neat, attractive, harmonious home, has always been and will always be the foremost duty and the highest pleasure of the true woman.

To make and to maintain the society and home-life of the community have always been woman's privilege and woman's accomplishment, and the power of Colorado women in these eternally womanly lines, has in nowise diminished; rather has it increased, since a broader intelligence, a greater sympathy with men in the doing of the world's work, a truer appreciation of life in all its phases, are results which uplift and develop home and society.

In fact, the women who have an equal share and equal responsibility with men in the government of their State, have their thought and minds full of matters far more worthy their interest than the trivial and narrow affairs to which they formerly directed their superabundant energies. It has been said that if women were allowed the ballot, they would neglect their homes. The women in Colorado who have neglected their homes for politics, are the same women who previously neglected their homes for church fairs, for sewing societies, for gossip and visiting, and it surely has been a gain even to them to have this activity and strenuousness directed to public affairs and matters of more import than the former trivialities.

The Colorado women do not claim to have regenerated their State, during the ten years in which they have enjoyed the suffrage, but they do claim that their enfranchisement has added to its enlightenment and progress. If the fact that women have not during these ten years accomplished thorough reforms in purifying elections, municipal and other administrations, and cured the drinking, gambling and other evils, is to be taken as cause for disfranchising them, surely there would be as much reason for disfranchising men who have not brought about perfection in the unnumbered years of opportunity they have had.

Not a less faithful discharge of the duties which nature has assigned to women, but an elevation of her power of administration of these, through the enlargement of her outlook upon life, has been the result of making woman man's equal under the law of the land, as she has ever been under the law of God.

SPECIALISTS FAILED; CALCURA SUCCEEDED.

...of Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, ... Solvent, Cured Mr. Fuller of ... Trouble.

...is so remarkable that I want to tell about it. I suffered from bladder trouble for about 25 years, and had the doctors about here, and also specialists in New York, without getting help. Last August I bought a Calcura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's ... I had not been able to work at my trade (boiler making) for some time, but after taking one bottle of Calcura Solvent I went to work and have been working ever since. Calcura Solvent has done more for me in a month than all the doctors ... and I don't complain ... Fuller, Mattea... druggists, $1.00.

Mr. John H. Cullom, editor of the Garland, Texas, News has written a letter of congratulations to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows: "Sixteen years ago when our first child was a baby he was subject to croupy spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup, we have never been without it in the house since that time. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results. One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdose. I congratulate you upon the sucess of your remedy." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

ACME OF PERFECTION

IN FOUNTAIN PEN CONSTRUCTION

QUAKER CITY SELF-FILLING FOUNTAIN PEN

No Dirt, Blots or Spilled Ink

FOUNTAIN PEN PERFECTION.

The Quaker City Self-Filling Fountain Pen Fills Itself and Thereby Fills a Long-Felt Want.

Free Press.

Any reliable time saver is eagerly welcomed by the modern business man. Probably the most forceful illustration of this condition of things in recent years was the enthusiasm with which the fountain pen was greeted. It seemed to mean the saving of so much time and annoyance for so many people that its sale was simply phenominal.

But the fountain pen was not by any means perfect and its users soon discovered that the bother was only concentrated, instead of being dispensed with. The finest fountain pen would write indifferently well as long as there was ink in it, but, when that gave out our busy man had to stop, unscrew an inky cap, hunt around for a filler and the particular ink recommended by the manufacturers of that particular pen and so on through a long process of annoyance.

The manufacturers of the Quaker City Self-Filling Fountain Pen have overcome all this bother and produced a practical writing tool which is as easy to use as if one were simply writing with the filler needed for the old pen. There is nothing to unscrew, nothing to squirt, nothing to lose or get out of order. Its construction is simple and substantial and the operation of filling it so simple that you wonder nobody thought of it before.

It is merely necessary to dip the pen pressing it slightly, lift up as usual and go on writing. Its capacity is no less than the bothersome kind.

We feel that we are not overpraising the Quaker City Self-Filling Fountain Pen when we say that it represents the acme of fountain pen achievement.

Only fountain pen that never spills ink, never inks the fingers, needs no filler, can be filled from any inkwell, anywhere! For business men, students, school children---all who use a pen!

COSTS $1.00

Looks as well and works far better than any high-priced pen on the market. Doesn't get out of order, doesn't write by fits and starts. Built simply and well, lasts long and writes perfectly all the time.

It Cost $3700 to Perfect. Protected by Patents

$1.00 Brings It to Your Door

Money refunded and no questions asked if you are not ENTIRELY SATISFIED. As far ahead of the old-fashioned fountain pen as the modern one is ahead of the quill. No syringe used.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 20, 1904.

MR. JOHN HUNTER, at a meeting of the Current Events club last Monday evening, paid a well-deserved tribute to Prof. B. G. Clapp, who recently resigned the office of Superintendent of Schools of this city. Mr. Hunter stated that it had become his duty, as a member of a committee of the Board of Education, to visit a number of schools of this State, and in no place did he find a school that would compare with ours in efficiency of management or the care that had been exercised in getting the best work out of the scholars. The State Board of Education had placed the school very near the top row of educational institutions; it now stood No. 13 on the list, and this estimate is based on returns from over forty cities. It was only necessary to contrast the school when Prof. Clapp took charge of it with the present time in order to ascertain what a marvelous transformation had taken place. The speaker said all honor was due to the man who had accomplished so much, and he alone was deserving of credit. Mr. Hunter's remarks were greeted with applause.

THE CARNEGIE LIBRARY BUILDING PROPOSITION

Those who are opposed to the acceptance of the Carnegie library proposition should not forget that the offer of $15,000 to the city is a gift, and the only requirement is that the authorities shall take care of it and set aside a sum each year in the budget for that purpose. This has been done by the Common Council, and in accordance with a provision of the statute, the law in that respect is legal and binding.

The public library, which has been established by philanthropic citizens of Fulton, has deservedly won its way until now it is conceded to be a necessity and a valuable adjunct to the public schools. The service it renders to wage-earners and scholars—its principal patrons—is incalculable. There are a class of citizens who have not the means to purchase books, but is any one willing to state that because of this fact they should be deprived of the opportunities for self-culture enjoyed by others in more fortunate circumstances?

The cost to maintain our present library has not exceeded $1,000 per annum, which includes the purchase of new books, librarian's salary, rent and incidentals. The city has contributed $500, a small sum has been received from the State, but the deficiency has been met by such public-spirited citizens as the Messrs. Redhead, Hunter, Rice, O'Brien and others, whom, it is needless to add, are not actuated by selfish motives.

A rumor has been started that the city authorities would be required to furnish bonds to the amount of $32,500 for the maintenance of the library and building for twenty-five years. Attorney Arvin Rice is authority for the statement that such an adjustment of the matter was absurd. The conditions "nominated in the bond" had been complied with, and it now remained for the people of Fulton to procure a site on which to erect the building.

Let us all assist the library trustees to accomplish this purpose and thereby bestow a benefit not only on those of our own generation but those which are to follow.

NEAHTAWANTA LODGE, I. O. O. F.

Elaborate Preparations Being Made for a Successful Fair to Provide Funds for a Permanent Lodge Home.

The fair to be held by Neahtawanta Lodge, I. O. O. F., from February 2d to 9th, is a praiseworthy effort of an enterprising lodge of one of the greatest organizations, past or present, to add to the funds already accumulated and set aside for the purpose of providing the lodge, by building or purchase, a permanent home of its own.

It is intended that this "home" shall afford ample room and conveniences for the work of the lodge, thoroughly provided with all modern improvements, sanitation and ventilation. This building is intended to be a credit to the city, even as the work of the lodge to be housed therein is a social and moral influence scarcely known or appreciated by the public at large. The history of the great organization of Odd Fellows reads like a tale of romance. But there is no romance in the thorough business methods and well-directed zeal that in some four score years has developed from the germ of the gigantic beneficence extending into every civilized land; uplifting the fallen, providing for the helpless, the widow and the orphan, teaching the young to reverence the old, the rich to help the poor, the strong to support the weak, the well to nurse the sick, the educated to instruct the ignorant and all good men to endeavor to imitate the goodness of the Father of all men.

The little quintette, that in the city of Baltimore, April 26, 1819, bound them each to the other in friendship, love and truth, has in eighty-four years grown to an army of 1,500,000 devoted men, whose camps are in every city and hamlet; its watchfires, the lights that illumine the homes where suffering and sorrow have come. Its future is entwined with that of the human ra e. Its field is world-wide Wherever it finds man in darkness and chains, it seeks to deliver, to disenthrall him from prejudice, sensuality and passion; to cause him to assert his high birthright; to extend the conquest of friendship and love throughout the earth; to plant the banners of truth on every height, and kindle its flame in every heart and home.

Teaching that of one blood God created all mankind; it looks forward to that day when the law of Universal Brotherhood shall govern all nations, tongues and kindreds of the earth.

Mutual relief being a leading office in the affiliation of Odd Fellowship, it teaches that from whatever nation our brother may come, he is not to be sent empty away.

It receives but to give. In the United States alone it disburses from its treasury annually from one and a quarter to one and a half million dollars; and while this is but a tithe of its numerous benefactions, yet this enormous disbursements is made practically without the aid of sallеried officials.

There are few positions of enolument or profit within the Fraternity; Salaries being limited to the small payments allowed the Secretaries of state organizations, or the partial compensation for service debaring the member from following his usual avocation, nursing the sick etc.

Homes for disabled Odd Fellows, widows and orphans exist and are sustained in every state of any considerable population, two of these being located one at Lockport and one in New York city in this state.

These homes with their spacious and well kept grounds and buildings, schoolrooms and libraries; their occupants, clean bright faced, healthy well educated children, contented, well dressed, cheerful men and women, who incapacicated by age, sickness or physical dissability of self support, are here maintained and surrounded in the name of Friendship, Love and Truth, with the natural, social and interlectual necessities of life, not in charity but as their right.

These homes are living milestones in the progress of this army of self sacrificing, enriching uplifting love and its peaceful conquests.

Odd Fellowships simple and only creed is "the Fatherhood of God, and the Brotherhood of man," its watch word, "For Humanity's sake." It holds no affiliation with any system of religious creed or dogma, but it is "the practical exponent of the principles and assistant of Christianity wherever found.

Man is by nature a social being and dependent each upon the neighbor who shall shew mercy on him. He who is in truth an Odd Fellow, like the Samaritan on the lonely road to Jericho, feeling himself the debtor of one less fortunate than himself, is a living unit in this great army, girded with the strength of perpetual youth, armed with will and endeavor.

Odd Fellowship is the sanction of every appeal for the good and right; it wars on passion, vice and immorality wherever found.

It stands for the principals of Right and Justice, for Patriotism, for Freedom and humanity. Its past is glorious, its future a bow of promise to the human race.

May the citizens of Fulton give to this undertaking of the Fulton Odd Fellows the earnest, substantial encouragement it deserves. Its temple when reared, will stand a monument to the city's enterprize, a sentinel of the invisible police of organized moral influence, over its peace and welfare.

"Keep Your Head Cool, your conscience clear and your bowels open." There is a ton of common-sense in it. Constipation is death in life. The intestines are clogged with matter. You must move it or be sick—fever possibly Take Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. David Kennedy's new medicine, until the bowels are clear and natural. Write to the Cal-cura company, Rondout, N. Congregational Church Officials.

On Tuesday evening, January 5, the annual meeting of the Congregational church and society was held, when the following officers were selected for the ensuing year: Trustees for three years, Messrs. Charles Anderson and Henry Pollard; clerk, Mr. G. B. Fairman; treasurer, Mr. Wells Hannum; treasurer of the benevolences of the church, Mrs. G. B Fairman; ushers, Messrs. Leon Wells, Leo Alsinette and Ray Pollard. The Sunday School officers are: Superintendent, E. W. Coe; secretary, Clare Case; treasurer, James Stevens; librarian, Fred Coe; chorister, Z. Newell; organist, Maude B. Newell; superintendent of primary department, Mary Matson.

The reports from the different societies show the church to be very prosperous.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it will wear them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Residence Damaged by Fire.

The fire department was called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Waldhorn in Erie street on Tuesday morning, where a fierce fire was raging, extending from the cellar to the garret. Two hose carts tipped over en route, owing to the wretched condition of the roads, and several of the fire laddies received more or less severe bruises and cuts. The house was badly damaged before the flames were controlled, but most of the furniture was removed to a place of safety. Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Roy, who occupied the upper flat, suffered considerable loss in furniture. The house was insured with Whitaker & Lovejoy, as was Mr. Roy's furniture.

SCHOOL NOTES

Next Wednesday evening, January 20, the F. H. S. basket-ball team will play a team representing the Henley Business school of Syracuse at the City Hall. The game will be called at 7:45.

The Girl's basket-ball team is practicing diligently and will be in good shape to play some pretty good games this season.

On Friday, Jan. 15, the F. H. S. basket-ball team lined up against the Classicals of Syracuse. The game was fast and furious, but Fulton did the better work. In the first of the game, Syracuse getting scared, substituted their coach in center position against Reagan, the local center. But this availed nothing, the Syracuse players were outplayed, outpointed and worsted, the score standing 32 to 14 in favor of Fulton. The line-up was as follows:

Syracuse (14)	(32) Fulton
Forwards.
Gray	Hollingsworth
Sliter	Parks
Center.
Jennings	Reagan
True	Morrill

Goals from field—Jennings, 3; Gray, 1; Hollingsworth, 4; Parks, 4; Streeter, 2; Reagan, 5.

Goals from fouls—Jennings, 2; Parks, 2.

Referee, Prichard, Fulton; umpire, Wescott, Syracuse.

Happy Presentation.

At the installation of the officers of Columbia Circle, Ladies of the G. A. R., on Tuesday evening, the retiring president, Mrs. C. H. Graves, was presented with a valuable gold emblem pin by the ladies. The presentation was made by Mrs. Hancock in a charming speech, and that Mrs. Graves was completely surprised was apparent to all who were present. She soon recovered her composure and accepted the gift with a few well chosen words.

Found a Cure for Indigestion.

I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find that they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different remedies. Annual : Sale

Has been a grand success. The crowds, instead of diminishing grow greater daily, and there's a reason for it. Witherill's bargains ARE bargains. We aim to describe the goods as accurately as type can do it, and when we say that an article is worth a certain price, we mean exactly that.

You can thank the manufactuers for these extraordinary values. Because they sold us the balance of this season's stocks for 40 cents on the dollar, we can sell these goods to you at less than half the regular prices, and still make our usual margin of profit.

HEADS LADY MANAGERS.

Mrs. Daniel Manning, President of St. Louis World's Fair Board.

Mrs. Daniel Manning, who has just been chosen president of the board of lady managers of the St. Louis world's fair, is a woman of international reputation, with a wide experience in the handling of great undertakings.

Mrs. Manning is the widow of Daniel Manning of Albany, N. Y., who was secretary of the treasury in President Cleveland's first administration. She has been president of the Daughters of the American Revolution and is a prominent member of the National Society of Colonial Dames. Mrs. Manning was the only woman member of the commission of the United States to the Paris exposition and also had the decoration of the Legion of Honor conferred upon her, an unusual distinction for a woman.

The new president is a woman of distinguished ancestry, being a descendant of old pioneer families of New York whose history is that of the state. As the wife of a cabinet officer she had a large social experience in Washington, where she still spends most of her winters, and has besides a notable circle of friends throughout the country. She is a woman of rare personal charm, with all the graciousness, tact, kindliness and wit which go to make the successful leader. She has blue eyes, chestnut hair and is handsome and stately.

Before her marriage Mrs. Manning was Miss Margaretta Fryer, her father's family being of old Dutch stock. On her mother's side she is descended from Robert Livingston, the first lord of the manor of Livingston, and among her ancestry are Philip, the second lord, and Robert, the third lord, of the manor; Colonel Peter R. Livingston, Governor Rip Van Dam, Abraham De Peyster, Olaff Stevenson Van Courtland and Colonel Peter Schuyler.

A MORMON MATRON.

Mrs. Reed Smoot, Wife of the United States Senator From Utah.

Mrs. Reed Smoot, wife of the senator from Utah, whose right to a seat in the United States senate is disputed on the ground that he is a polygamist, is a handsome, matronly woman with an expressive face and charming manner.

As Miss Alpha M. Eldridge she was one of the belles of Salt Lake City twenty years ago. She is a daughter of General H. S. Eldridge, a relative of MRS. REED SMOOT.

Abraham Lincoln, president of the United States. Her marriage to Senator Smoot took place in Salt Lake City nineteen years ago, and they have six children—three boys and three girls—the eldest, Harold, being seventeen years of age. Their home is now at Provo, about forty-five miles from Salt Lake City.

Abraham O. Smoot, father of the senator, was a polygamist, and Reed's mother was his third wife, Annie Kirstine Mourlisen, who was born in Norway. Reed was her third child and the oldest son of a family of seven children.

The senator's first work after he graduated from the University of Deseret, now the Brigham Young academy, at Provo, was as a porter in the Provo Co-operative Mercantile institution. A year later, at the age of eighteen, he became manager of the concern, in which his father held a large interest. His fortune is now estimated at a million.

He was "called and set apart" as an apostle of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in 1900. The Mormon church is ruled by a first presidency, consisting of the president and his two counselors. Next in authority is the quorum of twelve apostles. Their jurisdiction is the world, wherever the numerous ramifications of the church extend. Devout Mormons look upon the president of the church as the direct representative of God on earth. The apostles are the agents of God. Senator Smoot is in the line of promotion, and, being younger than most of his associates, may one day become president of the church.

HARMONY IN THE PARTY.

Governor Odell Sets at Rest the Stories of Trouble Among Republicans.

Governor Odell recently made a speech at a dinner in New York city which disposes of the stories of trouble in the Republican party which have been published recently by hostile newspapers. The occasion was the annual dinner of the election district captains of the Thirty-fifth assembly district. Governor Odell said:

"There is one thing that impresses me, and that is the lack of understanding between the city and the country. I, perhaps, in an impetuous moment, may have reflected somewhat the feeling of the country. We have been looking toward the city of New York, with its tremendous increase in population, hoping to have 40 per cent of the voting population in the Republican column. It belongs there; it has been there before, and it is going to be there next fall.

"You have heard of a change of leaders. There is no change of leaders. The Republican party remembers with satisfaction and pride the magnificent services rendered to it and for it by the senior senator of the state of New York. To deprive the party of his wise counsel is not called for and would be an unwise procedure on the part of any one. We are the faithful lieutenants of the recognized leaders of this state, and we should put to flight these many wild rumors so that they will dissipate and disappear from our political affairs.

"I have been somewhat annoyed and somewhat amused at the misunderstanding between the country and the city. One vote in New York county is as good as one in Schoharie county or Orange county. What we want is the total. When you hear about what the so called hayseed legislature is doing to the city, it is for you to controvert those statements and show that the legislation in Albany is as much for the city as for the country.

"One Republican policy is that taxation on land should decrease. We have taken revenue from sources not adequately taxed and used that to relieve taxation on land not only in the country, but in the city of New York. If you people in your various election districts study this question aright, you will find that the city is not paying 80 or 90 per cent of the state expenditures, but contributing a [illegible], a small portion, of these expenditures of the state.

"I am surprised that the Republicans here have not brought home these facts. A leader told me only the other day that he understood New York paid 80 per cent of the expenditures. I showed him that the city gave $8,000,000 and received $1,300,000 of school taxes, instead of giving $20,000,000, which 80 per cent would be.

"These tax measures are Republican, not personal, measures, and whenever an advantage accrues to the city it is as much your duty to bring attention to it to the voters as it is to show them the benefits of protection.

"If you call a man a pauper he resents it. That's what has occurred between the city and the rural communities. Bring these matters home and create friendship instead of hostility.

"The country—I'm a countryman—is anxious to help you. There must be consultation between leaders and district captains. There must be no private inside corporations. The leaders must think. I would give more for a leader who has controverted me than a man who has always sided with me.

"These are the things that are going to build up the Republican party.

"We need no bosses; we do need leaders.

"We have a battle on in the coming year. We know the magnificent achievements of President McKinley. We know the arduous task of his successor, President Roosevelt, and we appreciate the manner in which he has accomplished his task. We owe it to him and to ourselves to build up the Republican party so that these rumors of disagreement may be dissipated and we may go up in a solid phalanx for a victory for the Republican party, the party that is never found wanting in administering to the needs of the people."

REPUBLICANS WON BY 27,647

Figures Compiled by State Committee on Vote For Members of Assembly.

The Republican state committee has compiled the returns of the votes for members of assembly last November, which show that the Republican majority in the state was 27,647.

The actual Republican majority outside of Greater New York is 112,535.

If the vote for Smith, independent Republican in Fulton and Hamilton counties, is added to that of Wood, the regular Republican candidate, and the normal Republican plurality of the Second assembly district of Jefferson county be taken, the result shows a majority of 107,694 outside of Greater New York.

In 1898 the majority for Roosevelt outside of Greater New York was 102,316, and in 1902 the majority for Odell was 133,389.

The showing is very flattering to Republican prospects next year, when the up state counties can be relied upon to increase materially the majorities which they gave last November, an off year with no state ticket in the field.

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgagor, Robert H. Stowe. Mortgagee, Mrs. C. C. Pettis. Mortgage dated August 14, 1903, and recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the Clerk's office of Oswego County, N. Y., on the 15th day of August, 1903, at 8:25 a. m., in Liber 204 of Mortgages, at page 532. The sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is fifty one dollars and nineteen cents ($51.19), being the whole sum secured by said mortgage. (Said Mortgagee above named, also holds two prior mortgages upon the same premises, on which is unpaid the sum of $400, together with interest on $150, from February 14, 1903, and on $250, from March 18, 1903.)

The mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, and State of New York, known and described as Lot No. five (5) of block five hundred and four (504), according to the map of the village of Fulton on file in Oswego County Clerk's office. Default having been made in the payment of the sum secured to be paid by said mortgage, and no action having been brought to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof; therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained, recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said mortgaged property at public auction, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, N. Y., on the 2d day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said sale will be made subject to the lien of the above mentioned prior mortgages.

NEW PANAMA ENVOY.

W. I. Buchanan, Uncle Sam's Representative on the Isthmus.

William Insco Buchanan, whose recent nomination as United States minister to the new republic of Panama was confirmed and then reconsidered by the senate, is a diplomat of wide experience in South American affairs, having served six years as minister to the Argentine Republic.

The first envoy to Panama has long been known as an expert in the organization and management of expositions. Mr. Buchanan's genius for successfully directing such enterprises was brought out at his home, Sioux City, where he organized and managed for several years the well known Corn Palace expositions. Later he made an excellent record as chief of the departments of agriculture, forestry and live stock at the Chicago World's fair. It was while with the Columbian exposition that he became intimately acquainted with the Latin-American people. For several years he negotiated with the South American countries with a view of learning their resources and getting the best possible exhibitions at the fair.

President Cleveland appointed him minister at Buenos Ayres in 1894, and his excellent record caused President McKinley to reappoint him to the post. He was selected by the Argentine and Chilean governments as arbitrator in the settlement of a long standing boundary dispute between those countries, for which he was rewarded by a gift of $100,000. He resigned his post in 1900 to become director general of the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo. Since the close of that enterprise he has been engaged in private business and in a semiofficial way has been looking after certain interests of the approaching St. Louis exposition. Mr. Buchanan is a native of Ohio and is fifty years old.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

ELEVATING A CITY.

HOW GALVESTON IS TO BE RAISED ABOVE THE DANGER LINE.

A Mighty Measure of Precaution Against the Ravages of Flood—Immense Area to Be Filled—Lindon W. Bates, Who Planned the Work.

When the city of Galveston completes its work of self preservation, it will have arisen so high above the waters of the gulf of Mexico that all fear of a recurrence of the disaster of September, 1900, which destroyed over $40,000,000 worth of property and 5,000 lives, will have forever disappeared.

Within a few weeks work will be begun on the task of raising the grade of the city an average of about eight feet over an area of two square miles, a work which will require 11,000,000 cubic yards of filling. This great improvement is the final step in Galveston's scheme for protection. Never before has a city of 30,000 inhabitants attempted so great a work. Buildings large and small have been raised, but an entire city never.

Plan after plan was discussed by the state legislature, but the situation was a difficult one to overcome. Galveston island, a long, narrow spit of sand with the city on its eastern end, blocks the entrance to Galveston bay, a great sheet of water. Exposed to the full sweep of every southerly storm, standing even in its highest parts only a few feet above the surface of the water, Galveston was at the mercy of the gulf.

It was finally decided to build a sea wall. Work was begun early in 1902, and an immense barrier three and a half miles long, seventeen feet high, with a width of seventeen feet at the base and five feet at the top, is nearly completed. This great breakwater of granite and concrete will cost the city $1,198,000, exclusive of the driveway which skirts the top of its entire length. It was shown, however, that without some additional security this protection might itself become a menace. The great tidal waves might wash in behind it at the ends, and the wall by preventing the return of the water to the gulf would become an evil.

Then the great project of elevating the entire city was adopted. When the plan of raising the city was considered there were many engineering problems to be solved before the work could be proceeded with. It was necessary to get the material for filling at a short enough carry to make the venture profitable as a business proposition and at the same time not strip the beach front of its protecting sand. Dredging along the wharf fronts was also prohibited, because of the great impediment to business. These and a vast array of lesser difficulties were stumbling blocks in the way of the work.

The credit of the solution of these problems belongs to Lindon W. Bates, whose plan for the raising of Galveston has been adopted. He conceived the idea of a distributing canal dug behind and parallel to the sea wall.

By this canal material can be conveyed to within discharging distance of the sections to be filled, the material excavated from the canal being in the meantime used to back up the wall. Without disturbing in the slightest degree the commerce of the city the whole area can be filled by the mixture of water and sand which the dredges will suck up, and the water will drain back into the canal. Then, when the work of filling in the city has been completed, the great dredges will back out of the canal, filling it up solidly as they go, and Galveston will be left high above the danger of floods from the gulf.

Mr. Lindon Wallace Bates, author of the canal plan which made the raising of Galveston feasible, though still in the early forties, is known in his profession throughout the world. He first came into prominence as engineer and manager of various railway docks and terminal facilities in the west. During the past seven years he has been engaged in many important engineering works abroad. From 1895 to 1902 he was engaged in seaport and railroad improvement work for the English, Russian, Belgian and Australian governments. He also prepared a project for the improvement of the port of Shanghai. In 1900 he was decorated by the French government for "distinguished services in science." Mr. Bates is a member of several European and American engineering societies.

Cured After Suffering Ten Years.

B. F. Hare, Supt. Miami Cycle & Mfg., Middletown, O., suffered for ten years with dyspepsia. He spent hundreds of dollars for medicine and with doctors without receiving any permanent benefit. He says, "One night while feeling exceptionally bad I was about to throw down the evening paper when I saw an item regarding the merits of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I concluded to try it and while I had no faith in it I felt better after the second dose. After using two bottles I am stronger and better than I have been in years, and I recommend Kodol Dyspepsia Cure to my friends and acquaintances suffering from stomach trouble." Sold by H. C. Much Run Down in Health.

And was afraid he was going to be seriously ill.

FRED H. WATKINS.

Every sensible person knows that among the first signs of failing health the most noticeable are a failing appetite and a loss of flesh.

Nobody can tell all the reasons why health should fail. There has been a strain upon vitality, which vitality could not meet, the reserve energy has been called upon and the system begins to languish. It is just this condition actually which invites disease and chronic ailments. The digestive system is weakened, the appetite fails, there is no longer nourishment enough in the blood to meet the demand of ordinary daily life, and trouble threatens.

We invite your attention to a case in point.

1051 18th St., Des Moines, Iowa.
November 30 1903.

Dear Sirs—I had been losing flesh and was feeling very much run down in health I could not rest well at night, seemed weak and was afraid I was going to be seriously ill. In this condition I began to take Ozomulsion, with results that were better than I even had expected. It quickly brought my weight back to a normal standard, my appetite became very much better, I rested well at night and, in fact, was restored to perfect health. I think Ozomulsion Food is a splendid remedy for building up the system.

Very truly yours,
(Signed(Fred H. Watkins.

We trust that the foregoing letter makes our case quite clear. The reason Ozomulsion has the power to restore a weakened system back to health and strength is because it furnishes the nourishing properties of cod liver oil in a form which does not tax indigestion, and offers also the hypophosphites of lime and soda to stimulate the appetite, improve digestion and feed the nerves.

These standard remedial agents have been employed by the medical profession for over a century, and we believe that the facts bear us out when we say that never until Ozomulsion Food was originated were they in their best form to do the most good in the system.

It is superfluous to say that Ozomulsion is palatable, because every emulsion of cod liver oil is supposed to be more or less palatable. What we maintain is, that the world has moved in the last ten years in the perfection of cod liver oil emulsions, the same as in about everything else, and Ozomulsion has moved with it.

Ozomulsion is certainly the best emulsion of cod liver oil in the market to-day. It is the only emulsion that contains Guaiacol Whether it will be a quarter of a century hence, we can not say, but we know it is so to-day and we think any fair trial of it will be quite convincing In all of those weakened conditions of the system for which cod liver oil has been so long known as a standard remedial agent, we most emphatically declare that Ozomulsion is the best form of oil for the patient to take.

Where babies and growing children do not thrive, its effects are really wonderful.

Ozomulsion Food is the Cod Liver Oil Emulsion "Par Excellence" that physicians use in their families and prescribe in their private and hospital practice, and druggists sell in extra Large Bottles weighing over One and Two Pounds each for Fifty Cents and One Dollar a Bottle.

If your druggist does not keep Ozomulsion in stock, he can easily order it for you, or, if you desire a small sample to see what it is like, you can obtain the same by mentioning the name of the paper in which you read this advertisement and sending seven cents in stamps, to cover postage, to the Ozomulsion Co., 98 Pine St., New York.

Though a very earnest and solemn statesman, Representative Sereno E. Payne of New York is possessed at the same time of the most tantalizing smile that ever drove an opponent crazy. The chairmanship of the ways and means committee makes him the floor leader of the majority, and when he takes the floor he assumes a smile that simply goads the Democrats into delirium.

When not smiling, however, Mr. Payne is one of the most solemn looking men in the house, and that recalls a story that the late Thomas B. Reed used to tell. Mr. Payne was attending a large dinner on one occasion when the guests were not well acquainted with each other and the host was unknown to most of his guests. Mr. Payne sat in solemn form away down the table, and his sedate appearance suggested to the host that he was a clergyman. Looking toward him, the provider of the feast bowed and said, "Will you kindly oblige us by saying grace?" It is said that this is the only occasion when the majority leader's smile failed to come to his rescue. He was plainly flustered, but he didn't say grace.

Representative Joseph Sibley of Pennsylvania has a beautiful summer home on the shore of Lake Champlain, and it is his delight to take his congressional friends there and keep them as long as they will stay.

John Sharp Williams, the minority leader, has enjoyed Sibley's hospitality and never gets tired of praising the beauties of the place. On a recent dull day in congress Williams wrote busily for an hour and then walked over to Sibley.

JOHN S. WILLIAMS.

"Joe," he said, "here's some poetry I've written about that place of yours up on Lake Champlain."

"Let's see it," demanded Sibley.

"It's about a pair of lovers sitting on the fence in your park repeating their vows while the moon rises over the lake."

Sibley laughed uproariously. "It can't be done!" he gasped.

"Why not?" asked Williams indignantly. "Are the residents of that region so lost to sentiment that such an episode is impossible?"

"It isn't that," Sibley replied between laughs; "but, you see, all my fence is made of barbed wire."

In a debate the other day Representative Russell of Texas took a couple of cracks at Colonel Pete Hepburn of Iowa. He told this story about Colonel Hepburn's claim that the great increase of national wealth since 1860 was due to Republican policies: Two Chicago law students were arguing as to who was the greatest lawyer in Illinois. They went to a member of the bar and put the proposition to him. "Major, who is the greatest lawyer in Illinois?" "I am" said the major. "Well, how will you prove it?" "Prove it!" shouted the major. "You don't have to prove it. I admit it."

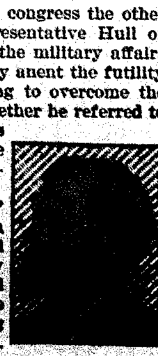
W. P. HEPBURN.

Later in his speech Representative Russell said that had it not been for the statesmanship of a Democratic president there would not have been added to this country more than a million square miles of territory.

"But for the same statesmanship of the Democracy the gentleman from Iowa might be a citizen of the French republic and be known among his compatriots as Guillaume Pierre Hepburn," declared Russell.

"Look here!" shouted Colonel Pete. "Don't you call me out of my name."

Something said in congress the other day reminded Representative Hull of Iowa, chairman of the military affairs committee, of a story anent the futility of the weaker trying to overcome the stronger force. Whether he referred to the frequent clashes between the house and senate is a matter of conjecture.



J. A. T. HULL.

"Out in Iowa," said Mr. Hull, "a hotel keeper was told one day that a seedy looking individual was sitting on the front steps eating crackers and cheese. This did not look like a good advertisement for the house, and the hotel man rushed out. 'What are you doing here?' he asked.

"'Just eating o' a snack.'

"'Well, I'll give you just one minute to get out.'

"The stranger rose from his seat slowly. He seemed to unjoint like a telescope until he towered nearly two feet over the hotel man—a huge, muscular giant.

"'Waal, stranger,' said the luncher, 'what be you a-goin' to do if I decide to stay here longer than a minute?'

"'Oh, in that event,' said the hotel keeper, looking up and down the huge proportions of his visitor, 'I suppose I'll extend the time a little.'"

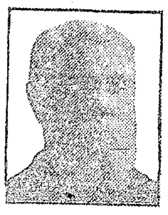
Representative Cyrus Sulloway of New Hampshire, sometimes called "Salvation Cy" for short, is the tallest man in congress. Although sixty-four years old, he insists that he is still growing. Mr. Sulloway declares that on each Christmas day he applies a footrule to his length and that each year shows an increase in his stature. Last year he measured six feet seven and a half inches and weighed 276 pounds.

CYRUS SULLOWAY.

Congressman Sam Powers of Massachusetts has a young son of about ten who sometimes goes to the capitol to visit his father. On one of his first trips he ran to the Massachusetts statesman, exclaiming with delight, "Oh, papa, I've just seen a giant—a real giant—just like you read about in the books!" The lad in roaming about the corridors had caught a glimpse of Cy Sulloway.

Formerly Mr. Sulloway was classed as "one of the boys," but ten or twelve years ago he became converted by a Salvation Army lass, Miss Mattie B. Webster, who is now his second wife.

General Grosvenor of Ohio, "Old Figgers" he is sometimes called, has been in congress nearly twenty years and has been fighting pretty much all that time. He is all angles and points, and his entrance into a debate is the signal for the ruffling of feathers on the Democratic side. There is fun in the air when he gets up to speak.



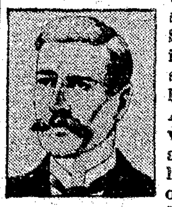
GEN. GROSVENOR.

But once off the floor he forgets his pugnacity and is a genial companion. The general is fond of a joke and can tell a story with as much grace and wit as any man in congress. He had a rather depressing experience a few days ago, however.

He had just been telling a story, and when he reached the climax he paused expectantly, but nobody laughed. His audience looked at him in a reproachful manner, and the general, with some irritation, tartly explained the point of his joke. Then they laughed, but it was an effort, and Sereno Payne said: "Grosvenor, you are deteriorating. Formerly any one could see your jokes after one application."

"Yes," agreed the crestfallen Grosvenor, "and now they have to be sent to a conference committee."

"The man with four J's" is what they call Representative John J. Jenkins of Wisconsin, chairman of the judiciary committee, in Washington. Like many other congressmen, Mr. Jenkins is an adopted son of the United States. He was born in England about sixty years ago, but has been a good American since he was nine years of age, at which time he became a resident of Baraboo, Wis. During the civil war he served three years with the Sixth Wisconsin volunteer infantry. In 1870 he removed to Chippewa Falls, his present home, and has been in politics ever since. In 1875 he became a lawyer, and a year later President Grant appointed him United States attorney for the territory of Wyoming. He is serving his fifth term in congress. In his youth Mr. Jenkins received a very limited common school education and for a time was a laborer in the pine woods of Wisconsin.



J. J. JENKINS.

No civilian in the land knows more about the navy than Congressman George E. Foss of Illinois, chairman of the house committee on naval affairs. The American navy is his hobby. Although only forty years of age, he has been elected to congress five successive terms, and when appointed acting chairman of the naval committee on the resignation of Mr. Boutelle he was by far the youngest man to hold so important a position, his next youngest fellow chairman being twenty-five years his senior.

G. E. FOSS.

The building of probably four-fifths of the present navy was authorized during his leadership of the naval committee, and he has done more than any of his predecessors to equip the service with officers, men and ships and to improve the navy yards. Mr. Foss, at his own expense, went abroad and made an exhaustive study of the navies of the world. He was offered the assistant secretaryship of the navy under John D. Long and has since been mentioned for the place.

His Last Question.

The attorney for the opposition had been bullying the witness for an hour, when he finally asked:

"Is it true that there are traces of insanity in your family?"

"Very likely," answered the witness. "My grandfather, who was studying for the ministry, gave it up to become a lawyer."—New York World.

THE LAND OF CANAAN

MECCA OF THE WORLD'S FOURTH SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

Delegates From All Countries to Gather at Jerusalem—How the Journey Will Be Made From America—Itinerary of the Trip.

What promises to be one of the most notable religious events of recent years is the meeting of the world's fourth Sunday school convention, which is to be held at Jerusalem April 18, 19 and 20, where delegates from all Christian lands will foregather.

From time immemorial Jerusalem has been the Mecca of religious pilgrims, and rightly so, since it has been the seat of religious life and history. To many nations and races has it given the basis of their national faith. It is not to be marveled at, then, that the Sunday school forces of the world turned toward Jerusalem as the place for their next convention. The conception seems large, and the project is indeed one of magnitude, but, rightly considered, it appears to be wholly practicable, and the interest which attaches to the subject is a most natural one.

The Sunday school organizations, of which the world's convention is the highest expression, number over 25,000,000 members. Representatives from these bodies have gathered but three times in the history of the organized Sunday school work—the first time in London in 1889, the second time in St. Louis in 1893 and the third time in London again, in 1898.

It was found that the only practicable way of transporting the delegates to the coming world's convention was through a chartered steamer. Accordingly the Grosser Kurfurst of the North German Lloyd was engaged by the central executive committee of the world's fourth Sunday school convention, of which Mr. E. K. Warren of Three Oaks, Mich., is chairman, to leave New York March 8, 1904, with a delegation of about 800 members. The steamer makes a cruise of the Mediterranean, returning to America May 18, after having given the delegates a choice of seventeen days in Palestine and five days in Egypt or the reverse.

The foreign delegates, particularly those from Great Britain, are to make their pilgrimage on the Fuerst Bismarck, sailing from Marseilles April 1 and returning April 30, the passengers uniting in the convention in Jerusalem.

In the itinerary of the steamer only three of the seventy-one days allotted to the journey are to be spent in the Jerusalem convention proper, though much preliminary work in the line of conferences, organization, etc., will be done on shipboard en route. After leaving New York the first stop will be at Funchal, Madeira, where a little more than a day will be spent. Gibraltar will be next visited and the sightseeing devoted to the inspection of the British fortress and that part of Spain which can be seen there.

E. K. WARREN.

Proceeding then across the end of the Mediterranean, the steamer touches at Algiers, going thence to Malta. Then comes Piræus, with an excursion to Athens, to which three days are allotted. At Athens a Sabbath service will be held on Mars hill. Then comes Constantinople, where likewise three days will be spent, from which point the steamer goes on to Smyrna, where excursions will be run to Ephesus, and thence on to the first Syrian port touched, Beirut. From Beirut those who go overland to Damascus leave the party.

The others, after making a short stop, continue down to Caifa for a second overland excursion or may go direct to Yafa, where they will be conveyed by small boats to land and take rail for Jerusalem. Here two weeks may be spent by those who desire that length of time, during which period the river Jordan, the Dead sea, Hebron and many other historic Biblical points in which the country round about Jerusalem abounds will be visited.

Although by that time the object of the trip will have been fulfilled, the journey will be by no means ended, for before returning the steamer will go to Alexandria, where its passengers will take rail for Cairo, and those who desire may go down the Nile as far as Luxor, Karnak and Thebes. The return voyage is to be made by the way of Naples, from which point Rome and Pompeii are easily reached; thence to Villefranche and back to New York.

The project has aroused the greatest enthusiasm in the Sunday school world, and its fulfillment will mark an epoch in the history of the international convention.

OPINIONS OF PROMIMENT MEN

Reasons Why They Favor Suffrage for Women.

I have never seen a good reason why my wife, who graduated in the same class with me both in high school and college, should not have an equal opportunity to record her political preferences.

Rev. C. W. Blackett.

I believe that political enfranchisement would go far to quicken women's sense of social and publi responsibility.

Rev. Charles G. Ames.

I have long had the conviction that women should have the right of suffrage on the same terms as men, not because they are women, but because they are human beings, and, like men as human beings, are interested and concerned in right government.

Dr. Nathan E. Wood.

All our movements, all gathering of women in clubs, assemblies, church guilds, charitable and philanthropic organizations, mothers' conventions, and so on, are measures looking to the final triumph of woman suffrage. There is no reason why every discrimination which exists to-day against women should not be removed. Till then humanity will never attain the highest, and the ideals which we are cherishing will never be fulfilled.

Dr. George C. Lorimer.

Women's Gossip in Denver.

In this city of clubs and equal suffrage, some funny things occur, writes a Denver woman, Mrs. A. Guthrie Brown, in the Woman's Journal. The winter that our Legislature passed the Indeterminate Sentence law, one evening the cars were crowded with club women, business men and women on their way to their homes. Two men were standing in a car, near one end of which sat two women in earnest conversation. One of the men said to the other:

"See how those women's tongues are running! They are club women, and some other club woman is catching it."

Soon the seats near the women were vacated, and the men sat down. In a moment the one who sat nearest the women said:

"These women are not gossipping, they are discussing the Indeterminate Sentence bill."

"Well" the other asked, "what the devil is this Intermediate' Sentence bill, anyhow?"

Comment is needless.

In Favor of Woman Suffrage.

The Montana Trade and Labor assembly, at its recent State Convention in Livingston, passed strong equal suffrage resolutions, and applauded to the echo an eloquent address by Miss Gail Laughlin in favor of equal rights. About the same time the Trades-Union Congress in London rejected a woman suffrage resolution introduced by the General Union of Weavers, and passed one presented by the Manchester Jewish Tailors' Union in favor of making naturalization easier for men. The American workman would seem to be a more chivalrous person than his British brother. It is only a short time since the Western Labor Union, and the Western Miners' Union at their national conventions in Denver, passed resolutions in favor of equal suffrage by a unanimous vote. In this country similar action has been taken by State and national labor assemblies too numerous to mention.

Western Workmen Stand by Women.

The following is the full text of the equal rights resolutions that were passed unanimously by the Western Labor Union and the Western Miners' Union at their recent national conventions in Denver:

Whereas, the men of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Idaho have enfranchised the womanhood of those States, thereby extending the comradeship of the home to the functions of the State, and

Wheareas, the exercise of full political equality has resulted in marked improvement in those commonwealths by making potent the influence of good women; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the Western Labor Union and the Western Federation of Miners, in convention assembled, do hereby endorse woman suffrage and recommend its adoption in all the States of the Union.

Wanted, Better Candidates

John Graham Brooks said in a recent address: "For years I have asked people from Colorado and New Zealand—choosing the kind of people whose opinion was best worth having—how woman suffrage works. A college president lately told me he went to Colorado with very strong prejudices against it, and every one of his prejudices had been slowly removed by experience. And Dr. Gregg said that after having been there every 'anti' argument seemed a little silly. Both of them said that a higher type of candidate is the only kind it is now possible to put in the field. In all the Civil Service Reform Associations and Municipal Leagues in other States, that is the one thing they hope slowly to attain to—a better type of candidate."

GEN. HALE'S VIEWS.

SPICY REMARKS ABOUT WOMEN AND THE BALLOT.

Young Officer who Distinguished Himself in the Philippines Tells What He Has Seen of the Results of Suffrage in Colorado.

Gen. Irving Hale, of Denver, recently visited the East, and while in Boston he was interviewed by a representative of the Woman's Journal as to the practical workings of equal suffrage in Colorado. He disposed of the current objections in a style at once spicy and emphatic. Some of the questions and answers were as follows:

"Do you find that equal suffrage leads women to neglect their homes and families?"

"No. There is less danger of women neglecting their domestic duties on account of suffrage than for society, literary clubs or ping-pong—all of which are desirable in moderation, and none of which should be prohibited by law."

"Do differences of political opinion lead to family quarrels and divorces?"

"I have heard of none. Any man who would quarrel with his wife for holding a different political opinion should be disfranchised, as he is incapable of appreciating the fundamental principles of our government."

"Does it impair women's refinement to vote and take part in politics?"

"Not if the right is exercised in a womanly and refined manner, as it is by the great majority. No true woman is any less womanly for studying questions of public interest and expressing her opinions upon them by means of the ballot."

"Are women treated with less respect and consideration socially, and has equal suffrage made men less chivalrous?"

"No. It is a well-known fact that greater courtesy is shown to women in western than in eastern cities."

"Does women's lack of business experience lead them to vote foolishly on practical municipal questions?"

"I have not observed any such result. In business questions with which they are not especially familiar, most women will naturally be guided to a considerable extent by the opinions of their male relatives; but, on the other hand, the right and duty of suffrage will cause them to investigate these subjects for themselves and thus broaden their horizon."

"Are the laws less well enforced since women became voters, owing to the fact that women cannot fight? How is this particular objection regarded in Colorado by men in general?"

"As too ridiculous for serious comment. If all the men who cannot or do not fight should be disfranchised, the polls would be as lonesome as a sea-bathing resort in December."

"Does the fulfillment of their political duties take so much of women's time as to be felt as a severe burden?"

"No more than with men. Each voter, whether man or woman must regulate the time given to political thought and work according to his or her own inclination and opportunity."

"Do the women make as good wives and mothers as before?"

"I can see no difference."

"Do you find that the more ignorant and unintelligent women vote more generally than the educated and intelligent?"

"The largest majorities for woman suffrage were given in the most intelligent cities, and in the best precincts of each city, while the heavy majorities against it were in the precincts controlled by the debased and lawless classes, and the lowest grade of machine politicians, who rely on herding the depraved vote—showing that these elements dreaded the effects of woman suffrage, and realized the falsity of argument that it would increase the immoral and controllable vote.

"The result has demonstrated that their fear was well founded, and this argument is diametrically opposed to actual results.

"So far as I have been able to judge by observation of elections and analysis of returns, more women vote in the better districts than in the slums, and the proportion of of intelligent and refined voters to the ignorant and depraved is larger among women than men. The average result has therefore been beneficial."

Gen. Hale also expressed the opinion that the effect of equal suffrage had been good in the way of making elections more orderly, leading women to take a more intelligent interest in public questions and thus broadening their minds, making it harder to secure the nomination and election of notoriously bad candidates, and making it easier to secure liberal appropriations for educational and humanitarian objects.

The president of the Vermont Woman Suffrage Association, the Hon. C. D. Spencer, of Wilmington, has just been elected to the State Senate. The newly-elected Secretary of State, who had the unanimous nomination for that office, is a warm believer in equal suffrage. McCullough, the regular Republican candidate, who received the largest number of votes for Governor, is committed to woman suffrage, and Clement, the bolting Republican who received the next largest number, voted for it when a member of the Legislature.

ANNUAL MEETING CHAMBER COMMERCE

Agitation in Favor of Government Building for Post Office--Delay of Morning Mail Causes Unfavorable Comment--New Officers Selected—List of Members.

E. R. REDHEAD, SELECTED AS PRESIDENT FOR THIRD TERM.

In calling the Chamber of Commerce to order last Wednesday evening for its annual meeting, President E. R. Redhead congratulated the members on the success that had been attained by the Chamber, which bore undisputed evidence of the wisdom of such an organization of business men whose sole ambition was the prosperity of the city.

After dwelling on the necessity for a government building for the use of the postoffice—the present accommodations seeming to be inadequate—and believing that the time was opportune [illegible] the duty of the Chamber to bring the matter to the attention of the authorities at Washington, especially to Congressman Knapp, and secure his assistance. Some little time might elapse, he said, before the building could be secured, but the agitation could do no harm and their ambition might the sooner be realized.

Mr. Redhead then took up the vexatious question of the delay in the delivery of the morning mail, which was frequently from one to three hours late, occasioning great inconvenience, to say the least.

It transpired that the cause of the delay was the necessity for waiting for the sleeping car which came through from New York on the Central, and was attached to the R., W. & O. train leaving Syracuse at 7.15 a. m. for this section. The New York train was frequently behind time.

Postmaster Youmans was asked by Mr. Redhead if he had taken up the matter of the delay in the mails with the superintendent of the railway mail service. He replied that he had done so and also with the local agent of the R., W. & O., and was assured that the difficulty would be remedied. Had found the trains on the D., L. & W. reasonably prompt.

Mr. Redhead thought as the Chamber was a business men's association he would suggest that suitable resolutions be adopted looking toward a remedy, to be followed by private letters to the railroad officials.

Mr. S. Grand wisely suggested that Oswego and Phoenix merchants be invited to co-operate.

On motion of Mr. L. W. Emerick the secretary was instructed to formulate and forward the necessary resolution.

Mr. Youmans read a copy of a letter which the Hon. N. N. Stranahan had sent to Congressman Knapp, urging that something be done to obtain an appropriation for a suitable government building for this city. Mr. Knapp's reply was not very encouraging for the present at least, but he promised to do his utmost at a later time.

It was thought advisable to appoint a committee of five to further the project of a government building, but before this was done Dr. C. J. Bacon asked that Mr. Redhead become the chairman of the committee, which was unanimously agreed to. The chair thereupon appointed the following committee: Messrs. Thomas Hunter, J. W. Rigley, J. C. O'Brien and G. B. Fairman.

Mr. L. W. Emerick was asked by the president to make a brief statement in reference to the result of his investigations of the proposed broom factory. Mr. Emerick did so, repeating in a large measure that which was printed in last week's Times.

The annual report of the president, secretary and treasurer were read and accepted.

The selection of new officers for the ensuing year became necessary, and the chair appointed as a nominating committee Messrs. George E. True, A. Bristol and F. J. Switzer.

While the committee was deliberating Mr. Redhead stated that the annual banquet of the Chamber would be held next month, when he hoped it would be possible to combine the social with the intellectual and secure some one prominent in State or nation to address the members. He had communicated with several but had not yet received a satisfactory reply.

Mr. Bristol, as chairman of the nominating committee, presented his report. Mr. John Hunter was named for the presidency; Mr. A. W. Wiltsie for vice-president; Mr. W. J. Lovejoy to succeed himself as treasurer, and Mr. F. J. Switzer to serve as trustee for three years.

A ballot was taken for each of the candidates, resulting in their election.

On motion of Dr. C. J. Bacon a vote of thanks was tendered the retiring president.

Mr. Redhead thanked the members for the hearty support which had been accorded him as chief executive and he firmly believed the same loyalty would be shown the newly-elected officers. He was confident there would be no lagging and that all would do their utmost to promote the best interests of the city.

PRESIDENT REDHEAD'S ANNUAL REPORT.

To the Members of the Chamber of Commerce:

Gentlemen: In making my annual report I can but reiterate what I have said in every previous report, that I have great faith in what can be accomplished for any community by a live, wide-awake Chamber of Commerce, whose membership includes the great majority of the representative business and professional men of the place. Questions are continually arising which seriously affect the material and moral welfare of the community, and there is no association which can deal so effectively with these varied problems as an organization composed of the best men of all parties, creeds and business relations, whose aim and purpose is to promote the welfare of their own city. No progressive business or professional man can, therefore, afford to remain outside such an association. It is to the credit of our business men that so large a number appreciate the value of a Chamber of Commerce and are actively identified with it.

The secretary, in his report, will give in detail what has been accomplished or undertaken during the past year. We have not done all that we hoped to accomplish at the beginning of the year. This is seldom or never the case, either in individual or associated effort. We think, however, no intelligent or candid person can review the record of the year without a feeling that the work actually done by this association has been of great benefit to the community. In addition to the public meetings and other work, as reported by the secretary, much quiet and unobserved, but at the same time important work has been done by the executive officers in promoting the objects of the association.

There are several reasons why greater apparent results in adding to the material welfare of our city are not secured. In the first place, we have not regarded favorably any new concern or enterprise that has not good financial backing or merit. It has not been our policy to offer large bonuses or money inducements. We do not think that desirable concerns can be secured in this way.

In the second place, Fulton stands, and has for some time, very high in the commercial world among communities of our size. It is not an easy matter to boost higher that which stands already near the top-notch in its class. In fact, it may be questioned whether the most important mission of our Chamber of Commerce may not be to maintain our present high position in the industrial world. If we can keep that which we have, and carefully add, as we have the opportunity, such new concerns as will, without much question, increase our material prosperity, we are doing a splendid work.

In the third place, political conditions since the adoption of our new city charter have not been very conducive in promoting the welfare of our city. There are many features of the new charter which ought to work great advantage to the city, and would undoubtedly do so, if the good of the city were the chief consideration in carrying out the provisions of the charter. But the new charter provides for new and better offices, with greater powers, and the desire to control these offices, for party or perhaps personal advantage, has wrought great mischief and retarded the development of our city. Until the people shall elect to our municipal offices good men without regard to party affiliations, who can and will administer the affairs of our city on strict business principles, and with regard only to the interests of the people as a whole, we cannot expect much improvement.

The new charter ought to be applied carefully and conscientiously in all of its provisions, and if, after testing, any articles are clearly found not to be working for the welfare of the city, let there be a united effort to make such changes in our organic law as will surely promote the prosperity of the community. We can make Fulton, if we will, one of the most desirable cities of its size in the country, in its social, educational, political and industrial features. As an important step in this direction I wish to congratulate the Chamber of Commerce upon the acceptance by the city of the terms of the gift of the Carnegie Library building. From the first this project has had the unqualified approval of this body and it is largely due to its unwavering support that a suitable structure for the housing of our Public Library will soon, in all probability, crown some eligible site, and this splendid institution for the benefit of the people will be placed upon a permanent basis and its influence for good thereby widely extended.

In conclusion, I wish to call attention [illegible] the work of the presidency of this association as now having been performed to the full measure. If for no other reason, a multiplicity of other important duties compels me to this decision. In retiring, I wish to sincerely thank the association for the high honor conferred upon me in making me the president since its organization to the present time, and for the uniform courtesy and support given me in carrying on its work. The Chamber of Commerce is now well established and I bespeak for the incoming officers the same hearty co-operation in making the Chamber of Commerce a greater power even for good in our community than it has been in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
E. R. REDHEAD,
President.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

As secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Fulton, I take pleasure in submitting the following report for the year 1903:

REGULAR MEETINGS.

Regular quarterly meetings were held in January, April and October. These meetings were well attended and a diversity of topics discussed. At the January meeting occurred the election of officers for the ensuing year, the appointment of committees, etc. A system for sewerage for the west side of the city and its effect upon tax rate and assessed valuation of property occupied the principal part of the April meeting, and resolutions were adopted recommending an increase in the city's assessed valuation. The July meeting was omitted because of extremely warm weather and the absence of several of the board of managers from the city. The one-thousand-ton barge canal question and the subject of an industrial building were the principal topics of discussion at the meeting in October, and the action of the Chamber in interesting itself in the course of this enlarged canal through our city will doubtless prove of substantial benefit to owners of water-power and to all property holders and business men in Fulton.

SPECIAL MEETINGS.

Five special meetings of the Chamber have been held during the year. The first to hear Mr. Potter of New York on the subject of "Local option in taxation," and in consequence of which this organization, through its president and secretary, has added its name to a list of many similar associations throughout the State and petitioned for more power to the Boards of Supervisors in handling the subject of taxation in their respective counties.

The one thousand-ton barge canal question occupied a special meeting of October 30, and literature was distributed at the expense of the Chamber endorsing and soliciting support for the measure at the November election.

Three special meetings were held in December and January to discuss the International Broom Company's proposition for establishing a branch factory in Fulton. The result of these meetings is already known to you.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

The members have enjoyed two entertainments during the past season. First at the lecture on February 9, when the Hon. Curtis Guild of Massachusetts, delivered his address on the subject of "Public duties of private citizens," and again at the annual banquet on April 15. Both of these occasions were pleasant ones. A large audience listened to Mr. Guild, and 100 guests enjoyed the banquet.

ADVERTISING.

An advertising campaign of some magnitude has been carried on during the year, and in consequence the name of Fulton is better known to the manufacturing world. Through the advertising agency of William Borsodi of New York several thousand circular letters have been distributed to manufacturers in and about New York City, who were understood to be desirous of establishing branch factories or removing their works to more spacious quarters, and a recent issue of the New York Times contained a full-page advertisement of Mr. Borsodi's, the central figure of which was the City of Fulton. We are registered with several advertising agencies; the industrial agents of the three lines of railroads that enter Fulton have our address on file, while every issue of the "Four Track News" refers its readers to the Chamber of Commerce of Fulton for information regarding favorable manufacturing sites.

We have also prepared and had printed a booklet entitled "A few facts about Fulton, N. Y., and of these five thousand copies are now ready for distribution.

BUSINESS.

It is to be regretted that all business propositions addressed to [illegible] confidential [illegible], I shall be glad to have my letter book examined by any member who may be interested, and to give information regarding work that has been carried on by me in the name of the Chamber of Commerce. One obstacle which I have endeavored to overcome in business negotiations for this association is the "bonus" which 99 per cent. of the "movers" desire if they locate anywhere. We have avoided such and sought to interest only financially sound concerns in Fulton. One good industry is worth a thousand poor ones and reflects credit rather than discredit on our city.

MEMBERSHIP.

The membership of the Chamber has been increased until 120 members are now enrolled, a larger number than ever before in our history. This should be still further increased during the coming year.

The Chamber of Commerce has enjoyed a moderate, steady growth, and has labored carefully and continually. Nothing startling or unexpected has happened to enliven our reports. "Happy is the country that has no History" is a saying somewhat applicable to this association, but our experience has proven that in all matters of public interest a well organized association of business men wields a strong influence.

Respectfully submitted,
B. W. BENNETT, Secretary.

MR. HUNTER DECLINES PRESIDENCY.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, held on Monday afternoon, Mr. Hunter declined the proffered honor of the presidency of the Chamber, giving as his reason for so doing that he was a member of the Board of Education, and as he was very much interested in that work, did not think it possible for him to serve the city in any other capacity. He was deeply sensible of the honor conferred, but could not, owing to the pressure of his business interests, undertake any additional duties.

Mr. Redhead was thereupon urged to again accept the presidency, to which he reluctantly consented.

As before stated, the banquet will be held next month and the members are urged to pay their annual dues at once, as only those who are in good standing will be entitled to tickets.

Knights of Pythias.

On Thursday evening of this week the members of Pathfinder Lodge will hold an informal social and smoker at their lodge and club rooms in the Reynolds block.

Immediately after the regular order of business the members will be entertained by Prof. Guy F. Taylor, who will give a short and instructive lecture on hypnotism, which science Prof. Taylor has quietly made a study of for the past few years. He will then illustrate his powers upon two or three subjects whom he will put under his hypnotic influence and will cause them to do acts which would be impossible were they not under his hypnotic spell. Prof. Taylor has never given a public entertainment, but has kindly consented as a favor to his friends among the Knights of Pythias, to give this entertainment to the members only. The Knights may be assured an entertaining and instructive evening.

After the entertainment an informal smoker will be held in honor of Prof. Taylor and his subjects, who have kindly consented to assist him on that evening.

Notice of Receiving of Taxes.

City Chamberlain Hillick has received the tax rolls and warrants for the collection of taxes, and will attend to the collection of the same at his office in the City Hall for thirty days from the date of this notice (Jan. 27), from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., Sundays and legal holidays excepted, to receive city, county and State taxes.

THE CIT-Y PRIM-ER.

Snow-drops.

See the brown marks on the white snow!
Are they snow-drops?
Yes! They are Ful-ton snow-drops.
Are they pret-ty?
O no, they are ug-ly and dirt-y.
Who drop-ped them on the snow?
Men and boys who are call-ed sick-ers.
Why are they call-ed sick-ers?
Be-cause they are sick most all the time be-tween meals.
Do they see the doc-tor a-bout it?
O no, they like to be sick.
Then they can paint the cit-y dirt-brown.
Are they sick in Sum-mer time?
Sure! They a[illegible] most al-ways sick.
In Sum-mer time sick-ers daub the side-walks just th[illegible] same.
Do sick-ers clean the walks?
O no, la-dies with long frocks do, for them.
Kind la-dies, the sick[illegible] like you.
Are all men and boys sick-ers?
No, or else there would be no white snow.
Why do de-cent folks let the sick-er slob-ber?
Be-cause they are easy.
Can a po-lice-man ar-rest a sick-er?
He can.
Does he do so?
He does not.
The jail is a small one, and the sick-ers would mess the nice i-ron beds.

SPECIALISTS FAILED; CAL-CURA SUCCEEDED.

[illegible] Bottle of Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, Cured Mr. Fuller of Bladder Trouble.

"My case is so remarkable that I want to tell you all about it. I suffered from bladder trouble for about 25 years, and had all the doctors about here, and also specialists in New York, without getting any help. Last August I bought a bottle of Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's new medicine. I had not been able to work at my trade (boiler making) for some time, but after taking one bottle of Calcura Solvent I began work and have been working ever since. Cal-cura Solvent has done more for me in a month than all the doctors did in 30 years, and I don't complain of the doctors."—Martin Fuller, Mattea[illegible] N. Y. All druggists, $1.00.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. W. J. Bradford is convalescent from an illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Hewes have returned from a visit in Pennsylvania.

Collector N. N. Stranahan was the guest of President Roosevelt at the White House on Thursday.

Mr. Cleveland Harding is remodelling his house on Emory street and will remove his family from Oneida in the early Spring, to occupy it.

Mrs. Hattie Dungey, formerly of this city, has commenced action for divorce against her husband, Bert Dungey of Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. Dungey now resides in Syracuse.

Mr. George E. True has purchased the house on Third street, near Oneida, recently erected by Mr. W. A. Palmer. Mr. and Mrs. True will take possession about April 1.

The heavy rain and wind on Friday morning did much damage to trees in this vicinity. The branches were heavily coated with ice and snapped like stems in the wind.

The high school basket ball team defeated the team from Henley Business college, Syracuse, on Wednesday evening by a score of 20 to 7, thus adding another victory to a season without one defeat.

The leaders around the C. T. Lynch furniture store froze on Thursday night and caused the water from the melting snow on the roof to leak in the store to such an extent that a great deal of furniture was spoiled

Mr. Joseph Sheridan, a former Fultonian, is now located in Los Angeles, Cal., where he is a member of a firm engaged in making heating and ventilating plants. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pentelow accidentally met him in Cotton, Cal., a few days ago.

Tomorrow, Thursday evening, the Knights of Pythias will enjoy a hypnotic lecture and exhibition by Prof. Guy F. Taylor, who enjoys a wide reputation. At the conclusion of the entertainment an informal smoker with light refreshments will be given.

On Friday morning a large limb from one of the elm trees in front of Mr. H. B. Collins' house in Oneida street, fell across the electric light wires and broke them down. The branch caught fire from the live wires and burned for a time.

The concert in the First M. E. church last Friday evening, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Paul, for the benefit of the organ fund, was very slimly attended. The weather was extremely unpleasant. The performance, however, was first-class and the audience was delighted with the entertainment.

What might have proved a serious conflagration in the Hotel Fulton was prevented by the presence of mind of Mr. Clyde Curtiss on Friday. A burning head flew from a parlor match and set fire to lace curtains, but Mr. Curtiss crushed the flames between his hands and extinguished them, receiving severe burns as he did so.

Mr. Hugh Clark's twenty-first birth anniversary was celebrated in splendid style by his parents at their home in West Third street last Friday evening. A large number of friends were invited and music for dancing was furnished by Lamphere's full orchestra. During the evening, Mr. Clark was presented with a gold watch by his father, and his friends presented him with a gold chain and handsome charm.

The Minstrel Show.

The Elks Minstrel show which is scheduled to occupy the boards in Stephens Opera House on Feb. 12, bids fair to be rich and rare. The stage decorating will be done by Mr. William Smith, decorator at J. C. O'Brien's, and Mr. Maurice Hillar of the M. Katz & Co. store, and something novel is promised. Mr. John D. McIntyre will be interlocutor and he will see to it that each man does his duty toward amusing and instructing the audience. The other participants will be: End men, Milton J. Crandall, Fred K. Jones, John Pomphret, F. J. Towse, F. G. Spencer and W. F. Hill; chorus, Michael Bray, John Timothy, William A. Richardson, William Koehler, H. A. McFarland, Albert Kraus, Harold Keeler, William S. Hillick, Clinton Gilbert, William Moon and L. C. Taggart; soloists, Messrs. Bray, Timothy, Richardson, McFarland, Hillick, Crandall, Jones, Towse and Pomphret.

This combination will be hard to beat when it comes to fun and music.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passage for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

Grange Topics for 1904.

Following are the topics for general grange discussion suggested for 1904:

First quarter—General topic, "Good Roads;" January, "Is national aid to road building advisable and what can the grange do to secure it?" February, "To what extent is state aid to road building justifiable?" March, "What can be done by local action to secure better roads?"

Second quarter—General topic, "Good Crops;" April, "How important is the adaptability of the crop to soil and demands of the local market?" May, "What are the relative merits from cultivation and fertilization derived by growing crops?" June, "can improvement be made in the present method of marketing crops?"

Third quarter—General topic, "Good Citizens;" July, "What is the duty of the farmer in the management of the affairs of his political party?" August, "What is the duty of the farmer in the management of the affairs of state or nation?" September, "What is the duty of the farmer in the management of local affairs, including churches, schools and roads?"

Fourth quarter — General topic, "Good Homes;" October, "What constitutes the essential features inside the ideal home?" November, "What are required as the outside attractions of the ideal home?" December, "What should the different members of the family contribute to an ideal home?"

"Three boys go gathering apples. They arrive home late at night with a bagful, and after agreeing to divide it equally, go to bed. During the night one of them wakes up, and feeling hungry, goes to the bag, divides the apples into three equal portions, and finds there is one over, which he throws away. He eats his own and goes back to bed. Later on the second boy also wakes up, and goes through a similiar procedure, as does the third afterward, both of them like the first, throwing away an odd apple. In the morning the three boys divide the remainder of the apples equally, and again find one over, which they throw away. How many apples were there originally?"—New York Times.

Mr. John H. Cullom, editor of the Garland, Texas, News, has written a letter of congratulations to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows: "Sixteen years ago when our first child was a baby he was subject to croupy spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup, we have never been without it in the house since that time. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results. One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdose. I congratulate you upon the success of your remedy." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Latest Music.

The following vocal and instrumental selections from the publishing house of M. Witmark & Sons, New York city, are at present engaging the especial attention of lovers of popular music:

"Resignation." A high grade song by the celebrated opera prima-donna, Card Roma. This song will have no ephemeral life; it is bound to become a standard among concert singers.

"Here's To The Nut Brown Ale," by Stanley Forde and Theo. Northrop As sung by Mr. Ford in "The Princess of Kensington," this typical drinking song scored an instantaneous success. It is now being sung by the glee clubs of all the prominent colleges and wherever crowds gather for a jolly good time. It has been proclaimed another "Heidelberg."

"Moonlight on the Old Plantation," by T. Bodewalt Lampe. This composition has the same enchanting Southern atmosphere which made "The Creole Belles," by the same composer, so popular. One can almost see the cotton fields and hear the banjo plunking beneath the Southern moon.

"For Many Years," by Eugene Ellsworth.

"The Corporal's Guard," by Frederick Griffin. A march characteristic, full of humor, dash and individuality. This is a type of the comic descriptive instrumental numbers which are the present entertaining fad among musicians.

"Under The Harvest Moon," by Ernest Ball. A delightful reverie with a colorful theme most admirably executed. Mr. Ball being also a song writer of marked ability, invests even his instrumental selections with a singeable quality truly delightful.

SUCCESSFUL IN ELECTRICAL WORK.

I have been studying in the Electrical Course of the International Correspondence Schools, of Scranton, Pa., for eleven months, and can say that I have accomplished a great deal in the electrical line. I recently erected a watchman's time detector for a well-known firm, receiving $4.50 per day and expenses for my work. I am now doing contract work, using the Westinghouse dynamo exclusively. I have the promise of a good deal of contract work, such as installing plants, etc., and my ability to do this work is due to the knowledge gained from the study of my Course in the Schools. I heartily recommend the Schools to all ambitious of advancement. J. F. JOYCE, 206 W. Fifth Street, Oswego, N. Y.

A SUCCESSFUL DRAUGHTSMAN.

When I enrolled in the International Correspondence Schools, of Scranton, Pa., I was an apprentice in the foundry of Ames' Iron Works. The knowledge I attained enabled me to secure a position with the Buffalo Forge Co., as designer and was finally placed in charge of the erection work. I am now employed as chief draughtsman with the Parkhurst Compound Steam Boiler Co., of Oswego. Next to a college education your system is by far the best. I derived great benefit from the Reference Library furnished me with my course and also from your International Library of Technology. The good I have derived has been of inestimable benefit in solving difficult problems, and since I have enrolled I have more than doubled my salary. Yours for success, C. E. KNOEPPEL. Oswego, Jan. 23, '03.

Students Aid Department, International Correspondence Schools:

Gentlemen:—I wish to thank you for writing to the Battle Island Paper Co., Fulton, in my behalf, and I also take pleasure in informing you that I have been successful in obtaining the position I was looking for, with that company. I take pride in recommending the Schools at all times and will gladly answer any inquires that may be addressed to me.

Minetto, N. Y., Aug. 22, 1903. Yours truly, W. FOSTER.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

ABOUT THE OFFICIAL PAPER

As will be seen by the official proceedings on our second page, The Fulton Patriot is now the official paper of the city of Fulton—because it offered to do the city printing at the lowest price. The offer made by this paper is the same as that made to the Foster administration in April, 1902, but they ignored it and let the printing at 30 cents per folio, thus wasting 13 cents of the taxpayers' money without the least shadow of an excuse.—Patriot.

At the time mentioned in the foregoing, the Times stated that 17 cents a folio was a price which no respectable journal would accept for doing the city printing, and it reiterates the statement despite the fact that the Patriot has again bid 17 cents and received the award. The Democrats are now saying they hope no one will believe it was a Democratic move to make the Patriot the official paper. They do not want the stigma to rest upon their party. The fact is that men in all classes and of both political parties tried to persuade the Committee on Printing to make the Times the official paper, believing it would reflect more credit upon the Council and be more satisfactory to the taxpayers, but their wishes were disregarded, and had it not been for the firm stand taken by Alderman Dilts, the Patriot's bid of 17 cents would have been raised to 25 cents per folio by Alderman Prince, and the printing awarded at that figure. Mr. Dilts believes that a man may put too high a valuation upon his services, but that he never undervalues them, and he would therefore not permit the raising of the price.

If one were to judge from the methods introduced by the present administration—the presentation of resolutions by those who are not members of the Council and their adoption in the interest of the alleged official paper—subsequent proceedings will probably show who has been "wasting the taxpayers' money without the least shadow of an excuse."

COMMON COUNCIL

Attorney Hillick Explains Franchise Matter to Council. Ordinance Adopted Restricting Ringing of Church Bells, Etc.

An adjourned meeting of the Common Council was held last Thursday evening. Mayor Foster was absent and Alderman Russell, as president of the Council, took the chair. The Aldermen present were: Dilts, Bogardus, Prince, Brown and Brennan.

In reading the minutes of the previous session, City Clerk Hinsdale stated that the annual report of Commissioner of Charities was printed in the minutes but that its insertion had not been authorized by either him or the Common Council.

Alderman Russell told him that it was not necessary to read it. The fact of its having been printed without authority, however, was passed over in silence by Alderman Russell.

A detailed statement for the year of the Commissioner of Charities which Alderman Bogardus, as chairman of the Finance Committee, had expressed an ardent desire to obtain, was presented. It proved to be a voluminous document, and the finance committee asked for further time for its consideration.

Attorney W. S. Hillick appeared before the Council and explained the present status of the proposed sale of a franchise for an electric road. He stated that he had found in going over the minutes of the Board of Public Works that no resolution had been adopted by that Board until recently offering the franchise for sale, which was contrary to the railroad law of the State, and as there was no likelihood of the city winning in the injunction proceedings now pending, he had consulted with the attorney for the other side (Mr. Piper), who had agreed to a discontinuance of the proceeding provided the city would pay the costs, which would amount to about $30. The plan he outlined was to proceed, as soon as the present case was discontinued, in a proper and legitimate manner, and prepare a new franchise, in accordance with the railroad law which the attorneys will stipulate to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court for a decision.

The necessary authority was given for a discontinuance of the proceedings by resolution offered by Alderman Bogardus.

The following resolution, which was presented by Alderman Brown, had very distinct earmarks. It was probably not written by any member of the Board, although the wisdom of adopting some such resolution can not be questioned. It was as follows:

Resolved, That the city clerk cause to be published copies of the minutes of future meetings and other matters of importance to the public from the Board of Public Works, Board of Education, Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, and such other departments as may by the Common Council be deemed necessary to keep the public fully posted as to the workings of the several city departments.

In compliance with a suggestion from Alderman Dilts, that citizens should be safe-guarded from danger in case of fire in the opera house or other places of amusement, Alderman Bogardus introduced the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the Committee of the Common Council on Properties, accompanied by the Chief of the Fire Department and Chief of Police, inspect all public halls and places of amusement within the city of Fulton, and report the condition of the same at the next meeting of the said Council.

The following resolution was written by some one who evidently has an Oriental's hatred of noise, and undoubtedly had a decided objection to being disturbed on Sunday morning by the clanging of the church bells, summoning the good people of Fulton to their temples of worship. It was fathered by Alderman Brennan and is as follows:

Be it ordained, That except on occasions of fire, no church bell shall be rung or sounded on any day or night for a longer period than one-half minute for each service of said church, for each session of school or for each commencement or conclusion of the general work at factory or shop. Any violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance is punishable by a fine of not less than $5, nor more than $10. This shall not prohibit the tolling of bells for funerals.

Aldermen Dilts and Brown voted against the resolution, Alderman Brown proclaiming that he had listened to the music of the church bells for at least forty years and he did not wish for a discontinuance of their familiar sound.

Aldermen Bogardus, Prince, Brennan and Russell voted for the resolution, resulting in its adoption.

Mr. George P. Saunders asked permission to give a public exhibition of the efficacy of a fire-extinguisher for which he had secured the agency. He had been directed to the Council for such permission, but Alderman Bogardus advised him to consult with Mayor Foster.

City Clerk Hinsdale was given authority to secure 75 sets of license and 500 dog tags.

This brought the labors of the Council to a close, an adjournment being taken until Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

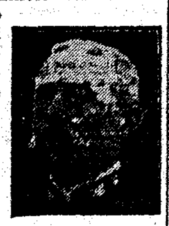
PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

COLONEL GEORGE F. ELLIOTT, commandant of the United States marine corps who is now at the isthmus became acquainted with Panama troubles during the revolution of 1885. He was in charge of one of the companies of marines that were strung along the railroad to keep traffic open and saw some lively times along the Chagres river. He distinguished himself at Guantanamo, Cuba, during the Spanish war. Colonel Elliott was with a party of men who had just landed when they were attacked by Spaniards. Some of the men were swimming at the time, and as soon as they heard the shots these men ran to the aid of their comrades. Many of them were naked, among them Colonel Elliott, who, without waiting to dress, seized his sword, made a charge and repulsed the attack.



COL. G. F. ELLIOTT.

Colonel Elliott also saw hard fighting in the Philippines and was given an additional number for bravery on several occasions. He entered the corps in 1870, being appointed from New York. Colonel Elliott succeeded to the command of the marine corps a few months ago on the retirement of General Heywood.

Tom L. Johnson, mayor of Cleveland, who, after a three years' fight, has succeeded in getting the street car fares of that city reduced to 3 cents, is a big man physically as well as mentally and is something of an athlete in a rather ponderous way.

TOM L. JOHNSON.

On one occasion Mr. Johnson put on his bicycle suit and started out for a spin. While rolling along very easily a newspaper reporter spied him and drew up alongside. Mr. Johnson put on speed and pulled away. He was bowling along at a lively gait when he saw a policeman motioning to him.

"Am I scorching?" inquired Johnson, slackening his speed.

"Scorching!" said the policeman. "Nuh, but you're on the wrong side of the road." This was too much for the genial Tom. It may tickle a man's pride to be stopped for fast riding, but to be halted for being on the wrong side filled him with disgust, if his expression was any indication of his feelings.

Attorney General Knox, reporting to congress that he had expended $26,000 of the special appropriation of $500,000 for antitrust prosecutions, suggested a new "assistant to the attorney general" to take charge of that kind of work.

The attorney general, although a hard worker, is a believer in the old adage that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" and seeks relaxation from labor whenever opportunity offers. He has a keen appreciation of a fast horse, a game of golf and a good cigar. Not long ago he invited a well known newspaper correspondent to join him in an afternoon at the links. The ride out to the club was made behind the attorney general's record breaking team in order that all of the features of the entertainment might be complete.

P. C. KNOX.

Mr. Knox, however, had forgotten to provide himself with cigars and soon after the start deplored the oversight. The correspondent at once produced a bountiful supply, and throughout the afternoon smoking went on. When the programme had been nearly completed and the drive home almost finished, the attorney general threw away the last half of his last cigar. "Well," he ejaculated, "we have had a nice drive, a good game, and I haven't violated my physician's orders not to use tobacco, either."

Like most men of naturally serious bent, Secretary of War Elihu Root, who is soon to retire from the cabinet, has a vein of humor in his composition which sometimes finds vent in irony. During the most trying crisis of the Chinese Boxer troubles of 1900 a group of newspaper reporters were admitted to his presence and, standing in a row, plied him in turn with questions. The first few were sensible and showed that their authors had thought them out with some care, but following these came a number which were too obviously creations of the moment. The secretary's expression changed from interested curiosity to rather marked weariness as the bombardment went on, but his manner never lost its gravity, even when the last of the group burst out with:

ELIHU ROOT.

"Mr. Secretary, I am informed that the president is very tired of Minister Conger and is trying to get rid of him."

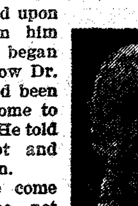
"Ah," responded Mr. Root, with evident relief that the secret was out, "you have discovered that at last, have you?"

"Yes. And now could you tell me whether Mr. Conger will be dismissed or simply superseded?"

"Neither. The president, with careful regard for oriental etiquette, will send him a poisoned letter."

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan rarely indulges in speechmaking. On one occasion, however, says the Saturday Evening Post, he made a palpable hit in an after dinner effort. The affair was a banquet to celebrate the successful and long continued pastorate of the well known Rev. Dr. Rainsford, rector of St. George's church, New York.

Mr. Morgan had been prevailed on to act as toastmaster, with the understanding, however, that no speech was to be expected from him, but when the diners insisted upon hearing from him he rose and began to describe how Dr. Rainsford had been induced to come to the church. He told of the doubt and the hesitation.



J. P. MORGAN.

"Would he come or would he not come?" said Mr. Morgan. "And what would lead to his decision?"

At this period in his speech Mr. Morgan became slightly embarrassed and thrust his hand deep down in the pocket of his trousers, where it encountered and jingled some silver currency.

"What would cause him to decide to come to our church?" repeated Mr. Morgan, and again came the answering jingle of the coin, audible to every diner in the room. Then, with a final tinkle of money, Mr. Morgan went on hastily, "So Dr. Rainsford decided to come."

The reference to the call and acceptance, with this implied side light on the cause that prevailed, was too much for the guests, and the best laugh of the evening was equally on the rector and the toastmaster.

"The other day," said Representative Timothy D. Sullivan of New York, "a big hobo struck me for a quarter. 'What's the matter with working?' I asked him.

"'Can't get anything to do at my trade,' said the hobo.

"'What is your trade?'

"'I'm foreman in a radium factory.' And I just had to produce."

M. Santos-Dumont, the famous aeronaut who has come to this country to arrange for entering the $100,000 balloon race at the St. Louis world's fair next summer, is a confirmed bachelor.

M. SANTOS-DUMONT

"I shall never marry," said the balloonist recently.

"Why not?" inquired an interested listener.

"Oh, because I must give my life to my work. Suppose I were to marry. Then my wife might say: 'You must give up balloon ascensions. They are very dangerous.' Then what should I do?"

M. Santos invariably wears a medal of St. Benedict when making ascensions. It was a present from the Countess d'Eu, daughter of Dom Pedro, former emperor of Brazil. Asked if he feared any special evil and wore the medallion to ward it off, he smilingly replied:

"Oh, no. There is one thing sure about balloon ascensions. The man who goes up—well, he is sure to come down, eh?"

Some years ago when Richard Harding Davis penetrated the transmississippi to gather material for his book, "The West From a Car Window," says the Saturday Evening Post, he stopped over in a small Indian Territory town where he was assured there was plenty of local color.

Proceeding along the street, he met two men apparently just in from some distant ranch. They were tall, untamed, intoxicated and "bad." Placing a hand of size on Mr. Davis' shoulder, one of them said:

R. H. DAVIS.

"Young feller, is there a jail in this yere town where they lock up men?"

Mr. Davis saw that his best chance of avoiding trouble was to meet the man on his own ground of boisterous comradeship, so he looked up and said carelessly:

"Guess not. I've been here two days, and I"—

"There ain't none then," broke in the man, with a tremendous thump on the author's back. "You'd 'a' been in it 'fore this time if there was!" And they passed joyously on, leaving Mr. Davis with another tube of the desired local color.

"If we ratify that canal treaty, what are you going to do for something to talk about?" asked Senator Spooner of Senator Gorman.

"Oh," said Gorman, "Providence will provide."

"That," said Spooner, "reminds me of the man out in Wisconsin who went to a revival and was pressed to repent. He wavered for a time and finally arose and said:

"'Friends, I want to repent and tell how bad I have been, but I dasn't do it when the grand jury is in session.'

"'The Lord will forgive!' the revivalist shouted.

"'Probably he will,' answered the sinner, 'but he ain't on that grand jury.'"

King, late of the City of Fulton, in the County of Oswego, New York, deceased, greeting:

WHEREAS, Nellie Royce Lasher, the executrix named in a certain instrument in writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of said Jerucia A. King, late of the City of Fulton, in the County of Oswego, and State of New York, deceased, and relating to both real and personal estate, has lately made application to the Surrogate's Court of our County of Oswego to have said instrument in writing proved and recorded as a will of real and personal estate: You and each of you are, therefore, hereby cited to appear before the Surrogate of the County of Oswego, at his office in the City of Oswego, in the said County of Oswego, New York, on the 18th day of January, 1904, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of said will; and such of you as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your general guardian, if you have one; or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed; or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the County of Oswego to be hereunto affixed

[SEAL] WITNESS, Sheldon B Mead, Surrogate of our said County of Oswego, at the City of Oswego, in the said County, on the 30th day of November, A. D., 1903.

Mortgage Sale.

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the first day of November, 1900, made and executed by Electa S. Clark, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, New York, on the 2d day of October, 1900, at 9:51 o'clock a. m., in liber 194 of mortgages at page 460, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and

Whereas, the amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice, is the sum of three hundred sixty-three dollars and eleven cents ($363.11), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property described in said mortgage as follows:

"All that tract or parcel of land, situate in the village of Fulton, County of Oswego and State of New York, upon great lot number twenty-nine (29) of the sixteenth township of Scriba's patent, bounded as follows: Beginning in the centre of the Emery road at a point two (2) chains and thirty-five (35) links west from the point of intersection thereof with Burdick street, and running thence westerly along the said Emery road three (3) chains and seven (7) links; thence northerly to the angle in the easterly line of land formerly owned by John C. Babcock; thence easterly four (4) chains and five (5) links to the centre of Burdick street; thence southerly along the centre of Burdick street three (3) chains and fifty-six (56) links; thence westerly about one (1) chain and ninety-three (93) links to the northwest corner of lands occupied by one Townsend; thence southerly along the said Townsend's west line to the place of beginning, reserving a right of way to the well on said premises and the right to draw and use water from said well, and being the same premises conveyed to J. Edith Corrie by deed from James M. Chesbro and wife, recorded in Oswego County Clerk's office in liber 170 of deeds at page 35, and by deed from George W. Wright and wife, recorded in said Clerk's office in liber 172 of deeds at page 515", at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego New York, on the 30th day of January, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgagor, Robert H. Stowe. Mortgagee, Mrs. C. C. Pettis. Mortgage dated August 14, 1903, and recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the Clerk's office of Oswego County, N. Y., on the 15th day of August, 1903, at 8:25 a. m., in Liber 204 of Mortgages, at page 528. The sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is fifty one dollars and nineteen cents ($51.19), being the whole sum secured by said mortgage. (Said Mortgagee above named, also holds two prior mortgages upon the same premises, on which is unpaid the sum of $400, together with interest on $150, from February 14, 1903, and on $250, from March 18, 1903.)

The mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, and State of New York, known and described as Lot No. five (5) of block five hundred and four (504), according to the map of the village of Fulton on file in Oswego County Clerk's office. Default having been made in the payment of the sum secured to be paid by said mortgage, and no action having been brought to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof; therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained, recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said mortgaged property at public auction, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, N. Y., on the 2d day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said sale will be made subject to the lien of the above mentioned prior mortgages.

Dated, January 6, 1904.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas, Default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the 1st day of December, 1902, made and executed by Mabelle Root, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage, with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, New York, on the 3d day of December, 1903, at 3:39 o'clock p. m., in Liber 203 of Mortgages, at page 68, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and,

Whereas, The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of eleven hundred seventy-three dollars and seventy-six cents ($1,173.76), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided, and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property, described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as lots numbers six and seven (6 and 7) of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, being twenty-five (25) feet in width on Second street. Also all that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, being part of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, bounded as follows: Beginning on Second street one hundred and twenty-eight (128) feet southerly from Seneca street, running thence easterly one hundred twenty-one and a half (121½) feet; thence southerly twenty-five (25) feet, thence westerly three and a half (3½) feet; thence southerly twelve (12) feet, thence westerly parallel with Oneida street to Second street; thence northerly along Second street thirty-seven (37) feet to the place of beginning," at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego, New York, on the 12th day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Tom Lee Under Guard.

[The New York Press]

When the Lackawanna road of Miss Phoebe Snow and anthracite took President Roosevelt to Syracuse last Summer the Cyclops of passenger agents, Tom Lee, acted as escort, having his own private car next to the engine. In the City of Salt Mr. Lee was master of ceremonies against his will, as he is a modest gentleman, preferring the backgrond to the limelight.

Finally it occurred to him that he was being shadowed by a group of five men in civilian's clothes. Leaning down to one, he whispered, "I'm on to your game. What are you fellows trying to do with me?" The man opened his coat and exhibited the insignia of the Government Secret Service.

"The President gave us personal orders," he said, "to take very particular care of every one on his train. We are merely obeying his Excellency in safeguarding you."

Tom chuckled. Bending again to the official's ear, he said, "See here, my boy; I'm just plain Tom Lee, passenger agent of the Lackawanna and in charge of the President's train. I guess you needn't waste any time looking after my safety."

The officers felt abashed, but accepted Mr. Lee's kind invitation to wash the salt out of their throats.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

W. R. HEARST, EDITOR

MAN WHO MAY BE THE DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE.

Born to Great Wealth, He Lives In a Simple and Modest Way—His Success as a Maker of Newspapers. Spanish War Record.

William Randolph Hearst, noted editor and member of congress from New York, whose strength as a possible presidential candidate was the sensation of the recent meeting of the Democratic national committee at Washington, is the most unique as he is one of the most successful newspaper men of his time.

Mr. Hearst's father, the late Senator George Hearst of California, was one of the pioneers who went to the Pacific coast from Missouri in the gold rush of 1849. His mother, Mrs. Phebe Elizabeth Apperson Hearst, whose charity has made her name known throughout the country, was also from Missouri. When William R. Hearst was born at San Francisco in 1863 his father was already one of the prominent and wealthy mining men of the Pacific coast and a leader among the Democrats of California. He became governor of the state and then United States senator.

Notwithstanding his father's great wealth, the son, an only child, was simply reared, attended the public schools and finished his education at Harvard. While at college he was identified with the Harvard Lampoon and naturally turned to journalism when allowed to choose his own career. He went to work on the San Francisco Examiner, an old line Democratic paper which belonged to his father.

It was in 1886 that the newspaper was given to him, and he at once began to stir up the dry bones, with the result that in a few months the paper became the talk of the Pacific coast. Then Mr. Hearst turned toward the east. The elder Hearst, it is said, offered $11,000,000 for the New York Herald, but Mr. Bennett refused to part with his property. Then came the purchase of the New York Journal. It is hardly necessary to tell the story of the development first of the San Francisco Examiner, then of the New York Journal (now the American) and after that of the Chicago American. All are now great newspapers, and all are powers in the land. To them has been added recently the Los Angeles Examiner, and their number is to be still further augmented by a daily at St. Louis.

When he first undertook the development of the New York property from what had been a discredited and losing paper, experienced newspaper men regarded the project with grave doubts. Mr. Hearst went right ahead, however, believing that in time the circulation of his newspapers would be great enough to make them paying properties.

When the war broke out between Spain and the United States, Mr. Hearst informed the government that he would recruit, arm, mount and generally equip a regiment of cavalry, in the ranks of which he offered to serve, the entire expense of the regiment to be borne by him. This offer was not accepted, but his later offer of a war vessel was. Mr. Hearst put his steam yacht, the Buccaneer, at the disposition of the government, having first transformed it into a modern gunboat. The small arms, cannon and equipment of the crew were all supplied by him.

Mr. Hearst is tall and slender, with smooth shaven face, and looks younger than his years. He dresses quietly and has a mild expression. His eyes are intensely blue.

When Mr. Hearst first set out upon his journalistic career men who thought he was crazy for not finding some easier means of throwing away his money began to refer to him as "Willie," but those who knew him best called him "Bill."

In 1902 Mr. Hearst was elected to congress from the Eleventh district of New York. He has been prominent in Democratic politics for the last eight years, having been president of the National Association of Democratic Clubs in 1896 and again in 1900.

Congressman Hearst was married last April to Miss Millicent Willson, daughter of George Willson, who is president of the American Advance Music company of New York.

Suspicious.

Mrs. Jones—Did he listen patiently?

Mr. Jones—Very. He listened so patiently that I was afraid at first he wanted to borrow money.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

"MAN IN SHIRT SLEEVES."

How Adna R. Chaffee Rose From Private to Be Head of the Army.

Adna R. Chaffee, who has just been appointed head of the United States army, with the rank of lieutenant general, is the first man who began as a private in the regular service to be elevated to such high rank.

Chaffee's father was a farmer, and as a boy Adna followed that occupation until in July, 1861, he enlisted as a private in the Sixth United States cavalry. From that day to the present his record shows a steady progress that has finally brought him to the top.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL A. R. CHAFFEE.

He fought with distinction during the civil war, being several times wounded, reaching the rank of lieutenant in 1863. He was several times brevetted for gallantry and in 1867 became a captain. Promotions were slow after the close of the civil war, and when the Spanish-American war began Chaffee was a lieutenant colonel. Before the close of the year, however, he was a major general of volunteers.

At El Caney, where he earned his picturesque sobriquet of "the man in shirt sleeves," General Chaffee reconnoitered for himself instead of leaving this work to his scouts and made himself so well acquainted with the disposition of the enemy that his attack carried all before it.

A member of the staff of the Spanish General Vara del Rey said of the charge, "I have never seen anything to equal the courage of those Americans, who, stripped to the waist and led by the man in shirt sleeves, offered their naked breasts to our murderous fire."

Although General Chaffee had attained fame chiefly as a hard fighter, his abilities as an executive officer led to his selection to command the American forces in China. For his services in China he was made a major general in the regular service and placed in command of the army in the Philippines. He was subsequently ordered home and made commander of the department of the east, with headquarters at Governors island, New York. A few months ago he went to Washington as assistant to Lieutenant General Young, whom he has now succeeded as chief of staff of the army. General Chaffee will retire April 14, 1906.

The walking sick, what a crowd of them there are: Persons who are thin and weak but not sick enough to go to bed.

"Chronic cases" that's what the doctors call them, which in common English means—long sickness.

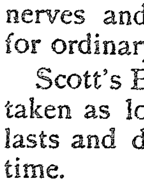
To stop the continued loss of flesh they need Scott's Emulsion. For the feeling of weakness they need Scott's Emulsion.

It makes new flesh and gives new life to the weak system.

Scott's Emulsion gets thin and weak persons out of the rut. It makes new, rich blood, strengthens the nerves and gives appetite for ordinary food.

Scott's Emulsion can be taken as long as sickness lasts and do good all the time.

There's new strength and flesh in every dose.



We will be glad to send you a few doses free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

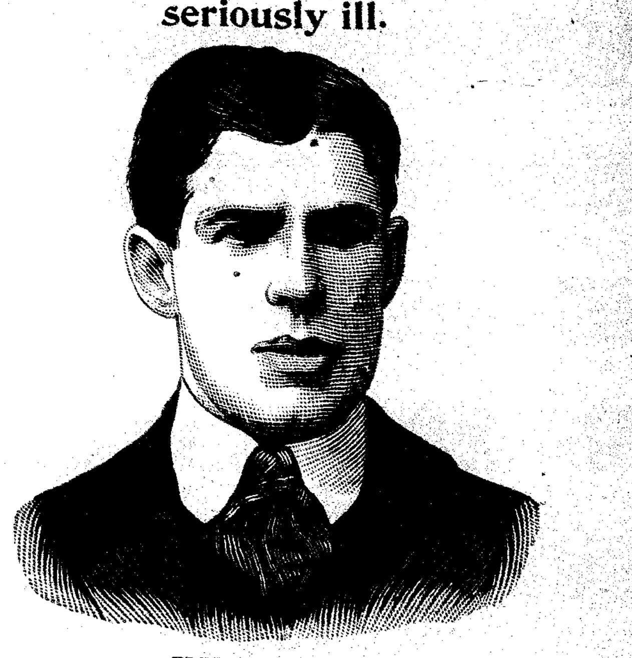
Much Run Down in Health.

And was afraid he was going to be seriously ill.



FRED H. WATKINS.

Every sensible person knows that among the first signs of failing health the most noticeable are a failing appetite and a loss of flesh.

Nobody can tell all the reasons why health should fail. There has been a strain upon vitality, which vitality could not meet, the reserve energy has been called upon and the system begins to languish. It is just this condition actually which invites disease and chronic ailments. The digestive system is weakened, the appetite fails, there is no longer nourishment enough in the blood to meet the demand of ordinary daily life, and trouble threatens.

We invite your attention to a case in point.

1051 18th St., Des Moines, Iowa.
November 30 1903.

Dear Sirs—I had been losing flesh and was feeling very much run down in health. I could not rest well at night, seemed weak and was afraid I was going to be seriously ill. In this condition I began to take Ozomulsion, with results that were better than I even had expected. It quickly brought my weight back to a normal standard, my appetite became very much better, I rested well at night and, in fact, was restored to perfect health. I think Ozomulsion Food is a splendid remedy for building up the system.
Very truly yours,
(Signed(Fred H. Watkins.

We trust that the foregoing letter makes our case quite clear. The reason Ozomulsion has the power to restore a weakened system back to health and strength is because it furnishes the nourishing properties of cod liver oil in a form which does not tax indigestion, and offers also the hypophosphites of lime and soda to stimulate the appetite, improve digestion and feed the nerves.

These standard remedial agents have been employed by the medical profession for over a century, and we believe that the facts bear us out when we say that never until Ozomulsion Food was orignated were they in their best form to do the most good in the system.

It is superfluous to say that Ozomulsion is palatable, because every emulsion of cod liver oil is supposed to be more or less patalable. What we maintain is, that the world has moved in the last ten years in the perfection of cod liver oil emulsions, the same as in about everything else, and Ozomulsion has moved with it.

Ozomulsion is certainly the best emulsion of cod liver oil in the market to-day. It is the only emulsion that contains Guaiacol. Whether it will be a quarter of a century hence, we can not say, but we know it is so to-day and we think any fair trial of it will be quite convincing. In all of those weakened conditions of the system for which cod liver oil has been so long known as a standard remedial agent, we most emphatically declare that Ozomulsion is the best form of oil for the patient to take.

Where babies and growing children do not thrive, its effects are really wonderful.

Ozomulsion Food is the Cod Liver Oil Emulsion "Par Excellence" that physicians use in their families and prescribe in their private and hospital practice, and druggists sell in extra Large Bottles weighing over One and Two Pounds each for Fifty Cents and One Dollar a Bottle.

If your druggist does not keep Ozomulsion in stock, he can easily order it for you, or, if you desire a small sample to see what it is like, you can obtain the same by mentioning the name of the paper in which you read this advertisement and sending seven cents in stamps, to cover postage, to the Ozomulsion Co., 98 Pine St., New York.

Cured After Suffering Ten Years.

B. F. Hare, Supt. Miami Cycle & Mfg., Middletown, O., suffered for ten years with dyspepsia. He spent hundreds of dollars for medicine and with doctors without receiving any permanent benefit. He says, "One night while feeling exceptionally bad I was about to throw down the evening paper when I saw an item regarding the merits of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I concluded to try it and while I had no faith in it I felt better after the second dose. After using two bottles I am stronger and better than I have been in years, and I recommend Kodol Dyspepsia Cure to my friends and acquaintances suffering from stomach trouble." Sold by H. C. JAPAN'S WAR CHIEF.

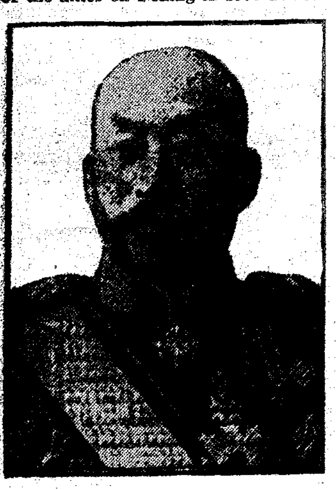
General Masatake Terauchi, the Mikado's Minister of War.

General Masatake Terauchi, Japanese minister of war, who will direct the operations of the mikado's army should the threatened clash with Russia take place, is a soldier of wide experience in actual warfare.

He studied in the German universities forty years ago and on his return to Japan entered the army, in which he served in various capacities until shortly before the Chino-Japanese war, when he was made a member of the board of strategy. During the march of the allies on Peking in 1900 he served as a major general under Lieutenant General Yamaguchi, who commanded the Japanese troops. General Terauchi is fifty-eight years old, is known as an able tactician and was made minister of war in March of last year.



GENERAL MASATAKE TERAUCHI.

General Terauchi is regarded as one of the best informed military authorities in the empire, and to him is due much of the credit of reorganizing the army according to western methods. After the close of the war with China he advocated and brought about the splitting up of the army into twelve divisions instead of six, thus making it easier to mobilize in case of trouble. He was active also in promoting the establishment of the Japanese Red Cross society, which now numbers 693,-179, of whom 46,320 are life members.

Since becoming the head of the war department General Terauchi has kept in close touch with all European improvements in military equipment and man killing devices. As a consequence military experts agree that no army today is better prepared for a conflict than that over which he holds sway.

Like his prospective antagonist, General Kuropatkin, the czar's minister of war, Terauchi is no carpet knight, but has come by his military knowledge by long service in the field. Should the czar and the mikado lock horns over the eastern question these two men will be called upon to display their highest skill; but not until actually pitted against each other can their respective abilities be determined.

SMART SPRING WAIST.

Attractive Garment Made of Modish New Material.

In times of peace the wise nation prepares for war; likewise in the woman's kingdom in times of sartorial peace and quiet the wise woman prepares her early spring and summer campaign of gowns and waists.

Mohair is to be specially modish this spring as a material for gowns and separate waists. It is not the mohair we have known, but a soft, glorified and beautiful fabric, which makes up particularly well into the separate waist.

The attractive waist illustrated is of blue mohair flecked with white. It has a shirred shoulder and yoke effect which is arranged in so deft a fashion as to give the appearance of the shoulder shirring being a continuation of the yoke.

Two box plaits form a trimming down the front, decorated with eight large, handsome buttons made of mohair trimmed with gun metal.

The shirrings are held down with a narrow blue and white cord. The turnover collar is of the mohair outlined with cord. At the top as a softening lace trimming is a piece of Persian lace in fine silk disks. This lace is a new and very smart trimming.

MARRIED.

Mrs. Samuel Nichols died at her home in Mexico on Friday, and the funeral services were held from her late home on Monday, several Fulton friends and relatives attending the last rites. The deceased was well-known in this city.

Frances Boardman, aged 61, died at her home in Oneida street on Thursday morning after a long illness. The funeral was held from the home on Friday evening at 7 o'clock, and the remains were taken to Albion on the first train on Saturday morning, for interment. The deceased had been a resident of this city for fifty-six years.

Anna, wife of Thomas Griffin, aged 80, was found dead in her bed on Thursday night. Owing to the severe storm her husband was unable to reach an undertaker until Friday, as their home was at Stony Roby and the roads were impassible. Undertaker E. P. Cole managed to reach the house and cared for the body late on Friday, and interment was made on Sunday.

Lewis Bierman, aged 68, died at his home in St. Louis, Mo., on Jan. 11, after a seven months' illness with Bright's disease. The deceased was one of the founders of the Mercantile Club of St. Louis, and was a very successful wholesale clothing dealer up to ten years ago, when he retired to enter the real estate business, being at the time of his death president of the Bierman Real Estate company. Mr. Bierman was well-known in this city where he has frequently spent the Summer months. Mrs. Bierman is a sister of Mrs. Gertrude E. Church, and daughter of Mr. S. F. Merry.

DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

CHAPTER FORMED IN FULTON

State Regent Mrs. W. S. Little of Rochester Receives Sixteen Accepted Daughters at the Home of Mrs. James Vincent, who Becomes Regent—Other Officers Selected.

An event of more than passing importance and interest transpired in this city on Thursday of last week, but so quietly had the arrangements been made that few outside of the membership were aware that a Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was to be organized on that date, with a charter membership of sixteen.

Mrs. James Vincent was appointed Regent for Fulton several months ago by the State Regent, Mrs. W. S. Little of Rochester, and it was at her home that a few ladies met in November and decided to organize a Chapter in this city. A large number of applications are now in Washington, D. C., awaiting acceptance, so that the membership will soon be much larger, but it was necessary that the Chapter should be organized by this time, to entitle it to representation in the Continental Congress which will convene in Washington next April.

An informal reception was held at the home of Mrs. Vincent on Thursday afternoon, prior to the organization of the Chapter, at which time the Daughters had the privilege of meeting and enjoying conversation with Mrs Little, who belongs to the noblest type of womanhood. The home had been beautifully and appropriately decorated in honor of the occasion, an American eagle bearing the national colors being conspicuous in the hallway decorations. The drawing room was festooned with silk flags, and palms and fragrant carnations were used in profusion. The sitting room was elaborately embellished with American flags and the dining room was converted into a veritable bower with the national colors in bunting and flags.

Little Miss Mary Webb greeted the guests at the door, and directed them as to where to go to remove their wraps.

Mrs. Little called the assemblage to order at 4 o'clock, stating that her purpose in visiting Fulton was to organize a Chapter. Two verses of "America" were sung, after which the Rev. Dr. Vincent offered prayer, the Daughters joining in repeating the Lord's prayer. Mrs. Vincent, Chapter Regent, extended to Mrs. Little a welcome to Fulton and to the homes of the Daughters, and especially to this occasion, and then presented her sixteen accepted Daughters, all of whom were present except Mrs. SinClaire of Lysander, who was unable to attend owing to ill health.

Mrs. Vincent, by virtue of her office as Regent, was empowered to appoint the officers which she did as follows:

Regent, Mrs. James Vincent; first vice-regent, Mrs. George Chandler Webb; second vice-regent, Mrs. Thomas D. Lewis; recording secretary, Mrs. George G. Chauncey; corresponding secretary, Miss Helen S. Osborne; registrar, Mrs. Charles J. Bacon; historian, Miss Alice Schenck; treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Osgood; chaplain, Mrs. John Harvie.

Local Board of Management—Mrs. Frank Foster, Miss Jennie Osgood, Mrs. F. M. Darrow, Mrs. F. W. Barlow, Miss Adelaide Schenck and Miss Blanche Hall.

Program and Year Book Committee—Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Chauncey and Miss Alice Schenck.

The Chapter was declared organized by Mrs. Little, who then gave a brief but instructive and interesting talk, saying in part: "I wish to extend my congratulations to the new Chapter in Fulton. In this noble and historic sisterhood the official duties are ofttimes onerous, as all important duties must of necessity be. The readiness of these sisters to assume the tasks, speaks volumes for their sincerity of purpose, and makes certain the continuous success of a Chapter which has so bright a beginning as this to-day. You hold at the start a most enviable position by reason of the quantity and quality of the membership. The organization formed at this hour is an event in your city which will not only emphasize the worth of the history of the past, and a love of patriotic research, but will help to make history by means of the influences you will each and all exert, developing in the hearts of thousands, a love of country which will bear a rich and plenteous fruitage in the years to come. I congratulate you again on this auspicious beginning."

As Regent, Mrs. Vincent is a delegate to the Continental Congress, but four alternates were selected at her request; Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Bacon and Mrs. Chauncey.

A piano solo, "Autumn," by Miss Blanche Hall was enjoyed, after which Mrs. Nellis M. Rich extended greetings from Onondaga Chapter to the new Chapter in a charmingly enthusiastic manner which is characteristic of her. Mrs. Rich is president of the Syracuse society, Children of the American Revolution, and she has the largest society of children in the United States. Mrs. Rich also brought before the Chapter the appeal from Onondaga Chapter that all Real Daughters of the Revolution be pensioned, and the first work of the new Chapter was to endorse the appeal, which will be presented at the Continental Congress in the Spring.

Miss Shirley Vincent in her inimitable manner whistled the Dollie Madison Two-step by Wilmarth, which has been dedicated to the Daughters of the American Revolution; Miss Hall accompanying her on the piano.

Miss Marguerite Case, who was lately a student in the National Conservatory of Dramatic Art in New York City, delighted the Daughters with a reading from Timothy Quest, by Kate Douglas Wiggins. The singing of the last verse of "America" brought the program to a close.

Mrs. Little, Mrs. Vincent, Miss Case and Miss Vincent were presented with American Beauty roses.

An elaborate four-course luncheon was served, the Misses Marguerite Case and Shirley Vincent acting as waitresses. The table was most beautiful with its snowy damask; centre piece consisting of a silver candelabra with red, white and blue wax tapers; dainty lace doilies, and smilax and carnations. The place cards bore the insigna of the Daughters in blue. The favors consisted of hand decorated bonbon dishes of artist's board, in exact fac-simile of the Daughter's insigna, and they were greatly admired for their beauty and originality of design.

The Fulton Chapter is number 77. Several names have been sent to Washington to be acted upon, and one will be selected soon.

The Chapter will hold meetings the second Monday in each month. The first will be held at the home of Mrs. T. D. Lewis next Monday afternoon.

Chamber of Commerce Banquet.

The annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce will be given on Tuesday evening, Feb 16, in the City Hall. The ladies of Zion Episcopal church will serve the banquet, which will be more elaborate than that of a year ago, and will prove even more enjoyable. Toasts will be responded to by residents of this city.

Prof. Clapp Favored.

Prof. B. G. Clapp on Saturday received a telegram from Albany summoning him to come on Monday to accept a desirable position in the Department of Public Instruction. The Hon. T. D. MAYOR FOSTER'S VETO.

Silencing of Church and School Bells An Undesirable Measure.

In reference to the resolution recently adopted by the Common Council in relation to the ringing of bells, blowing of whistles, etc., Mayor Foster has filed the following reasons for his veto with City Clerk Hinsdale:

"Please take notice that I do not approve of the ordinance introduced by Alderman Brennan and passed by the Common Council, Jan. 21, relative to the ringing of bells, etc., I have made inquiry as to the effect of this ordinance on the customs and discipline of our schools and find it is a serious inconvenience with the long-practiced custom thoroughly fixed in the minds of the pupils, governing their time; also, that it is considered by those in charge of this department to be extremely undesirable.

"As to the church bells being limited to one-half minute, it is looked upon by those societies as an infringement upon their constitutional rights and is not approved by them. And I find so little objection to the practice as it now stands, that it leads me to believe the ordinance to be an undesirable measure."

At a meeting of the Common Council last evening, the foregoing resolution was passed over Mayor Foster's veto, but an amendment was finally adopted extending the time limit of ringing the church and school bells to two minutes instead of half a minute, all the members voting in the affirmative.

TRIAL OF B. C. BROWN

George Jones, who was Convicted, will Not Be Sentenced Until Brown's Trial is Finished.

Little Falls, Feb. 2.—The trial of B. C. Brown, who is under indictment for arson, is now being held in the County Court at Herkimer. About fifty witnesses have been subpoenaed, and because of the alleged sensational developments connected with the case it has created unusual interest.

George Jones, who was in Mr. Brown's employ, and who was convicted on the same charge, will not be sentenced until Mr. Brown's trial is concluded, as his testimony will be required.

It is reported that a prominent capitalist of Little Falls has interested himself in Mr. Brown's behalf, because he believes him to be innocent.

Current Events Club

The usual semi-monthly meeting of the Current Events Club was held on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Benedict, the Rev. W. L. Sawtelle and Mr. C. W. Tippey being the leaders.

Mr. A. J. Snow, the president, occupied the chair, and after the routine business was transacted, Mr. Sawtelle gave an interesting and instructive synopsis of events, embodying the latest phase of Panama affairs, the proposed Canadian canal, the return to this country of the body of John Smithson, the founder of the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, D. C.; the arraignment of Carter Harrison, mayor of Chicago, on a false charge, and his discharge by the judge before whom he was brought, the defection of Dr. Briggs, the settlement of State educational matters at Albany, Prof. Clapp's appointment to a position in the State Department of Public Instruction, the late George Francis Train's idiosyncracies, Parke Goodwin's death and the unique position he had held in the field of journalism.

Mr. Tippey mentioned the death of Whitaker Wright, the English promoter, the liberation from prison of Dr. Ames of Minneapolis, who had been convicted of grafting, the antitoxin trust, the good roads convention recently held in Albany, William Hearst's vaulting ambition to secure the nomination for the presidency from the Democratic party, Chicago business men's co-operative methods to combat the trade unions, and the commercial, economic and domestic policy of Russia, completed an interesting and instructive program.

Several of the members added their quota to the discussions, and the meeting adjourned.

The next session will be held at the home of Dr. C. J. Bacon on Monday evening, Feb. 15. The leaders will be Messrs. L. W. Emerick and Thomas Hunter.

Struck by Train.

Thursday evening as Edward Currey, aged 59, was walking on the N. Y. C. R. R. track, between Pratt and State streets, he was struck by the engine on a passenger train from Syracuse, and thrown to one side of the track. The train was stopped and the man was found to be unconscious. He was removed to the Broadway station and Drs. Cusack and Fox summoned, who found that he had sustained internal injuries, and a bad cut on hip and ankle, but that no bones were broken. He was removed to his boarding place at Mr. Hiram Salisbury's, where he died early on Friday morning.

DIED.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Burcham died at their home in Bundyville on Wednesday.

Katherine Gorman, aged 36, died at the home of Mrs. Leta Wright in West Fourth street on Sunday, after a long illness. The funeral services were held from the Church of the Immaculate Conception this Wednesday morning, and interment was made in St. Mary's. The deceased is survived by four brothers—Messrs. John and Peter of Cleveland, Ohio; Edward of Toledo, Ohio, and Frank of Buffalo.

William Strain, aged 43, died at the home of his father-in-law, Mr. Dominick Duffy, No. 211 West First street, last week. The deceased had not long been a resident of this city, having come here from Lawrence, Mass., to take a position as loom fixer in the woolen mill. He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Anna; two sons, Eddie and Will; one sister, Sarah, of Boston, Mass., and one brother, Samuel, of Weymouth, Mass. The funeral services were held from his late home, the Rev. A. H. Grant officiating, and interment was made in Mount Adnah.

In the death of Harriet Vose, aged 66, wife of Mr. Lehman Babcock, which occurred at her home in Volney, three miles east of this city on Sunday, the community has lost one who while suffering for many years, never relaxed her interest in people and events, and who was ever mindful of the less fortunate in her vicinity. She was possessed of a keen, well trained mind and it was a delight to visit with her. A cordial welcome was always assured her friends, and it was a source of deep regret to her when ill health prevented her extending the many hospitalities for which she was noted. The going away of this ideal and idolized wife, mother and friend leaves sorrow which cannot be comforted. The funeral services will be held from the homestead on Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, the Rev. J. C. Breaker of Northampton, Mass., assisted by the Rev. Nelson Reynolds of this city, will officiate. Interment will be made in Mount Adnah. The deceased is survived by her husband, one daughter, Miss Lena Babcock; and four sons, Messrs. Edward V., Frederick R., and Oscar H., of Pittsburg, Pa., and Clarence L., of Ashtola, Pa.; one sister, Miss Alice W. Vose of Peddie Institute, Hacketstown, N. J., and one brother, Captain Joshua Vose of Providence, R. I., all of whom will be present at the last sad rites.

Patent of Stamping Machine.

William Barry of Oswego, of the Barry Stamping Machine company has received word from Washington that the interference filed by a Buffalo man, B S. Molyneux, against the granting of a patent on a distributing machine had been decided in Mr. Barry's favor. All patents applied for on the stamping machine have been allowed.

Every article in the west window of O. P. Davis' jewelry store in Cayuga street will be sold for $1.

State Medical Society.

The following officers were elected by the State Medical Society at their convention held in Albany last week: President, Dr. Wey, Elmira; vice-president, Dr. Joseph D. Byrant, New York; secretary, Dr. F. G. Curts, Albany; treasurer, Dr. O. D. Ball, Albany.

One Hundred Acres Of Old Ivory.

The buildings of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, which will open at St. Louis, April 30, 1904, resemble old ivory, and they present the most marvelous spectacle of its kind ever seen on the earth, and it is not likely that anything approaching this will be seen again for many a year.

The buildings themselves occupy 131 acres. Those of the Columbian Exposition, Chicago, the next greatest, occupied only 82 acres.

The entire space covered by the World's Fair at St. Louis is 1,240 acres, which is twice as large as that of any previous exposition.

A large folder containing much interesting information, a map of the grounds and pictures of many of the buildings, has just been issued by the New York Central Railroad, and will be found of immense interest to every person who thinks of attending this last and greatest of the World's Fairs.

A copy will be sent free post-paid on receipt of two 2-cent stamps, by George H. Daniels, General Passenger Agent, Grand Central Station, New York.

CITY CHARTER AMENDMENT.

Proposition is to Pay Patrolmen $50 a Month After First Year of Service.

The Hon. T. D. Lewis has been petitioned by Mr. G. G. Chauncey, president of the Fire and Police Commission, and by Mayor Foster, the members of the Common Council and City Chamberlain, asking him to introduce an amendment to section 12 of the city charter, as it applies to the patrolmen of the city. The charter fixes the compensation at $45 per month, and the proposed amendment is that after the first year of service the men will be paid $50 a month. The increase is only $5 a month, and when it is understood that the force as now constituted is compelled to serve twelve hours out of the twenty-four and for four days in the month the men are compelled to serve eighteen hours out of the twenty-four in order to cover the district, the proposed increase is a small matter and is only fair and just compensation. Besides, Fulton is favored with six patrolmen and a chief who are sober, intelligent and trustworthy—a credit to the city. They could earn as much money as they are getting now in almost any place. It is not thought that any opposition to the measure will be raised. The amendment will be introduced in the Assembly this week.

Aunt Hannah's Quilting Party.

The amusing farce comedy, Aun Hannah's Quilting Party, will be given by the Young People's Guild of the Episcopal Church, on Feb. 11, at Church's Hall, for the benefit of the church building fund. The rehearsals are progressing finely under the direction of Miss Woolley, and an evening of rare enjoyment is promised.

Insurance Money Contention

It has been agreed between the parties interested—the city authorities and the volunteer fire department—that the insurance money, over which there was so much contention last year and the settlement of which is still pending in the Court of Appeals—that the said money, now due for this year, be paid to the City Chamberlain, and that the facts be stipulated to the Court of Appeals, both parties awaiting a decision as to its final disposition. It is thought that the matter can be decided some time in March.

Boat Company Incorporated.

Articles incorporating the M. C. Freeman Boat Company of Fulton have been filed with the Secretary of State. It is proposed to manufacture and sell boats, and machinery and appliances therefor. The capital stock is $10,000, divided into shares of $100 each, and the directors for the first year are Mahlon C. Freeman, Walter M. Dunham and Edward J. Jenkins, all of this city.

THE CIT-Y PRIM-ER.

The Tar-dy Boy.

See the dear lit-tle chil-dren com-ing out of school!
Hear their hap-py shouts and laugh-ter!
Dear, sweet lit-tle cher-ubs.
They have no guile in their hearts.
Do you see that group of boys?
How qui-et-ly they move from the dear old school-house.
Hark! What a mer-ry whoop.
Lit-tle Fred-dy is com-ing out.
How glad-ly they hail him.
Now they gai-ly gath-er round him.
How he screams with joy.
Or is it pain? Sure-ly that can-not be.
Now he is on the ground.
His lit-tle friends are walk-ing on him.
His clothes are torn. His nose is blood-y.
A-las! A-las! Why is this thus?
Fred-dy was tar-dy on Tues-day.
Why was Fred-dy tar-dy?
He had to fetch dirt-y clothes for his mam-ma to wash.
Why does she wash the clothes?
To get mon-ey to buy school books for Fred-dy.
Did his teach-er pun-ish him?
O dear, no!
She kept all his play-mates after school to-day.
Did they pun-ish Fred-dy for her?
You bet.

Knights of Pythias Entertainment.

Last Thursday evening after the regular session of Pathfinder Lodge, K. of P., a social and smoker was held and a most enjoyable evening spent by the members.

The principle feature of the evening was the hypnotic entertainment given by Prof. Guy Taylor, which was very amusing as well as instructive. Prof. Taylor was assisted by three subjects from outside the lodge, who had kindly consented to allow themselves to be placed under his hypnotic spell.

The performance was all that could be desired. The professor placed one of the subjects in a cataleptic state, making him perfectly rigid, his flesh and muscles being like stone. He was then lifted by his head and feet and placed on a table, where Dr. [illegible] examined him and pronounced him in the above mentioned state. This is only one of the many acts which mystified the Knights.

Prof. Taylor says that had he known there was so much good hypnotic timber among the lodge members, it would have been unnecessary to bring in any outside subjects. He placed several of them under his power and caused them to do things which they could not credit after being restored to their normal condition.

At the conclusion of the first part of the entertainment, tables were spread and the Knights and their friends sat down to a very enjoyable repast.

On the whole, it was one of the most successful and pleasant socials ever held by Pathfinder Lodge. The members unanimously thanked Prof. Taylor for his kindness in entertaining them.

Members of Council Asked to Settle.

In the matter of granting a permanent injunction last January by Justice Rogers against the Mayor and Common Council, restraining them from selling, advertising or offering for sale any franchise, right or privilege to build a street surface railroad in the city of Fulton, the injunction carries with it a clause which is one of peculiar hardship to the members of the Council. It is "adjudged that the plaintiff, Edward Quirk, recover of the defendants, James A. Foster, as mayor, Frederick L. Burden, George W. Brooker, Elmer E. Taylor, James C. Hunter, Stephen A. Russell and Harry L. Waugh, as aldermen, together constituting the Common Council of the city of Fulton, the sum of $99.30, his costs and disbursements of this action, and that he have execution therefor."

SAUCE FOR THE GANDER.

Queer Expenses Incurred by Members of the United States Senate.

Things are constantly going on among politicians which if done by women would be quoted far and wide as conclusive proof of women's unfitness for the ballot. The Chicago Record-Herald says:

"The official report of the secretary of the United States senate is a document that ordinarily receives little attention from the public, yet it is well worthy of careful perusal. The items charged up against the government in the 'contingent account' are among the interesting and diverting bits of humor that may be perused even in these days of busy humorists.

"We find, for instance, that the people have been compelled during the past year to pay for 'one oak refrigerator and pan for committee on woman suffrage,' which would indicate that when the committee on woman suffrage meets there is such a hot time that cooling waters and things right from the refrigerator become absolutely necessary. What the pan was for may only be guessed. It may have been a warming pan intended for the use of senators with cold feet. In these matters of state it is not uncommon for extremes to meet. The contingent fund shows also that the government has been called upon to pay for '260 tons of best timothy hay for use of United States senate.' This doubtless was used by the members of the most dignified body on earth to stick in their hair and to chew when their constituents came in from the farms to pay their respects and assure themselves that the plain people were still having proper representation.

"The twenty-five pounds of horehound candy that was purchased for the senate and paid for out of the contingent fund last year was doubtless intended to keep some of the younger members still while the older and more experienced statesmen were solemnly discussing matters of great pith and moment.

"Perhaps the greatest service rendered to our statesmen by the contingent fund was in connection with the barber shop and the toilet. The report shows that the government paid $40 for a 'Piffard apparatus for static electric machine to be used in the senate barber shop;' that the people purchased for their senators 108 pounds of sponges, liberal supplies of combs, hairbrushes, attar of roses, oil of bergamot, glycerin, hair tonic, bay rum, vaseline, dandruff cures, cologne and soap, not to mention 6,000 quinine tablets, several electric stoves and $6,000 worth of mineral waters."

Just suppose that bills of this kind had been run up by the women members of the legislature in Colorado and Idaho! Would not the comic papers from the Atlantic to the Pacific have made merry over it, and would not Dr. Lyman Abbott and all the other opponents of equal rights for women have pointed to it as illustrating in a glaring manner the unfitness of women for public life? But with these critics sauce for the goose is never sauce for the gander.

PREVENT APPENDICITIS

What Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, did for Mr. George A. Owen.

Appendicitis is prevented by the prompt use of Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's new medicine. When the bowels are not performing their functions regularly and constipation results then there is danger of an attack of appendicitis. The proper treatment is to strengthen and at the same time cleanse the bowels. For this purpose Cal-cura Solvent has been found extremely certain and thorough.

Mr. George H. Owen, of Hardenburgh, N. Y., was advised by four physicians to enter a hospital and have an operation for appendicitis performed, but he heard of Cal-cura Solvent and used it with the most gratifying results. All symptoms of appendicitis were removed and he has been in perfect health ever since. Mr. Owen's attack was unusually severe and dangerous. He is confident Cal-cura Solvent saved his life. $1.00; all druggists.

A University Liberalized.

The opening of the University of Munich to women is an event of considerable importance because a very conservative university goes over to the liberal practice of Heidelberg and Freiberg. Formerly they have been admitted to lectures on tolerance merely at the caprice of individual professors. Lately, for example, a determined effort has been made to reduce the number of women students at Berlin. Similarly in the rare instances in which women have received the doctorate in philosophy there has been something exceptional in the award. Now German women are to be received at Munich on precisely the same terms as men, and unquestionably American women will get due credit for their work done and degrees received at home. This liberal step, which involves equally Erlangen and Wurzburg, should have the effect of attracting toward Bavaria the now scattering foreign women students.

Two Great Bodies For Equal Rights.

The woman suffragists are jubilant over their indorsement by the American Federation of Labor. The resolution of this body is significant, for it not only declares "that all adult women should be allowed the privilege of the ballot," but also "that all state branches should petition state legislatures for a change in the constitution." Close upon the heels of this comes the favorable action of the national grange. This body met in Rochester, and a visit of Susan B. Anthony to the meeting was followed by the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the national grange recognizes the equal rights of women by receiving them into full membership, with the privilege of filling every office and voting for every officer and measure.

Resolved, That the national grange believes this equality of rights should extend also to matters of state and that it fully indorses the suffrage for women and pledges its influence to secure for them this "right protective of all other rights," a voice in the government under which they live.

When You Have a Cold.

The first action when you have a cold should be to relieve the lungs. This is best accomplished by the free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This Remedy liquefies the tough mucous and causes its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs, produces a free expectoration, and opens the secretions. A complete cure soon follows. This remedy will cure a severe cold in less time than any other treatment and it leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. It counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. For sale by H.C. Onondaga Securities Company.

The Onondaga Securities Company of Syracuse, the purpose of which is to deal in bonds, filed a certificate of incorporation with the Secretary of State at Albany last week. The capital is $100,000. The incorporators are George W. Driscoll, F. C. Eddy and D. E. Petit of Syracuse.

The directors of the new company are: John Dunn, jr., W. S. Peck, G. W. Driscoll, Douglas E. Petit, F. C. Eddy and Daniel O'Brien of Syracuse, and Thomas Hunter of this city. Mr. Dunn will probably be president of the company and Mr. Petit treasurer. It is probable that Mr. Eddy will have charge of the business. The company will begin business at once and will have centrally located offices, which have not as yet been selected. The company will start with $100,000 in cash and will issue $100,000 debenture bonds. With the proceeds of the bonds standard stocks and securities and mortgages will be purchased or sold on commission.

The stock consists of 1,000 shares at $100 each.

Gubernatorial Indorsement.

Governor Bates of Massachusetts, in recommending woman suffrage in his message to the legislature, has followed in the steps not only of a long line of governors of Massachusetts—Claflin, Washburn, Talbot, Butler, Long, Ames and Greenhalge—but also in the footsteps of Theodore Roosevelt, who recommended woman suffrage in his message to the legislature when governor of New York, thereby creating a great crackling among the dry bones of conservatism.—Woman's Journal.

New Productions.

Americans have become satiated with adaptations of French farces and comedies; they are tired of the familiar risque situations and the sameness of the general outlines; consequently it is quite a relief to hear that next year we are promised a flood of productions taken from the German, which possesses humor of a more solid and satisfying sort. Notable among these comedies will be "The Rastelbinder," and "Bruder Straubinger," two comedy operas secured for American production by the publishing house of M. MARTYRS IN A GREAT CAUSE

Women of Today Owe Much to the First Workers For the Suffrage.

The first organization of women in the United States was that formed by woman suffragists. The first college graduates, the first women speakers and the first petitioners to legislatures for better laws for women were woman suffragists.

When Ernestine L. Rose, in 1836, wished to petition the New York legislature to give married women the right to control their own property she could find in the whole state but five women to join with her.

A half century has rolled by, and the results of this movement are so complete that many a woman grasps the privileges and liberties of today without the slightest thought that other women bore the brunt of a cruel world's bitterest condemnation that she might possess them. She takes her college degree, forgetful that when this movement began the world honestly believed that women did not possess physical health or mental strength sufficient to master a college course. She freely speaks in public, forgetful that other women were mobbed and "rotten egged" before the public would tolerate such liberty. She enters business and professions, collects her wages, manages fortunes, buys and sells, forgetful that none of these privileges would be hers had not other women pleaded her cause. She attends her club, forgetful that the first organizations were compelled to live down the public conviction that organized women only sought "notoriety by making themselves conspicuous before men."

Happily, the old common law has been largely replaced by rational statutes, and few of the old humiliating and oppressive conditions remain, thanks to the courage, the persistency and the logic of that band of early woman suffragists, most of whom have passed on to their reward.

A POWER IN THE LAND.

Women Helping to Solve the Problems of Nation, State and City.

Susan B. Anthony, in considering the most notable advance made by women of America up to the present time in the Chicago Record-Herald, says:

"Nothing more strikingly illustrates the advance of women than their increased activity and interest in the vital affairs of the world—matters which were formerly reserved solely for the consideration of men. The great organizations of women are becoming a power in the land, and they are helping to solve the problems of city, state and nation, and when we remember that illiteracy is now much less among women than among men it is not difficult to believe that women will continue to exert a greater influence in the affairs of the world.

"The fight for woman's suffrage will never die out. It will continue to gather strength. True, the movement has had some setbacks, but in every state where the constitutional amendment for enfranchisement of the sex has been submitted twice there has been a largely increased vote in favor of it the second time.

"Never was there a reform which had so much work done on its side and which won for itself the support of so many brainy men and women as has the woman suffrage movement, and never was there a movement which encountered such bitter and stubborn opposition, such narrow selfishness, such ignorant prejudice.

"When we remember that woman, with no political influence, practically no money, no party machinery, no platform except that granted through courtesy, and working as an entirely independent movement, has been compelled to fight tradition, creed, selfishness and a mass of ignorance and prejudice we can certainly find comfort in the gains that have been made in the past and be hopeful for the future."

Debarred by Sex.

The English house of lords has decided finally that women are debarred by their sex from becoming qualified lawyers in that country.

The question rose on the appeal of a Londoner, Miss Bertha Cave, against the decision of the benchers of Gray's Inn not to admit her as a student for the purpose of being called to the bar. The court decided that there was no precedent for a woman's admission to the inn of court and no reason to create a precedent. The benchers assert that the statutes of Gray's Inn ignore women so absolutely as to leave them no power to admit a woman.

Did the house of lords never make a precedent, and, if so, could it not have made one in this case? In England women may be queens and rule the nation, but cannot be lawyers. Does it require more talent and ability to be a lawyer than a queen?—Legal News.

The President on Class Government.

In a Labor day address President Roosevelt said, "Class government, whether it be the government of a plutocracy or the government of a mob, is equally incompatible with the principles established in the days of Washington and perpetuated in the days of Lincoln." To which we say amen, only we would put it thus: "Class government, whether it be the government of a plutocracy or the government of a mob or the government of a sex, is contrary to American principles." In the same address he pointed out the great principle that no nation can remain free that is governed by a class for a class instead of by the people for the people.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

Tibet Monasteries.

Monasteries of the lamas in Tibet are always perched on the top or steep sides of a hill. They are built in stages, connected by abrupt passages and stairs guarded by Tibetan mastiffs. These dogs are almost as high as a donkey and are so fierce that it goes hard with a stranger who attempts to enter without an attendant lama.

Have You Indigestion?

If you have indigestion, Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will cure you. It has cured thousands. It is curing people every day—every hour. You owe it to yourself to give it a trial. You will continue to suffer until you do try it. There is no other combination of digestants that digest and rebuild at the same time. Kodol does both. Kodol cures, strengthens and rebuilds. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Ginger.

In buying ginger avoid the brownish yellow dust, which comes from inferior black ginger. The best ginger is the Jamaica or white ginger, which is prepared from the dried root, freed from the thin skin which covers it.

White of an Egg.

Never use white of an egg for a meringue, cake or anything you wish particularly light, if the merest speck of yolk gets into it. Put it away for coffee or some other use. It might be whipped for hours and it would not froth.

RECOGNITION OF PANAMA

History and Justification of President Roosevelt's Action in Isthmian Affair.

Interesting and Instructive Speech of the Hon. Chauncey M. Depew in the United States Senate, Jan. 14, 1904.

Mr. President, the most interesting and vitally important question to the American people is the construction of the isthmian canal. There is absolute unanimity of opinion for the work to be begun, prosecuted and completed at the earliest possible moment. The opponents of the treaty are really aiding the enemies of the canal. If there ever has been a concert of action among any great railway corporations to defeat this most beneficent work of commerce and civilization I am not aware of it, but if such a combination does exist then its allies and its most efficient assistants are to be found among those who, under any device or excuse, are endeavoring to defeat the treaty with the republic of Panama.

Piercing the isthmus of Darien is no new idea. It has appealed to statesmen for hundreds of years, and now, four centuries after Columbus sailed along the coast of the isthmus trying to find the opening which would let him into the Pacific, the completion of his dream is near at hand. Charles V. was the ablest ruler of his century. The power of Spain under him and his successor included Cuba and Porto Rico, territories on the gulf of Mexico and the Pacific ocean and the isthmus of Darien and the Philippine Islands. His knowledge of geography was limited because of the meager discoveries of his period, but he did see that here was an opportunity for an eastern and western empire by connecting the two oceans and set about energetically to accomplish the task.

Before his plans had matured he was succeeded by his son, that phenomenal bigot and tyrant, Philip II. He declared that it was sacrilege to undo what God had created and therefore wicked to cut through the mountains for a canal. For 300 years the wall of superstition built by this monarch prevented the union of the oceans. The initiative was with the United States; whose people are opposed to the opinions of King Philip and believe the duty of man is to exploit, develop, utilize and improve the waste places of the world, the air, the water and the earth. As early as the administration of John Quincy Adams our statesmen saw the necessity for this work. It was encouraged by almost every succeeding administration. It originated the American idea of Henry Clay and has always been a bulwark of the Monroe doctrine.

In the past fifty years our government has repeatedly asserted the necessity for the canal and that it would look with extreme hostility upon its being built or owned or dominated by a foreign power. The discovery of gold in California and the rush of our people to the Pacific coast in 1849 opened the eyes of all Americans to the necessity of the United States controlling this highway between our eastern and western states. We made treaties with Great Britain to encourage private enterprise to do this work and to prevent any European power from undertaking it. Our necessity was so great that we permitted without protest the French canal company of De Lesseps to proceed with their work. After the failure of that company and of private enterprises on the Nicaragua route the duty of our government became clear.

When we succeeded to the inheritance of Charles V. by the acquisition of Porto Rico, by the establishment of a friendly republic in Cuba and by the possession of California on our Pacific coast, of Hawaii midway and the Philippines at the gates of the orient, the responsibility upon us to construct this canal was as much greater than it was upon that monarch as has been the growth of commerce and civilization from the fifteenth to the nineteenth century. For national defense as well as national unity there must be an unbroken line of coast from the northernmost limits of Maine to the northernmost limits of Alaska. For the employment of our capital and our labor in the ever increasing surplus of our productions we must reach, with the advantages which the canal would give us, the republics of South America and the countless millions in the old countries across the Pacific.

The republic of Colombia, recognizing this need, sent here a diplomatic representative carrying a proposition. With scarcely any modification on our part, this tentative agreement presented by Colombia was embodied in the Hay-Herran treaty. In that instrument was the most generous treatment of all interests to be acquired. We were to buy the plant and the properties of the French company for $40,000,000. We were to give to Colombia $10,000,000 for a franchise which would be of incalculable benefit to that country. While we were permitted to exercise certain powers within a zone six miles wide for the protection of the canal, yet the sovereignty over that strip was recognized in every line of the treaty as remaining with Colombia. This concession was a weakness in the treaty for our interests.

The excuse for this concession was that our power was so great our interests could never be imperiled. There is no enlightened government in the world whose financial condition is not strong enough to construct through its territories a public improvement of such vast moment to its people which would not grant freely the right to build to any company or government which would spend its millions to confer upon its citizens commerce, trade, industries and development. This Colombian treaty, agreed to by the president, approved by the secretary of state and ratified by the senate of the United States, was carried back to Bogota by the Colombian minister. Then began upon the stage of that capital a drama of unequaled interest, whether we look upon it as tragedy, comedy or opera bouffe. Marroquin, the vice president, had three years before by a revolution imprisoned the president, suspended the constitution, established martial law and begun ruling as a dictator.

After many revolts against his authority, in a final revolution he defeated the Liberals in a great battle, and they fled from the field, leaving upon it 7,000 of their dead. Marroquin was now absolute master of the constitution, the laws, the lives and the property of the people of Colombia. He evidently proposed this treaty to secure $10,000,000 from the United States government. He wanted money, and ten millions in gold, reckoned by the value of Colombian currency, would be about fifty millions in that republic. But the speed and alacrity with which his offer was accepted opened his mind to visions of boundless wealth. He certainly developed in his effort to compass these riches Machiavelian statesmanship of a high order.

He declared the constitution operative, ordered an election and summoned a congress. He had the army and absolute power. He controlled the machinery of elections and brought to the capital his own representatives. He was in a position at any moment to again suspend the constitution, prorogue congress or send them to jail. But he said: "This is my treaty, which I sent up to Washington when I was the government, which the United States has agreed to, and there must be some excuse which will appeal to the powers at Washington for more money. I must create an opposition to my government." So he granted for the first time in three years a restricted liberty to the press, he liberated the editors and permitted the confiscated newspapers to resume. The "cue" given to them was to assail the treaty and the United States. This was to create the impression that there was a violent opposition, in a country where only 5 per cent of the people can read, against the Hay-Herran settlement. Next he created an opposition to the government in congress.

The orators to whom this role was assigned, with all the tropical luxuriance of Latin eloquence, denounced this infamous agreement, this frightful surrender of the rights and interests of Colombia. Marroquin, as vice president presiding over the senate, listened with pleasure to these fusillades upon his own statesmanship prearranged by himself. Every citizen of Colombia who had any intelligence and every member of either house of that congress knew that Marroquin had but to lift his finger and the vote for the treaty would be unanimous. This drama, accurately reported by our Minister Beaupre to the secretary of state, closed with Vice President Marroquin saying to us substantially: "You see the trouble I have in this uncontrollable opposition. Of course I want to carry out my treaty, but unless concessions are made, not to me, but to the pride and sentiments of my country, I am helpless. But if the United States will give $10,000,000 more I think I can satisfy this opposition; at least, I will risk my popularity, reputation and power in the effort."

The answer of the United States was an unmistakable and emphatic no. That answer has the unanimous approval of the public sentiment of our country. The vice president then said to the French company, "If you will pay that $10,000,000 extra out of your $40,000,000 we will ratify the treaty." The French company rejected the proposition. Then both the minister of Great Britain and the minister of Germany were approached to see whether a "dicker" could not be arranged and a sort of auction set up, with Great Britain, Germany and the United States as the bidders. The folly of this proposition was in its violation of the Monroe doctrine by a republic which had been many times its beneficiary, a republic which now has quarrels upon its hands with Great Britain and France because of outrages committed upon the citizens of those countries which would lead to summary and drastic measures of reprisals except for the Monroe doctrine.

No better illustration of the understanding by the European governments of the sanctity of this article of American international law has been shown of late than this action of the representatives of these powers. No stronger proofs have been given of the interest of every great commercial nation in the construction of this canal in the interest of commerce and civilization and its construction and control by the United States. These patriotic efforts of the vice president and dictator to secure more money by many methods of holdup were discouraging, but he did not despair. He had received an emphatic negative from the United States, had been refused by the French Panama Canal company and turned down by Great Britain and Germany. But he had been trained in many revolutions, where money had to be raised by other processes than the orderly ones of assessments and taxation upon all the people and properties of the country upon an equal basis. His resourceful genius was equal to the occasion.

He had called together his congress to carry out his programme of exploiting this asset of Colombia for many times more than the price at which he had agreed to sell it. Then occurred to him an idea of high finance which ought to make the most imaginative and audacious of our promoters blush at their incapacity. The Panama Canal company had received from him while dictator, upon the payment of $1,000,000 and 5,000,000 francs at par of stock of the new company, a concession which ran until 1910. The old concession expired in October, 1904, and for this the French company had paid Colombia 12,000,000 francs. With every concession, where vast amounts of money have been expended in good faith and large sums paid for the franchise, there are always equities to the defaulting party, but the new scheme dismissed the equities, the extension of the charter and the $1,000,000 consideration paid, which had been spent.

The congress, to the tearful regret and over the wishes of the dictator and vice president, rejected the treaty by an almost unanimous vote and then adjourned. But congressmen talk after adjournment. It is their habit in all countries, and the senators and representatives who participated in this picturesque drama of national aggrandizement said that the object of the adjournment was to wait until the old concession of the Panama Canal company had expired, in October, then to recall congress in extraordinary session in November, declare the concession canceled and seize upon the property of the French Canal company. Then, they said, we will offer to the United States the properties of the French Canal company for the $40,000,000 which is to be paid that corporation and the $10,000,000 which is coming to us. "Of course," they argued, "the United States will be quite willing to enter upon an agreement of this kind because the sum which they pay will be the same in amount as they have agreed upon under the terms of the Hay-Herran treaty and the contract with the French Canal company."

There are two considerations in this choice bit of financiering which seemed never to have occurred to the statesman who guides the destinies of Colombia and the orators whom he placed in various roles to play their instructed parts. The first was an utter indifference or ignorance of the fact that the United States had a national conscience. We are a commercial nation. Our people are trained to all the refinements of business obligations and all the reciprocal relations of contracts. Much as we want the canal, we never could have taken it by becoming a partner in this highway robbery of the property of the citizens of France. The Panama canal scheme has been unpopular in France for many years, and French statesmen and politicians have been afraid to have any connections with it.

It is because of the millions of dollars lost by the French people in the investment and the scandals caused by the corrupt use by the officers of the company of much of the money subscribed. But here would be a case which no government could neglect. The French Canal company, representing its several hundred thousands of French citizens, could say to the French government, "Here are equities of great value, and here is a property for which we have paid our money that has been arbitrarily confiscated." Then we would have had upon our hands difficulties compared with which the present ones are infinitesimal. We could not deny the justice of the demand of the French government to land its army upon the isthmus and enforce its claims. Here, again, the shrewd and able leader of Colombia—for he is both shrewd and able—counted first upon the cupidity of the United States to become a party to this robbery of the French and then to the assertion of the Monroe doctrine to prevent France from demanding and maintaining the rights of her citizens.

Colombia, after failing to confiscate the French property in the canal, now appeals as a stockholder in the French Canal company to prohibit the transfer of the canal property to the United States without the consent of Colombia. France has recognized the republic of Panama. In so doing she is committed to the transfer to the new sovereignty of all public property within its jurisdiction. The Colombian government has no better claim to the Panama canal or jurisdiction over it than Great Britain has over Bunker Hill. The same rule and construction will apply in case Colombia should, as has been suggested here, commence an action in New York against the Panama Railroad company, a New York corporation, to compel a continuance of the subsidy of $250,000 a year to Colombia instead of to Panama.

Up to this time, it will be said, no matter what was the conduct, no matter what the double dealing, no matter what the breaches of faith, no matter what the character of the holdup by the responsible government of Colombia, that government could act as it pleased upon granting rights, franchises and properties within its own jurisdiction. This leads us at once to the new phase of the problem presented by the organization of the republic of Panama. Panama was one of the first settlements made in the western hemisphere. After the city of Panama had been raided, robbed and burned by Morgan and his pirates it was moved about seven miles, to the present site. It was the depot for hundreds of years for the commerce going between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. The province was one of the last to throw off the yoke of Spain.

When General Bolivar succeeded in the revolution which he organized, he formed a loose jointed republic out of the states of Colombia, Venezuela, Ecuador and Panama. There was little in common territorially, commercially or industrially between these states. After a few years Venezuela seceded and formed a separate government. Three years afterward Ecuador did the same. Panama remained to all intents and purposes an independent republic. In the new arrangement which was made Panama joined Colombia under a constitution which distinctly recognized the right of secession for any cause and bound the several parts only to federal contributions according to their judgment. It was almost a counterpart of the articles of federation in our own country which were succeeded by the federal constitution. This relation continued practically from 1861 to 1886.

Then a dictator arose of the name of Nunez and got control of the army and navy and all the resources of the country. He suspended the constitution, the congress and the laws and governed the country according to his own despotic will for a number of years. He subjugated the several states, overturned their sovereignty and forced them to become mere departments of the centralized power at Bogota. He adopted a system under a so called constitution by which they were ruled as Spain governed Cuba—by governors who were really captain generals with absolute power.

His enemies in the several states and the patriots who resisted this suppression of liberty were punished by imprisonment, exile or execution. From the time of this arbitrary destruction of the rights and liberties of the independent state of Panama that republic has been in a continual condition of unrest and revolt. The duties collected at its ports of Panama and Colon were transmitted to Bogota. The taxes levied all went to Bogota. Of the subsidy of $250,000 a year paid by the Panama Railroad company $225,000 went to Bogota and $25,000 to the governor of Panama, appointed by the president of Colombia, to distribute in his judgment in the department of Panama. Though Panama had only one-fifteenth of the population of the republic, she contributed a large part of its revenues, but under this arbitrary constitution, to which Panama never assented and never accepted, a constitution imposed by force and maintained by an army and an alien governor, she received during all these years practically no moneys for highways, for development, for education or for any of the needs of a live and growing state.

It is an interesting and picturesque view of the situation that the obligation of the United States to keep free transit across the isthmus has worked both ways with Colombia. There have been many revolts in Panama in the effort on the part of tyrannized, plundered and patriotic citizens to regain their liberties and rights. Every one of them has been sternly and ruthlessly suppressed by the central government at Bogota. The success of the Bogotan government was due in nearly every instance to the fact that the United States would not permit interruption of transit across the isthmus when the revolutionists would have seized the railroad which connected the oceans the United States was the ally of the Bogotan government to keep that open.

The result was that it was easy for the government forces every time to put down a rebellion because the recruits of the state could not be gathered into a successful army. But lo, the working of this provision the other way! Citizens of Panama in November of this year, without a dissenting voice, reasserted the sovereignty of the state, which they had never surrendered, and proclaimed a republic. The Colombian army joined the revolution. With the military forces of the Bogotan government enlisting under the flag of the new republic the authority of Panama was complete throughout all its borders. When, therefore, some time after the republic had been established and was in working order, and had at Panama its army, a Colombian army landed at Colon for the purpose of invasion and battle, the United States took toward it the same position that it had toward the revolutionists in the many efforts made by them for the freedom of Panama.

Our government simply said to these soldiers: "You cannot take possession of this railroad and interrupt traffic across the isthmus. You cannot engage in a battle or a series of battles which would stop communication for an indefinite period." At this point occurs an episode of which I find no parallel in ancient or modern history. The generals of the invading army said to the authorities of the new republic: "We are here to suppress you, arrest you, carry you prisoners to Bogota and overthrow the republic, but what will you give us to quit?" The sum of $8,000 was paid to the general, $5,000 for the officers and $3,000 for the men, and the invading army sailed away with the proud consciousness of having become the possessors of a part of the assets of the new republic.

The story of the rule of Panama by these arbitrary satraps, sent down from Bogota, reads like the history of the rule of a Roman proconsul or the story of the methods of a Turkish governor. Arbitrary arrests and imprisonments without trial were common. Arbitrary assessments of shopkeepers and people of property were of everyday occurrence. These victims have been afraid heretofore to speak, but now the newspapers are filled with their stories. The price of life and liberty, after forcible seizure of person and property, was dependent upon the amount that the citizen disgorged. Under this tyrannical rule he was helpless before the courts or upon appeal to the central government. Panama had as much right to revolt as did Greece from Turkey in the early part of the nineteenth century or Bulgaria in the latter part, and even more, for she had never consented to surrender her sovereignty to Colombia.

The people of Colombia outside of Panama number about 4,000,000, of which 2,000,000 are of Spanish descent and 2,000,000 a mixture of Caucasian, Indian and negro. There are few or no railroads or other highways in the country, no system of general education, and dense ignorance prevails. A very small proportion of the people—a few thousands—are educated in the United States or in Europe and form the governing class. Colombia is separated from Panama by hundreds of miles of mountains and impenetrable forests and swamps inhabited by hostile Indians. Panama, on the other hand, has every facility, under good government, for a prosperous state. It is about as large as Maine. It has the same agricultural possibilities as the other Central American republics. It is rich in minerals and timber. Great cities, thriving populations and varied industries have always grown along the lines of commercial highways.

While the Panama canal is being constructed and $150,000,000 spent within the republic there will be a wonderful industrial development. When the canal is opened and the commerce of the world is passing to and fro, the population of Panama will speedily rise above the million point. Merchandise of every kind for the supply of the ships sailing through it will bring capital and business talent to the cities on either side and through the interior. Sanitation, which has done so much for Cuba, will make the isthmus as healthy as any part of the United States. With American ideas and American sovereignty over the large strip between the two seas, and American influence and example, schoolhouses will dot the land and the people become educated to an appreciation of their liberties and the proper exercise of them and of their marvelously favorable commercial, fiscal and industrial position.

But, it is said, the position of the United States in recognizing the republic of Panama is a reversal of our national position on the subject of secession. I cannot conceive of the argument by which comparison is made between the states of the American commonwealth and Panama and Colombia. One hundred and seventeen years ago our forefathers saw that a nation could not be held together by such a rope of sand as the articles of federation. They met in convention, not under the rule of a dictator, not under the guidance of an autocrat, but as the accredited representatives of the people of the various states. When their labors were completed the country read, and the world was astonished by, the marvelous instrument which they had prepared.

The opening sentence of this great charter tells the story of the perpetuity of our national life: "We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America." For eighty years the national sovereignty was questioned only in debate. To preserve the institution of slavery, which was alien to our Declaration of Independence and a stain upon the spirit of our institutions, the civil war was inaugurated. Today in every part of the country public sentiment is unanimous of its approval of the verdict which came from the arbitrament of arms. Our Union is sustained by a continued series of decisions of our highest court, by the judgment of our presidents and congresses, by the results of war and, unimpaired by the passions of the conflict, will continue on forever. It is sacrilege to compare this majestic and impregnable fabric of government with the position of Panama in the republic of Colombia.

In 1886 Mr. V. O. King, United States minister to Colombia, in a dispatch to Mr. Bayard, secretary of state, tells precisely how the Colombian constitution was formed. He says:

At the close of the late revolution President Nunez, whose term of office had then nearly expired and whose re-election was forbidden by the constitution then in force, issued a proclamation annulling that instrument and declaring an interregnum in the government. He appointed provisional governors in all of the nine states and directed them to nominate two delegates each, who, together, should constitute a national council to convene at the capital.

And this is the convention which is compared with that which formed our constitution!

On assembling in November, 1885, the first acts of this body were to ratify the conduct of Dr. Nunez and to confirm his appointments. It then elected him as chief magistrate of the nation for the term of six years and proceeded to formulate a projet of fundamental principles for a new constitution to be submitted to the corporate vote of the municipal boards of aldermen throughout the country. Upon canvassing the returns the council [this council of his own] declared a majority of such votes to be in favor of the new constitution and thereupon proceeded to elaborate the instrument that is herewith submitted, which, from the number, fullness and precision of the precepts enunciated, has left but little of the machinery to be devised by the executive or legislative power.

It will thus be seen that President Nunez, who was both a usurper and a dictator, arbitrarily annulled the constitution under which Panama consented to become a part of the republic of Colombia, retaining, however, her entire sovereignty and right of secession. The tremendous difference between the formation of our constitution and that of Colombia in 1886 is in the fact that this so called convention, which framed the constitution destructive of the state, was composed of the instruments of the dictator, appointed by himself, and that neither in the election of delegates to the convention nor the ratifying of the treaty did the people of Panama or their representatives have any voice whatever?

Panama, an independent state, robbed by armies of her liberties, tyrannically and arbitrarily governed without her consent, suffering under intolerable tyranny and threatened with the confiscation of a public improvement upon which depended her existence, simply retakes, and demonstrates her ability to hold, the sovereignty of which she had been despoiled. But, say the critics of the president, the officers of the United States inaugurated this rebellion, and ships were dispatched to aid the revolt before it was ever intended. No one doubts that it was the duty of the president to keep the highway open across the isthmus. No one doubts that if the rights of American citizens were in peril because of revolution or anarchy the United States must have a force on the spot sufficient for their protection. The dispatches of Minister Beaupre are illuminating on this subject.

The forces of the United States arrived at the isthmus on Nov. 3. The revolution broke out on Nov. 4. The building of the canal was vital to Panama. Except for the money to be distributed at Bogota for the concession its construction was of little account to the republic over the mountains. The delegates from Panama to the congress were apparently the only independent members of that body. When they arrived on the 5th of July they immediately notified Vice President Marroquin that if the treaty was rejected Panama would revolt. This notification was so public that the minister of the United States was enabled to write it to our government.

On Aug. 17 the treaty was rejected, and the representatives from Panama expressed their purpose so emphatically that our minister was able to inform the secretary of state that they had determined to break loose from the Bogota government and form an independent republic. Two things are evident: One, Marroquin believed his forces upon the isthmus were sufficient to prevent the revolt from succeeding. He evidently thought it would be the old process by which the patriots would organize at different places and could not come together without having a conflict along the line of the railroad with the forces of the central government, that such a conflict would interrupt travel and communication and that the United States would, as before, prevent the revolutionary army from concentrating or making any headway. It never occurred to him that his own army would go over to the revolutionists and then he would be outside the breastworks.

It is perfectly plain that these delegates, on returning in August to Panama, were joined by all the leading citizens and that they had plenty of time between the middle of August and the 4th of November to perfect their plans for a successful revolution. So the president knew perfectly well by advice from our minister at Bogota, from our naval officers at Panama and Colon and from newspaper reports which were the common property of every one, that such an uprising would occur as to require of the United States the presence of a force sufficient to protect our citizens and to carry out our treaty obligations.

The farcical character of the action of the Colombian congress and its complete control by Marroquin, together with the fact that Colombia could not subdue the revolution in Panama without the aid of the United States, are demonstrated by the following dispatch, sent Nov. 6, two days after the revolution in Panama, by our Minister Beaupre:

Knowing that the revolution has already commenced in Panama, —— —— says that if the government of the United States will land troops to preserve Colombian sovereignty and the transit, if requested by the Colombian charge d'affaires, this government will declare martial law and by virtue of vested constitutional authority, when public order is disturbed, will approve by decree the ratification of the canal treaty as signed, or, if the government of the United States prefers, will call extra session of congress and new and friendly members next May to approve the treaty.

Because it was a telegram the name was indicated by a blank. The blank undoubtedly meant Marroquin, for no one else could have made such pledges.

Mr. President, that is an exhibition of arbitrary power, of the confidence of the dictator of his ability to do whatever he pleases, of which I think there is no parallel anywhere. He says, in effect, to the United States: "A revolution has broken out in Panama, my army has gone over to the republic, and I am helpless. Now, if you will put down that revolution at my request I will abandon the claim of $10,000,000 more than agreed to which our congress made. I will dismiss all pretense that this congress had any power or was other than myself. I will do everything you want. I will suspend the constitution; then I can do anything, and will ratify this treaty—the Hay-Herran treaty—or do any other old thing you may desire; or, if you have constitutional lawyers in the senate who doubt my ability or power to act under a suspension of the constitution, I will put the constitution again in force and summon the members of congress here. Each one of them will do what I tell him, and congress will ratify the treaty in any form that you suggest."

Yet our friend the senator from Nevada [Mr. Newlands] has just eloquently and at great length proved, to his own satisfaction, that war exists between the United States and Colombia; that war exists by the act of the United States landing forty-two marines on the isthmus, when Marroquin had 1,500 soldiers who deserted his standard and 400 others who left for home when their general got $8,000; that war exists between the United States and Colombia when, during all the time from the first telegram of President Roosevelt until now, the Colombian minister has been here, having daily communication with the secretary of state. When every diplomatic condition which means peace, and continuing peace, exists between the United States and Colombia, the senator from Nevada says we have war. There must be lurid imaginings among senators who, instead of living within the limits of the city, where they are in contact with hard facts, reside and muse in the rural outskirts of the capital. [Laughter.]

Our diplomatic history bristles with recognitions of de facto governments formed by revolutions. Where the sympathies of our people were with the revolt presidents have paid little attention to the possibilities of success or the offensive or defensive means of the revolting provinces or states. The principle of international law that recognition is wholly in the discretion of the power which makes it and is not a cause for war is too elementary to discuss. Our position with Cuba went far beyond this. We warned the Spanish government to get out of Cuba when there was no war between us simply because of intolerable internal conditions on that island. We finally drove the Spanish army out of Cuba and then governed it for two years. We refused to let Cuba recognize the Cuban debt, the bonds of which had been sold in Europe based for security upon Cuban revenues.

Our obligation for forty-eight years to Colombia, to Panama, to our citizens and the world has been to keep communication and transit open and unmolested between the oceans. It is a territorial burden and runs with the land. It binds the United States to keep off the premises all hostile trespassers, whether they are the armies of the great powers of Europe, of Colombia or of the contiguous people of Panama.

Marroquin, amid the ruins of his scheme by the successful revolt of Panama, is not discouraged. He rises gayly and hopefully to new efforts. He proposes, notwithstanding his machine congress has adjourned, to give us now the canal on our own terms if we will suppress the Panama republic. When that is rejected he has another resource. It appears in a dispatch in the Washington Post of Jan. 10, dated Jan. 8, from Bogota, from Clifford Smythe, former consul at Cartagena, Colombia. Mr. Smythe says he is authorized by President Marroquin to quote him as follows:

"The people of Colombia" [that is delightful from Marroquin—"the people of Colombia"] "still hope that actual conflict may be averted through Democratic intervention in the senate. Personally, I count on the assistance of the Democratic party and the great American people to save the sacred rights of Colombia, which have been so scandalously wounded."

The trouble with President Marroquin is, in the first place, he does not understand that the Democratic party is not in a majority in the two houses of congress and that it has not the presidency; he does not understand that it is not likely in the near future to have either; he does not understand that the relations between the Democratic party and the people are such that if he did understand he would not couple them in the way he has in this authorized dispatch.

Then he does not understand another thing, Mr. President—I say this not to do injustice to the Democratic party—that the Democratic state of Louisiana has unanimously, by its legislature, directed its senators to vote in favor of the ratification of this treaty; that the Democratic state of Mississippi has, through its legislature, directed its senators to vote to ratify this treaty, and that in all probability if the other southern states, who will be more benefited a hundred times over than all the rest of the United States by the construction of this canal, should meet in their legislatures they would not stand in the position of saying, "We keep the goods while we denounce the method by which they were secured."

The republic of Panama had absolute authority over its territory without any pretense of opposition from outside or inside of the republic at the time of its recognition by our president, and has still. Our government recognized the republic of Panama on Nov. 13. Certainly there had been no change in the conditions when three days afterward France did the same, nor when eleven days afterward Austria-Hungary also extended its recognition; nor, still more significant, when, fourteen days afterward, Germany—most particular and scrupulous about anything occurring on this hemisphere—extended her diplomatic recognition. In less than fifty days sixteen of the powers of the world had established relations with the young republic. If these old countries—Great Britain, Germany, France, Russia, China, Japan, Sweden and Norway, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy and Denmark—find the conditions such upon the isthmus that they can take a step which in the chancelleries of the old world means so much, surely our younger and more progressive diplomacy has ample excuse for preceding them by a few days.

Now, sir, we had no other hand nor part in this revolution than the example of the American colonies and the successful application of the principles of liberty in the United States, which have created republics and undermined thrones all over the world. The advantages of the treaty with Panama over that with Colombia to the United States are incalculable. Instead of six miles for the canal zone there are ten on each side of the waterway. Instead of a limited sovereignty, which would necessarily lead to endless complications, this territory is ceded outright and in perpetuity to the United States. At the termini of the canal it is vital that there should be unquestioned jurisdiction of the United States. In this territory the government has complete authority for three marine leagues from Panama into the Pacific ocean and three leagues from Colon into the Caribbean sea. The republic of Panama surrenders the right to impose port dues or duties of any kind upon ships and goods in transit across the isthmus. The sole power to impose tolls and collect them rests with the United States.

Every nation and the people of all countries are interested in this great work. There is a unanimity unequaled in history that it should be constructed, operated and owned by the United States. We are distant by 3,000 miles of ocean from Europe. We are not in conflict and cannot be embroiled in the jealousies or conflicts of the great powers. They trust our honor to keep this waterway inviolate as the highway of the nations. They see that the problem which Columbus sought to solve will so find its solution under the auspices of the United States, and it will not be, as it would under the auspices of Charles V., a Spanish canal, nor will it be, as under De Lesseps, a French canal, but for all the purposes of commerce and of intercourse between the east and the west it will be an open sea, subject only to such restrictions as are admitted by all the world necessary for the protection of the waterway or for the protection or defense of the United States.

In the providence of the creation and decay of nations no state ever became independent so completely, so righteously or so timely as Panama. The hour struck for her when the world was watching the clock. No president ever did a more timely or patriotic act than did President Roosevelt in his recognition and defense of the republic of Panama.

PITTSBURG has substituted inclined planes for staircases in theatres, to avoid fatalities in case of a panic.

THE postoffice deficit will be $7,000,000 this year, yet people are demanding penny postage. It will come as soon as possible.

GOVERNOR BACHELDER of New Hampshire warmly advocates the good-roads bills now pending in Congress. He wants 600 miles of smooth thoroughfares in his own State, at an estimated cost of $600,000.

The New York Herald, having counted noses, reports that 162 Democrats in Congress are against the 16-to-1 platform of Bryan, and only 7 in favor of it. But they will find that Nebraska is still to be reckoned with.

COL. LYNCH, who commanded the Irish brigade against the British during the South African war, and was then elected to Parliament from Galway and afterwards convicted of treason and sentenced to imprisonment for life, has been liberated. The royal pardon was granted on the alleged personal suggestion of President Roosevelt.

IN the United States Senate this week Panama is again being vociferously discussed. Meantime Colombia threatens to send 100,000 soldiers to the isthmus and has started a column of them up the Pacific shore. President Marroquin plays a Fabian policy and says he is waiting to see if the Democrats will not give him some powerful assistance in our Congress, and still more in the elections next Fall.

SENATOR QUAY's bill before Congress for the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory to statehood provides that these States shall never restrict the right of suffrage by an educational qualification, or on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude. This is something to think about, and the attitude of statesmen upon the proposition will be watched with interest.

AN Educational bill has been agreed upon between Governor Odell and the Legislative leaders at Albany. It is proposed to form a State Board of Education of eleven members as a substitute for the present nineteen regents, with a State Commissioner of Education serving under the State Board. This plan, which has been proposed by Superintendent Skinner, meets with the approval of the most capable educators of the State.

THE wonderful metal, recently found in certain ores, and known as radium, continues to excite immense interest among scientists. Sir William Ramsay of England has ascertained that radium gives off a gas which slowly changes into helium, a hypothetical substance known only to the spectroscope. It is thought the changing of radium into helium makes possible the transmutation of metals; thus former theories in relation to chemistry may be revolutionized. At present the only practical use to which radium is put is as a remedy for cancer, it being claimed that its rays destroy the cancerous tissue.

THE silencing of the church and school bells by the Common Council has aroused a feeling of indignation among a large number of citizens who do not believe that the city of Fulton is yet prepared to put on metropolitan airs Nor do they believe that the Common Council has reached such an elevation in the matter of making laws as to justify them in ignoring the wishes of a majority of the taxpayers. TO ECONOMISE ON WIND AND NOISE.

Editor Fulton Times:

Dear Sir—I notice in the last copy of you paper an evidence of a desire on the part of the Board of Alderman to economize on wind and noise, as shown by their adoption of the ordinance stopping undue blowing of whistles or ringing of bells in the city. Could you, unofficially of course, draw their attention to the following proposed ordinance which will be in line with their laudable efforts:

Be it ordained, That at any regular or special meeting of the Common Council of the city of Fulton, whether same be held with or without the aid of the Police Department, no alderman shall talk for a longer period than thirty consecutive seconds without stopping to think. Any violation of this ordinance shall subject the violator to the penalty of taking the gold cure. No second offense is probable.

Yours truly,

G. INSENG.

Collector Stranahan has suggested the name of Mrs. Joseph Grant of Oswego as manager for the New York State building at the St. Louis exposition. There has been considerable discussion and not the best of feeling in the selection of some one to fill the difficult position with grace and dignity, and the end is not yet.

The $500 in cash prizes which is offered by the Fort Stanwix Canning Co., to the farmers of this vicinity, will be appreciated by them. The pleasant rivalry which the offer will cause will be productive of good, and twenty-three will be sure of prizes ranging in value from $50 to $5. Read what they have to say regarding their proposition in another column of this paper.

The public exhibition given by the International Correspondence Schools of Scranton, Pa., in F. E. Goodjon & Co.'s store last week, was continued until Monday of this week. It was a most interesting exhibit and attracted a large number who were anxious to learn about the courses of study. The bound volumes furnished to students, electrical and drawing outfits used by scholars, and the special work done by local students, amply repaid all who investigated the successful methods adopted by this most excellent of educational institutions.

An experienced advertiser who has experimented with all forms of publicity says that, "schemes" or oddities, such as guessing contests, prize package distributions, etc., are essentially amusing and hardly incidentally advertising. "No cheap substitute can take the place of regular newspaper publicity," he says. "Often the plainest, stereotyped bit of argument in two inches of newspaper space has more advertising value than would the retailer's name chalked on all the door steps in town."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunter were to have been surprised by about thirty-five of their friends, who decided to array themselves as were never the lillies of the field, and take possession of their home on Tuesday evening. But it was a case of surprise party, surprised, for when they reached their destination they found the host and hostess in masquerade costume to greet them, and a most elaborate menu provided to supplement the contents of the boxes and baskets carried by the guests. Kings and queens met on terms of equality with topsys and dairy-maids, and Little Lord Fauntleroy and little Bo-peep, spun their tops and called their sheep oblivious of their surroundings. The evening was one long to be remembered by all who were present.

Have you secured your ticket for the Old Homestead Quartette? They will be heard in Stephen's Opera House on Friday evening, for the Library benefit.

Mr. C. C. Benedict has been confined to his home, suffering with a crushed toe, caused by a heavy piece of iron falling upon it.

Adelbert C. Coon has been admitted to the bar. He will take a position in the law office of his father, Attorney S. M. Coon, of Oswego.

The Schumann club will be entertained by Miss Myrtis Gilbert, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace N. Gilbert on Monday evening.

Deputy Sheriff A. W. Stoneburg is convalescing from his recent severe illness and his friends are hopeful for a speedy and complete recovery.

Miss Georgia VanSanford, who has been spending several months with relatives in New York city, returned to her home on the west side last week.

Prof. James Fairgrieve will occupy rooms in Mr. F. E. Goodjon's house on Buffalo street, until he removes his family from Walton in the Spring.

The Y. W. F. M. S. of the First M. E. church gave a most successful leap year party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Goodjon on Tuesday evening.

Master Charles Dyer was surprised by a party of his friends on Wednesday afternoon. The event was in celebration of his tenth birthday. He was presented with many useful gifts.

A delegation from the local Knights of Columbus visited the Syracuse lodge on Wednesday evening, when the third degree was worked upon a large class. A banquet followed the work.

The Hamilton Mutual Fire Insurance company of Madison county has filed a certificate with the secretary of State, announcing that it has extended its territorial limits so as to include the counties of Onondaga and Oswego.

The Elk's reception to the members of Vogel's minstrel troup, after the show on Thursday evening, was largely attended and very enjoyable. The program comprised many interesting features.

Mrs. H. P. Fallon and baby will leave on Thursday of next week for San Juan, Porto Rico, where Mr. Fallon holds a government position. Mrs. Fallon will be accompanied as far as New York City by her mother, Mrs. Theodore Thayer.

On Feb. 25, Grand Chancellor of the State, Knights of Pythias, Newton A. Calkins, accompanied by State Deputy Daniel Auchmoody, will hold an official district meeting in the rooms of Pathfinder Lodge, No. 373, Knights of Pythias, in this city.

The Odd Fellows' Fair is in full swing and will continue until Tuesday evening. On Saturday evening a chicken pie supper will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock. Tickets, 25 cents. On Monday evening a 15 cent tea will be served.

The ground hog saw his shadow on Tuesday, and we will now settle down to six weeks of Winter. If friends who are enjoying life in the tropics would kindly refrain from writing to snow-bound Oswego County people, of blooming roses, sparkling brooks and luscious strawberries, they would confer a favor.

Invitations have been issued by the "Wall Flowers," the Misses Ethel Bonner, Florence Skeel, Goldie Parks, Mable Morrison, Elsie Lake, Ruby Barrus, Clara Bacon, Alice Murphy and Beth Woolley, for a leap year party in Church's hall on Friday evening, Feb. 12.

Mr. Charles M. Baker has secured the entire stock of the Columbia Market which was formerly conducted by Mr. Charles Tobey in Oneida street, and he is selling goods at less than wholesale prices, as the stock must be closed out soon. If you are needing groceries you can never do better than to buy now at the prices he quotes. Read his advertisement in another column. The goods are going rapidly and the sale only opened on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Harding and family are occupying their house in Emory street. Their many friends are pleased to welcome them to Fulton again.

M. Katz & Co. have a new office on their first floor, and a new cash and basket parcel system is being installed. The changes vastly improve the convenience of the large store.

Mr. J. R. Sullivan has returned from a business trip to New York City. Mr. Sullivan has recently placed a handsome drinking fountain in his hall on the west side.

The Y's enjoyed a straw ride to the home of Miss Bessie Dexter on Friday evening. A supper and dancing were among the features of the evenings entertainment.

Mrs. J. E. Allport and son Gordon, who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wise in South Third street, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Victor Loomis in Oneida.

Mayor James E. Mansfield of Oswego is having troubles of his own other than political ones. He will be sued in the Supreme Court of Westchester County, at White Plains, this week, by Miss Margaret Sweeney for $15,000 damages for alleged breach of promise. The details of the case were published a year ago.

The State Prohibition Executive committee, at its meeting in New York City last week, decided to hold the State convention in Oswego, June 15 and 16. The convention will last two days, and will be held in Fitzhugh hall. In the evening mass meetings, addressed by the most noted Prohibition orators in the country, will be held in the Richardson theatre. It is expected that the national chairman, the Hon. Oliver W. Stewart, a Prohibition member of the Illinois State Legislature, will deliver one of his famous addresses. The convention will nominate a candidate for Governor, Lieutenant Governor and full State ticket, and also 116 delegates and alternates to the National Prohibition convention to be held two weeks later in Indianapolis, Ind.

WOMEN IN MEDICINE

THEY HAVE HAD A LONG, HARD FIGHT FOR RECOGNITION.

How One of New York's Most Worthy Charities Was Founded and Has Been Sustained—Proof of Woman's Ability.

The semicentennial of the New York Infirmary For Women and Children founded fifty years ago by Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, has just been celebrated at the Waldorf in New York city with addresses by Dr. William H Welch of Johns Hopkins university President M. Cary Thomas of Bryn Mawr and Dr. Annie S. Daniel and a paper by Dr. Emily Blackwell, sister of the founder.

Today, according to the census, there are in the United States 7,399 women physicians and surgeons. When the Infirmary For Women and Children was started fifty years ago as a little dispensary in a crowded and poor quarter Elizabeth Blackwell was the only woman doctor in New York. She was joined a few years later by her sister Emily and by Dr. Marie E. Zakrzewska. The infirmary gradually grew and extended its work, requiring larger and larger quarters, till it established itself in the handsome block which it now occupies on Livingston square.

In the early days it had to contend with a degree of prejudice that now seems laughable. Dr. Blackwell had to take a whole house for her residence because no respectable lodging house keeper would rent rooms to a woman doctor. The trustees of the infirmary were assailed with warnings and prophecies of trouble: "The institution would be regarded with suspicion in the neighborhood, the women physicians would be rudely treated, they would not be able to control the patients, their death certificates would not be accepted." etc. Most of the doctors frowned upon the attempt. Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell wrote to her sister: "One of the most difficult points I have to contend with is the entire absence of medical sympathy. It is hard with no support but a high purpose, to live against every species of social opposition. I should like a little fun now and then! Life is altogether too sober."

This prejudice was quite as strong among women as among men. When Dr. Emily Blackwell and Dr. Zakrzewska called upon Fanny Kemble to invite her to give a reading in aid of the infirmary, she exclaimed in her deepest tragic tones: "Trust a woman as a doctor? Never!"

But none of the prophecies of disaster was fulfilled. From the first the hospital and dispensary was popular with the poor, who flocked to it and still continue to flock to it, appreciating the kindness and personal sympathy which the women physicians give them in addition to their medical skill.

The infirmary was established with three objects—as a charity where women and children might obtain treatment from women physicians, as a school for women students in practical medicine and for training nurses. A medical college for women was afterward opened in connection with the infirmary and was carried on for thirty-four years. When, in 1890, Cornell university established its medical department in New York city and opened its medical courses to women the separate college for women was discontinued.

We may smile to contrast the prejudice of the early times with the more liberal feeling that exists today, but the doors are not all open to women physicians even yet. In her paper read at the semicentennial celebration Dr. Emily Blackwell says:

"As a charity the infirmary holds a unique position among New York institutions and one important enough to entitle it to public support. With the exception of one small homeopathic hospital, it is still the only hospital and dispensary, not only in New York city, but in New York state, in which women have the opportunity to consult women physicians for themselves and their children.

"The first person to give his name as a trustee to the new institution, the late Mr. Stacy B. Collins, did so on the ground that his experience as one of the managers of several New York charities had convinced him it would be a great advantage to have well qualified women physicians upon their medical staff. When we consider how much of medical practice lies among women and children and how large a part of the inmates of our charitable institutions they form, it seems obvious that there must be work among them that could be best done by women. Certainly the time will come when the present one sided arrangement, which excludes women entirely from our public charities and puts the charge of every class of patients entirely in the hands of men, will seem surprising and undesirable."

Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobi, who was long connected with the infirmary and college, said in an address at the national suffrage convention in Washington a few years ago:

"I believe strongly in woman suffrage in the abstract, but my belief has been much intensified by the injustice done to women doctors. It is hard to see what the right to vote for governor has to do with the right to give rhubarb or castor oil in the nursery, but the power to give medicine depends on experience, and in New York there is absolute resistance to allowing women even to walk the hospitals and still more to allowing them to hold positions in them."

Dr. Emily Blackwell in her address at the semicentennial said, speaking of postgraduate work in hospitals and dispensaries:

"Here is the grand school in which the leaders in medicine are formed, admission to which is the object of every ambitious student; but, while college education is open to women, admission to these subsequent opportunities is, with a few insignificant exceptions, still denied them. As a rule, they are not eligible even as resident or visiting physicians to charitable institutions, either public or private. There is great competition for such positions, and women as yet have not influence enough to obtain a share. Therefore, as the number of women doctors increases, every hospital in which they find such opportunity becomes valuable."

The New York Infirmary For Women and Children deserves the support of all who believe in equal rights for women in the medical profession. It has always done admirable work and has maintained the highest standard, but has done it in so quiet and unostentatious a way, partly because its board of trustees were largely Quakers, that its work has not been as widely known as it deserved to be, and the institution has been chronically straitened for funds. An effort is now being made in connection with the semicentennial to raise a $500,000 endowment. Many charities far less deserving and of far less historic interest are endowed every year. The call should meet with a liberal response.

Contributions, large or small, may be sent to the treasurer, Edwin Tatham, New York Infirmary For Women and Children, 5 Livingston place, New York city.

THE NATION'S ADVANCE.

Woman's Progress Has Changed the Face of American Society.

The New York Sun, in extending its congratulations to the clubwomen, says:

"The clubwoman has good reason for exultation over the progress made by women in every direction during the last half century. This movement began when a few women, among whom the late Elizabeth Cady Stanton was most prominent, held the first woman's rights convention at Seneca Falls, N. Y., in July, 1848. It was a humble beginning, amid general derision, in which women themselves participated almost unanimously, yet since then legislation concerning women and their personal and property rights has undergone a complete revolution and their attitude toward social and industrial life has changed radically. The few women on the stage at the Seneca Falls convention were ridiculed and lampooned as unsexed monsters. Now women are frequent speakers at public meetings. They have entered into every learned profession and into almost every industry, even into some from which they would seem to be debarred by physical weakness.

"When the first woman's rights convention was held in 1848 the employment of women was almost wholly as domestic servants and as schoolteachers. The Seneca Falls convention of 1848 protested, amid general derision, against the exclusion of women from 'nearly all profitable employments' and against 'the scanty remuneration she receives from those she is permitted to follow.' 'All colleges are closed against her,' said this famous protest, 'all the avenues to wealth and distinction,' and the accusation was justified.

"We congratulate all womanhood on the remarkable progress which has been made in the emancipation of women from the restraints, social and legal, which bound them at the time when Elizabeth Cady Stanton began her agitation in their behalf less than fifty-six years ago. So far as women are concerned, the whole face of American society has changed, and the change has been for the better, for both men and women."

Two Views of Colorado Women.

Professor W. M. Bartlett of our Iowa State Normal recently made a statement that, being out in Colorado, he went to the polls during an election, stayed there for two hours, but did not see any women voting, all of which is no doubt right. The peculiar thing about it is this—those who listened to the statement, so far as we could learn from their remarks, seemed to jump to the conclusion that here we have a proof that women do not vote in Colorado although they have the right to do so.

Does the observation of one man, at the polls of one election and in one place, even if he stays there two hours, justify the inference that the women of Colorado do not vote? Not at all. Why do such hearers jump to such conclusions. The wish is father to the conclusion. We were out in Colorado during an election. We saw a woman working for a candidate from house to house; we saw carriages taking women to the polls; we know of a woman who worked to get voters out to the polls. We asked men whether women voted and they answered, "Of course they do."

Elizabeth McCracken, on the other hand, goes out to Colorado and from her report a reader would conclude that the women of Colorado vote all the time; do nothing else but vote or talk vote or threaten somebody with a vote or hug babies to secure votes. The antisuffragist stands part of the time on one foot, "The women do not vote," and part of the time on the other foot, "The women injure themselves by voting," and he or she feels very much as did Zekle when courting Huldy:

> He stood a spell on one foot fust,
> Then stood a spell on t'other,
> An' on which foot he felt the wust
> He couldn't ha' told ye nuther.

—Woman's Standard.

Higher Than a Woman.

The London Daily Chronicle relates that a man remanded to jail on a charge of housebreaking was granted bail in order that he might vote the next day.

PROGRESS VS. PREJUDICE.

A Minister Who Is Up With the Times and One Who Is Not.

Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, pastor of Trinity church, New York, in an interview upon a subject which seems to be causing him much trouble—viz, "woman"—is reported to have said:

"I am sick at heart over the women. Man used to regard woman with such reverence! When I was a boy, all boys of generous spirit looked up to her. In these days the women have come down to our level. They were womanly, and now they are ceasing to be. Nowadays they talk like men and do all things that men do. If there is anything that men despise, it is a mannish woman. All this comes from leaving the womanly things of life and invading the sphere of men. Women should never vote or be doctors, lawyers or ministers."

It is safe to say that Dr. Dix is no more sick at heart over the women than the women are sick at heart over such men as he, who have fought every step in the progress of women, from learning to read and write to having the ballot. One would imagine from the utterances of some of these men that the acme of evil was doing anything like a man.

Had Dr. Dix lived a century ago he would have written as did Dr. Gregory, who was considered standard authority at that time upon female propriety. In his book, entitled "Legacy to My Daughters," he said, "If you happen to have any learning, keep it a profound secret, especially from men, who look with a jealous, malignant eye on a woman of a cultured understanding." He also said, "Should you happen by nature to possess a robust constitution, assimilate such sickly delicacy as is necessary to the female charm."

In strong contrast to these utterances of Dr. Dix we are cheered by those of Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, given at about the same time. Dr. Hillis said in part:

"Women, in spite of man's refusal to give them the rights and privileges to which they are entitled, are today in 145 branches of business and in instances showing more ability than the men.

"In fifty years the women will know more than the men. They have more time to read and study, and they are improving their time. Eventually they will vote themselves and tell the men whom to vote for. There is a lesson of rebuke in this for men.

"Eventually all the universities will be co-educational, and the women will carry off all the prizes. That's what they are afraid of in the colleges which will not allow women. The women study while the young men are educating the calves of their legs. The women are writing our novels; the best portrait painter is a woman; recently a woman took the highest possible prize in mathematics."

Had it not been for the few generous and noble men like Dr. Hillis, who have ever stood ready to accord to women equal rights and opportunities with themselves, it is doubtful if women could have arisen out of the ignorance and subjected position which they occupied in this country no longer than a hundred years ago.

ELNORA MONROE BABCOCK.

Our Political House Needs Cleaning.

One of the reasons why women want to vote is because politics is so corrupt. For years good men have been trying in vain, unassisted, to purify it. They need the help and co-operation of women. The corruption of public life sets a bad example to every woman's husband, it assails the morals of her son as soon as he steps across her threshold, it takes the tax money contributed by women and refuses to apply it to purposes which women think most useful and desirable, such as police matrons, and squanders it lavishly for things which women regard as useless or even harmful, such as great quantities of champagne at inauguration balls. It is idle to say that the political world is too corrupt for women to touch it, when it inevitably touches women at so many points. It is as if a man, in a mistaken spirit of chivalry, should refuse to let his wife lift a hand to do any house cleaning on the ground that the house was too dirty for her to touch it and at the same time should expect her to go on living in that same dirty house. When she saw her husband and children suffering from the effects of dirt, she would be sure to ask to be allowed to help clean things up. And to fancy that a woman can purify politics better by abstract moral disapprobation than by voting for good men and against bad ones is like fancying that she could cleanse her house more effectually by frowning at the dirt than by taking a broom in her hand.

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.

Civilization's March Delayed.

In social life women and men enjoy very much the same conditions. We do not build separate houses or spread separate tables for men and women. We all eat fish, flesh and fowl, vegetables and fruits, suffer the extremes of heat and cold, joy and sorrow; alone we come into the world and alone we pass to another sphere of action. Today the home is in a condition of half orphanage because man does not fill his responsibilities there, the state is in a condition of half orphanage because woman does not fill her responsibilities there, but when women awake to the beauty of science, philosophy and government, then will the first note of harmony be touched, then will the great organ of humanity be played on all its keys, with every stop rightly adjusted, and with louder, loftier strains the march of civilization will be immeasurably quickened.—Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

King, late of the City of Fulton in the County of Oswego, New York, deceased, greeting:

WHEREAS, Nellie Royce Lasher, the executrix named in a certain instrument in writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of said Jerucia A. King, late of the City of Fulton, in the County of Oswego, and State of New York, deceased, and relating to both real and personal estate, has lately made application to the Surrogate's Court of our County of Oswego to have said instrument in writing proved and recorded as a will of real and personal estate: You and each of you are, therefore, hereby cited to appear before the Surrogate of the County of Oswego, at his office in the City of Oswego, in the said County of Oswego, New York, on the 18th day of January, 1904, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of said will; and such of you as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your general guardian, if you have one; or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed; or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the County of Oswego to be hereunto affixed.

[SEAL] WITNESS, Sheldon B Mead, Surrogate of our said County of Oswego, at the City of Oswego, in the said County, on the 30th day of November, A. D., 1903.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas, Default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the 1st day of December, 1902, made and executed by Mabelle Root, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage, with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, New York, on the 3d day of December, 1903, at 3:39 o'clock p. m., in Liber 203 of Mortgages, at page 68, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and,

Whereas, The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of eleven hundred seventy-three dollars and seventy-six cents ($1,173.76), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided, and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property, described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as lots numbers six and seven (6 and 7) of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, being twenty-five (25) feet in width on Second street. Also all that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, being part of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, bounded as follows: Beginning on Second street one hundred and twenty-eight (128) feet southerly from Seneca street, running thence easterly one hundred twenty-one and a half (121½) feet; thence southerly twenty-five (25) feet, thence westerly three and a half (3½) feet; thence southerly twelve (12) feet, thence westerly parallel with Oneida street to Second street; thence northerly along Second street thirty-seven (37) feet to the place of beginning," at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego, New York, on the 12th day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day

Dated December 16, 1903.

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgagor, Robert H. Stowe. Mortgagee, Mrs. C. C. Pettis. Mortgage dated August 14, 1903, and recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the Clerk's office of Oswego County, N. Y., on the 15th day of August, 1903, at 8:25 a. m., in Liber 204 of Mortgages, at page 528. The sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is fifty one dollars and nineteen cents ($51.19), being the whole sum secured by said mortgage. (Said Mortgagee above named, also holds two prior mortgages upon the same premises, on which is unpaid the sum of $400, together with interest on $150, from February 14, 1903, and on $250, from March 18, 1903.)

The mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, and State of New York, known and described as Lot No. five (5) of block five hundred and four (504), according to the map of the village of Fulton on file in Oswego County Clerk's office. Default having been made in the payment of the sum secured to be paid by said mortgage, and no action having been brought to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof; therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained, recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said mortgaged property at public auction, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, N. Y., on the 2d day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said sale will be made subject to the lien of the above mentioned prior mortgages.

Dated, January 6, 1904.

FORGING PRESS IN SILVER.

How William E. Corey Was Remembered by His Associates.

The silver testimonial recently presented to William E. Corey, president of the United States Steel corporation, by his associates in the Carnegie company is an exact copy in miniature of the famous forging press perfected by him and used in forging redhot steel ingots into shape.

Eight Corinthian columns supporting a richly sculptured entablature form a part of the base. These columns admit of eight arched panels, in which are vignettes, all in relief, of notable subjects associated with the steel industry.

In the spandrels of the two main arches on either side of the base are figures of Victory and the Four Seasons. Above them on the entablature is an eagle surmounting a shield typifying power. On top of the cornice surrounding the forging press are eight tripods.

The press and support of silver stand twenty-four and a half inches high and rest on an onyx base. The testimonial, which contains 535 ounces of sterling silver, is inclosed in a handsome mahogany box that opens from three sides.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

THE HERMIT NATION

KOREA, THE BONE OF CONTENTION BETWEEN RUSSIA AND JAPAN.

Why Both Nations Are Anxious to Gain a Foothold in the Country. Advantages That Would Accrue to Them—Emperor Yi Hiung.

Korea, the real bone of contention between Japan and Russia, as it was between China and Japan in the war of 1894-95, is certain to be the scene of much fighting if there is to be war in the far east. Meanwhile neither of the threatening nations seems to care what the Koreans or their emperor thinks of the situation.

Korea is an Asiatic kingdom lying to the northeast of China, between the Yellow and Japan seas. It is about 600 miles long from north to south, 135 miles from east to west, with an area of about 80,000 square miles. The population of the kingdom, according to the last government census, is 10,528,937, and it possesses several good natural harbors.

Buddhism grafted on spirit and ancestor worship may be said to be the religion of the country. The people are tall, robust and good looking and belong to Mongolian stock, their language being Turanian, with the addition of many Chinese words. They are idle and unprogressive, so that the commerce of the country is falling into the hands of the Japanese and the Chinese. The soil is fertile, but only partially cultivated. Rice, beans and all kinds of grain are raised; also tobacco, hemp and cotton. Gold, copper, coal and iron abound.

It is a hermit nation, with a history said to reach back 4,000 or 5,000 years, and from the earliest known times Korea has always protested against the presence of foreigners in her territory.

This is the country toward which the fighting men of Japan and Russia are reported to be hastening with the excuse of preserving order and protecting Korea in its independence. Should Russia obtain control of the Hermit Kingdom her occupation of Manchuria would be secure, and the Japanese would be kept away from her frontiers. She would also secure the ice free ports she must have for her great railway system and the future crops of Siberia. If Japan can seize Korea she will have a foothold on the mainland of Asia and the only possible outlet for the immense population and growing industries of her islands.

It is pretty well understood that Japan is more interested in securing the possession of Korea than in forcing Russia out of Manchuria, so that if there is to be a conflict the first stage of it will take place on the Korean peninsula. It is not impossible, however, that the war vessels of the two powers will open the fight in an attempt to intercept troopships. In a naval war on the Korean coast Japan would have a great advantage. She has surveyed and charted the vast Korean archipelago, and its thousands of islands would afford a safe refuge for her fleet. No foreign warship would dare to enter the narrow and winding channels known only to the Japanese. The southern end of this sea labyrinth is within close striking distance of Masampho, the southern Korean harbor to which Japan is sending her troops.

Yi Hiung, the present sovereign of Korea, is the thirtieth of his dynasty. The two previous kings had died childless, and Yi Hiung, then a boy of twelve, was chosen in 1864 as heir by the royal council. He assumed full sovereignty in 1873, the kingdom having in the meantime been governed with great severity by the regent, Yi Hiung's father, who furiously persecuted the Christian missionaries.

When the present ruler assumed control the country began to be opened up, and the former regent headed an insurrection aimed against all treaties and foreigners. An attempt was made in 1882 to kidnap the king, and the Japanese minister had to fight for his life in a retreat to Chemulpo. In 1884 the king only escaped from the rebels by jumping on the back of a eunuch, by whom he was carried into the Chinese camp outside Seoul. Plots and intrigues soon became matters of common occurrence. This condition culminated in the murder of the queen a few years ago. This was attributed to the Japanese, who wished to rid themselves of a powerful Russian influence. Yi Hiung was proclaimed emperor in 1897.

The emperor of "ten thousand islands," as he is styled in his native land, is described as a man of small stature and sallow complexion, with an oval face, thin mustache and chin beard and soft, dark eyes. His countenance is said to be singularly gentle and pleasing. The crown prince is Yi Tchok, who was born in 1874. The monarchy is absolute, hereditary and divine, and the emperor is supposed to be the master of the lives and property of his subjects.

WEEDS

Consumption is a human weed flourishing best in weak lungs. Like other weeds it's easily destroyed while young; when old, sometimes impossible.

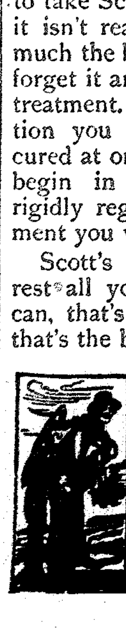
Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the weeds will disappear.

The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.

The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself. Others see it, you won't.

Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer. Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If it isn't really consumption so much the better; you will soon forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be cured at once, but if you will begin in time and will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.

Scott's Emulsion, fresh air, rest all you can, eat all you can, that's the treatment and that's the best treatment.



We will send you a little of the Emulsion free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Much Run Down in Health.

And was afraid he was going to be seriously ill.

FRED H. WATKINS.

Every sensible person knows that among the first signs of failing health the most noticeable are a failing appetite and a loss of flesh.

Nobody can tell all the reasons why health should fail. There has been a strain upon vitality, which vitality could not meet, the reserve energy has been called upon and the system begins to languish. It is just this condition actually which invites disease and chronic ailments. The digestive system is weakened, the appetite fails, there is no longer nourishment enough in the blood to meet the demand of ordinary daily life, and trouble threatens.

We invite your attention to a case in point.

1051 18th St., Des Moines, Iowa,
November 30 1903.

Dear Sirs—I had been losing flesh and was feeling very much run down in health I could not rest well at night, seemed weak and was afraid I was going to be seriously ill. In this condition I began to take Ozomulsion, with results that were better than I even had expected. It quickly brought my weight back to a normal standard, my appetite became very much better, I rested well at night and, in fact, was restored to perfect health. I think Ozomulsion Food is a splendid remedy for building up the system.

Very truly yours,
(Signed(Fred H. Watkins.

We trust that the foregoing letter makes our case quite clear. The reason Ozomulsion has the power to restore a weakened system back to health and strength is because it furnishes the nourishing properties of cod liver oil in a form which does not tax indigestion, and offers also the hypophosphites of lime and soda to stimulate the appetite, improve digestion and feed the nerves.

These standard remedial agents have been employed by the medical profession for over a century, and we believe that the facts bear us out when we say that never until Ozomulsion Food was orignated were they in their best form to do the most good in the system.

It is superfluous to say that Ozomulsion is palatable, because every emulsion of cod liver oil is supposed to be more or less patalable. What we maintain is, that the world has moved in the last ten years in the perfection of cod liver oil emulsions, the same as in about everything else, and Ozomulsion has moved with it.

Ozomulsion is certainly the best emulsion of cod liver oil in the market to-day. It is the only emulsion that contains Guaiacol Whether it will be a quarter of a century hence, we can not say, but we know it is so to-day and we think any fair trial of it will be quite convincing. In all of those weakened conditions of the system for which cod liver oil has been so long known as a standard remedial agent, we most emphatically declare that Ozomulsion is the best form of oil for the patient to take.

Where babies and growing children do not thrive, its effects are really wonderful.

Ozomulsion Food is the Cod Liver Oil Emulsion "Par Excellence" that physicians use in their families and prescribe in their private and hospital practice, and druggists sell in extra Large Bottles weighing over One and Two Pounds each for Fifty Cents and One Dollar a Bottle.

If your druggist does not keep Ozomulsion in stock, he can easily order it for you, or, if you desire a small sample to see what it is like, you can obtain the same by mentioning the name of the paper in which you read this advertisement and sending seven cents in stamps, to cover postage, to the Ozomulsion Co., 98 Pine St., New York.

Marble Cleaning.

Marble can be cleaned by rubbing with a rather soft paste made of whiting or prepared chalk and water to which a little ammonia has been added. Rinse afterward with clean water. A rub with pumice stone and water will restore the polish.

Relief in One Minute.

One Minute Cough Cure gives relief in one minute, because it kills the microbe which tickles the mucous membrane, causing the cough, and at the same time clears the phlegm, draws out the inflammation and heals and soothes the affected parts. One Minute Cough Cure strengthens the lungs, wards off pneumonia and is a harmless and never failing cure in all curable cases of Coughs, Colds and Croup. One Minute Cough Cure is pleasant to take, harmless and good alike for young and old. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Land in Castile is in greater part devoted to the production of wheat, and during planting and harvest times laborers, especially reapers, are brought hither from Galicia.

Another Case of Rheumatism Cured by Chamberlain's Pain Balm.

The efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the relief of rheumatism is being demonstrated daily. Parker Triplett, of Grigsby, Va., says that Chamberlain's Pain Balm gave him permanent relief from rheumatism in the back when everything else failed, and he would not be without it. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Clothes Closets.

Ventilation of closets is particularly necessary. Clothing kept in an unventilated closet gets a smell peculiar to itself—and peculiarly disagreeable. It is the unmistakable advertisement of the surroundings.

SIRES AND SONS.

Dr. H. F. Swanback of Nebraska wears the iron cross of Prussia, given him by Frederick IV.

Samuel J. Crawford was the youngest governor of Kansas and is now the sole survivor of the Union war governors.

The Duke of Norfolk might vote eight times in the house of lords, as he has eight titles, but it happens that the rule is "one man, one vote."

General James Barnett, president of the Cleveland First National bank since 1877, has retired from active business. He is eighty-five years of age.

Sergeant Julius Fredericks, who accompanied Greely on his expedition to the arctic regions, from which only six men returned alive, died in Indianapolis on Jan. 6.

Driving with his wife, ex-Governor W. H. Upham of Wisconsin narrowly escaped being run down by a freight train. He exclaimed to the engineer, "You came very near killing a good woman!"

Grover Cleveland has lived in the time of more administrations than any other citizens who has ever been president, beginning with that of Martin Van Buren and coming down to that of Theodore Roosevelt—in all, eighteen, exclusive of his own two.

E. W. H. Cogley is probably the oldest telegrapher in actual service in the world. He is manager of the Western Union office at Lewistown, Pa. He was one of the field telegraphers during the civil war and was taken prisoner by the Confederates, but escaped and reached the Union lines in safety.

Mr. Gorman of Maryland is "a senator of the United States;" Mr. Morgan of Alabama is "a senator of a sovereign state." At least they have both so represented themselves in debate on the floor of the senate. Morgan has even gone so far as to declare himself "an ambassador from the sovereign state of Alabama."

GOWN GOSSIP.

The elbow sleeve for dinner and evening gowns continues in favor.

Leaves and flowers of cut velvet, satin and cloth, painted and embroidered, are favorite decorations on handsome gowns.

There are indications of a return to very small toques and even bonnets. White hats are to be worn more than ever, especially those of malines and lace.

The three cornered, the tricorne, and the marquis shapes in hats will continue popular, and also those wide hats with the brim flat in front and sloping downward in the back.

Three types of skirts are seen—the plaited, the circular, with five, seven or eleven gores, and the triple skirt. Combinations of the triple and the plaited or shirred skirts are often made.

Very pretty are the slashed sleeves so much worn this winter. These are usually plain and close fitting at the front and have fulled pieces joined on at the back, sometimes with buttons, usually with braid or trimming of some kind.—New York Post.

CHURCHMEN.

Dr. Robert Collyer says that a man's best friends are his ten fingers.

Rev. Archibald Ian Campbell of Perth cathedral has accepted the bishopric of Glasgow, in succession to Bishop Harrison, resigned.

The Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott is to deliver a course of lectures in April next at the Pacific Theological seminary, Berkeley, Cal. He will also lecture in other parts of the Golden State.

The Rev. Edward Everett Hale is quoted as having said, when he heard of his appointment as chaplain of the senate: "All my life I've been praying for those Washington fellows. Now I'll pray at 'em, and may God help 'em!"

Rev. E. H. Brewster, said to be the youngest settled pastor in the United States, has resigned the pastorate of the Free Baptist church at Whitman, Mass. He is but eighteen years old and is intending to complete his studies at Harvard next fall.

THE WRITERS.

The English novelists, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leighton, are collaborators in story writing.

Katherine Tynan, the novelist, is in private life Mrs. Hinkson. Her husband is also a writer, but not so renowned as his wife. Katherine Tynan is an Irishwoman living in England.

Mrs. C. N. Williamson, the novelist, usually signs her maiden name—Alice Livingstone—in her stories. She is an American married to an Englishman, founder of the London periodical Black and White.

It is a strange coincidence that the name of the hero in Mr. Justin McCarthy's first literary effort, a short love story, was Parnell, the name of the Irish leader with whom he was afterward to be associated.

The heat developed by the firing of heavy guns is remarkable. During some recent trials in Germany a gun that had been fired seventy-five times melted solder placed upon it, while another was not hot enough to soften lead.

Remnants of Merchandise At Remnants of Prices

REMNANTS are the bugaboo of the progressive merchant. But to you they are just as desirable as if cut from the piece. The greater the business, the greater the accumulation of remnants. The unprecedented trade of our first Fall and Winter in the Great New Store has left in its wake thousands of remnants of every character—yard goods, wearables, household goods, etc.

We use the term remnant to cover small lots of every kind; the Winter suits and cloaks; broken lines of gloves; Spring sample lots of men's wear; discontinued designs in furniture; short lengths of carpets, and any incomplete line in any department.

The Spring merchandise is arriving for all departments of the store, and the need for room is imperative. The fixed and unchangeable policy of this store is to carry nothing over from one season to another. Everything in the store was new last September; much of it was new less than sixty days ago. The entire stock will be new again when Spring business opens, and everything on hand now must be closed out in the next week or ten days. You will find here—

A SPLENDID GIFT.

Miss Anthony Has Presented Her Books to the Library of Congress.

A great deal of interest has been shown in the collection of books recently presented to the Congressional library by Miss Anthony. She had without doubt the largest number of books on subjects relating to women that could be found, partly because of her interest in collecting them and partly because the authors or owners of such works took pleasure in presenting them to her. After the completion of her biography and last volume of the "History of Woman Suffrage" she gladly accepted the invitation of Mr. Herbert Putnam and Mr. A. R. Spofford to place her collection in the magnificent building at Washington.

Miss Anthony made a careful selection of several hundred volumes, which comprise—not only those on "the woman question," but autograph copies from authors and many old books that are out of print. There are also her grandmother's Bible, 150 years old; her mother's Bible and hymn book, over 100 years old, and some quaint and ancient medical works that supplemented in early households the services of the country doctor.

What has added infinitely to the value of this gift is the fact that in every volume Miss Anthony has written her autograph and a few lines regarding the book. For instance, in one we read, "This was presented to Frederick Douglass by Abigail Mott, who taught him to read." Last winter Miss Anthony consumed over a month of her precious time getting these books ready to send away.

Not the least interesting are files of Garrison's famous abolitionist paper, the Liberator, begun about 1832, and of the Antislavery Standard, which numbered Wendell Phillips, Lydia Maria Child and Parker Pillsbury among its editors. There are also files of Miss Anthony's own beloved paper, the Revolution, edited by Mrs. Stanton and herself, and of various women's papers long since forgotten.

Mr. Spofford gives it as his opinion that the most priceless part of the collection is Miss Anthony's scrapbooks, covering a period of over fifty years. This gift will be catalogued as "The Susan B. Anthony Collection," and a handsome book plate has been made for it. There are only four other collections in the library designated by names, and this is the only one presented by a woman.—Ida Husted Harper in Progress.

JAPAN WINS NAVAL BATTLE

Mikado's Torpedo Boat Flotilla Attacks Czar's Squadron and Scores Victory in Face of Cannonade from Forts and Fleet.

CHEE FOO, Feb. 9—Under cover of darkness and defying the cannonade from the shore batteries and the guns of the Russian squadron, Japan's powerful fleet crept within striking distance of her opponent's warships lying in the roads outside the harbor of Port Arthur on Monday night and dealt the first blow of the war for supremacy in the Far East.

Three Russian warships were put out of commission, and the attacking fleet withdrew as stealthily as it appeared, without a scar marking the gray sides of a single Japanese ship.

Japan has scored the first success in the conflict which may inflame the entire East.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Third Annual Banquet Promises to Be More Enjoyable Than Any of Its Predecessors

The third annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce will be given in the City Hall on Tuesday evening, Feb. 16, at 6.30 o'clock. These events grow yearly more enjoyable, and a glance at the menu, which will be served by the ladies of Zion Episcopal church, and at the list of toasts, will furnish conclusive proof that the forthcoming banquet will be one of the most pleasurable yet given.

The menu will be as follows:

Blue points on half-shell.
Cream of tomato soup with duchess crusts.
Olives. Celery.
Timbales with mushrooms.
Roast turkey.
Mashed potatoes. Squash. Cranberries
Dressed lettuce with cheese straws.
Ice cream.
Cake. Macaroons.
Crackers. Cheese. Cafe noir.

It is a ve-ry qui-et street.
Do you see the horse coming?
Yes. It is com-ing ve-ry slow-ly.
Is the dri-ver as-leep?
Ve-ry near-ly so; and the horse walks sleep-i-ly too.
Poor man! Poor man! They have been work-ing hard.
Do you see the old la-dy and the lit-tle girl?
They are going a-cross the street.
They walk on the cross-walk.
Now see the man! Is he cra-zy?
Yes, he must be. He is whip-ping his horse to make it cra-zy too.
Hear him shout "Gad-ap! Gad-ap!!"
Is some-one chas-ing him?
Oh, no, he is do-ing the chas-ing.
He has just seen the old la-dy and the lit-tle girl.
What makes him hur-ry up the horse so?
Cus-sed-ness. He wants to get o-ver the cross-walk be-fore the old la-dy and the lit-tle girl.
[illegible]
More cus-sed-ness.
Will he run o-ver the old la-dy and the lit-tle girl?
Not if they get a move on and do not fall down.
The old la-dy is scar-ed and turns back.
The driv-er has won.
Will he get a prize?
No, worse luck.
He should get a big one; ten dol-lars or thir-ty days.

Enjoyable Banquet.

The "substitutes," and their husbands and brothers, held a banquet on Monday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. I. C. Curtis in Oneida street, at which covers were laid for twenty-one. The following delicious menu was served:

MAYORALTY CONTENTION.

Mandamus Proceedings Begun Against City Clerk Hinsdale.

Papers have been served on City Clerk Hinsdale, in the petition of Marvin A. Thomson, in which a motion will be made at a Special Term of the Supreme Court, to be held in the city of Utica, on Saturday, Feb. 20, directing that a peremptory writ of mandamus issue out of and under the seal of the court, requiring the said Hinsdale to accept and file the notice of acceptance and official oath of Marvin A. Thomson, as mayor of the city of Fulton, and requiring the said Hinsdale to execute a certificate of the election of said Thomson, as mayor of the city of Fulton, at the election held Nov. 3, 1903, as required by sec. 20 of chapter 63 of the laws of 1902, and for such other and further relief as the relator may be entitled to in the premises, with costs. Piper, Rice & Wilson are Mr. Thomson's attorneys.

Letter from Los Angeles, Cal.

A recent letter under date of Jan. 20, from one of our Fulton young men who is in Los Angeles, Cal., says, "This is our rainy season, but up to Sunday, Jan. 17, we have had 113 days without a drop of rain. That day a slight rain fell, lasting about three hours; since then the mercury at night registers about 40 and rises to 70 during the day. Not much like your temperature just now in old Fulton."

"Speaking of stock and farm lands, he says, " Grade cows are worth from $75 up, and and fancy stock much higher. Alfalfa hay now brings from $20 to $25 per ton. During the haying season it drops to $4 and $5 for the green hay. They raise neither timothy nor clover here. The only hay besides Alfalfa is principally oats and barley, cut green and cured as we do timothy and clover. They begin cutting Alfalfa in March, and end in November, making either eight or nine cuttings. A ton to the acre each time is a moderate yield. In southern California there are a number of booms started with irrigating plants being established; this wild land sells for $10 an acre. Los [illegible] had more large buildings in process of erection than ever before at one time, some of them being six and eight stories high. Land in the suburbs that sold for $1,000 an acre two years ago, is now sold in lots of 50x100 feet at $500.

Odd Fellows' Fair.

The fair closed last night after a most successful session from the 2nd to the 9th inclusive. That each and every member of Neahtawanta Lodge and the order of Rebekahs labored assiduously for the "good of the order" is unquestioned, and all who attended are loud in their praise of the management and the entertainment furnished. It is too early to give the exact sum realize for the Temple fund but it will be considerable.

Painful Accident.

While engaged at work on a paper machine in the Victoria Paper mill on Friday morning, Mr. Frank Seymour's left hand came in contact with a saw blade, with the result that his thumb and fingers were severed from his hand. The injured man was removed to Dr. A. L. Hall's office where it was found necessary to remove nearly the entire palm. Dr. E. J. Cusack assisted Dr. Hall.

Heinous Crime.

A man by the name of Chester Calkins was arrested on Tuesday for criminal assault on the five-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Willet, who reside on Harrison street. The girl, her seven-year-old brother and a baby were alone in the house when the assault occurred. The Willets did not enter complaint because Calkins, it is alleged, had agreed to make pecuniary restitution to them, but when the money was not forthcoming they reported the matter to the authorities Calkins was located at Palermo Centre after a time, and was brought to this city and arraigned before Judge Wilson. He waived examination and was committed to the Oswego jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

REPUBLICAN EDITORS CONFER

State and National Association Meet in Washington, Listen to Excellent Addresses, Are Royally Entertained and Indorse President Roosevelt's Administration.

The excursion of the Republican State Editorial Association to Washington, D. C., last Thursday, was of unusual interest and pleasure to the members. Secretary O. H. Bunnell of Dansville, N. Y., had arranged every detail, and through the courtesy of the Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania Railroad placed two Pullman palace cars at the disposal of the members and their wives, who were generously included in the invitation to Washington and return.

The importance of the gathering can be estimated when it is learned that the convention embraced the National Republican Editorial Association and delegates were present from every association of the kind in the country, embracing twenty-two States.

Addresses were made by Mr. John A. Sleicher of New York, editor of Leslie's Weekly and president of the National Association, Ex-Governor Frank S. Black of this State, Senator Chauncey M. Depew, and Secretary of War William H. Taft, on Thursday evening in the palm room of the Arlington Hotel.

Ex-Governor Black's address was appropriately described by Senator Depew as a "condensation of wisdom, phrased in perfect English." The address was worthy the tribute. Senator Depew added, "You know that in my official life I don't have the privilege of listening to many condensations. Up where I spend my days 'the limpid stream flows on'—and it usually sweeps the audience out of the chamber."

[illegible] Sleicher's address was listened to with deep interest and was punctuated with applause. "It is easier to talk for high ideals than to live up to them," was one of Mr. Sleicher's more impressive statements. "We wonder how a shallow demagogue, equipped only with the gift of a silver tongue and boundless assurance, could mislead the public, divert a great political party from its traditional principles, and compel it to indorse financial and economic heresies that seem more and more grotesque as time goes by."

Senator Depew's remarks were characteristic. He criticised the painful efforts on the part of the Democratic party of both Houses of Congress to discover an issue. "It must be something," the senator said, "which will take them away from free trade, fiat money and the ratio of silver and gold at sixteen to one; it must be something which has about it the scent of the daisy and not the musty odor of the catacombs."

The story of the opposition to the President's action in the Panama matter was dwelt upon, but the President's action was justified as the facts were more perfectly understood.

"During the Revolutionary war," the speaker continued, "the wits of the British army invented a song which, in derision, they called 'Yankee Doodle.' But 'Yankee Doodle' soon became a badge of honor, a national anthem, and has grown in honor with succeeding generations. Now Democratic leaders, editors and statesmen are ridiculing the attitude of the Republican party with the approbrious phrase of 'stand pat.' We accept the phrase with all that it means. We stand pat upon the protective policy, which has given employment and constantly increasing wages to the laborer and the artisan."

The Republican party stood pat, the speaker continued, on the protective policy, sound currency and the gold standard of value; on the resurrection of Porto Rico, the creation of the Republic of Cuba and the policy which has regenerated the Philippine Islands. In standing pat upon principles the senator believed that there should be elasticity in their operation and administration, but that elasticity should be in the hands of those who are wedded to the faith.

"We stand pat," said the speaker in conclusion, "in our purpose to recognize and defend the Republic of Panama, to build the isthmian canal, which has been the anxiety and demand of the world for four hundred years, and we mean that that great artery of commerce shall be energetically opened by the master hand, the strenuous spirit and indomitable will of him who has done so much to make it possible—President Theodore Roosevelt."

While the speaking was in progress Secretary of War Taft had entered the room. When Senator Depew concluded, President Sleicher called Secretary Taft to the platform and introduced him as "the embodiment and personification of the Philippine issue." The secretary accepted the designation and delivered a most interesting and instructive address on the "real problems that confront this country in the Philippines."

After the speaking, Secretary Taft and Ex-Governor Black met informally many of the members of the association, with their wives and daughters.

This concluded the first session, and all present attended the reception to Congress and the members of the association, with their consorts, given by President and Mrs. Roosevelt, at the White House.

A business session was held at the Arlington, Friday morning, when the program included "The unchanged attitude of the Northwest on the question of protection," by Lafayette Young of the Des Moines Capital; "The spread of socialism in New England," by Joe M. Chappell of the National Magazine, and the "Suppression of the negro vote in the South," by E. H. Morris of the Mocksville (N. C.) Record.

The National Convention unanimously passed the following resolution, presented by Editor Francis of the Troy (N. Y.) Times:

Resolved, That the Republican National Editorial Association, in joint session with the Republican State Association of New York, declares that the splendid, progressive and patriotic administration of President Roosevelt justified the general demand for his nomination by the Republican National Convention which will assemble in Chicago, June 21.

We are convinced that no other candidate could bring to the ticket so great strength and sure success. Heartily indorsing his administration, believing in his sincerity of purpose, his integrity of character and his unselfish devotion to the public good, we regard him as a representative type of the best and most progressive American citizen. Dealing honestly, courageously and independently with all the varied and conflicting interests of the country, he has won the well-deserved confidence and support of the American people.

Resolved, That we pledge our best efforts to secure the unanimous nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for president at the coming National Republican Convention.

Editor John A. Sleicher of Leslie's Weekly, New York, was re-elected president of the association and A. O. Bunnell of Dansville, N. Y., secretary and treasurer.

Those attending from Oswego county were Editors J. B. Alexander of the Oswego Times; W. E. Hughes of the Fulton Times; F. M. Cornell of the Fulton Patriot, and J. M. Williams of the Phoenix Register.

On Friday afternoon the delegation members, accompanied by their wives and daughters, accepted an invitation to visit the President informally at the White House. Senator Platt introduced the guests, who were afterward addressed by the President as follows:

"It is almost unnecessary for me to express my realizing sense of the importance of the work that you do. In the proper sense of the term no man is more essentially a public servant than the editor, the man who in the public press not merely gives the news, but exercises so great a control over the thought of our country.

"And in speaking to you as my fellow Republicans, I wish you to know how every man here in Washington, who is striving to do what in him lies to serve his party or make that party serve the country, realizes the dependence upon you and those like you throughout the land for making his purpose effective. It is upon your interpretation of the acts done here that we must depend for having these acts received at their proper worth by the country as a whole.

"I feel very strongly that what we need is simply to have the exact truth told, to have what we have done set forth as it has been done, and to have our purposes interpreted in the light not merely of our words but of our deeds; and you know that that is all we need, and to meet that need we depend absolutely upon you.

"Feeling this as I do, it is in no perfunctory manner that I greet you and thank you for coming here."

A most enjoyable feature of the trip to Washington was a dinner given by Congressman and Mrs. Knapp, in their apartments at the Normandie, to several of the editors and their wives who reside in Mr. Knapp's district. Those present were Mr. J. B. Alexander and Miss Alexander of Oswego; Mr. W. E. Hughes and Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Cornell of this city; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Phillips of Lowville.

A reception at Senator Depew's residence, the Corcoran mansion, on Friday evening, was a brilliant affair. From 9 until midnight the editors and their wives and daughters mingled with the political leaders of the Capital and enjoyed the hospitality of the Depew home. Senator and Mrs. Depew were assisted in receiving by Senator and Mrs. Platt.

MARRIED.

At State Street M. E. Church parsonage on Saturday evening, Feb. 6, Mr. Edward Shortsleeve and Miss Mary J. Osterhout, both residents of this city, were united in marriage by the Rev. S. D. Robinson.

DIED.

Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Somers, aged 31, died at his home in Oswego on Wednesday. The funeral was held from St. Mary's church on Friday morning.

Death has again visited Fulton and released a patient sufferer. Jennie [illegible] Harrison, aged 39, passed to rest at the home of her mother, Mrs. John Harrison, in Second street on Saturday, after years of suffering, [illegible] about six weeks. Owing [illegible] cal illness of Mrs Harrison, [illegible] services will be held from the [illegible] Mrs. Walter J. Boomer this Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and interment will be made in Mt. Adnah. The deceased is survived by her mother, one sister, Mrs. Boomer, and three brothers, Messrs William, John and Charles. The pall bearers will be Messrs Harry Hannis, Orrin Bogardus, William Farrell, A. M. Seymour, David Hartigan and William McKnight.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. Lehman Babcock and family desire to extend their heartfelt thanks to their many friends and neighbors who assisted them by sympathy and deeds during the hours of suffering for the dear departed wife and mother, and during their sad bereavement; also to the male quartette for the appropriate music rendered at the last solemn rites, and to all who sent beautiful floral offerings as tributes of love and esteem.

Shannon vs. City of Fulton

The case of John J. Shannon vs. the City of Fulton, for $10.000 damages, alleged to have been received by a fall upon a defective sidewalk, came up before a referee in Syracuse on Monday. Some evidence was introduced and the hearing adjourned until Thursday afternoon, Feb. 18, in the City Hall, Fulton.

Brown Arson Case.

The evidence in the trial of B. O. Brown for arson, now being conducted at Herkimer, was all presented Tuesday morning. The rest of the day was taken by the lawyers in summing up, and the case was given to the jury at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Perfect Confidence.

Where there used to be a feeling of uneasiness and worry in the household when a child showed symptoms of croup, there is now perfect confidence. This is owing to the uniform success of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the treatment of that disease. Mrs. M. I. Bastord, of Poolesville, Md., in speaking of her experience in the use of that remedy says: "I have a world of confidence in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for I have used it with perfect success. My child Garland is subject to severe attacks of croup and it always gives him prompt relief." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Sarcastic.

They had been discussing the baby's ears, eyes and nose.

"And I think it's got its father's hair," said the joyful young mother.

"Oh, is that who's got it? I noticed it was missing." And as the tall girl with the suave manner said this the mother looked dubiously at her.—Judge.

In His Interest.

Jack—You know when Mabel rejected me last week I told you my troubles, and you promised to help me. Well, she accepted me last night. Am I to thank you for interceding for me? Cousin Belle—Not exactly, dear boy. I simply intimated to Mabel that I was after you myself.

"WONDERFUL" IS THE WORD.

How and Why Cal-Cura Solvent, Cures Rheumatism, Blood and Urinary Diseases.

It is a wonderful discovery, this new medicine, that swiftly removes Stone, Red and White Gravel, from the Kidneys and Bladder, avoiding the intense suffering produced by these foreign bodies, and often rendering a dangerous surgical operation unnecessary. Cal-cura Solvent does this. The greatest work of Cal-cura Solvent, is that it prevents the formation of stone and gravel by dissolving uric acid and phosphatic sediments, thus purifying the blood and correcting all those uric acid conditions of the stomach which are responsible for the formation of uric acid or gout poisoning and rheumatism. Dr. David Kennedy said: "I consider Cal-cura Solvent the crowning achievement of my life. It will not disappoint."

The Late General John B. Gordon.

General Gordon aroused the pride and retained the love of all ex-Confederates as few Confederate commanders have done. He seems to have incurred less of personal antagonism, and his part in the war provoked less criticism than that of any of his associates. The feeling toward him in the North, since the subsidence of war passions, may be truly described as one of kindly admiration.

No human being, friend or foe, can fail to realize, after a study of his life, that througout his whole military career he believed he was right and did his best, and that he accepted the result without malice.

He was a born soldier. His success was achieved by inborn military prowess, uneducated, save in the school of experience, in which the pupil became a master. His heart was one in which love was perfect, so fear was driven out from it.—From "Two Great Confederates," by John S. Wise, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for February.

When You Have a Cold.

The first action when you have a cold should be to relieve the lungs. This is best accomplished by the free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This Remedy liquefies the tough mucous and causes its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs, produces a free expectoration, and opens the secretions. A complete cure soon follows. This remedy will cure a severe cold in less time than any other treatment and it leaves the system in a [illegible] al and healthy condition. It counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Woman's Home Companion.

The February number of the Woman's Home Companion is distinctly seasonable. It has a charming cover suggestive of Saint Valentine's Day. The picture features are numerous, including "Household Pets," "Winter Sports at Home and Abroad," and "The Children's Room," illustrating beautifully appointed nurseries in some of the best American homes. The feature articles are "A Visit to the Home of Thomas A. Edison," "My Recollections of Abraham Lincoln," "The Nature-Study Club," "The Wonders of the Sky-scraper." There are five excellent short stories and some interesting matter on "How to Make Pin-Money at Home" and "How to Pay Off Church Debts." Published by The Crowell Publishing Company, Springfield, Ohio; one dollar a year; ten cents a copy.

Annual Statement Filed.

The annual statement of the G. J. Emeny Company of Fulton has been filed in the County Clerk's office. Its directors are G. J. Emery, Chauncey E. Wilson, and Geo. M. Scram. Its capital stock is given as $15,000; assets $19,500 and debts $5,112.

A Cure for Eczema.

My baby had Eczema so bad that its head was a solid mass of scabs, and its hair all came out. I tried many remedies but none seemed to do any permanent good until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. The Eczema is cured, the scabs are gone and the little one's scalp is perfectly clean and healthy, and its hair is growing beautifully again. I cannot give too much praise to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve.—Frank Farmer, Bluff City, Ky. In buying Witch Hazel Salve look out for counterfeits. DeWitt's is the original and the only one containing pure Witch Hazel. The name E. C. DeWitt & Co. is on every box. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

New Musical Comedies.

There is an Arabic proverb which says, "Throw him into the water and he will bring up a fish." This is applicable to George Cohan's achievements in musical comedy. In the troubled waters of musical ventures, his two successes, "The Governor's Son" and "Running for Office," with their actual plots, have been in marked contrast to the succession of so-called musical comedies, and he has brought up "fish" without fail.

The Poison in Mackerel.

There is no more wholesome food among fish than a mackerel, yet close along the backbone of that same edible there lies a strip of flesh which may bring you to death's door even if it fails to kill you. You may eat it a hundred times and it will be as wholesome as the rest of the fish, but the hundred and first time or earlier it may cause terrible trouble. This is because it occasionally, without any sign or any known reason, distills a powerful irritant poison. There is no difference in the appearance of the fish or in its flavor; nothing to warn you of the danger. The only remedy is to leave the spine of the fish alone and not take the flesh that lies in the angle of the backbone's edges. There is never a year without a few deaths from this cause, though you might eat mackerel scores of times without taking harm. Yet animals have some way of detecting the poison, and a cat will not eat the flesh from the mackerel's spine if it is dangerous. It is not a question of staleness—a perfectly fresh fish may be deadly and a stale one harmless.—London Standard.

Lady Grey's Dull Evening.

Thomas Creevey, who lived in the early part of the nineteenth century, has presented some queer pictures of English court life. During the reign of King William IV. Creevey wrote: "The Greys had just come from Windsor castle. Lady Grey, in her own distressed manner, said she was really more dead than alive. She said all the boring she had ever endured before was literally nothing compared with her misery of the two preceding nights. She hoped she never should see a mahogany table again, she was so tired with the one that the queen and the king, the Duchess of Gloucester, Princess Augusta, Mme. Lieven and herself had sat around for hours, the queen knitting or netting a purse, the king sleeping and occasionally waking for the purpose of saying, 'Exactly so, ma'am,' and then sleeping again. The queen was cold as ice to Lady Grey till the moment she came away, when she could afford to be a little civil at getting quit of her."

Curious Hunting Custom.

The Labrador Indians when on a hunt stalk on in advance of the train with their arms, while the women, heavily laden with provisions and means of shelter, drag along slowly after. When the lords and masters begin to think of food time or wish in any way to leave some guide as to their progress for the squaws they thrust an upright spear or stick in the snow and draw in the snow the exact line of the shadow then cast. The women, toiling painfully along, note the spear and the progress of the shadow and know closely the difference of time. They know, too, whether they dare to linger for a few minutes' rest or if they must hastily catch the stick or spear and hurry on.—Chicago News.

Long Journeys Made by Whales.

The whales that swim about the islands which lie off the coast of Norway and Finland in March and April travel immense distances. In May they turn up at the Azores or even at the Bermudas and sometimes pay a visit to the Antilles. They swim fast, for in June they are back again off Norway. Some of these whales have been known to bring back evidences of where they have been, for harpoons of the peculiar kind used off the coast of South America have been found stuck in them.—St. James Gazette.

Odd Japanese Customs.

The Japanese houses have no chimneys, and you are never warm enough until the house catches fire. The Japanese have beef and no mutton; the Chinese have mutton and no beef. Japanese bells, like Japanese belles, have no tongues; Japanese snakes have no poison; Japanese music has no harmony. The Japanese alphabet is not an alphabet, but a selection of seventy useful ideograms to dispense with the 30,000 in ordinary use by the Chinese.—"Queer Things About Japan."

A Story of Brahms.

A rather celebrated composer asked to be allowed to play his very latest composition to Brahms, and did so with tremendous vigor, the perspiration streaming down his face as he pounded the piano. Brahms at the end of the performance picked up a sheet of the manuscript and, feeling it between his finger and thumb, enthusiastically exclaimed: "I say, where do you get your music paper? It's first rate."

Plants Without Roots.

The "flower of the air" is a curious plant found in China and Japan. It is so called because it appears to have no root and is never fixed to the earth. It twines round a dry tree or sterile rock. Each shoot produces two or three flowers like a lily—white, transparent and odoriferous. It is capable of being transported 600 or 700 miles, and it grows as it travels, suspended on a twig.

Thorns.

"Do all roses have thorns, pop?"

"Yes, my son."

"I can't feel any on those roses on ma's hat."

"You would if you had to pay for the hat, my son."—Yonkers Statesman.

Bobbie's Metaphor.

"What do you think now, Bobbie?" remarked the mother as she boxed his ears.

"I don't think," replied the boy. "My train of thought has been delayed by a hot box."—Town Topics.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

LINCOLN'S STRANGE COURTSHIPS

By JONATHAN JOYCE

[Copyright, 1904, by Arthur J. Palmer.]

ABRAHAM LINCOLN was, above all things, human. With all his greatness, he was a man of like passions with ourselves, and in nothing was this humanizing touch of nature better shown than in his loves.

Aside from the boy and girl romances of his school days, Lincoln's diffidence had kept him from much association with the opposite sex, and it was not until he had reached the full stature of manhood that he was strongly drawn toward any woman not of his own family. Then he met Anne Rutledge. She was a beautiful girl, of Kentucky birth, with auburn hair, blue eyes, a fair complexion and of slight physique. Her father was one of the founders of New Salem, Ill., and was the proprietor of the village tavern when Lincoln went to that place in 1833. Lincoln boarded at the tavern. Miss Rutledge, who was then about seventeen, was betrothed to a young man from the east, John McNeil, who had become one of New Salem's leading citizens.

Her lover, having accumulated what was then a fortune, determined to pay a visit to his old home in New York state, and before going away pledged Anne to await his return, at the same time making the singular revelation that his name was not McNeil, but McNamar. When he reached New York he wrote to her that his old father's declining health would require his presence with him for some time. Then he wrote of his father's death. Other letters followed, but they grew fewer and less affectionate and finally ceased.

In the meantime Lincoln had come to love Anne as he never loved another woman, and as her attachment to McNamar weakened through his continued absence and silence Lincoln's suit progressed. In time she was induced to promise that she would marry Lincoln if McNamar should formally release her. She wrote to McNamar, but her letter was never answered, and at last she accepted Lincoln unconditionally. But the strain to which she had been subjected had been too great for her to bear, and she gave way under it. She was seized with brain fever and sank day by day until all hope was abandoned. During the last days of her illness her doctors forbade her receiving any visitors, but she asked for Lincoln so continuously that a few days before her death he was admitted to her bedside.

When Lincoln heard that Anne was dead he roamed the woods in woeful abstraction, almost madness. His condition became so serious that he was sent to the home of Bowlin Green, who lived in a secluded spot in the hills some distance from the village, where he was won back to something like his normal self. But the wound he had received in the death of Miss Rutledge seems never to have healed.

Long afterward, in speaking of her resting place, he said to a friend, "My heart lies buried there," and he told fellow members of the Illinois legislature that he dared not carry a pocketknife lest he be tempted to take his life.

In time another Kentucky girl, Mary Owens, came into Lincoln's life. She differed from Miss Rutledge in that she had been highly educated and had been reared in wealth. Her social position seems to have been the rock on which Lincoln's second love was wrecked. She had met Lincoln when visiting her brother-in-law, Bennett Able, in New Salem, before Miss Rutledge died. She came again to New Salem about a year after Lincoln's great loss, when he was peculiarly susceptible to feminine sympathy. Their intimacy ripened until it culminated in an offer of marriage Miss Owens declined his proposal with all kindness. Lincoln renewed his offer later, but it was again refused.

The year 1840 found Mr. Lincoln in his thirty-second year and still unmarried. "I have come to the conclusion," he said in a letter to a friend shortly before this time, "never again to think of marrying." But meanwhile he had seen more of the world. The state capital had been removed to Springfield, and Lincoln soon observed the power of social and family connections Though still poor and lacking the graces and ease of bearing obtained through mingling in polite society, he had risen to a high place in the law and in politics and numbered among his friends many men of wealth and consequence.

Mary Todd, like Lincoln's two earlier sweethearts, a Kentuckian, went to Springfield in 1839 to live with her sister, Mrs. Ninian W. Edwards. She was of a rich family and one in whose veins coursed the bluest blood of the south. She was then in her twenty-first year, of strong, passionate nature, and had left her home in Kentucky because "she could not live under the same roof with a stepmother." She was of average height, rather compactly built, with well rounded face, rich dark brown hair and bluish gray eyes. In her bearing she was proud, but handsome and vivacious. She was exceptionally well educated and a brilliant conversationalist.

Lincoln was led through the influence of Joshua Speed, a firm friend of the Edwardses, to call on Miss Todd, and he was from the first her captive. The contrast in their characters made Lincoln's courtship of Miss Todd a strange one. "I have often happened in the room where they were sitting," relates Mrs. Edwards, "and Mary was leading the conversation. Mr. Lincoln scarcely said a word. He gazed upon her as if irresistibly drawn toward her by some superior and unseen power." Mrs. Edwards believed that while Lincoln was deeply attached to Mary they could not always be congenial and advised against the marriage.

Mrs. Edwards' advice fell on stony ground. The courtship ran on to the point of an engagement, when a new and disturbing element loomed in the path. This was no other than the dashing and handsome Stephen A. Douglas, Lincoln's rival now in love as in after years he became his rival in public life.

Douglas was vastly more attractive to women than Lincoln, and it is not to be marveled at that he should supplant Lincoln in the affections of the proud and aristocratic Miss Todd. There were those who thought Miss Todd's encouragement of Douglas an artifice to spur Lincoln on to manifest his love with greater fervor, but a lady relative of Mrs. Lincoln, who lived with her after her marriage, is authority for the statement that Mary loved Douglas and but for her promise to Lincoln would have married him.

Douglas was unremitting in his attentions to Miss Todd and seemed to go out of his way to annoy Lincoln with his rivalry. Finally the unfortunate position she was compelled to occupy between the two young men resulted in making Miss Todd ill. Her brother-in-law and physician, William Wallace, to whom she had confided the real cause of her sickness, went to Douglas and asked him to end his pursuit. This Douglas did with great reluctance.

If Miss Todd intended by a flirtation with Douglas to test Lincoln's devotion she committed a great mistake. Lincoln began to feel the sting. One evening he called on Joshua Speed, to whom he was indebted for his introduction to Miss Todd, and showed him a letter addressed to Mary telling her that he had deliberated on the matter of their engagement and that he did not feel that he now loved her enough to marry her. He asked Speed to deliver this letter. Speed refused and advised Lincoln to go to Mary in person and settle the subject once for all. Speed waited until nearly midnight for Lincoln to come back. When he came and Speed asked him if he had followed his instructions he said: "Yes, and when I told Mary I did not love her she burst into tears and wrung her hands as if in agony, talking incoherently. I found the tears coursing down my own cheeks. I took her in my arms and kissed her."

Convinced that Miss Todd considered the engagement ratified instead of broken, as Lincoln at first intended, he continued his visits, and things went on smoothly as before. Douglas had dropped out of the race, and everything pointed to an early marriage.

The time fixed for the wedding was the first day of January, 1841. Careful preparations for the occasion were made in the Edwards mansion. The house was decorated, the supper prepared and the guests invited. The latter assembled on the evening set. Miss Todd, in bridal array, sat in an adjoining room. Nothing was lacking but the groom. He had been unaccountably delayed. An hour passed, and the bride as well as the guests grew restless. Another hour passed. Messengers were sent out through the town, and, each returning unaccompanied, it became evident that Mr. Lincoln's absence was premeditated. The party broke up, and Miss Todd retired to her own room. Toward daybreak, after persistent search, Lincoln was found. Restless, gloomy, desperate, he seemed an object of pity. His friends, fearing a tragic termination of the strange episode, watched him closely. Every instrument which could be used for suicide was kept from him. Mrs. Edwards and Miss Todd did not hesitate to regard him as insane.

After two or three weeks of brooding in seclusion Lincoln was persuaded to accompany Speed to his home in Kentucky. The change of environment drove away the cloud which had settled on Lincoln's mind, and he returned to Springfield nearly cured. He resumed his practice of the law and let the memory of his engagement to Miss Todd trouble him no more. Their ways had diverged. But through Mrs. Simeon Francis, a friend of Miss Todd, they were brought together again. After a brief second courtship Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd were married on Nov. 4, 1842, at the home of Mr. Edwards. Herndon asserts his belief that Lincoln married Miss Todd merely to save his honor. He came to his wedding, says Herndon, "pale and trembling, as a lamb to the slaughter." When Lincoln was dressing in the home of his friend, Mr. Butler, preparing to meet his bride, Butler's little son asked him where he was going. "To hell, I suppose," was Lincoln's answer.

THE BIRTHNIGHT OF LINCOLN

BY WALTON WILLIAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY C N LURIE

OUT of Kentucky night came there a breeze
Fraught with the pine-land odors, and with news
Such as might rock the thrones beyond the seas,
Could monarch-ridden lands its text peruse.

THE laden breeze did beckon in the morn
The Spirits of the Right by men unseen,
And whispered as it sped, "A babe is born
Whose glory it will be to crown a queen."

THE souls of Freedom and of Honor bright
And Justice fair did shudder thus to hear.
What could they gain for the good cause of Right
While sceptres ... world of fear?

THE pitying breeze now laughed aloud in glee
And spoke: "The queen this newborn babe will crown
Shall be America, entirely free,
Land of full justice and of bright renown!

"CONFIRMING and enlarging the decrees
By which a narrow freedom was installed,
He shall make grander than the dynasties
A people's rule, and save a world inthralled!

"FOR thrones must fall when all the nations see
The glory of his doubly-rescued land;
And toil must triumph to its fair degree
When regal bay'nets back not greed's command!"

THE note triumphant of a sudden dies,
The zephyr wails: "A bloody bier I see!
America weeps o'er where her Lincoln lies,
Martyr to Honor, Justice, Liberty."

STORIES OF LINCOLN

By J. H. ROCKWELL

BETWEEN 1830 and 1880 the population of Illinois increased twenty fold, and when Lincoln commenced the practice of law in Springfield, in 1837, social conditions were extremely simple, and so were the courts and the administration of justice.

Books were both expensive and few in number and public libraries a thing almost unknown. But the people loved justice, upheld the law and followed the courts and were not slow in finding their favorites among the advocates.

The lawsuits of those days were exceedingly crude—the principles of natural justice being mainly relied upon to dispose of them at the bar and on the bench without resort to technical learning. But despite this fact there were many highly educated and powerful men at the Illinois bar even in those early days, and it was by constant contact and conflict with these that Lincoln acquired professional strength and skill.

In those early days in the west every lawyer, especially every court lawyer, was necessarily a politician, constantly engaged in the public discussion of many questions evolved from the rapid development of town, county, state and federal affairs. Then and there in this regard public discussion supplied the place which the press has since monopolized, and the public speaker who by clearness, force, earnestness and wit could make himself felt on the questions of the day, would soon come to the front. In the absence of popular entertainments, which are now so common, the people then found their chief amusement in frequenting the courts and political assemblies. In either place he who impressed, entertained and amused them most was the hero of the hour. They did not discriminate very carefully between the eloquence of the forum and the eloquence of the hustings. Human nature ruled both alike, and the man who was the most effective speaker in a political harangue was often retained in a lawsuit as the most likely one to win in a cause before a jury.

There is little doubt that in this way many retainers came to Lincoln. Fees—money in any form—had no charm for him. In his eager pursuit of fame he could not afford to make money. He was ambitious to distinguish himself in some great service to mankind, and this ambition for fame and real public service left in his nature no room for avarice.

However much he earned, he seems to have ended every year no richer than when he began it, and yet as time passed fees came to him liberally. One of $5,000 is recorded, a very large fee at that time in any part of the country. As already suggested, the legal profession always has been and is now the main avenue to public life, and his training and experience in the courts had very much to do with the development of those forces of character which he so successfully displayed in later years on a broader field.

His ready wit and infinite good nature were elements of strength to him, especially after his entrance into politics, and even his personal appearance, which was always attractive, won him the favor and confidence of the masses. He was not a good looking man in the ordinary sense of the term, and yet there were times when, moved by great impulses, his face would light up and become almost handsome. As an illustration of this the following incident is given, which I think is new, and certainly bears every evidence of genuineness:

In 1858, during the senatorial campaign in Illinois, when Lincoln was canvassing the western part of the state, he made a speech at Rushville, in Schuyler county, which was reported by a young lady who wrote occasionally for the local paper, the Schuyler Citizen. As an introduction to her report of the speech, which appeared in the next number of that journal, she said:

"So many people had told me that Mr. Lincoln was a miracle of homeliness I expected to see the ugliest man in Illinois. Instead of that I saw a man whose face lit up in a most extraordinary way when he talked, and I don't care what anybody else's opinion is, I want to say that I consider Mr. Lincoln one of the handsomest men I ever saw."

A copy of the paper, with this paragraph carefully marked, was sent to Mr. Lincoln. He took it at once to his wife. "Mary," he said, "I have always thought until now that you were the only woman on earth who considered me a handsome man, and I have not been absolutely certain about that, but it seems there is one other."

"THERE IS ONE OTHER."

By G. L. LANGDON

LINCOLN'S numerous deeds of kindness to all sorts of people often proved embarrassing to officials who were held responsible for a businesslike and vigorous administration of military affairs.

On one occasion at least Lincoln's good nature was balked by the grim secretary of war, Mr. Stanton. The president favored a certain man's application to serve the army as chaplain and sent the applicant to the war department with the usual indorsement on the paper:

Dear Stanton—Appoint this man chaplain. A. LINCOLN.

The man soon reappeared at the White House with the following indorsement under Lincoln's:

Dear Mr. Lincoln—He is not a preacher. E. M. STANTON.

Some time afterward the man appeared again at the war department with this indorsement written under Stanton's:

He is now. A. LINCOLN.

Stanton promptly returned it with the indorsement:

There is no vacancy. E. M. STANTON.

This called forth another executive indorsement, saying:

Appoint him chaplain at large. A. LINCOLN.

Stanton wrote underneath:

There is no warrant of law for that. E. M. STANTON.

Out of patience at last, the president wrote:

Appoint him anyhow. A. LINCOLN.

Equally out of patience, the secretary wrote underneath the laconic dictum:

I will not. E. M. STANTON.

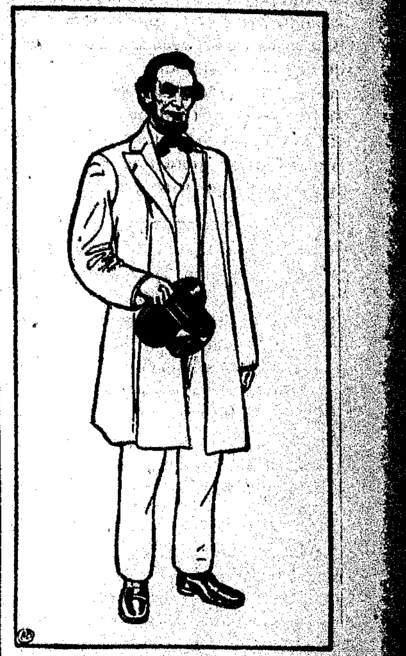
LINCOLN'S ODD PERSONALITY

By DAVID H. BARNES

[Copyright, 1904, by Hamilton Musk.]

THE unique personality of Abraham Lincoln was in no way more marked than in his physical appearance. His height was six feet four inches. His figure was gaunt and slightly bent. He was swarthy as an Indian, with wiry, jet black hair not easily amenable to the comb. His face was grotesquely rough and square, "lantern jawed," he called himself. During the latter part of his life he wore a rough, black beard "to hide his homely features," he said. His hands and feet were very large. He wore a No. 11 boot on his left foot and a No. 11½ on his right.

Lincoln's clothes were always loose fitting and usually in need of pressing.



THE STALWART LINCOLN.

His trousers were always too short. His cloak, for which he often substituted a shawl, was short and voluminous. He carried a faded green umbrella with "A. Lincoln" in white cotton letters sewed to the outside. His eyes were bright, keen and of luminous gray in color, and his eyebrows were black. His voice was a musical tenor of rich timbre. When he was a lawyer in Illinois he wore a brown, faded felt hat, with the nap rubbed off.

On his first visit to Boston, in 1848, Lincoln excited the derision of the ... fete east. He is described as wearing an ill fitting, badly worn suit of bombazine, without vest or cravat, and a twenty-five cent straw hat, in the sweatband of which he carried his memoranda and correspondence. From Boston he went to Dedham to speak at the convention held to nominate Horace Mann for congress. He was greeted coldly by an audience which but half filled the hall and which saw in him a man morose and apparently stupid. But when Mr. Lincoln rose to speak, his head almost touching the ceiling, all was changed. He was no longer indifferent, but started off with fine effect. "Pretty soon," says George Monroe of Boston, who was one of the reception committee, "Lincoln turned up the sleeves of his bombazine sack coat, then he turned up the cuffs of his shirt and by and by loosened his necktie and wound up by taking it off altogether, the enthusiasm of his listeners rising steadily as the transformation progressed."

Lincoln's high silk hat, which he assumed with his increasing honors, was a treasure to the cartoonists of the day. It was a very tall "stovepipe," with a brim like a sombrero. The hat which he wore toward the end of his life is preserved in the Oldroyd museum in Washington. It is a good 7¼ inch size. A legend credits this hat with having saved the president's life. It is said that he was riding alone near the capitol when a concealed assassin fired at him. Misjudging the size of the famous hat, the assailant shot too high, the bullet going through the tile about an inch below the top and just missing the hair of the president, who was later to be the victim of John Wilkes Booth's pistol.

REPUBLICANS don't need to say a word or do a thing. Democrats are distributing their ammunition. Mr. Bryan bitterly resents his maltreatment by his old comrades and at least ten Democratic senators will demonstrate by their votes that President Roosevelt has done a wise, just, humane and patriotic thing in Panama.

IF your crosswalk was not shoveled as promptly after every blizzard as you thought necessary, please remember that there are between seven and eight hundred of them, and that we have over twenty miles of streets in the city. To have cleared them all in one day after every storm would have cost this Winter, so far, more money than we expect to spend this year for street cleaning.

THE cry that this will be an office-holders' campaign is answered by the President himself, who says, "I do not wish to dictate to conventions their choice of delegates; but I would suggest, whenever it is possible to get good men who are not holding office, to do so. No influence from Washington will be brought to bear upon them to influence their votes." That sounds very much like a blunt honesty.

THE action of the Common Council, at their meeting last week, in passing that objectionable thirty-seconds bell-ringing ordinance over the Mayor's veto and then immediately amending it to meet his reasonable wishes, can not be emmently distinguished by profound and serene wisdom. The originality of the Council is far less wonderful than their nice discernment. The Mayor only voiced the sentiments of the majority of our citizens when he vetoed the original proposition, and the Aldermen all knew it. Their constituents had been talking to them.

NOT many of our oldest citizens can remember a Winter that taxed the snow-shovel brigade as severely as the present one. Yet it is a good many Winters since the sidewalks were so passable as they have been during the past two months; and as for the crosswalks, they never were better cared for in snow time. Of course there are exceptions, for the careless as well as the good citizen we have with us always. The example set by the Superintendent of Public Works, whose men have cleared the crosswalks after every storm, has spurred many careless householders, and over two hundred of them who heeded neither example nor written warning, had their walks shoveled for them and must pay the bill. There are still a few dromedaries to whom Sunday's thaw must have seemed a special providence, but should there be another heavy snowfall they had better watch out, or the superintendent's men may get there before the next thaw.

School Money.

County Treasurer Moore has received from State Superintendent of Schools Skinner a report on the apportionment of school moneys for the year 1904. The total amount to be distributed throughout the State is $3,972,533.28 of which Oswego County receives $61,-146.41. Of this amount Oswego City receives $9,838.25 and Fulton $5,103.83.

The money is divided as follows: To the County exclusive of all cities—For 157 district quotas of $150 each, $235.50; for 116 district quotas of $125 each, $14,500; for 73 teachers' quotas of $100 each, $7,300; 5 partial quotas $465.-50; for apportionment on basis of population, $135.30; for apportionment for libraries, $258.53; total for County exclusive of cities, $46,204.33.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. R. A. Stowell and son, and Mrs. C. S. Potter of Syracuse, have been the recent guests of Mrs. Thomas Somers.

It has been decided to hold the State encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, in Rochester on June 14, 15 and 16.

Mr. Watson A. Butts returned on Monday from Sodus, where he was called by the illness of his father, Mr. P. P. Butts.

Mrs. Daniel Mehegan, Jr., continues to fail in health. Her husband and four small children are receiving the sympathy of their many friends.

Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Kelley and Miss Emily Kelley of Pulaski, are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hughes.

Last week Mail Carrier John Cox was very ill with an attack of the grippe, but as he was unable to secure the services of a substitute he covered his route on time each day.

The Schumann club was pleasantly entertained by Miss Myrtis Gilbert at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace N. Gilbert on Monday evening. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Elizabeth Lee.

Mount Adnah's receiving vault will hold about fifty bodies and there are nearly twenty-five bodies in it at present. Unless the Spring is early, the probabilities are that the accommodations will be inadequate.

Clarence E. Pitts, chairman of the Oswego County Prohibition committee, asks for $1,000 for campaign purposes during the coming year. This will be a little over $1 from each county Prohibitionist.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. James Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter have issued a large number of invitations for receptions to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunter in First street, this Wednesday and Friday evenings.

Last week Saturday evening, the Oswego Falls grange pleasantly entertained Volney and Phoenix granges at their hall in this city. There were over 300 present and the literary and musical program was very enjoyable. The supper served was one of the kind for which Oswego Falls grange is famed.

Miss Mella Fanning's friends surprised her at her home in Third street on Wednesday evening. About thirty guests were present and whist was enjoyed. The first prizes were won by Miss Addie LaLonde and Mr. George Carrier, and the consolation prizes by Miss Frano McCormack and Mr. Alvah Loomis.

Senator Hayward of DesMoines, Iowa, has introduced a bill to tend to discourage marriage on the part of a man who wants a wife to support him. It makes it a misdemeanor for an able-bodied man having a wife or family to refuse to work if he can obtain work, and provides that he may be sent to jail for such neglect or refusal.

Several local coal dealers experienced difficulty last week in securing enough coal to supply their customers. Henderson, Thomson & Co. had thirteen car loads stalled near Syracuse for several days, and as there was a demand upon them for a hundred tons each day, they were nearly out when the cars arrived late on Thursday evening.

In a letter to a Fulton friend recently, Mr. W. J. Pentelow, who is sojourning in Corona, Cal., says that California is the place for him. That he never hopes to spend another Winter season in any other clime. He has purchased three building lots for speculation principally, but will erect a cottage on one, which he and his wife expect to occupy during the cold season each year. One of the party, Mr. Terpenning, who accompanied them to California, died in January.

An Oswego County young man who is in St. Louis, Mo., writes that the exposition grounds are all laid out and that the buildings are nearly completed with the exhibits already placed in some of them, but he does not think it will be possible for them all to be completed when the Fair opens on May 1. The grounds cover over 1,200 acres—five times as large as were the Buffalo grounds, and twice the size of the Chicago grounds. The "Midway" is called the "Pike" in St. Louis, and it will be one mile long with buildings on either side. Ten thousand people are now employed on the grounds and new help is employed as fast as it can be secured.

FORT STANWIX CANNING CO.

WILL GIVE AWAY

$500.00 IN CASH PREMIUMS

TO GROWERS WHO CONTRACT CORN, TOMATOES AND BEETS FOR US THIS SEASON

In order to make it an additional incentive to our growers to fertilize and cultivate these crops we will this year offer the following prizes for the best average yields in pounds, per acre, as follows:

From FOUR Acres or More of Country Gentleman Corn

1 First prize of	$50.00
1 Second prize of	45.00
1 Third prize of	40.00
1 Fourth prize of	35.00
1 Fifth prize of	30.00
1 Sixth prize of	25.00
1 Seventh prize of	20.00
1 Eighth prize of	15.00
1 Ninth prize of	10.00
1 Tenth prize of	5.00
Total	$275.00

From FIVE Acres or More of Evergreen Corn

1 First prize of	$40.00
1 Second prize of	30.00
1 Third prize of	25.00
1 Fourth prize of	20.00
1 Fifth prize of	10.00
Total	$125.00

From ONE Acre or More of Tomatoes

1 First prize of	$20.00
1 Second Prize of	15.00
1 Third prize of	10.00
1 Fourth prize of	5.00
Total	$50.00

From ONE Acre or More of Beets

1 First Prize of	$20.00
1 Second prize of	15.00
1 Third prize of	10.00
1 Fourth prize of	5.00
Total	$50.00

These prizes will be paid by us on December 20, 1904.

Our main object in offering these prizes is to induce growers to increase their acreage and to put these crops on good land, and to fertilize, cultivate and care for same thoroughly. The prices we are offering the growers this season are the highest that have been paid in many years, and a favorable season for growing these various crops will prove that it is very profitable to grow them.

We are now making contracts at our factory office; please call and see us as early as possible and oblige; Yours truly, FORT STANWIX CANNING CO.

Remember that the prices we are paying delivered at Factory, Fulton are as follows: Country Gentleman Corn, 80 cents per hundred pounds averaged corn; Evergreen Corn, 70 cents per hundred pounds averaged corn; Tomatoes, $9.00 per ton; Beets, $15.00 per ton; Peas, (all varieties) $2.00 per hundred pounds shelled peas.

Fulton, N. Y., January 30, 1904

Uniform Ball.

The Volunteer Fire Department will give a uniform ball in Church's hall on Monday evening, Feb. 15. Elaborate preparations are being made for the event, which promises to be of unusual brilliance. Buell's full orchestra will furnish the music, which is a guarantee of its excellence. Many out-of-town friends of the department will be present. Fultonians should patronize the ball as the department is in need of funds and take this method for replenishing their exchequer.

An Early Riser.

A stronger, healthy, active constitution depends largely on the condition of the liver. The famous little pills know as DeWitt's Little Early Risers not only cleanse the system but they strengthen action of the liver and rebuild the tissues supporting that organ. Little Early Risers are easy to act, they never gripe and yet they are absolutely certain to produce results that are satisfactory in all cases. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

BALTIMORE CONFLAGRATION

New York, Feb. 8, 1904.

To Our Agents:

Whilst the loss of this company is still undetermined, and will be for some little time, we know sufficient, from the reports of the area affected, to be able to fix a safe limit at $1,000,000.

The condition of the United States branch on the 31st of December last was as given below.

The payment of every estimated loss in full would, as you will see, leave the company a handsome balance of surplus, and, assuming that our Head Office will follow a like plan to that so happily determined upon in the case of the great fires of Chicago and Boston, of restoring reserve exhausted by conflagration by remittances from England, the surplus will be quickly restored.

Very truly yours,

HENRY W. EATON, Resident Manager.

STATEMENT, DECEMBER 31, 1903

Assets	$12,056,918.50
Liabilities	6,896,376.15

A Madman's Delusion.

Dean Pigou tells the following story of a brilliant man who lost his mind temporarily through overwork and was confined in an English asylum: "His delusion was that his stomach was full to repletion of rats. There was no room for anything else. Hood said to me, 'Go and talk with him and lead up to the subject of rats.' I found him as is very common, perfectly sane on every subject but this. After some conversation I said to him, feigning not to know who he was: 'You seem to be a very well informed man. Have you given your attention to natural history, because I notice that the question is being discussed as to whether the species of the genus rat called the Norwegian still exists?' Instantly he replied, 'Oh, certainly,' and unbuttoning his dress, said, 'Every known species of rat, sir, is here in my stomach,' and, localizing the rat with his finger, said: 'Here in this part of my stomach is a Norwegian rat. You can assure your friends that as long as I am alive no species can die.' Under the kind and humane treatment of Bethlehem he was soon at work again and had, of course, no recollection of his delusion."

Reading In Bed.

Commenting upon the recent discussion of the habit of reading in bed, American Medicine concludes that if the position is literally prone the habit is bad, because in such a position the eyes are fixed upon the book in a straining and harmful way and the book cannot be sufficiently illuminated.

But if one sits propped up by pillows, in much the same position of the head and trunk as when in a chair, there can be no evil consequences, provided a good rich light is rightly placed behind and at one side of the head.

The greatest argument for reading in bed is that the attention is not distracted by the discomfort of the body, the noises and interruptions usual at other times. Let one take an erect position of the body and head, be assured he has a good oculist and that his light is strong, white, steady and properly placed. He may then read with impunity until drowsiness cautions him to stop.

Long Range Prayer.

The Swiss mountaineers have a custom of calling through speaking trumpets at dusk each evening, "Praise the Lord God!" This call may be started by one herdsman and is answered by others from neighboring peaks, the sound being much prolonged as it reverberates from one mountain to another. After a short interval, supposedly devoted to prayer, a herdsman calls in the same manner, "Good night!" this, too, being repeated by his fellows. Then all retire to their huts. The impressiveness of these calls, echoing and re-echoing from rock and mountain to mountain, can easily be imagined.

Asking a Great Deal.

"Yes, sir," said the lady principal of the college for girls, "we are proud of the thorough athletic training we give our students. We see that they have every attention from competent instructors and develop their physique along with their intellect."

"Um—yes!" observed the father. "You make them strong and lively, do you?"

"That is one of our chief aims."

"Well, do you think you could educate Lizzie here so that in time she will be strong enough to help her mother do the dishwashing when the cook is on strike?"

Spared the Historian.

On one occasion during Mommsen's residence in Italy, when making an excursion in the neighborhood of Rome with some tourists, the party was stopped by brigands. The latter, while busy rifling the company's pockets, inquired their names. "Sono Theodor Mommsen," was the choleric professor's indignant reply, whereupon the chief of the band stayed his hand. He said he would scorn to rob one who had done so much for Italy's renown.

A Kicking Deferred.

Aunt Clara (to her young nephew, who has just brought a bucket into the parlor where she is sitting)—Good gracious, Tommy, what are you doing with that bucket? Take it down to the kitchen at once. Tommy—I want you to kick it, Aunt Clara, 'cause I heard papa saying when you kick the bucket we'd get at the very least $25,000.

Panama.

It is supposed by some that Panama derived its name from the native word for butterfly. Explorers of the interior tell of swarms of butterflies which at times rise on the slope of the mountains in dense clouds, darkening the sunshine. Others maintain that the name is from an Indian word meaning abounding in fish.

A Reminder.

"There," said the tailor; "that suit certainly fits you perfectly."

"Yes, indeed. You may justly feel proud of that," replied the customer. "It's a credit to you."

"Well—er—I hope you won't forget it's a debit to you."—Exchange.

Respect.

"Children don't seem to have as much respect for their parents as formerly."

"No," answered the cynic, "and I have never quite been able to make up my mind whether this is because modern children are less dutiful or more discerning."—Washington Star.

Soothing Sirup.

Vexed Wife—There is no calamity that can befall a woman that I have not suffered! Amiable Husband—Wrong, my dear. Now, you have never been a widow. Vexed Wife—I said calamity, sir!

A Clever Fish.

The salmon seems to be gifted with much intelligence, or "hereditary foresight," as it is occasionally called, which is more particularly acute when danger signals are abroad, says William G. Harris in Field and Stream. They have been known, when congregated in the upper pools, to become frightened by poachers approaching them with net or spear and to immediately dash down stream to a distance of thirty miles in one night, not stopping until they had reached pools so deep that they could not be taken with the appliances of the poacher. They seemed to know that if they went higher up the stream their doom was sealed.

When coming from the sea in schools and on entering the estuary they have been seen with an old leader at the head of the school, the rest forming a triangle about two and a half feet below the surface of the water, and on calm days, guided by the old patriarch, they would swim around the fishermen's nets, never approaching them nearer than ten or twelve yards.

Standing an Egg on End.

Any fresh egg can, without being boiled, be balanced on either end by any one possessing patience and a steady hand.

In order to save time the egg should be placed for a short time on the end upon which it is desired to balance it, so as to allow the yolk to settle; then both forearms of the person making the experiment should be rested on the edge of the table and the egg should be taken between the three fingers and thumbs of both hands and slowly turned around until the center of gravity is found. This experiment may at first require a little time, but after a little practice it will be found very easy to do. It would be well to try it first on the tablecloth and then on the bottom of a plate.

It is conceded, of course, that the present century is far more advanced than that of Columbus, so it is only to be expected that different ideas should have been formed, even as to the balancing of eggs.

A Defense of Dancing.

It is not necessary in these days to defend the claim of the dance to a place among the arts. As soon as we have got rid of the Puritan prejudice on the point (and one may hope that this no longer exists for the intelligent part of the population) the claim is too overwhelming to need apology, for if we take art to mean the production of beauty then the case only needs stating to be conceded, while if we understand it as self expression in some concrete form we shall find that the dance, which is a kind of plastic of music, painting and sculpture, is pre-eminently capable of giving expression beyond the possibility of words to the basic, and therefore largely inarticulate, parts of our nature—the hunger of the spirit and the joy of life.—London Outlook.

Genesis of Life Insurance.

Life insurance originated in 1706 in London. In that year there was formed the first life insurance company. It was called the Amicable Society For a Perpetual Assurance Office. It was a mutual benefit concern.

Each member, without reference to age, paid a fixed admission fee and a fixed annual charge per share on from one to three shares, and at the end of the year a portion of the fund accumulated was divided among the heirs of those who had died, in accordance with the number of shares each dead person had held. Out of this company, with its crude and imperfect methods, life insurance as it exists today has grown.

Swinging Round the Circle.

In the journey of life we often travel in circles. Therefore do today the good that is in you. Plant your blossoms. You will come back to them by and by. It is the beauty of the things that you do today that has most to do with making beautiful your tomorrow. One of the blessings of the sunset is in reaping the memories of what was planted in the morning.

The First Corset.

The first corset—not counting ancient modifications of the Grecian zone and girdle—was introduced into France by Catherine de' Medici. It was a strange affair and fashioned after the style of a knight's cuirass. The framework was entirely of iron, and the velvet, which decorated the exterior only, served to hide a frightful and cumbersome article of torture.

Good Scheme.

Hicks—You keep duplicates of all your old love letters? What an idea! Wicks—Yes; when I have done something particularly foolish I just read over one of those letters. It is quite encouraging to know that I'm not nearly so much of a fool as I used to be.—Boston Transcript.

The Literal Truth.

Dunns—What do you mean by sending me word that you were not in? Debts—I didn't. I sent you word that I was out. Dunns—Well, and what did you mean by that? Debts—Exactly what I said. I am out of cash.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Amplifying Him.

First Guest (at banquet)—Is this diamond backed terrapin? Second Guest—That's what the caterer calls it. First Guest (tasting it)—Well, he's a prevaricater.—Chicago Tribune.

Sentence Suspended.

"Her voice was tried by a famous singing master."

"Was it found guilty?"—Princeton Tiger.

Getting in debt is like sliding down a greased pole; getting out is like climbing the same pole.—Augusta (Ga.) Herald.

A HEINOUS OFFENSE.

Colorado Woman Accused of Gaining Votes by Kindness!

The women of Denver may explain and protest as long as they please, but the more the matter is discussed the more evident does it become that the climax of political corruption has been discovered in Colorado, and to Miss Elizabeth McCracken and the Outlook belongs the credit of discovering it.

Colorado, as we all know, is one of those God forsaken states where women are not classed with "idiots, lunatics, minors and criminals," but have all the rights of citizens. Naturally we should expect such a state to furnish some crowning instance of political corruption, and Colorado has not disappointed us.

A certain woman candidate, name not given, has been found guilty of winning votes by being kind. She was a kind woman by nature, and when she became a candidate for office she actually kept on being kind, and her kindness won votes for her!

The case calls for comment, but where in the English language can words be found that will accurately describe and fittingly condemn such a degree of political depravity?

We are familiar with the spectacle of the man candidate who buys votes with whisky and boodle, so familiar with it, indeed, that it makes little impression on us, and nobody seems to care whether the offender is punished or not. But when it comes to a woman candidate getting votes by being kind the offense is one that stirs the blood of the most apathetic citizen and rouses him to indignant protest.

Two years ago the National American Woman Suffrage association asked that a congressional committee be appointed to investigate the workings of woman suffrage. Let us have that committee at once, and let Colorado be the first state investigated. Meanwhile, is there not in our present congress some patriotic man who will immortalize himself by introducing "a bill to prevent women candidates in Colorado from being kind?"

LIDA CALVERT OBENCHAIN.

Tasmania Grants Women Suffrage.

In Tasmania a bill has passed both houses of parliament giving full suffrage to women upon the same terms as men. Tasmania is the third Australian state to take such action. South Australia granted full state suffrage to women in 1895, West Australia in 1900 and New South Wales in 1902. In the same year full national suffrage was extended to all the women of Federated Australia.

In Tasmania the bill just passed contains a clause declaring women ineligible as members of the parliament of Tasmania. Throughout Australia, however, women are eligible as members of the federal parliament, so that the present situation in Tasmania is as if the women of New York or California could legally be elected members of congress, but not of the state legislature. It is only a question of time when this little inconsistency will be removed, for the trend of things is clearly in the direction of equal rights for women all along the line.

COLLEGE AND SCHOOL.

Chicago now pays her superintendent of schools $10,000 a year.

How to raise chickens will be taught at the University of Missouri. The curators have decided to offer a full course in poultry raising.

An unusual course that is to be offered at the University of Chicago is that of training young men and women to become practical servants. The course is to extend through four years.

Rev. H. B. Frissell, principal of the School For Negroes at Hampton, Va., says it requires $80,000 a year for the support of the school. There are 1,200 scholars living on the ground and between 3,000 and 4,000 coming directly under his care.

Yale has property worth $6,899,000 on the books of the treasurer, and $1,646,000 of this is in realty mortgages, $1,665,000 in railroad bonds, $643,000 in corporation bonds other than railroads, $285,000 in various stocks and $2,453,000 in real estate.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas, Default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the 1st day of December, 1902, made and executed by Mabelle Root, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage, with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, New York, on the 3d day of December, 1903, at 3:39 o'clock p. m., in Liber 203 of Mortgages, at page 68, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and,

Whereas, The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of eleven hundred seventy-three dollars and seventy-six cents ($1,173.76), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided, and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property, described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as lots numbers six and seven (6 and 7) of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, being twenty-five (25) feet in width on Second street. Also all that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, being part of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, bounded as follows: Beginning on Second street one hundred and twenty-eight (128) feet southerly from Seneca street, running thence easterly one hundred twenty-one and a half (121½) feet; thence southerly twenty-five (25) feet; thence westerly three and a half (3½) feet; thence southerly twelve (12) feet, thence westerly parallel with Oneida street to Second street; thence northerly along Second street thirty-seven (37) feet to the place of beginning," at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego, New York, on the 12th day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgagor, Robert H. Stowe. Mortgagee, Mrs. C. C. Pettis. Mortgage dated August 14, 1903, and recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the Clerk's office of Oswego County, N. Y., on the 15th day of August, 1903, at 8:25 a. m., in Liber 204 of Mortgages, at page 528. The sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is fifty one dollars and nineteen cents ($51.19), being the whole sum secured by said mortgage. (Said Mortgagee above named, also holds two prior mortgages upon the same premises, on which is unpaid the sum of $400, together with interest on $150, from February 14, 1903, and on $250, from March 18, 1903.)

The mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, and State of New York, known and described as Lot No. five (5) of block five hundred and four (504), according to the map of the village of Fulton on file in Oswego County Clerk's office. Default having been made in the payment of the sum secured to be paid by said mortgage, and no action having been brought to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof; therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained, recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said mortgaged property at public auction, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, N. Y., on the 2d day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said sale will be made subject to the lien of the above mentioned prior mortgages.

Dated, January 6, 1904.

The Hardiness of Trees.

An expert nurseryman says the hardiness or nonhardiness of trees depends largely upon where the seeds from which the trees in question sprang came from. Satisfactory results are seldom experienced by planting a seed obtained from the sunny south, say. By planting seeds generally farther north, however, trees may be at length hardened and acclimated until a seed from such a tree may be reasonably expected to thrive and mature its fruits.

Trees, like people, acquire their habits from the climate in which they live. The northern tree knows instinctively when the time has come to ripen its fruits. The southern tree follows the same instinct, being in no hurry, as there is little likelihood of real cold. With transplantings farther north its habit changes.

The great trouble with most people is that they want to jump a tree from south to north at one move. This same idea is evident in the attempt to bring various fruit trees from Russia to the northern United States.

Apples and plums from the land of the great white czar have taken kindly to the below zero conditions of the gentle Dakotas.—Philadelphia Record.

Queer Korean Ways.

The women of the commonalty are voluble and vixenish and ever ready to slap a handful of stars into the eyes of a husband or into those of a timid and shrinking tourist should the occasion arise. The women of the upper class are rigorously excluded from masculine eyes, and a hearty vote of thanks is due the committee who fathered this unwritten law. The dainty little Japanese musmee, teetering along in sandals or on wooden geta, is a genuine relief to the eye after a view of the uncomely Korean woman.

Until Korean boys are married and acquire the pseudo dignity of the topknot their hair is worn girl fashion in twin plaits down their backs. So much do they resemble girls that it is sometimes difficult to determine the sex, and one is oftentimes uncommonly surprised to observe what he is positive are two girls sprawling and viciously fighting in a Korean street.—Outing.

A Wife's Stratagem.

A London journal tells an admirable story of beauteous Kesa, who loved her husband, but who was herself sought by her wicked and powerful cousin, Molito. Knowing that Molito would take her husband's life unless circumvented by guile, she laid a terrible plot. Summoning Molito, she told him that on a certain night her husband would be sleeping in a certain room and that she intended to unloosen his hair so that under no circumstances could he be mistaken for another man. On the night in question Molito entered the room, severed the sleeper's head with his sword and, holding it up to the moon by the hair—beheld the face of Kesa herself.

Customs of Colliers' Wives.

The wives of north country colliers observe a very touching and pathetic custom when an accident occurs in the pit. Directly it is known to the wife of a collier that an accident has happened in the pit where her husband works and that his fate is uncertain she throws open the house door, and, however inclement the weather may be, she keeps the door open and a candle burning in the window, night and day, till the man is brought home, dead or alive. In some cases the door has remained open and the candle alight during several weeks.—London Chronicle.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

and relieves the stomach of all nervous strain and the heart of all pressure.

After Long Illness.

"The plates on the table looked strange to me, though I have used them forty years. The pictures on the walls seemed to hang in new places. The very carpets had a novel coloring, as if they had been at some magic cleansing and dyeing establishment." Dear Aunt Mary was telling her favorite niece her "queer" feelings after long illness. She was unconscious that she was repeating the story that has been told by convalescents from the time of Hazlitt till the present day.

Familiar things take on a disguise to the recovering eye. Even the face of a friend bears a new depth of meaning. "Did she use to look at me with such intensity of gaze? Did she clasp my hand so warmly? Was her voice so gentle and her word so full of hope and courage before I was sick?"

To the human creature just returning to life after lingering for days at the gates of death the whole world assumes a new aspect. Even inanimate objects seem to say: "You came near leaving us forever. No wonder you forgot our shapes and colors." And the warm, conscious, loving friend bends over us and with eye and voice says, "See, I love you more truly than before I knew how I should miss you!" So after long sickness, as after a hard, cold winter, the world breaks into a new and blossoming spring.—Youth's Companion.

Mozart's Musical Memory.

Mozart had a wonderful memory of musical sounds. When only fourteen years of age he went to Rome to assist in the solemnities of holy week. Immediately after his arrival he went to the Sistine chapel to hear the famous "Miserere" of Allegri. Being aware that it was forbidden to take or give a copy of this renowned piece of music, Mozart placed himself in a corner and gave the strictest attention to the music and on leaving the church noted down the entire piece. A few days afterward he heard it a second time and, following the music with his own copy in his hand, satisfied himself of the fidelity of his memory. The next day he sang the "Miserere" at a concert, accompanying himself on the harpsichord, and the performance produced such a sensation in Rome that Pope Clement XIV. requested that this musical prodigy should be presented to him at once.

A Story of Whistler.

One day Whistler entered the atelier of his class in Paris and found that a red background had been arranged behind the model. At once he directed something of a duller tone to be substituted, and he scraped the red paint off the canvas of one of the pupils, putting in its place another background. But the red would show through. He scraped, studied and worked laboriously to get something that pleased him. The rest of the class surrounded the easel and eagerly watched the master. He looked up finally and said, "I suppose you know what I am trying to do?" "Oh, yes, sir!" they all chorused. "Well, it's more than I do," he replied grimly and left the place.

What Puzzled Him.

A well known clubman entered a police station and said to the sergeant, "I would like to have an interview with that burglar you arrested for breaking into my house last night." Sergeant—I don't know that I can allow you unless you first tell me what you want to see him about. Mr. Clubman—Oh, there's nothing secret about it. I just wanted to find out how he got into my house so easily; it's more than I can do at night.—Kansas City Independent.

Cheerful and Hopeful.

The men whom I have seen succeed best in life, says Charles Kingsley, have always been cheerful and hopeful men, who went about their business with a smile on their faces and took the changes and chances of their normal life like men, facing rough and smooth alike as it came, and so found the truth of the old proverb that "good times and bad times and all times pass over."

Legal Eloquence.

A young lawyer concluded his argument in a case with the following sublime burst of eloquence: "If, gentlemen of the jury, the defendant's hogs are permitted to roam at large over the fair fields of my client with impunity, then—yes, then, indeed, have our forefathers fought and bled and died in vain!"

Logic.

Teddie—Pa, where do we get our milk from? Father—From cows, my son. Teddie—And where do cows get their milk from? Father—Why, Teddie, where do you get your tears? Teddie (after a long, thoughtful pause)—Do they have to spank cows, papa?—Judge.

Very Like His Dad.

M. Crapaud—Ah! So zis ees your leetle son? He look to be similaire to you. Popley—Yes, he's very much like me. M. Crapaud—Ah! How do you call eet? "A cheep of ze old blockhead," ees eet not?—Philadelphia Press.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mme. Tolstoi, wife of the great Russian, is by birth a Jewess.

Mary A. Swain of Franklin, N. H., has a piano over 200 years old. It is probably the first upright piano made.

Dr. Esther M. Bok is the only white physician in the Chinese quarter of New York city. She is very successful, earning several thousand dollars a year.

When Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt is in New York in winter she constantly has shipped to her from Biltmore fine fresh grown and ripened hothouse grapes.

Miss Haworth of Pendleton, England, is the smallest and perhaps the oldest postmistress in the world. She is three feet nine inches and is seventy years of age.

Mrs. Theodore A. Havemeyer, Jr., does not take much interest in society. She is quite willing to leave these honors to her relatives and is what is known as a "home lady."

Mrs. Annie Ulrich is a city nurse in Brooklyn whose work is to care for deserted infants. In twenty-five years 8,000 baby waifs have passed through her hands to homes or hospitals.

Mrs. Ellen Henrotin, a social leader in Chicago and the head of the movement for the higher cultivation of her sex, urges women to give up the work of reform, leave that to men and devote themselves to art, literature and the more graceful accomplishments of life.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton was a philatelist of many years' standing. In the stamp room of her old home at Woodcliff, N. J., are 18,000 stamps hung on the walls. Portions of the walls and ceilings are covered with stamps of every country, some of great value, and no two are alike.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Cecilia Loftus will star in a new Zangwill play next season.

Willie Collier is to star under Charles Frohman's management for three years.

It is among the probabilities that jolly May Irwin may be induced to enter vaudeville for a brief period.

Charles Hawtrey played "Lord and Lady Algy" in London and made as great a success with it as William Faversham did in New York. The two impersonations differ in many ways.

Dave Montgomery's taking song, "Must You?" in "The Wizard of Oz," is of English origin. Mr. Montgomery sang it in London in the presence of no less a personage than King Edward VII.

Every costume worn in "The Rogers Brothers In London" was designed especially for this season, and Klaw & Erlanger carry a large force of dressmakers whose duty it is to look after the dresses.

E. H. Sothern owns the full English rights to "The Proud Prince" and recently refused by cable a large offer from a leading English actor, as Mr. Sothern intends to appear in England himself in the piece.

Dogs as Collectors.

Dogs with collecting boxes attached to their collars are comparatively common in Europe. It may not, however, be generally known what large sums they earn for the charities they represent. It is stated in the Animal World that one which used to beg for a hospital in Ireland collected in five years nearly $15,000. He had a special banking account, which was submitted periodically to a chartered accountant.

Philosophy.

If we would realize the fact that life is pain, not pleasure, our quarrel with it would be gone, and we would accept thankfully a little scrap of dripping on our daily bread, but we go on expecting happiness, stand, empty plate in hand, beggars to an invisible cook, and we grow old standing there, but we won't budge.—Helen Mathers.

Macbeth as a Comedian.

She—I suppose you attended the amateur theatricals last night? He—Yes, and there wasn't a dry eye in the house. She—The idea! I never heard of "Macbeth" affecting an audience that way before. He—No. You see, we simply laughed till we cried.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Reminder.

Singleton—I say, old chap, what have you that string around your finger for? Wedderly—To remind me of something I am to get for my wife. Singleton—What are you to get? Wedderly—Why—er—I've forgotten what it was.—New Yorker.

West Point's Origin.

The operations of the troops engaged in the war of the Revolution directed attention to the romantic and commanding heights of West Point, and within a few years after the close of the contest, through the influence of surviving officers of the Continental army it pleased President Washington to include in his message to congress (1793) a recommendation for the establishment of a military academy here.

The act creating the academy did not pass until the year 1802, and then only as a means of giving countenance to the work of George Barren, who had the year before established a private school for cadets at the Point. It required the stimulus of a second war with the mother country to overcome the deep rooted prejudice of the rural legislators against an institution which they believed would become a nursery of aristocrats, and it was, therefore, not until 1812 that the Military academy became a part of the army establishment.—Frank H. Taylor in Four Track News.

Finding by Intuition.

A man asked the clerk of a big hotel in Fifth avenue if a person whom he named was staying in the house. The clerk said he was, but he was not in at that moment. "I had never seen the person for whom I had inquired," said the man who tells this story. "I had never had a description of him. I had formed no idea as to what manner of man he is, as we often do in such cases. I took a seat in the corridor, intending to ask the clerk again later on. I read a newspaper for a half hour and started to the clerk's desk to repeat my inquiry when I bumped into an individual by accident. We both apologized. In a second I said to him, 'Are you not Mr. ——?' I don't know what impelled me to make the inquiry, but as quickly as I had asked him as quickly did he reply that he was Mr. ——, the very person whom I wished to see. I suppose Conan Doyle might explain it, but hanged if I can."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Tobacco Smoke and the Blood.

Two or three mouthfuls of tobacco smoke from a cigarette were shaken up with a few drops of blood diluted with water in a bottle. Almost immediately the blood assumed the pink color characteristic of blood containing monoxide gas, and further observations with the spectroscope confirmed the presence in the blood of carbon monoxide. Similarly a few mouthfuls of smoke from a pipe and a cigar were tried, and the results were even more marked. In this experiment we have some explanation in particular of the evil effects of cigarette smoking, for it is chiefly cigarette smoke that is inhaled, an indulgence by which the poisonous carbon monoxide is introduced directly into the blood. This effect of tobacco smoke upon the blood appears to us to be of considerable significance.—London Lancet.

Christmas Tree Legend.

There is a legend in Germany that when Eve plucked the fatal apple immediately the leaves of the tree shriveled into needle points and its bright green turned dark. It changed its nature and became the evergreen, in all seasons preaching the story of man's fall. Only on Christmas does it bloom brightly with lights and become beautiful with love gifts—the curse is turned into a blessing at the coming of the Christ Child, and we have our Christmas tree.

Grows In the Clouds.

So far as is known, the highest elevation at which flowers are found growing is 17,000 feet above sea level. The homely little plant which has the distinction of being the loftiest grower in the world is found on the upper slopes of the Himalayan mountains, near the line of perpetual snow. The season during which vegetation may appear above the surface in this region is less than four months in length.

Serious Fire in Binghamton.

Binghamton, Feb. 8.—A fire, believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion, Sunday morning caused about $40,000 damage to the factory of the Commercial Envelope company in this city. The company manufacture sample envelopes and folding paper boxes, employing about 150 hands who are temporarily thrown out of employment. The damage was nearly covered by insurance. Most of the stock and machinery and the entire interior of the building were burned. Work of rebuilding will begin this morning and the factory will be placed in operation as soon as possible.

125 MILLIONS.

Said to Be Loss by a Sunday Fire In Baltimore.

TWENTY BLOCKS BURNED.

Including Scores of the Largest Buildings In the Wholesale District.

Fire Broke Out in a Wholesale Dry Goods House With a Series of Loud Explosions—Fire Department Helpless Though Aided by Engines From Washington and Philadelphia—Buildings at Threatened Points Dynamited—Four Newspaper Offices Destroyed—No Loss of Life Reported but 17 Firemen Were Injured—City Hospital Had to Remove Its Patients — Fire Invading Residence Sections.

The most destructive conflagration in the history of Baltimore, Md., occurred last Sunday, raging unchecked for twenty-eight hours, completely destroying 2,500 buildings in the wholesale district, involving losses amounting to about $125,000,000. Dynamite was freely used to check the flames. The city is now under martial law. A food famine is feared.

The fire broke out shortly before 11 o'clock in the wholesale drygoods store of John E. Hurst & Co., on Hopkins place, in the heart of the business district, with a series of loud explosions, which were heard in all parts of the city. It spread with fearful rapidity.

In half an hour there were a dozen big warehouses in the wholesale drygoods district burning fiercely. The entire city fire department was called out, but was utterly powerless to check the spread of the flames, which were aided by high winds and by noon there were savage fires in at least 30 big warehouses and the conflagration was steadily eating its way into blocks east, north, west and south.

Fire's Onward Sweep.

Building after building fell a prey to the flames, and apparently there was no check to the fire's onward sweep.

On Baltimore street the block between Liberty and Sharp streets was soon ablaze, then came the next block east to Hanover and after that the block on the south side to Charles street; the Consolidated Gas company's building and Oehm's Acme hall were burning fiercely.

Meanwhile stores north of Baltimore street were being similarly consumed, Mullins' hotel caught and other building near it. The block west of Liberty street on the south side of Baltimore was doomed, and the big Baltimore Bargain House caught. The big drygoods houses of Daniel Miller & Sons and R. M. Sutton & Co., were soon aflame and along German street, east and west from the Hurst building on Hopkins place, there were a dozen buildings burning and scores more threatened. The spectacle of ruin and destruction was something appalling.

Mass & Kamper's big wholesale store on Baltimore street quickly succumbed and the walls fell with a crash that was heard for squares.

On Hopkins place the Hopkins Savings bank and the National Exchange bank were gutted, the few streams of water that the firemen were able to turn on them proving utterly ineffectual.

Across the street from the Hurst ruins and next to it S. Hecht, Jr., & Sons' building was in flames. Adjoining was the large building owned by the William Koch Importing company which was destroyed.

The Stanley & Brown Drug company building was quickly in ruins, while fronting on the Baltimore street side of this block were the Roxbury Rye Distilling company, the building occupied by Silborman & Todes, the house of Allen Sons, which has hardly been completed, and the establishment of M. Moses & Co. On the corner was the building occupied by Messrs. Sugar & Shear and several other smaller concerns. All of these were swallowed up in flames and in fact the whole block was nothing but a cauldron of fire.

Mullins' Hotel In Flames.

At 1:30 o'clock Mullins' hotel, a 7-story structure, Liberty and Baltimore streets, was in flames from garret to cellar. The great height and narrowness of the doomed building converted it to a huge and dreadful torch. All the guests had been ordered out of the building and there was no panic or confusion or no one injured.

Every bit of fire fighting apparatus in the city was called into requisition as the flames spread, but the firemen realized they had a task too great for them to combat. Telegrams for fire engines were sent to Washington and Philadelphia and about 1 o'clock six engines arrived from Washington and four from Philadelphia and joined in the battle. Engines from the stations in Baltimore, Howard, Anne Arundel and Hartford counties were also summoned, some of the apparatus traveling a distance of 30 miles and more.

It is roughly estimated that there were 350 lines of hose playing upon different parts of the conflagration.

Owing to the great congestion of fire apparatus, the crowds of people and the general confusion, many of the engines from out of town were unable to find a place where they would be of any service.

With loud roars, wall after wall toppled into the streets and firemen ran for their lives.

The fire was beyond their control and the flames ran from one building to another despite the fact that structures in all directions were soaked with water.

Red hot cinders ignited the roof of the Front street theater and for a time it looked as though that structure would be burned down. The building is at least a half mile from the main conflagration. The blaze was extinguished.

At the City hospital the physicians worked on the roof extinguishing the fires started by the rain of cinders. Eighteen women, two babies and seven nurses were taken from the maternity hospital in police ambulances.

Explosion of Whisky.

At 3 o'clock a tremendous explosion of about 150 barrels of whisky stored in the upper floors of 24 Hanover street hurled tons of burning matter across the street onto the roofs of the buildings which the firemen had drenched with water, hoping to make Hanover street the eastern boundary line of the conflagration. The flames quivered for a moment and then took hold and ate into the structures.

This morning the fire is still unchecked and is steadily eating its consuming way eastward on Baltimore street, after having destroyed almost all of the large stores and warehouses in the wholesale district around Hopkins place and all the buildings on both sides of Baltimore street from Howard to Holliday street, from Charter and Baltimore to Charles and Lexington and on Fayette street from Charles to Holliday, including a total of about 20 blocks of the most modern and substantial business buildings in Baltimore. The loss cannot be estimated but it has certainly already reached thirty or forty millions of dollars.

So terrific has been the heat ever since the fire started and so dense and suffocating the volume of smoke, flying sparks and burning embers that it was difficult for the firemen to stand long within fighting distance of the flames, while several trucks and engines were hopelessly disabled by flying timbers at an early hour in the action.

At 7 o'clock the situation was so hopeless so far as effective work by the firemen was concerned that Chief Horton decided that the only thing to do was to dynamite buildings at the threatened points and thus prevent as fas as possible a further spread of the flames.

In pursuance of this plan a number of buildings on South Charles street, between German and Lombard, were blown up. Subsequently the splendid structure of J. W. Putts & Co., notion dealers at Charles and Fayette streets, the Daily Record, Ross Drugstore and other buildings were dynamited. But this heroic remedy merely delayed but did not seriously impede the onward march of the conflagration and and for two hours or more the fire department has stood practically helpless.

Newspapers Burned Out.

At Charles street the remorseless tide kept on down Baltimore street, but also turned into Charles street where it quickly engulfed the 11 story Union Trust building. By 8 o'clock the publishers and other occupants of the Daily Herald building at Fayette and St. Paul street and of the Record building opposite were compelled to vacate by the on-rushing flames, as were the occupants of the Calvert and Equitable structures, two of the most massive office buildings in Baltimore.

Down Baltimore street a parallel wave of roaring, crackling flames shot their way, consuming everything in its wake, speedily reaching the Evening News Building, from which a number of extras had been issued during the preceding hours, but from which the employes had to hastily flee.

The City hospital, corner of Calvert and Pleasant streets, is removing to other hospitals the 24 patients in that institution. Seventeen injured were brought to this hospital, most of them firemen. They were suffering from burns, scalds and lacerations. Nearly every physician in the city is in the fire district. So far as known no one has been killed.

Detachments of the Fourth and Fifth regiments have been called out and are patrolling the streets in the vicinity of the fire guarding property and keeping order.

Fortunately thus far the conflagration has not reached the residence portion of the city, but fires are breaking out in East Baltimore and the indications are that the residence streets will be invaded.

The indications are that not a single one of the five morning newspapers will be able to get out an issue today with the possible exception of the Sun.

The Baltimore and Ohio office building has been destroyed and the Maryland Institute of Art building.

At 11:45 o'clock the temporary custom house adjoining the postoffice caught fire. One hundred and fifty policemen from Philadelphia arrived here to assist the Baltimore police and military.

TRAGEDY IN MINING TOWN.

Four Persons Killed and Three Wounded In Labor Dispute.

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 8.—A bloody tragedy was enacted Sunday in the little mining town of Coal Creek, Tenn., as the result of which four persons were killed and three wounded, one perhaps fatally. The clash was the culmination of the trouble between union and non-union labor.

Three of the dead men were killed by guards employed by the Coal Creek Coal company, while the fourth victim, a deputy sheriff, was killed by a guard he had gone to arrest.

The dead are: Monroe Black, miner, aged 24; W. W. Taylor, miner, aged 31; Jacob Sharp, section hand, a bystander, aged 35; Deputy Sheriff Robert S. Harmon killed by Cal Burton, guard at the Briceville mine.

When the wage scale was signed the Coal Creek Coal company refused to comply with the demand. The mines were closed for some weeks, attempts to open them with non-union help being frustrated by the miners. The company sought aid of the courts and began eviction proceedings against the union miners to oust them from their homes. Recently a dozen guards were employed to guard the mines and protect the non-union men brought here.

Sunday 12 guards came from the mines to meet a few non-union men who were to arrive on the morning train. When the non-union men got off the crowd made a demonstration and the shooting followed.

Death of James B. Colgate.

Yonkers, Feb. 8.—James Boorman Colgate died at his home here yesterday after an illness of several months. Mr. Colgate was born in New York in 1818. Colgate university at Hamilton, N. Y., was liberally endowed by Mr. Colgate, over $1,000,000 having been contributed to the institution. He also gave liberal sums to Rochester university, Rochester Theological seminary and the Cook academy at Havana, N. Y. Mr. Colgate is survived by a widow, one daughter and two sons.

Johnson Came From Boston.

Boston, Feb. 8.—John Johnson, the United States sailor who was shot and killed while in a launch of the cruiser Yankee at San Domingo on Monday last, lived here, although he was born in Sweden. A telegram from Secretary Moody conveyed the news to his parents. Johnson, who was 19 years old, had been in the naval service less than a year. Four months ago he was promoted to assistant engineer.

QUICK ACTION EXPECTED.

Probability That Japanese Troops Will Enter Corea at Once.

Tokio, Feb. 8.—The severance of diplomatic relations between Russia and Japan appears to be only a step toward war, although when the ministers of Russia and Japan withdraw from their respective posts quick and decisive action is expected.

When Minister of Foreign Affairs Komura on Saturday notified Baron De Rosen, the Russian minister, of Japan's determination to sever diplomatic relations, he is reported to have declared to him that Japan is tired of Russia's delays, evasions and insincerity and has decided to take independent action for the conservation of Japan's Oriental interests.

During the final negotiations Japan's repeated requests for an answer were treated in a most unsatisfactory manner. Japan waited until convinced that it was useless to wait longer and has now ended the discussion. The indications are that there will be no formal declaration of war.

Japan will publicly define its position and purpose and the foreign office has prepared a new statement. On Monday Japan will unquestionably seize Corea, and although Russia has previously intimated that it would not interfere, in view of that country's present attitude, developments are eagerly awaited.

British Regiment to Protect Railroad.

Shanghai, Feb. 8. — The British regiment, the Sherwood Foresters, is preparing to sail on the steamer Kwang Ping to Chin-Wang-Tao, where the railroad from Tien Tsin to Kin-Chau passes the great wall.

The movement of this regiment is presumably to safeguard the Tien Tsin-New-Chwang railroad, which enters the great wall at Chin-Wang-Tao. It is reported that the Russians are seizing various points on the northern part of this line.

Russian Troops In Corea.

London, Feb. 8.—Cabling from Tokio the correspondent of the Daily Telegraph gives a report that Russian troops have already crossed the Corean frontier and that an official declaration of war is expected Monday.

He adds that Russian interests in Japan have been placed in the hands of the Austrian minister, the Italian minister having declined to undertake this mission.

The third annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce of this city was held last evening in the City Hall and was attended by a large number of members and invited guests. A reception in the Citizen's Club parlors preceded the banquet. The affair throughout was of a most pleasing and enjoyable nature; the responses to the toasts both interesting and instructive, and all present voted the affair a most successful event.

The Webb Orchestra furnished delightful music. A unique feature of the program and one thoroughly enjoyed was a vocal solo by Mr. A. E. Kraus, a member of the orchestra.

After an hour and a half given to the disposal of the toothsome viands Mr. E. R. Redhead, as toastmaster, announced a change in the program. He said unlike a conflagration which had spent its force because it had no more to feed upon, our appetites, keen and all consuming an hour ago, had lost their edge and surrendered in the face of worlds of food still unconquered, and the elegant and bountiful repast had no more attractions. He extended, in behalf of the Board of Managers of the Chamber of Commerce, a hearty welcome to all members and the invited guests. It was not often that so many members were gathered in one place. He said that there were two great advantages in a good dinner:

First, it was a magnet of wonderful drawing power which few could or cared to resist.

Second, a good dinner is a great mollifier.

Well-fed men are in a most amiable mood. An ancient philosopher said 'The turnpike road to people's hearts, I find, lies through their mouths, or I mistake mankind " Therefore in the discussion of the general topic, "How can we promote the welfare of our own city?" charitable and high-minded considerations should control in what was said, even if differences of opinion should appear.

We are midway between the anniversaries of the birth of two of the greatest of our countrymen, Lincoln and Washington. One said, "With malice toward none and charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right." The other, "I hope that I shall always possess firmness and virtue enough to maintain what I consider the most enviable of all titles, the character of an honest man." If these noble sentiments shall animate our lives and control our actions we shall not go far amiss in the discharge of any duty.

He then announced as the first toast under the general topic, "Our industrial enterprises as a factor," and called upon Mr. George G. Chauncey to respond.

OUR INDUSTRIAL ESTABLISHMENTS was the toast responded to by Mr. George G. Chauncey, who stated among other good things, that the Nestle Food Company, the Fort Stanwix Canning Company and the American Tobacco Company, are factors that are forcing life into the farmers. The concerns named have not only educated the farmers to produce, but to properly care for their products, thereby giving us he benefit of the cost of raw material and the cost of the manufactured article, Mr. Chauncey stated.

Continuing, he said: "A few years ago Fulton was known as a woolen-mill town, and while the mills of the American Woolen Company are our largest industry, we have become an important paper manufacturing city.

"The mills of the United Box Board and Paper Company, located at the Falls, is one of the most successful plants owned by the trust.

"The pioneers in this industry have demonstrated that paper can be made in Fulton, and to them we owe a debt of gratitude. I also desire to commend the men who organized the Battle Island Paper Company, requiring more than three-quarters of a million dollars capital.

'It was constant work, intelligently directed, that forced the Foster Brothers knives and cleavers into the largest slaughter and packing houses in West. These articles stand on their merits and are used exclusively.

"Again, it was constant work, intelligently directed, that forced the wet machines of the Dilts Machine Works across the Canadian border and to the head waters of the Saguenay, where they are planted in a large pulp mill located on the grand discharge of Lake St. John.

"Labels carrying the name of Fulton are scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific; from the coast of Maine to the Gulf of Mexico. These labels are carried on cases of cloth, on packages of paper and printed matter, on guns and electric fans, on butchers' cutlery, packet paper and machine knives, on seeds and Great Bear Spring Water.

"Numerous smoke-stacks now cut our sky-line where only two existed a few years ago. There is evidence of industry on all sides, and if the State will give us increased water-power, as they have promised to do in the construction of the Barge Canal, it will mean a greater product from our mills and increased employment.

"Constant work, intelligently directed, means success for our new industries. Give them your moral if not financial support."

THE WAGE-EARNER AS A FACTOR.

This was Prof. G. B. Duell's topic. He stated:

Any one who performs any kind of service and receives pay for that service is a wage-earner.

(a) The professional man.

(b) The superintendent of a manufactory.

(c) The merchant.

(d) The skilled artisan.

(e) The common laborer.

Any measure that may be taken to better the conditions of the wage-earners will best promote the welfare of our city.

(a) Because all are benefited.

(b) Capital would be made more secure in its investment.

(c) Labor would become more contented.

Capital and labor are inter-dependent and must be united to gain an increment of benefit. The two united in harmony is the ideal which we as citizens of Fulton should constantly place before us.

Fulton has always been and must always remain emphatically a manufacturing city, and it is a question of vital concern to us how we may best forestall and avert any so called labor trouble that may threaten us in the future. We have been exceptionally favored thus far and let us fervently hope that that blight of business—a strike, nor its infernal companion—a lockout, may never fasten its cankerous teeth upon us.

The question then which most concerns us as wage-earners who ought to have and do have the welfare of our city at heart, is how we may best improve the condition of labor. Every citizen who has the continued prosperity and growth of our city at heart cannot ignore and ought to be keenly interested in the industrial conditions here. The lawless element whether found in the ranks of the labor union or in an employer's association should be kept from mischief.

We need to remember that in the relations of the wage-earner and the employer there is something more than a mere exchange of values. It is said that "exchange knows no mercy" but business is human and ought always to be humane. The successful wage-earner must study the best interests of, and adapt his services to the wage-payer. On the other hand the employer must study how he can secure the best services of his employees. It is as true now as it was when the golden rule was first written that unkindness never draws men closer together. The wage-earner ought always to understand and remember that capital is his best friend and the employer too often forgets this truth in reference to labor.

There is, I believe, no class more responsive to kind and just treatment than laboring people. I make my plea for kindly feeling and right treatment on the part of the employer to be met by right feeling and manly behavior on the part of the employed.

Every manufacturing establishment in our city would do well to examine carefully the conditions surrounding its wage-earners with a view to eliminating any conditions not consistent to the best service. A committee of arbitration composed of members chosen by their fellow workmen, and members of the firm who shall make prompt investigation of conditions that seem to be unfair, who shall be always ready to hear complaints and thus dispose of all difficulties in their beginning with judicial fairness, such a committee would do much more towards the welfare of our city than all the strikes or lockouts with their blighting mildew of illfeeling and discontents. I submit the question in all candor to the manufacturers of our city, what is ever lost by gaining the good will of labor? Under such conditions the growing strength of organized labor would be associated with wise counsel and moderation.

In sharp contrast to the deplorable conditions surrounding labor in Chicago, New York and other cities, there are many instances set forth in the magazines during the last year or more where a touch of kindness has completely transformed the conditions of labor.

PUBLIC INPROVEMENTS

This toast was responded to by J. H. Howe who said:

Public improvements as a factor in promoting the welfare of our city is certainly important and should demand our most careful and considerate attention

In the brief statements which I shall offer for your consideration this evening I shall endeavor to look at this question strictly from the practical and not from the theoretical standpoint.

The first public improvement which I would bring to your attention is one which I am sorry to say was much better cared for under our old form of village government than under our present city charter.

Under the old form of village charter we were blessed with a committee whose business it was to look after our park and to the credit of this committee it should be said that they faithfully performed their work.

Under their administration the park was well cared for. The paths were kept graded and clean; the grass green and well trimmed; comfortable benches were placed in the delightful shade of the trees and the place had an inviting aprearance which was quickly noticed by the visiting stranger and greatly appreciated by many of our citizens. But alas! how times have changed. The present era of prosperity does not seem to have favorably effected our park.

The casual visitor in coming into our city is immediately impressed with its businesslike appearance, its solid and substantial business blocks and manufactories, its well kept and handsome residences. As the stay lengthens and we take them into the surrounding country and show them our magnificent river made famous in history and fiction, they become enthusiastic over the beautiful scenery and pleasant drives but they fail to understand why it is, that as they approach and enter upon the city limits, the roads which have been good become so much worse, instead of better, and we must confess that we are unable to enlighten them on this most important subject or give any good reason why this state of affairs should exist.

This brings us to the question of street improvements, permanent and temporary. Great credit should be given to the present Board of Public Works for the permanent street improvements which they have effected and all who have occasion to use first-st for either business or pleasure will "rise up and call their name blessed."

A part of their program and I hope it may be that of each succeeding board is to do some section of permanent road improvement each year. If they have not accomplished this laudable purpose it is because of failure on the part of the benefitted property owners to help the good work along.

While the value of permanent road improvements should not be overlooked yet there is abundant opportunity for temporary work and as the many mud holes, badly rutted, stony and undrained section of our streets will suggest. It should not be forgotten that every tax payer in the city is entitled to have the road in front of his property kept in passable condition.

Another item of importance which properly should come under the head of temporary street improvements is the question of what shall be done with the sewer manholes. On streets that are paved or macadamized they can be properly taken care of but there are scores of these on unimproved streets which in their present position of elevated grade above streets are a menace to safety and our city is in constant danger of an expensive negligence suit until they are properly taken care of. Either the manholes should be temporarily put down to the existing street grade or the street should be graded up to the manholes in a thorough enough manner so that the materials used would not quickly wash away.

While on the subject of street improvements, the importance of good side walks must not be overlooked. How can better quality or more uniformity be secured than by the plan which has been adopted for the past two years by which a specified sum is set aside by the city and which it agrees to use during that year in paying one-third of the expense of laying cement walks as long as [illegible]

A few more years of side walk building under this plan will give us miles of cement walks and will materially lessen the liability of damage suits resulting from defective board walks.

Shall our city keep abreast of the times or shall we drop behind in the march of progress and become an object of curiosity merely; shall we have an influx of sight seeing tourists from afar who shall come to see the last of the horse car operated street railroads or shall we have a trolley? This is a question which is being much discussed and if we can only secure someone who will stop talking and buy our franchise we may be able to dispense with our poor over worked horse car line and banish its motive power to pastures green. A trolley line is bound to come and properly operated can be of material assistance in promoting the welfare of our City. It will bring us into closer touch with the surrounding Cities of Central New York; will bring effective competition in passenger traffic and if the tracks are laid where most needed, will give some of our manufactuers switching facilities which would be of material benefit and which are sorely needed.

Lastly we must have sewers on the West side of the river. This is a public improvement which will unquestionably promote the welfare of our city. But how can we secure them? We are handicapped on the start by the Constitutional law which says that a city shall not issue bonds for more than 10 per cent. of the value of its real property as shown on the last assessment roll. Our bonded indebtedness is $302,900. Our last assessment roll shows a real valuation of $3,087,449. 10 per cent., the bonding limit, would be $308,744. So that practically we are within $6,000 of our bonding limit. This would not be sufficient to build or even start to build the sewers in question. What can be done? Several plans have been proposed. One is to increase the assessed value of real property so that we can bond for the required amount. Let us stop for a moment and see what this would mean.

An engineers rough estimate of the cost of the West side sewer is from $30,000 to $50,000. For the sake of being conservative suppose we call it $50,000. Then to have the legal right to issue these bonds required we would have to increase the assessed value of the real property about $500,000 which would mean an average on each piece of real property of one-sixth of its assessed value. That is if your property has been assessed at $2,000 it would increase it to $2,350.

There are several objections to this plan. It would bring our city out of proportion in the amount of county tax which it would bear, it would also increase the amount which could [illegible] raised by the annual city bud[illegible] Other objections could be stated. [illegible] would not seem as if this course sh[illegible] be resorted to unless absolutely [illegible] voidable.

There is another plan which seem[illegible] me is more preferable. Competent [illegible]gineers have made the statement [illegible] this job of sewer construction could [illegible] successfully done in sections and [illegible] there would be no objections [illegible] doing the work except for the in[illegible] cost estimated at about 10 [illegible] The suggestion is that in the fi[illegible] a thorough set of plans [illegible] covering the entire [illegible]

[illegible] money for [illegible] secured from the Water Dep[illegible] now has a balance on hand [illegible] City Chamberlain of very [illegible] $15,000. As this Water Dept. is [illegible]ing over operating expenses be[illegible] $13,000 and $14,000 per year and [illegible] not have to pay any of the water b[illegible] until 1905, it would give us before t[illegible] date, with the bonds which we co[illegible] sell under our present assessed valu[illegible] very close to $35,000 with which [illegible] commence the work. The bala[illegible] could be paid in two years in the f[illegible]lowing way:

The Superintendent of Public Wo[illegible] estimates that the net revenue deriv[illegible]ed from the Water Works is now [illegible]creasing at least $1,000 per year and [illegible] putting in of the West side sewe[illegible] this amount he estimates, would be [illegible]creased still another $1000 per ye[illegible]

Figuring on his basis however wi[illegible]out considering the increase deriv[illegible] from the sewers it would give t[illegible] Water Dept. a net income over ope[illegible]ating expenses of practically $15,0[illegible] per year. Deduct from this the amou[illegible] which shall have to be paid beginnin[illegible] 1905 of $8000 per year to reduce th[illegible] water bonds, it would leave $7,000 pe[illegible] year to divert toward paying for th[illegible] sewers or $14,000 for two years, whic[illegible] would build complete this improveme[illegible] based on the engineers estimate of [illegible] $50,000.

But this plan is not possible und[illegible] the Charter as it now stands. Accor[illegible]ing to the Charter, funds from th[illegible] Water Dept. earned in excess of re[illegible]quirements, can be diverted to the Im[illegible]provement fund and under this provi[illegible]ion the Board of Public Works has d[illegible]verted $3000 to build cement walk[illegible] No one I believe will offer any criti[illegible]cism on them for so doing. Cemen[illegible] walks are needed all over our city bu[illegible] under existing circumstances how [illegible] much more are the sewers require[illegible] How can the plan be accomplished? [illegible] an amendment to the Charter maki[illegible] it possible to divert funds of the Wa[illegible] Dept. to the sewer fund as well as t[illegible] Improvement fund.

If we can amend our Charter to p[illegible]vide additional salary for our wor[illegible] policemen, cannot we further amen[illegible] it so that we can provide sewers [illegible] Fulton, West side, thus safe guard[illegible] the residents of this district against [illegible] calamity of epidemic which must [illegible]come unless the work is speedily [illegible]complished.

There are many other public [illegible]provements which would be of [illegible]doubted benefit to us as a city [illegible] which are entirely out of the q[illegible] when considered from the deb[illegible] budget limit imposed on us by our [illegible] Charter.

If You Don't Like Music

you can avoid it. If you hate company you can manage to be alone. But what are you to do if, after taking a few mouthfuls of food, you experience such keen distress you wish you had gone empty and hungry? Why, use Dr. David Kennedy's new medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, and cure the dyspepsia. Write to the Cal-cura Company, Rondout, N. Y., for details and a free sample bottle.

His Unreasonableness.

She—Oh, I would have given anything to have had it! He—Well, why didn't you buy it? She—The idea! They wanted half a dollar for it!—Browning's Magazine.

THE CURE IS LASTING.

New Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. David Kennedy's LATEST Medicine, Cured Mr. Eldridge,

Let the people speak for themselves. Praise from those who have been cured is praise indeed, and comment would be a waste of words. This is what Mr. H. W. Eldridge, of Cherry Valley, N. Y., writes to the manufacturers of Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's new medicine, Dr. Kennedy [illegible], Rondout, N. Y.

"Gentlemen:—I should like to tell you, in a few words, of the good Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's latest medicine, has accomplished in my case, one of kidney trouble. The Story of a Discovery.

How many valuable inventions have been the result of pure accident, while in other cases men have puzzled their brains with study for a lifetime and brought forth nothing!

It happened one night that a big starch factory on the banks of the Liffey, near Dublin, took fire, and great puddles of starch and water were left outside.

Some calico printers who had been out all night and were quite tipsy came along toward morning, and one of them stumbled into one of the puddles. He found it so sticky that all his clothes stuck to him so fast that he had to stay in bed next morning till his wife soaked them out.

The man knew from his trade that the starch and water had formed a very powerful and valuable gum. He went back to the place of the fire and investigated, and the result was the discovery of the adhesive gum now used in sticking postage stamps and which has made many rich. But temperance lecturers need not know it.—Boston Globe.

A Vivid Imagination.

A furniture dealer tells a little story that shows how some people are constituted. A lady ordered an elegant easy chair of a peculiar kind. It was made and sent to her house. She examined it carefully and critically, finally remarking that it suited her exactly, with one exception—it was too soft. She sent the chair back to be made a trifle harder. It was returned to the shop and put aside. Nothing was done to it. After a lapse of about a week the chair was sent out again. The lady again examined it and now found it too hard. She was sorry, but when she paid so much to get an article for her own comfort she wanted it just right, so she sent it back to the shop for another change. The chair was again put aside for a week or ten days and sent out for the third time without the least alteration. This time it was just right. She took the chair, paid for it and was sorry it had not suited her at first. The poor woman never knew that the chair had not been changed a particle.

When You Have a Cold.

The first action when you have a cold should be to relieve the lungs. This is best accomplished by the free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This Remedy liquefies the tough mucous and causes its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs, produces a free expectoration, and opens the secretions. A complete cure soon follows. This remedy will cure a severe cold in less time than any other treatment and it leaves the system in a nat al and healthy condition. It counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. For sale by H.C. Giesler.

Willing Acquiescence.

"You must not expect me to give up my girlhood's ways all at once," said the happy bride.

"Oh, I won't," he replied. "I hope you'll keep right on taking an allowance from your father just as if nothing had happened."—Exchange.

An Ex-Convict.

Jolkley—I once heard a man say that he would rather be an ex-convict than anything else he could think of. Polkey—The idea! How eccentric! Jolkley—Not at all. The man was in the penitentiary for life.

A Cure for Eczema.

My baby had Eczema so bad that its head was a solid mass of scabs, and its hair all came out. I tried many remedies but none seemed to do any permanent good until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. The Eczema is cured, the scabs are gone and the little one's scalp is perfectly clean and healthy, and its hair is growing beautifully again. I cannot give too much praise to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve.—Frank Farmer, Bluff City, Ky. In buying Witch Hazel Salve look out for counterfeits. DeWitt's is the original and the only one containing pure Witch Hazel. The name E. C. DeWitt & Co is on every box. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Live Stock and Soil Fertility.

C. F. Curtiss of Iowa points out the relationship between live stock and the maintenance of fertility of the soil and urges the advantages to the soil and from a business standpoint of combining crop growing and animal production. Animal byproducts, which were at first used solely as fertilizers, have nearly all been found to be valuable feeding stuffs for farm animals. They are now first fed to animals and later returned to the soil as manure.

Get the clover seed sowed early—two-thirds red, one-third alsike—advises Farm Journal.

London English a Base Jargon.

The vigor and purity of a language can only be preserved by the fashionable class, the class whom in matters social everybody imitates, speaking it well. But how can English be well spoken when some of the greatest ladies speak the idiom of Massachusetts through their noses and a large proportion of the men cough the idiom of Frankfort from their throats? The constant babbling of broken English at dinner tables and in drawing rooms is becoming quite fatiguing, and as a result the English speak their tongue worse than it was ever spoken before. Everybody knows the temptation to speak a sort of baby pigeon English to a foreigner in the strange hope that it may be more intelligible to him. This and the slang taught us by the Yankees have reduced the English language as spoken by smart people to a base jargon.—Saturday Review.

How One Fact Was Discovered.

In the early part of the last century an English buttonmaker became famous for the steel waistcoat buttons which he used to manufacture with lines cut upon them for ornament. He gradually put the lines nearer and nearer together and observed that as he increased the number of lines the buttons became more and more iridescent. He explained his discovery to a scientist, who began experimenting upon ruled plates of steel. The result was the wonderful diffraction grating which is now used in place of the glass prism upon all great telescopes to break the ordinary ray of light into its primary colors.

Perfect Confidence.

Where there used to be a feeling of uneasiness and worry in the household when a child showed symptoms of croup, there is now perfect confidence. This is owing to the uniform success of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the treatment of that disease. Mrs. M. I. Basford, of Poolesville, Md., in speaking of her experience in the use of that remedy says: "I have a world of confidence in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for I have used it with perfect success. My child Garland is subject to severe attacks of croup and it always gives him prompt relief." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Novel Funeral Instructions.

Curious instructions as to the manner of her burying were left behind by an old lady at Stockport, England. Her funeral, she directed, should be attended by six of the best horsed coaches Stockport could provide, and another direction was that after the interment the funeral party should repair to the best Tory hostelry in Oldham, there to be served with the best repast the house could afford, which was to be supplied by a Tory landlord and served by Tory waiters.

Nothing Equals Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Dr. P. B. Spears, of Pinchard, Ala., has become acquainted with the good qualities of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and uses it in his own family and in his practice. He says: "It beats any preparation I have ever seen for all bowel complaints. I do not think of recommending any other, and also use it with my own children." This is for sale by H. C. Giesler.

Korean Mourning.

Koreans wear full mourning for their fathers. The dress is of hemp cloth, with a hempen girdle. A face shield is used to show that the wearer is a sinner and must not speak to any one unless addressed. The costume is retained for three years, the shield for three months. This is worn for a father only. Secondary mourning is worn for a mother and no mourning at all for a wife.

The Coast Line of the Pacific.

Although the Pacific covers more than half the surface of the globe and has an area estimated roughly at 90,000,000 square miles, yet its coast line, even including that of the Indian ocean, is but 47,000 miles, or about 8,000 miles less than that of the Atlantic. The shores of the Atlantic are very deeply indented by large seas, of which the Baltic and Mediterranean are the most remarkable. Besides these, the greatest lateral seas and gulfs in the Atlantic are the gulf of Mexico, Caribbean sea, Hudson bay and the bay of Biscay. If we take from the Pacific the Red sea, Arabian sea and bay of Bengal, which are part of the Indian ocean, we leave it with a remarkably straight coast line, with the exception of a few deep indentations on the coast of Asia.

It is owing to a free impenetration of land and water and consequent ease of communication between one country and another that the most civilized nations of the world, with few exceptions, have lived and now live on the shores of the north Atlantic and its lateral seas.

Bob Toombs' Way.

General Robert Toombs was as impulsive as he was courageous. Once, in the midst of a hot political campaign, a stump orator said something about the general's arrest by Robert E. Lee for insubordination, frightfully distorting the incident. Toombs wrote one of the hottest letters of his life and was about to seal it when a friend entered his office and, seeing him much agitated, inquired the cause. The letter was handed to him to read, and when he had finished it he remarked, "You don't intend to send that to him?" "I do," said Toombs. "Better wait till tomorrow and think it over, general." "Never, sir! I have known him to be a liar, a blackguard and a thief all his life, but never before had cause to tell him so. The opportunity is now offered, and I wouldn't miss it for the senatorship. Wait till tomorrow? Think it over? That is to throw away the chance of a lifetime. Strike while the iron is hot, sir! Bob Toombs is the iron! Bob Toombs is hot! Toombs will strike!"—New York Press.

Have an Aim In Life.

Have you no aim in life? Then get one. Study over what it shall be—think, and think deeply. Pray that you may have an understanding of your work in the world, that you may see your beckoning star and that a knowledge may come to you of how to build a highway to it. The materials and tools for the building of this highway lie right at hand. They are not to your liking perhaps—you may call them trouble and bad luck—but just shut your teeth together, shut your eyes, too, if necessary, and hold your breath. Then get a good grip on the situation, and then work with it. And the wonders that will grow out of doing little things well and the understanding of many things that will come to you will make you "stand amazed" indeed.—Maxwell's Talisman.

A Singular Creature.

One of the most singular looking creatures that ever walked the earth or "swam the waters under the earth" is the world famous man faced crab of Japan. Its body is hardly an inch in length, yet the head is fitted with a face which is the exact counterpart of a Chinese cooly—a veritable missing link, with eyes, nose and mouth all clearly defined. This curious and uncanny creature, besides the great likeness it bears to a human being in the face, is provided with two legs, which seem to grow from the top of its head and hang down over the side of its face.

Brides Who Perch In Trees.

Among the Lolos of western China it is customary for the bride on the wedding morning to perch herself on the highest branch of a large tree while the elder female members of her family cluster on the lower limbs armed with sticks. When all are duly stationed the bridegroom clambers up the tree, assailed on all sides by blows, pushes and pinches from the dowagers, and it is not until he has broken through their fence and captured the bride that he is allowed to carry her off.

Her Sorrow.

One of the closest friends of Princess Mathilde was Count Benedetti, the French ambassador whom the king of Prussia was said to have insulted at Ems. Her words on hearing of his death, after he had been her intimate counselor for more than forty years, are worth recalling. "Alas," she said, "now there is no one left who will dare to contradict me."

She Understood.

Mr. Misfit—It's no use trying to explain things to a woman. She can't understand scientific terms. No, there is— Mrs. Misfit—Oh, yes, I can, Charles! Heredity is what a man blames his father and mother for, and environment is what he blames his wife and children for!—Chicago Record-Herald.

Forethought.

He—If I were suddenly to lose all my money would you marry me just the same? She—Not quite the same, dear. We should have to invite a few hundred more to bring us presents.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A Hard Bird.

Customer—What sort of a chicken do you call this? Waiter—That, sir, is, I believe, a Plymouth Rock. Customer—Ah! I'm glad it has some historic interest. I thought it was just an ordinary cobblestone.

You will never get on the sunny side by waiting for the world to turn round.—Atlanta Constitution.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

Less Profanity Than Formerly.

The habit of swearing is not as common as it used to be in this country. Gentlemen no longer use the language with the unvarnished freedom of the days of Sheridan, when a gentleman was accustomed to consign himself, collectively and in sections, to the lowest depths of perdition in the presence of ladies while paying tribute to their charms. Undoubtedly many youths who were not brought up to swear do swear now and then under provocation, but there is, all things considered, an increasing respect for the English language.—Washington Times.

THE SHIP'S COMPANY

HOW A MODERN OCEAN LINER IS OFFICERED AND MANNED.

The Captain Vested With Absolute Power Over Passengers and Crew. Responsibilities of the Chief Engineer—A Floating City.

One of the most remarkable things about the modern ocean liner is the fact that while at sea she gives employment to between 300 and 500 people. It might seem incredible that any vessel, even one capable of carrying from 1,500 to 2,000 passengers, could keep so many men occupied, but it is true that a full count of the officers and crew on any one of the modern Atlantic steamships will give at least the former figure, while on the biggest and most famous ships, such as the Oceanic, Cedric and St. Louis, it falls not far short of the latter.

To begin with the organization of the ship's company from the top, there is first of all the captain. He is the absolute master of the ship and of all on board, with direct responsibility for her safety to her owners and to the traveling public at large. He has control of the ship's navigation and of her internal affairs as well, and he is privileged to clap a member of the crew or a passenger who does not behave himself into irons if he deems it necessary. Perhaps nowhere else can one find an example of such absolulte and despotic power as the ship captain may wield if occasion requires.

Under the captain the administration of the big vessel is divided among three departments. The first of these is the deck department, which has charge of the navigation of the vessel; the second is the engineer's department, devoted to operating the boilers and engines, the power producing branch of the steamship; the third is the passenger department, presided over by the purser and the chief steward and having for its chief function to look after the comfort of the travelers for whom the great ship and her elaborate staff primarily exist.

In the deck department are various officers, usually the chief officer or first officer, second and junior second, third and junior or third officers. The chief officer is the captain's assistant. He relieves the latter on the bridge, takes his place in the daily inspection of the ship and has charge particularly over the cleanliness of the ship, seeing to it that every part is in spick and span order. The second officers take turns at standing watch on the bridge and superintending the decks, while the junior officers, as the thirds are called, are employed in the steering of the vessel, one of them being constantly engaged in this work, with the assistance of the quartermasters.

Then a number of petty officers is to be noted in the deck department, such as the quartermasters, who perform the actual work of steering the ship; the chief boatswain and his assistants, who look after the rigging and deck equipment, and the carpenter, who is responsible for the good order of the spars, boats, water tanks and decks and who inspects these and also the masts, yards and pumps twice each day. Besides these officers, there are the ordinary seamen, who perform all sorts of duties, from working the deck machinery to scrubbing the decks and rails to keep them in shining order. Altogether from forty to fifty men are employed in the deck department.

At the head of the engine department is the chief engineer, who has as assistant officers what are known as first, second and third engineers. Next to the captain's post the chief engineer's is the most responsible station in the operation of the liner, and the engineer has under him a great number of workers—the trimmers, who bring the coal from the bunkers to the fire rooms; the stokers, who feed it into the always hungry furnaces, and the greasers, who keep the engine parts clean and well oiled. There are also a number of men who look after the pumps, the blowers and the electrical plant, which is under the chief engineer's supervision.

In the passenger department there are two very important officers, one of these being the purser, the man with whom the passengers come into contact most frequently and who is largely responsible for the popularity or unpopularity of the ship.

The other principal officer in this department is the chief steward, who exercises authority over a small army of stateroom stewards, saloon stewards, stewardesses, cooks, scullions, storekeepers and bootblacks, and who selects the food and makes out the menus for the meals.

AN ELEGANT CREATION.

White Satin Gown Ornamented With Silken Fringes.

The gowns of today have certainly reached the height of all their sartorial greatness and glory. Extravagance, picturesqueness and grace are blended in the modes of the moment, with a perfect sense of proportion and beauty.

Devotees of fashion are supposed to be reveling in modistic simplicity, but it is about the most expensive example of the "simple dress" the coutouriere can devise or the client's pocketbook withstand.

Along the lines of up to date simplicity comes the gown shown in the illustration. This elegant creation is of oyster white satin, princess in effect.

The entire gown over the satin foundation is made up of inset pieces of tucked satin connected with herringbone stitch done in heavy white Grecian floss. To bias folds of satin are attached long silk fringes which at intervals ornament both skirt and waist.

A dress of this design could be happily carried out in one of the dainty shades of pastel voile and trimmed with the fashionable macrame fringe so much used at present.

A MARINE GALLANT.

Major McCawley, One of the President's Military Aids.

Major Charles L. McCawley, who ruffled the dignity of the justices of the supreme court by giving precedence to the diplomatic corps at the recent White House reception to the judiciary, has been a member of the president's personal military staff for some time. This staff is selected by President Roosevelt from among the army and navy officers stationed at the capital, and its duty is to attend the chief executive on all occasions of state functions.

Major McCawley has long been a conspicuous figure in Washington society and is an intimate friend of President Roosevelt. In June, 1897, he was appointed from private life to a captaincy in the United States marine corps and saw service in Cuba during the Spanish war and also in the Philippines. At Guantanamo he landed with a party from the Panther and was brevetted for gallantry in that engagement. He also distinguished himself in Luzon.

After returning to Washington Major McCawley was detailed for duty at the White House at the request of President McKinley and has since been prominent in the official social functions of the executive mansion. Though portions of each day are spent in clerical duties, Major McCawley finds leisure to attend to the manifold demands ot society on his time. He is a member of several clubs and makes his home at the Metropolitan.

When Miss Alice Roosevelt made her debut at a ball given by the president and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House in 1902, Major McCawley was honored by being chosen as the young debutante's partner in the opening cotillon. Since then he has frequently been the partner of Miss Roosevelt at dancing parties. It is said that the gallant major is the second man to lead a dance in the White House, for in the long history of that mansion it is recorded that only one dance was held there prior to Miss Roosevelt's coming out ball. Thus Major McCawley's name will go down to history coupled with that of Count Bertrand, who led the dancing at a ball given during President Tyler's administration.

Major McCawley is the son of Colonel Charles G. McCawley, who served nearly forty-four years in the marine corps, fourteen of them as its head. He retired in 1891.

FOR EARLY CHICKS.

A Cheap Incubator Just Large Enough For a Single Brood.

Setting aside the question of expensive incubators and brooders, while at the same time admitting their desirability if our purse would admit of their possession, we should try to utilize the early sitter, says an American Agriculturist writer. The latter is either an early molted hen or an early hatched pullet, and if well fed and warmly housed since the beginning of cold weather she is broody early and ready for a clutch of eggs. Being one of the very first to take to the nest, she is valuable, and her value may be greatly increased by the aid of a little homemade device or two which will enable us to utilize her incubating qualities to their fullest extent.

This can be done by making a cheap brooder just large enough for one brood of chicks. For this purpose a cracker box may be used. Make a door of the front end and nail some strips crosswise inside and about four inches up from the bottom. On these a slatted frame should be placed extending about half the length of the box. On the frame a square tin tank about five inches high and about as long and wide as the frame should rest. A rimmed hole should be made in the top of the tank and a large cork used to fit the hole. A cloth curtain should hang from the front edge of the cross strips to the floor of the box, as shown in the illustration.

Then when the early sitter hatches her first lot of chicks they should be taken from her and placed in a homemade brooder back under the tank, which should be filled with hot water. Morning and night the tank should be refilled, which will supply sufficient warmth for the chicks huddled beneath it. They can be fed in the front part of the box while small and later be placed where they may enjoy a little open runway, feeding outside the brooder box.

With the chicks thus cared for, the hen may be reset without any injury to her and her utility thus doubled. If she be a mature hen of two years, she may be reset a second time, making three broods from her in nine weeks. This is a good plan to pursue, either with the ordinary flock or with thoroughbred stock. The chicks thrive in close quarters in cold weather, and with us the per cent of loss among chicks managed as suggested in the single brooders is very small indeed.

HIGH PRICED POTATOES.

England Wants a Potato Resistant to the "Disease" of That Country.

The reports of high prices which have been paid for potatoes in England of late have attracted much attention and some incredulity. The bare possibility of realizing $2,250 per ton has seemingly set every one on the alert. These extravagant prices have actually been paid, however, for seed of desirable new varieties by speculating seedsmen. From the best sources of information it would appear that at the recent annual show of the Smithfield club, which is held in the Agricultural hall, London, something like a potato mania ran rife, and the published reports in the daily newspapers, as usual, exaggerated the story in order to make it more palatable to the public, which, as we all know, likes to be humbugged.

When at the time of its introduction to Europe as much as $2 a pound was paid for tubers of the Vermont Beauty, the purchaser was looked upon as demented. But what are we to say now when a Scotch firm in fulfilling a commission for a customer paid, actual cash, $750 for a single pound of the Eldorado, a new variety which appeals to the special requirements of the English trade?

The potato in England stands differently from what it does here. The conditions under which it is grown are different. The great demand on the other side of the water is for a potato which will be resistant to the dreaded "potato disease." For many years past the English raisers have been endeavoring to find a disease resistant variety, one that could even be set in infected soil and come through without succumbing to the fungus. And a field of great possible profit is opened up to the intelligent cultivator who is breeding his stock. Much money awaits the man who can raise such a potato. Up to date American growers may win this prize.—American Gardening.

Forestry at Biltmore.

The forest of the Vanderbilt estat at Biltmore, N. C., embraces 125,000 acres in an almost continuous body and by the plan upon which it is being managed it is hoped that the forest will become remunerative within twenty years from the beginning of management, which was in 1896.

A COMBINATION PLANT.

Fruit, Bees, Fowls and Squabs United to a Profit—Why Not?

Bee and poultry culture, fruit and squab growing, are four pleasant occupations. When therefore an authority of undoubted value suggests their union in one plant the idea is not only extremely taking to those on the lookout for fresh enterprises, but worth serious consideration. The Country Gentleman says: In going about among the poultry growers of the several states we have come in contact with a number of people that are growing poultry and squabs, others who make a specialty of fruit, vegetables and bees, and we have ofttimes wondered why it might not be possible to unite the growing of all these to a profit. We have several times mentioned the possibilities of keeping poultry and bees profitably upon the same farm. This is done, and we know of one man who raises a large quantity of honey, poultry, turkeys and waterfowl as well. All these are successfully cared for on the farm of about 150 acres, and in addition to the bees and live stock the farm produces sufficient for the support of all.

The Bees.

An old orchard that is well located so that a much needed amount of sunshine may easily fall upon the hives is a good place for bees provided that the hives are so situated as not to be disturbed or injured by the droppings from the trees. We have seen the beehives placed among small fruits, such as currants and gooseberries, and, while in some localities the poultry is given free access to that part of the land in which the hives are located, it is better for both that this should not be done. It is better to have the bees colonized by themselves.

The Fruit Proposition.

Growing fruit of all kinds on the same farm is of advantage to both the poultry and the bees. Wherever large quantities of fruit are grown will be found a considerable supply of bugs and worms. These furnish a natural food supply for the poultry, old and young, and there is no better place for growing chicks than in an orchard. Peaches, plums, apples and pears are all profitable fruit to grow with poultry. Blackberries and raspberries as well may be grown where the poultry is kept, provided the poultry can be kept away from them during the few weeks of ripening. A few fowls will not disturb fruit of this kind, but where fowls are grown in large numbers for profit, if they have a free range where raspberries and blackberries are grown, they are very apt to make way with a good part of the crop.

Strawberries cannot be grown with poultry unless the strawberry beds are fenced in and the poultry out. No better crop can be grown with poultry than apples, peaches and plums. Profitable crops of plums are grown on some poultry plants.

Poultry and Squabs.

Poultry can be grown on the same land where fruit trees have been planted. We know of three large peach orchards and one plum orchard used exclusively for large flocks of poultry. In one of these between 500 and 600 Leghorns are kept, in another some 200 Plymouth Rocks, while the third is allotted to White Wyandottes. These large orchards are carefully inclosed, and the fowls are kept in separate flocks throughout the whole season. The running of so much poultry in orchards that have been cultivated as they should be is of advantage in the way of fertilizer, the orchard furnishing the best range for the poultry, and a double profit is gained from the ground.

For growing squabs some have separate houses, some use the lofts of old barns, and many are so constructing their poultry buildings as to have quarters for growing squabs in the second story of the poultry houses. This is gained by laying a flat roof on top of the poultry house and on this a double thickness of tar paper well coated with hot tar, with a board floor laid over it, making it absolutely vermin proof both ways.

The Fourfold Plant.

Another advantage of this combination is that in winter, when fruit and bees do not demand attention, the entire effort may be directed toward securing winter egg production. We do not remember nor can we remember any time when fresh laid eggs have brought a price equal to what they have brought this winter. Early in November fresh laid eggs by the case to customers brought 40 cents per dozen, and many who did direct business with customers in large cities were able to get considerably more than this some of the time. Such prices are worth great exertion to secure. It is as true of the other occupations as of poultry raising—that more than half of the profit comes through proper care and management. All of the products may be profitably grown, and money may be lost easily on all.

News and Notes.

Massachusetts has expended over a million dollars in fighting the gypsy moth, and there now appears to be more alarm than ever over it.

Tomato blight is said to be spreading. Use new beds and new earth, if you can.

American apples have won many friends in Europe during the last few months.

One hundred and ten farmers' institutes were scheduled in New York state for January, February and the first half of March of the present year.

The "short course" in agriculture is becoming highly popular. More than 1,000 students from eighteen states, Canada and Mexico attended the latest live stock and corn judging courses at the Iowa college.

SPRING GREENS.

Some Features In Successful Market Gardening Around Boston.

Probably the markets of Boston handle more of what the marketmen call "greens" than those of any other northern city in proportion to the population; it might be said more than any other city in the United States, though those who know the large proportions of the French creoles in New Orleans and their fondness for salads of all sorts would claim the distinction for that city. Even if this be true, Boston uses them far more generally than New York, Chicago or Philadelphia.

In market gardens common custom is to set or sow the lettuce plants between rows of such crops as require more room, but grow more slowly, so that the lettuce may be cut and marketed before the other crop requires all the land.

With this system of having one maturing crop and one just beginning to grow upon the land at the same time the labor of cultivation is but little increased, though it becomes a question of hand labor instead of horses. But where women and children can be employed at fair wages the hand labor costs but little more, and as the care of such crops requires little strength it is often more remunerative than labor in the mills and factories. Even the clerks in large stores and boys in offices would be thankful if their pay envelopes were as well filled on Saturday night as those of the Italian and German women and girls who have worked the week in a market garden.

The dandelion is not much appreciated as a crop or as greens outside of New England.

Dandelions take next rank to spinach in the Boston market and, indeed, sell better than spinach while they last. They should be sown in May in rows about the same as spinach and would be better if thinned to the same distance in the row, though this is not often done. They should be covered very slightly after the ground freezes. They will also well repay an application of nitrate of soda in the spring and are generally fit to cut earlier than the spinach.

But greens, or the young plants pulled in thinning garden beets, are popular in our market, and some sow them thickly expressly for greens, but, strange to say, the Swiss chard or German greens do not sell well here, though they are but a variety of the beet family that has but little roots, and the tops have much the same flavor as the beet tops, with the additional advantage of being free from the worms or leaf borers so often found in the beet leaves.

Parsley is in steady demand all the year through, although but little is sold, as most buyers are content to take their roast meats without it. Yet about as much sells in the winter at two or three dollars a box as in summer, when the price may be down to 25 cents. Cress is also in sufficient demand to induce many to grow it under glass.—American Cultivator.

The Oldest Living Things on Earth.

A bill has been introduced in congress by Mr. James N. Gillette of California to avert the complete destruction of the remaining big trees of that state. There are but ten groves of these trees remaining. The sequoias flourished before the ice age. In the miocene period such trees covered great areas on both continents. They are probably the oldest living things on the earth and are now restricted to a narrow strip in California. These great monsters of the forest come the nearest to being "immortal" of any mundane things that we know of. The rings on some of them count twenty centuries. The largest healthy ones still growing are at least 5,000 years old. A man could sit in the top branches of one of these trees and look down on two Bunker Hill monuments piled one on the other. Such marvels should be preserved. The sawmills will speedily inclose them unless the government interposes. By far the greater number of the big trees are now held in private ownership and mostly by lumber companies. There is yet an opportunity for the government to get the remaining groves into its possession and preserve them for the people in the interest of knowledge. These old trees reach out farther into the dead past than any living thing we now have. It seems barbarous to turn them into lumber for the sake of a little passing greed and rob our country of its greatest wonders so ruthlessly.—American Gardening.

A Quick Maturing Onion.

Where onions are appreciated as by some palates the Early Queen is always preferred for table use. We find it necessary to sow indoors so as to secure them as early as possible. This may be done in drills, where they may mature, in the benches or in a flat to be transplanted later. This onion is quick to mature, is far better shaped and milder than those grown from sets and almost as early.—E. O. Orpet in American Gardening.

Things That Are Said.

What is needed is public spirit, a willingness to do a service to the neighborhood without selfishly demanding pay for every stroke of work done.

To every young man entering upon life is allowed one year for blunders while he learns how to oil the wheels of the business which he is trying to smoothly run.

About the loneliest boy in the world is the one who has found out that his father promises him things that he never does.

Take no man's thoughts as your own unless you know them to be God made and heaven born.

The things that interest us most are generally none of our business.

The farm is nearest to heaven of any spot on earth.

BUDDHAS OF JAPAN.

Huge Figures of the God Abound Throughout the Empire.

The religious beliefs of Japan are Buddhism, Shintoism and in recent years Christianity. Buddhism entered Japan by way of Korea in 522 along with the arts, sciences and letters of China. Its gilded images and its gorgeous temples and ritual appealed to the Japanese mind, and the new religion became popular.

There are now many sects of Buddhism, the most popular being the Shin-Shu, which has been called the "Protestantism of Japan." It teaches that salvation may be obtained merely by faith in the mercy of Amida, the chief of the Buddhas. This is the most powerful of the Japanese sects. Its temples are large and magnificent and are found in the most crowded parts of the cities.

Shintoism is a kind of ancestor and hero worship. It has no creed, no doctrinal system and no moral code. There are no priests and no images in its 191,962 temples.

The Buddhist temples, except the Shin-Shu, have fallen into disuse since the fall of the shoguns. They are resorted to more by pleasure seekers than worshipers. To all the larger temples are attached regular spectacles—playhouses, panoramas, fan throwing and shooting galleries where target practice with bow and arrow may be indulged in.

Throughout Japan there are many huge figures of Buddha, though they do not receive the homage that was paid them in the old days. One of the most notable of these is the great bronze Buddha near Yokohama. It still has its worshipers, and [illegible] and other votive offerings are [illegible] always to be seen at its feet.

Another remarkable bronze figure of Buddha is in the grounds of the monastery at Kamakura, itself built in 737 by the Buddhist emperor Shomu. The statue, which was erected several hundred years later, stands about fifty feet high, and its face is eight and a half feet in length.

MARYLAND'S NEW SENATOR.

Isidor Rayner, Who Was Counsel For Rear Admiral Schley.

Isidor Rayner, who has just been elected United States senator from Maryland to succeed Senator Louis E. McComas, the present incumbent, is one of the most famous lawyers of the state and an orator of renown.

Senator Rayner is best known to the country at large as Rear Admiral Schley's counsel during the investigation in 1901 of that officer's conduct in the Spanish war. Born in Baltimore in 1850, he was educated at the University of Virginia, in 1871 was admitted to the bar and for many years has been a prominent figure in public life.

Mr. Rayner soon became known in his native city as a brilliant lawyer. He was elected in 1878 to the legislature, where the announcement that he would speak always filled the galleries during the one term that he served. In 1886 he was elected to congress and was twice re-elected. He declined to serve a fourth term and after having played a conspicuous part during the six years of his service retired in 1892. Seven years later he was elected attorney general of Maryland.

In August, 1901, Admiral Schley asked Mr. Rayner to represent him at the naval inquiry arising out of the Sampson-Schley controversy, and Rayner accepted and in the trial added greatly to his fame as lawyer and orator.

THE funeral of the late Senator Hanna will be held from St. Paul's Episcopal church in Cleveland, Ohio, on Friday at 1 o'clock.

THE convention of Republican editors in Washington on the 5th was addressed by the President at the informal reception held in the White House. He reminded the editors of their tremendous responsibility for rightly influencing the people. What we need, said the President, "is simply to have the exact truth told."

AMENDMENTS TO CITY CHARTER.

I am asked to speak to you in regard to amendments to the city charter Mr. Hillick stated, and it is with a feeling of diffidence that I assume to address you.

This subject opens many avenues of difference and contention. Men look at its various questions from different points of view. Its problems are variously colored by the nature of the moral, intellectual and political atmosphere surrounding the different individuals, and conclusions and convictions are governed largely by temperamental tendency and personal experience. But it is by honest, sincere and open-minded discussion of these matters that the sanity, stability and wisdom of our government is preserved, whether it be in local, State or national affairs.

Mr. Hillick set forth the many advantages accruing through the adoption of the city charter.

We have, Mr. Hillick said, a large municipal corporation whose purposes are many and varied. It has a capital stock of many millions of dollars. It pays out in various ways each year in the neighborhood of $150,000. Its obligations are more varied; its machinery more intricate, and its duties more onerous than those of any private corporation.

In looking over the various departments and the provisions of the charter, there were several changes, the benefit and advisability of which seemed very clear to Mr. Hillick.

In this connection he mentioned the police and fire departments, the powers and duties of the commissioners not being clearly defined.

The matter of providing the city with an efficient fire department and at the same time avoid creating much additional expense, had been one of the greatest problems confronting the past administrations. The provisions of the charter were too narrow and the powers of the Fire and Police Commissioners too limited to permit the organization of a paid fire department.

The charter was in some places too ambiguous; for instance, as to the power and method of granting a franchise to a street railroad, and Mr. Hillick thought that a committee should be appointed to consider and suggest proper amendments.

Concluding, Mr. Hillick said, our institutions demand that public officers should represent and care for the interests of the people of any political party or faction, for when individual or ambition stands above the welfare of the municipality or State or nation and the happiness and development of its people. Then this government whether it be municipal or national, can no more carry out its high possibilities and preserve prosperity and justice, than it could exist half slave and half free.

BARGE CANAL.

Mr. L. W. Emerick set forth the advantages of the Barge Canal to the State and community, as affecting future conditions of increased business. Fulton would not derive so much benefit directly from the Barge Canal as it would the stimulating of existing industries. Ours is a manufacturing community, and anything affecting this feature greatly affects the prosperity of the town. Our standing as a manufacturing community is due to our superb water-power, which attracts manufacturing industries. The proposed Barge Canal will essentially [...] this power, and in this particular [is of] the greatest importance to this [...]

[The] question might be asked, what [effect] will the Barge Canal have on the [water-power] of our city? Mr. Emerick [said] the route was not so im[...] [...] [...] no local harm. The flow and regulation of the river will both be improved, and these being valuable adjuncts to our water-power would probably double its value.

Mr. Emerick did not discuss the engineering features of the project. He urged the organization of the local users of water-power; that they should keep in touch with the State and engineering departments; make their demands known, and watch, if possible, contracts and contractors. This, the speaker believed, was within the province of the Chamber of Commerce, in conjunction with the users of water-power.

THE NEW HOSPITAL AS A FACTOR.

Mr Paddock, in responding to the toast, modestly stated that he thought there were others better qualified to exemplify this theme. But seriously, gentlemen, Mr. Paddock stated, it seems to me the time has arrived in the history of our city when we are ready for the hospital idea, for I suppose there are but few cities in the United States of ten thousand inhabitants and more who do not have an institution of this kind.

During the past Summer I had an opportunity to visit one or two hospitals which deepened my interest in this important subject, and while they do not in any sense indicate what we shall expect to have here in Fulton, yet they serve to show something of the spirit which is finding expression in the building of hospitals throughout the country.

The Fulton Hospital Association was recently organized to provide and maintain an institution for the care of our sick and injured. Such an institution can be made a very useful and important factor in the life of our city. The association has recently secured a building on the west side of the river, near Phillips street, and a few rods north of the public school buildings. The location is healthful and airy, being some distance from other buildings, and cannot prove undesirable in any sense. The building is connected with a good sewer direct to the river, and is supplied with city water, electric lights, etc. This house can be very well adapted to the uses of a hospital, and the rooms will be furnished with suitable fixtures and utensils so that inmates can be well cared for. A matron will be placed in charge to care for the house and to provide suitable food for the patients. Our city physicians will visit the hospital from time to time, as required, and there will be a trained nurse to administer to the needs of the sick.

I dare say there are some here who are asking the question, what are the benefits to be derived from the locating of a hospital in our city? And in answering this question, I will say the first and most important benefit of course is, that it provides a suitable place for the care of the sick and injured in our community, where they can go and be cared for, being able to command the services of a trained nurse without the great expense which is usually necessary.

Another benefit will be that we will have here a training school for nurses. As the hospital grows in usefulness, additional nurses will be required, and suitable ladies who are so inclined can go there and under the direction of a trained nurse acquire such knowledge of the care of sick as will enable them not only to earn a reasonable wage, but also be of lasting benefit to them in their own homes all through their lives.

Third, and possibly the most important benefit to be derived, will be the opportunity it will afford to cultivate the charitable spirit of our citizens. Man is naturally a selfish animal. In uncivilized countries the sick and injured are often left to care for themselves or to perish. Our christian civilization and the application of the Golden Rule, "Do unto others as you would they should do to you," demand of us that we shall help those in distress. Since the coming of our Savior, men have given expression to this idea in the building of hospitals throughout the world. We must not be behind the procession here in Fulton, but rather let us cultivate that spirit of charity and good will which shall lead us to help those who are in distress, care for the needy, and administer to the wants of the sick and injured.

OUR PUBLIC LIBRARY AS A FACTOR.

Mr. President and Fellow Members of the Chamber of Commerce:

I will have to confess to a most pronounced pleasure in responding to the toast, "Our Public Library," which has been assigned me this evening, for books and their possibilities have ever been a most attractive study in the first place, and, in the second, in the heart of every loyal Fultonian I am sure the subject of this response must of necessity find a warm and prominent place.

Since the morning stars first sang together or ere the sunlight of the first day dawned on the universe, there has been the insatiable desire on the part of all mankind—to know. The outlook of all life has ever been too small; the boundaries too contracted. The past with its storehouses so rich and bounteous in legend and story is always beckoning and inviting the scholar to come and walk in its gardens of delight; ever promising the sight of treasure so princely as to make that of Croesus' famous gold sink into oblivion; assuring the reader Elysian fields in which to wander, too inviting to be resisted; the breath from whose harvest is a feast for any soul.

Knowledge is power! To the remotest ages it has ever been so. Cairo had her universities and the learning of Egypt was centered in her marble halls, beautified by the most delicate sculpture resembling the nicety of a cameo. While the song birds filled the hours of setting sun with glad sweet melody, the gentle evening breezes wafted across the blue waters of the Mediterranean the news of her learning, and the purple of Rome's royalty was seen at the feet of Egypt's philosophers, quafting deep drafts at her fountain of knowledge. 'Twas ever thus! India with philosophers, hory with age and as deep as the eternal mysteries, has drawn for ages the students of all the wide, wide world. Greece, whose very soil was animate with mind, is still and always will be the envy of all mankind in her art, and while ancient Memnon breathes music to the sun, Demosthenes and Pericles teach the youth even of today the desirability, the nobility and the beauty of the purity of manhood. And Rome, whose proud banner unfurled over the ancient world, the shout of whose victorious hosts echoed and re-echoed from the chalky cliffs of Britain to far off Damascus, was ever sending her young men to learn at the schools of the ancients and to delve deep into the mysteries of the ages. 'Twas ever thus! The Ethiopian riding in his chariot, puzzling over the mysteries of philosophies whose depths were unfathomable to him, learns of the Hebrew, an apostle of the humble Nazarene.

The present is constantly elbowing us into the future, says Mitchell, and what a feature it is for each of us even the little future, the evening of your life and mine, how it beckons us, joy lending a halo to the vision. A thousand resolves stir our hearts; our hands grow hot and feverish for action, our brains work madly, and we are aflame with a longing beyond words, to know, to reach far into the heavens and to make our own the burning fluid out of which God's thunderbolts are forged; to delve deep into old ocean's turbulent waters and present its wonders to satisfy the longing of mankind for knowledge.

To write—to make a record of the results of research and thought—is a companion so close as to be brotherly in its relation to our longing to know, and hence from time immemorial these records have been made and year by year added to the archives of the past for the use of children's children. Even in the time of the Pharaoh of Israel's captivity the mysterious hieroglyphics have been found in the tombs of the nobles and the treasure cities were builded of bricks on each of which was the king's signet and into which was wrought the sweat and toil of slavish life, and as the kings of old gathered into sacred treasuries the precious life blood of the master spirits, so in this day and age we too are gathering in our library treasuries books of human writings, translating to all those who read the inner, hidden meanings of nature and life.

To know nature through books, beckoning into the shaded dells, and to sit with Wordsworth on the hillside, ever watching the lights and shadows of her varying moods, is ennobling. Intensest passion walks hand and hand with Byron; if one would wander into realms of choicest fancy, go with Moore, and a day with Scott in his picturesqueness and vivid description is delightful; while to know the divine as our own Whittier and Longfellow knew, is indeed to be in the very presence of the Living God.

To know mankind as Riis does and to study the social problem from his standpoint is elevating and must of necessity bring all into closer touch with that which makes for new standards on higher ground. To know the meaning of the roar and crash of guns, and to see the black cloud darkening the very face of heaven in the far east this night, is to read with an open heart and an unprejudiced mind that Russia, cold, mighty, merciless and watchful, has ever waited the opportunity of grasping the weaker powers that enrich her vast domain, and who knows but that in Fulton's library of the future our children will read that in the boom of today's distant battle, the death cry of Hungary and Finland and the awful struggle of Manchuria for freedom may be raised into a shout of triumph as they watch the sinking of the glittering throne of unrighteous authority.

Inasmuch then as the association of books is elevating and ennobling, and as the characters of our boys and girls and the standards of our manhood and womanhood are to be builded up by that which is uplifting in Fulton library—filled with the best, let us—the Chamber of Commerce—teach them that more of study, more of association with lives uplifted by a noble purpose is not only to be desired but to be longed for, and to us to a man who, by our influence and sanction and encouragement, is presented the privilege of sustaining and maintaining a project so worthy, I would say let us lift, everyone doing his part until here in our midst we shall have a library worthy of the prominence of our city.

The story is told that once a knight of old in quest of the Holy Grail, that for which all life longed, set forth in his mailed armor. As he left the castle old, a beggar asked an alms in the name of the Saviour of mankind. Too haughty in spirit to notice anything so common, he flung to him his purse of gold and went on his way. Years of unavailing search brought him back again, weary and worn and poor. Once more the scrawny hand was raised and the wailing voice begged, "In Christ's sweet name an alms I ask." No purse of gold was left, but the noble spirit, purified and sanctified by suffering, shared the last remaining crust, and into that face so poor shown the light divine. In our modest way we can share and in this way make our library a storehouse so rich that the invitation to come will be impossible of rejection. Then and then only will we have lived up to our privileges and put a new purpose in the life of Fulton's youth that can but ring as clear as a midnight bell for the future of our beautiful city and her citizenship.

THE PHOENIX INSURANCE CO.

HARTFORD, CONN.

February 9, 1904.

To the Agents of the Company.

Gentlemen:

Inasmuch as the public and policy-holders, and particularly all connected with the business of Fire Insurance are desirous of knowing how the companies fared in the great Baltimore conflagration, it is a pleasure to advise that the liability of THE PHOENIX in the burned district will not exceed $325,000, which amount will probably be materially reduced by escapes, salvages and reinsurance.

This is the fourth great conflagration experienced by this company, the three prior being Portland, Chicago and Boston. All claims against the company in those disasters were promptly and fully paid, and the same course will be pursued at Baltimore.

As you well know, our resources are equal to just such great emergencies, therefore the company and its business are in no way disturbed.

Very respectfully,

D. W. C. SKILTON, President.

NEWSPAPERS AS A FACTOR.

This toast was responded to by A. P. Bradt of The Observer, who said:

"The newspaper is the immediate interpreter of life. Even those who are so poor as to be unable to pay for a newspaper, read it even if they have to borrow it over their neighbor's back fence. Others will have it even if they have to 'do' the publisher out of a year's or seven years' subscription. The families that have no newspapers are nearly as scarce as the proverbial hen's tooth, and they are about as enlightened as the clam that knows just enough to open its shell to obtain its food.

"There are two classes who are sure to obtain space in the newspaper columns—those who are doers of good and those who are doers of wrong. And the newspaper is the mirror that reflects these two qualities of humanity.

"The newspaper is a stimulus to better action and an incentive to moral effort. It lays its hands upon the heart of the world and counts with almost unerring accuracy the political, religious and scientific pulsations that throb with feverish activity. The good old book may, and does lay upon the shelf until you may write you name upon its covers, but the newspaper falls upon you door steps like the whitened flakes of snow, bringing intelligence from the four quarters of the earth. It may bring sad intelligence of a far-off friend, or it may bring tidings or victories of battles fought for human rights, or the successes of political parties, but it brings news of human affairs and so is the recorder of history.

"A newspaper may be publisher from selfish motives—an editor must eat and be clothed—but the great majority of them rise above selfish motives when dealing with public affairs, and advocate those things which are calculated for the best interests of the community. If an editor or publisher cannot do this he has mistaken his calling as surely as has many a preacher who has been called to the pulpit because of the big salary, and not because he has the love of humanity at heart.

"An editor who does his duty to the public is sometimes compelled to tread upon the corns of public officials or political aspirants. A corn on the foot is an indication of disease, and he is derelict who is not willing to apply a one or two night's cure. So the politician who has these political excresences may expect to have them twinged with pain by the remedies proposed and applied by newspaper articles. Human nature is selfish and it comes within the province of the newspaper to curb the selfishness of men who would unnecessarily filch from the pockets of the people.

"The true newspaper—the one that would carry the weight of influence in its columns—is never for sale. Its editor advocates men and principles because he believes they are the best men or represent the best principles. Hence the newspaper which is a factor for good in a community, must in a sense at least be independent. The press stands for light, and for enlightenment; not for darkness and obscurity. Thieves and criminals of high and low estate hate the illumination its pages give. It should be a beacon and not a false light. Ignorance and crime flee before its mighty power like mist before God's sunlight. It stands

"The local press can therefore foster the interests of our city by championing the cause of the people. And often those interests which seem to be for the few, may be those of the many, especially when some substantial manufacturing industry seeks to enter our confines for establishing a business that will redound to the interests of all concerned.

"We should give encouragement to our public schools. Of these we are justly proud. It may be necessary at times to criticise some of the actions of the Board of Education. But we should encourage their doings when they labor to give us better teachers, and hence better training and teaching for our scholars. If the bulwark of our nation is education, then the prosperity of our city depends very much upon the efficiency of our schools.

"The newspaper should call attention, in a kindly way, to the needs of our city for better streets, and for a sewer system for the west side. There is no equality in half of our city being benefited by improvements which the other half is deprived of.

"Need I refer to the most important need of educating our young men to the dangers that surely lurk in the bar-rooms that infest our city. I say young men because there is so little hope of reclaiming the older men who have acquired the drink habit. The young man who avoids the liquor bar is a safe proposition. I believe, therefore, it is the duty of the newspaper to lay bare the truths that may be said about the dangers to health, morals and prosperity of the drink habit."

"For the truth that lacks assistance,
For the wrong that needs resistance,
For the future in the distance,
And the good it can do."

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS AS A FACTOR.

Prof. Fairgrieve said he had listened with interest to the discourses in reference to the welfare of our city. Having been a former resident of Fulton he had noted with pleasure the progress made during the past fourteen years, and had made up his mind that Fulton did nothing by halves. Education was his life-work, and he did not think it necessary to say anything in its defense before such an enlightened assemblage. From the time of the birth of the Christian era, Christianity and education had elevated nations to the highest pinnacle of success. In regard to his work in this city, he did not feel quite well enough versed with the situation to speak, and wanted to wait until he was more fa-

"Aunt Hannah's Quilting Party" as presented by the young people of Zion Episcopal church in Church's hall on Thursday evening, pleased the large audience present. Each scene was enjoyed, and the natural manner in which the different characters were portrayed brought forth applause from the spectators. The boquet which greeted Mr. William Carr upon his appearance, was apparently enjoyed by recipient and audience alike. The recitation by Miss Maud Washburn was received with favor, and the different spinsters, beaux, widows, &c., were most amusing. Dancing, in which a large number participated, was enjoyed at the conclusion of the play. A satisfactory sum was realized to add to the church building fund. Miss Woolley, who drilled the actors, is deserving of a great deal of credit for the degree of proficiency which they attained in their several characters.

Mrs. F. K. Jones has removed to her old home in Cayuga street, which was partially destroyed by fire in the Fall, but which she has had refitted.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Emeny of Salem, O., are receiving congratulations over the birth of a son—born on Tuesday.

Mrs. William Daun is very ill with erysipelas.

An alarm of fire on Wednesday evening called the fire department to the Opera House block where a lamp upset upon a couch had started a blaze in the store of S. Deippel. The firemen were at the Cayuga street station waiting for the special which was to convey them to Oswego where they had been called to assist in fighting the Kingsford starch factory fire, when the alarm sounded, and they responded quickly. The flames were soon under control but the store was damaged to a considerable extent.

Hunters throughout the northern portion of the state are displeased with the bill just passed by the Assembly, permitting the shooting of wild fowl on Long Island from Jan. 1 to April 1. Their contention is that if wild fowl are allowed to be shot in the Spring on Long Island they will be allowed to be shot all over the State in the Spring within two years. The bill is not fair to duck hunters in the central and northern part of the State. Long Island hunters are thus to be allowed to depopulate the waters of Long Island of ducks by shooting them in the Spring, and in the Fall, when other portions of the State are protected from Spring shooting.

SCHOOL NOTES

Nearly every school of importance in the State supports a paper edited by the members of the school under the guidance of the faculty. Such a paper developes interest among the students and parents, and gives valuable practice to its editors. Plans are being perfected by the Senior class to bring out a paper in March, and it is hoped that the business men of the city will respond liberally with advertisements. The following officers have been elected: Editor in chief, Robert B. Hall; assistant editor, Mabel Dominick; associate editors, Gilbert Benedict, Edward Cook, Lizzie McAllister, Helen Brown, Cassie Marsh. News concerning alumni of the school is requested.

A very enjoyable leap year party was given in Church's hall on Friday evening by the following members and graduates of the High school: the Misses Wooley, Murphy, Bacon, Skeel, Lake, Morrison, Parks, Barrus, Bonner and Brown. The patronesses were Mrs. Lake, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. McMurchey and Mrs. Woodin. About fifty couples were present and fully enjoyed the festivities.

The High school basketball team won a game from The Olivets of Syracuse on Thursday evening, by a score of 23 to 14.

Oswego's Loss.

The fire in Oswego on Wednesday night in which the Kingsford Starch factory was destroyed with a loss of nearly a $1,000,000, has proven a staggering blow for that city. One man sacrificed his life in the cause of duty; six hundred people are out of employment and thousands of dollars which were monthly paid to the employes will be missed, not only by the immediate factory force, but by all trades and professions as well. It is not known yet whether the plant will be rebuilt or not. The Oswego fire department found it was impossible to cope with the flames in the face of the strong wind which was blowing at the time, and they sent to Fulton and Syracuse for assistance. Fulton responded promptly sending a steamer, hose truck, 1,000 feet of hose and thirty men. Syracuse was about to send a contingent when word was received that they were not needed. The Ontario & Western railroad furnished the special train which conveyed the Fulton department to and from Oswego, absolutely free. A favor which Oswego is not slow to recognize and appreciate.

Oswego has seen many disastrous fires. Just a year to a day before the Kingsford fire, the Ontario Milling Company's plant was burned with a loss of $100,000.

The Uniform ball given by the Fire Department on Monday evening was a very successful affair although not very largely attended.

Dr. B. A. Loveless is confined to his home by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Waugh of Albany have been called to Fulton by the death of Mr. Waugh's father.

Mrs. Gertrude Slocum has returned from a visit to New York. She is recovering from an attack of la grippe.

Ernest, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stafford, has appendicitis.

The members of the Presbyterian Sunday school anticipate a straw-ride this evening. Supper will be served at the church.

Mrs. George P. Wells has been entertaining her aunt from New York City.

Mr. Ray Simons is recovering from an attack of appendicitis.

The Current Events Club will meet on Monday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Bacon. Messrs. L. W. Emerick and Thomas Hunter will have charge of the program.

Master Arthur Wolever pleasantly entertained a number of his friends at a valentine party on Friday evening, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wolever. Games were played and refreshments served.

Miss Caroline B. Nichols of the Concert company which was to have appeared in Stephen's Opera House on Monday evening, is very ill with rheumatism in a Buffalo hospital. The remainder of the company was stormbound between Syracuse and Fulton until 3 o'clock on Tuesday morning, so that the patrons of the Library benefit course were disappointed again. The Library course this Winter has been sadly interferred with by sickness, storms and other causes, for which the promoters of the course are by no means responsible. It is a matter of regret and mortification to them. Five entertainments will be given, all of which will be satisfactory, before the conclusion of the course.

BRILLIANT SOCIAL FUNCTION.

Reception Last Wednesday and Friday Evenings at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunter.

Perhaps the most elaborate social functions ever given in Fulton, were the receptions on Wednesday and Friday evenings at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunter in First street. The hosts and hostesses for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. James Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter. The home is one of the most spacious and perfectly appointed in this city and with its wealth of flowers, electric lights and beautiful fittings presented a most brilliant appearance to the hundred and seventy five guests who were in attendance each evening. The color scheme in the drawing room, Turkish room and parlor was pink and green, and roses, ferns, asparagus ferns and smilax were used in profusion. Ropes of smilax were suspended from every available place, the mantels were banked with smilax and roses, and huge boquets of roses were artistically placed. Pink candles in brass candelabra were used in profusion throughout these rooms. Dark pink carnations and smilax were used in the decorations throughout the upper part of the house. In the dining rooms red, white and green prevailed, and large crimson carnations were used in magnificent profusion. Red wax tapers in silver candelabra were used in endless numbers adding greatly to a scene of indescribable loveliness. A three piece orchestra furnished delightful music throughout the receiving hours which were from 8 to 9, and during the luncheon time. The guests were received in the parlor by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. James Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter, who stood in front of a mammoth bank of ferns, palms, foliage plants and roses. Mrs. Thomas Hunter wore a magnificent French pattern gown of cream lace over silk of the same shade. It was trimmed with green and pink applique and she wore diamonds and pearls for ornaments. Mrs. James Hunter's gown was of blue satin foulard with trimmings of white satin and lace, and she wore diamond ornaments. Mrs. William Hunter was gowned in a French organdie with trimmings of old lace, and she wore rubies for ornaments. Mrs. John Hunter wore a becoming gown of Nile green chiffon with rare lace trimmings and she wore diamonds. All of the ladies carried pink roses.

At 9 o'clock each evening a superb musical program was rendered consisting of the following numbers:

Piano Solo—Prof. Phillips.
Vocal Solo—Prof. Calthrop.
Reading—Miss Marguerite Case.
Vocal Solo—Prof. Calthrop.
Piano Solo—Prof Phillips.
Vocal Solo—Prof Calthrop.
Reading—Miss Beth Wooley.
Vocal Solo—Prof. Calthrop.
Quartette—Mrs. Hunter, Miss Hodges, Mr. Gilbert, Mr. McFarland; Mrs. Sawtelle accompanist.
Vocal Solo—Prof. Calthrop.
Piano Solo—Prof. Phillips.

The only change made was that Prof. Russell of Syracuse University on Friday evening presided at the piano, owing to the illness of Prof. Phillips.

Mrs. Sawtelle wore a becoming gown of white crepe de chine, with Duchesse lace trimmings. Miss Woolley wore an elaborate shirred gown of pink silk with lace trimmings. Miss Case wore a beautiful gown of white corded silk. Miss Hodges wore Nile green crepe de chine with red applique trimmings and red carnations.

On Friday evening, in observation of Lincoln's birthday, national flags were used in profusion in the decorations, and a large picture of the martyred president wreathed in flags occupied a conspicuous place in the reception hall. While the first table was seated Mrs. Thomas Hunter and Prof. Calthrop appeared in the dining room door singing the national anthem and the guests throughout the house took up the refrain. It was a graceful tribute on the hero's anniversary.

At the conclusion of the program, a five course luncheon was served in the spacious dining room and the library in which seventy-five guests were seated at once. The rooms were so exquisitely lovely with their decorations of red, white and green, their countless tapers and electric bulbs, magnificent damask, silver and cut glass, that involuntary exclamations of appreciation were heard on all sides. As far as possible, the color scheme had been carried out in the ices, cakes, opera sticks, salads, etc., and the effect was splendid. Mrs. Arthur G. Gilbert presided in the dining room; on Wednesday evening the ladies who assisted in serving were Mrs. George Webb, Mrs. C. C. Benedict, Mrs. C. M. Allen, Mrs. G. S. Piper, Mrs. Elmer and Mrs. Justin Morrill, Mrs. Mary Butler, Mrs. Tobey, Mrs. T. H. Marvin and Miss Adelaide Schenck. On Friday evening Mrs. Elizabeth McCully, Mrs. L. C. Foster, Mrs. G. W. Morton, Mrs. L. F. Joy, Mrs. I. C. Curtis, Mrs. Elizabeth Jewett, and the Misses [illegible] Lee, Franc French, May Gardner [illegible] Agnes Avery assisted in serving [illegible] guests. Miss Lucy Gilbert presided over the punch bowl and she was assisted by the Misses Hunter.

A Syracuse caterer was employed who served the following enjoyable five course luncheon each evening:

Bouillon Celery Wafers
Creamed chicken and mushrooms in timbales
Potato Croquettes Olives
Duchesse rolls Fruited nut salad
Spanish cheese balls with cherries
Cheese straws Neapolitan ice cream
Angel Food Macaroons Kisses
Red and white opera sticks Coffee

The "good nights" were reluctantly spoken at a late hour on Wednesday and Friday evenings. The four hundred invitations had been issued in Fulton, the only out of town guests who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hunter of Syracuse, and the formal affair was made comparatively informal by the cordial greetings of the hosts and hostesses, and the fact that the gathering was composed of neighbors and friends exclusively.

Newsboys' Banquet.

The third annual banquet of the Fulton Newsboys' Brigade, consisting of fifty members, will be held on Monday evening, Feb. 22, at 8 o'clock, in the Morton gymnasium, North First street. The public is requested to demonstrate its appreciation and approval of the services rendered by the boys by donations of either food or cash, which may be left with either Conley Bros., at their news rooms, or with Mr. Samuel Green. This is not a charity supper, but a well-earned recognition of the services rendered by the hustling boys, who are ever alert in their devotion to the public interest. The newsboys will assemble at Conley Bros. at 7.30 o'clock on the evening named. They will be led by the Fulton drum corps, and with colors flying will march to the hall.

Broom Company Incorporated.

The Koptop Broom Company of Fulton has been incorporated with the Secretary of State. The capital stock is placed at $100,000, divided into shares of $100 each. The directors are Messrs A. Bristol, Elmer Taylor, G. J. Emeny C. H. Wilcox, L. W. Emerick, T. H. Marvin and W. H. Pollard of this city. The directors will meet on Thursday and elect officers.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

A PECULIAR characteristic of Daniel J. Sully, the cotton king and leader of the bull movement which sent cotton to the highest point it has reached in many years, is that he keeps his watch fifteen minutes fast. It is a split second affair, and he works on the fast time of his watch. He goes to bed ahead of time, gets up ahead of time and is on the floor of the New York Cotton Exchange ahead of time, and it is said by the bears that he figures out the market ahead of time. There is nothing spectacular about Sully. He dresses quietly and his frock cutaway coat is made with many pockets. He is a great man for pockets. In the rush of business these pockets are stuffed with telegrams, cablegrams and reports. It is remarkable that when he desires to refer to any one of the multifarious papers he carries he can dig it out in a few seconds.

DANIEL J. SULLY.

On the floor of the exchange he holds an unlighted cigar between his lips, and it is believed that a combination of the tilt of that cigar and the position of his derby hat carries information to his brokers. Up to a couple of years ago Mr. Sully lived in Providence and was almost unknown on the New York Cotton Exchange.

The Lewis and Clark exposition, to be held at Portland, Ore., has a strong advocate in Senator John H. Mitchell of Oregon, who never misses an opportunity to sing its praises and to impress on congress the advisability of extending government aid to the enterprise.

SENATOR J. H. MITCHELL.

Senator Mitchell is a native of Pennsylvania, where he studied law and was admitted to the bar. Subsequently he went to California and in 1860 removed to Portland. He was for a time district attorney of Portland and later served four years in the state senate, the last two as president of that body. Senator Mitchell has had nearly twenty years' experience in the upper house of congress and is now serving his fourth term, which began in March, 1901. His last election, however, was only accomplished after an exciting contest, in which fifty-three ballots were taken, the result up to the last moment being doubtful. He believes there is a great future for the northern Pacific states and that the Lewis and Clark exposition will aid greatly in their development.

Senator J. B. Foraker of Ohio, whose bill to amend the antitrust law brought the statment from Attorney General Knox that the measure did not have the approval of the administration, is a veteran of the civil war and a steadfast friend of the soldiers of the sixties.

On one occasion when the committee on military affairs, of which Senator Foraker is a member, was considering bills to correct the records of soldiers, there was some sympathy expressed for pension applicants who had been disqualified through technicalities. "I know how it is," said Senator Foraker. "I might be debarred myself if I applied for a pension.

SENATOR FORAKER.

"When I tried to enlist I was only sixteen years old. They told me that eighteen years was the limit. I wanted to get into the army, and, as I looked to be older than I was, I confided my troubles and my desires to an old sergeant who was attached to the recruiting office. 'Here,' he said, 'you take this chalk and mark "18" on the soles of your shoes. Then, when the recruiting officer asks how old you are, you can say you are over eighteen.' It was quite a stretch for my conscience, but I did it just the same and was duly enrolled as eighteen years of age. Now, my record in the field is all right, but my official record is not, and therefore I might have a lot of trouble if I tried to get a pension."

Mayor Samuel M. Jones of Toledo, O., better known as "Golden Rule" Jones, is one of the most picturesque figures in the whole country. According to the testimony of his friends and followers, he comes nearer living up to the principles advocated in his favorite precept than any man in public or private life. He is intensely democratic and has no use for frills, as this incident illustrates: Just before New Year's some handsome charts and calendars were issued in Toledo, giving the names of all the city officers. One of these calendars was hung in the mayor's office, and a few days ago, while he was discussing affairs with several heads of departments, his attention was called to it. It bore in good sized type these words: "Hon. Samuel M. Jones, Mayor."

MAYOR S. M. JONES.

The mayor arose, deliberately took out his pocketknife, cut out the "Hon.," returned the knife to his pocket and went on with his discussion. The mayor is called "Golden Rule" Jones because the only rule for the government of his factory is the Biblical injunction: "Therefore, whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them."

George B. Cortelyou, secretary of commerce and labor, is of a diplomatic turn of mind. Indeed, his friends are of the opinion that if he had not made his mark in the political arena he would have made a record in the diplomatic service.

SECRETARY CORTELYOU.

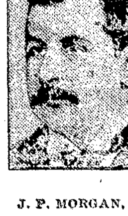
Secretary Cortelyou is not much of a talker. He generally is able to dispose of any matter in one short sentence, and he is as silent at the cabinet meetings as anywhere else. At a recent cabinet meeting he devoted four sentences to giving his views on reciprocity with Canada. The president listened in amazement. When Mr. Cortelyou was through Mr. Roosevelt exclaimed, "Why, Cortelyou, your loquaciousness is positively brutal."

Rear Admiral B. P. Lamberton, who has been relieved from command of the south Atlantic squadron because of failing eyesight, was Admiral Dewey's chief of staff during the memorable fight at Manila bay and occupied the conning tower during that engagement.

While in the Philippines Rear Admiral (then Commander) Lamberton was responsible for a joke that greatly amused the fleet. One day he suggested to Admiral Dewey that two captured Spanish gunboats should be given good American names. He noticed that in the navy department at Washington the very commendable custom of naming ships after colleges and universities had been adopted. Two ships had already had their names changed to the Yale and the Harvard, and he thought the same custom should be followed in rechristening the Callao and the Leyte. He suggested that the Callao be given the name Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Leyte the Pennsylvania College of Physicians and Surgeons.

REAR ADMIRAL LAMBERTON.

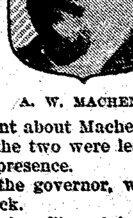
The return to this country of J. P. Morgan, Jr., is thought to presage the early retirement of his father and the succession of the younger man to the control of the great Morgan interests. Young Morgan has been reared in an atmosphere of finance, and his several years' experience in the London house of J. P. Morgan & Co. has put the finishing touches on a business education begun as soon as he left Harvard.



J. P. MORGAN, JR.

Jack Morgan, as he is called by his intimates, has his father's faculty for getting through a lot of work in a short time. In appearance the younger Morgan also is like his sire, being mighty in frame, six feet two in height, with a chest which is and a girth which promises to be ample. His eyes are small and full of shrewdness, but his other features are large. Both in business and out of it his reputation is that of a good fellow.

A. W. Machen, former superintendent of the free delivery service, whose trial for alleged irregularities in his office has attracted much attention, was appointed by President Cleveland in 1893, and, according to report, the appointment came about in this way: Machen had once been assistant postmaster at Toledo, and when the Democracy triumphed he went to Washington looking for a job. One day, after weeks had gone by, Governor Campbell of Ohio, a warm supporter of the one time assistant at Toledo, visited the White House, accompanied by a friend.



A. W. MACHEN.

"You forgot to speak to the president about Machen," said this friend as the two were leaving Mr. Cleveland's presence.

"That's so," said the governor, who thereupon turned back.

"Is that man still here?" exclaimed Mr. Cleveland, fondling the little curl upon the top of his forehead, as was his wont when in perplexity, when Governor Campbell brought up the subject of an appointment for Mr. Machen.

Mr. Cleveland was in a brown study for a moment. Then he opened a drawer of his desk and glanced at some papers.

"I see there is a place as superintendent of free delivery at $2,500 a year," said the president. "Would Mr. Machen take that?"

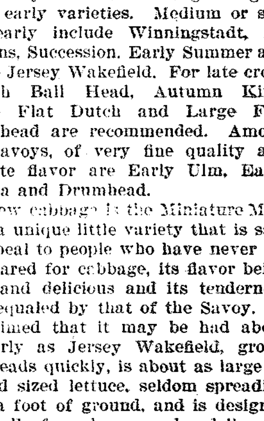
"Take it? He'd take anything you'd offer him," said the governor. "Try him and see." And so Mr. Machen landed.

FARM FIELD AND GARDEN

CABBAGE GROWING.

A Unique Little Variety of Delicate Flavor For the Home Garden.

In the northern states cabbage plants will do best when started early in hotbed, frame or greenhouse, from the last of February to April, and transplanted to the open ground May 1 to June 1. Still, some persons are successful in growing late cabbages, kale, etc., by sowing the seeds in hills in the open ground where the plants are to mature. Soil for cabbage should be rich and heavy loam, with good drainage. For early spring cabbage some prefer to sow in fall—not too early, or the plants are liable to bolt in the spring instead of heading. The plants are wintered in cold frames and transplanted as soon as the ground can be worked in the spring.



MINIATURE MARROW CABBAGE.

Early Jersey Wakefield, Early Spring and Early York are among the good extra early varieties. Medium or second early include Winningstadt, All Seasons, Succession, Early Summer and Large Jersey Wakefield. For late crops Danish Ball Head, Autumn King, Large Flat Dutch and Large Flat Drumhead are recommended. Among the Savoys, of very fine quality and delicate flavor are Early Ulm, Early Vienna and Drumhead.

A new cabbage is the Miniature Marrow, a unique little variety that is said to appeal to people who have never before cared for cabbage, its flavor being mild and delicious and its tenderness only equaled by that of the Savoy. It is claimed that it may be had about as early as Jersey Wakefield, grows and heads quickly, is about as large as a good sized lettuce, seldom spreading over a foot of ground, and is designed especially for a home garden delicacy.

BEES IN EARLY SPRING.

What to Do With the Cellar Wintered Bees—A Cleansing Flight.

Probably the most critical period for cellar wintered bees is during early spring. The long confinement of five or six months is very hard on bee life, to say the least. If a bee cellar is so arranged that the temperature can be regulated at the most favorable point it will be a great saving on the vitality of bee life. Should the bees become restless and begin to crawl about their hives or cluster on the outside of them it would indicate that they are getting uncomfortable on account of foul air, or the cellar may possibly be too warm. We would suggest opening the cellar windows at night and admitting cool air until the bees have formed a compact cluster inside of the hive. Bottom boards, of course, should have been removed when the bees were placed in the cellar; but, if this has been neglected, raise the body of the hive an inch or two all around to admit sufficient ventilation.

A great mistake is often made in taking the bees out of the cellar too early in the spring, as the weather is unsettled at this time, and a cold snap of a few days will be very apt to cause the colony to dwindle to almost nothing, if it does not entirely succumb.

We would advocate setting them out about the time soft maple and elm trees begin to bloom. If there are only a few hives they can all be set out at once. Select a pleasant day, so that the bees can enjoy a cleansing flight.

Bees often become sadly mixed up if a great number of hives are set out at one time, some hives getting too many bees and others not enough. If the bees are disposed to dysentery before setting out time has actually arrived, they may with profit be set out some pleasant day for a flight and then be placed back in the cellar toward evening.—F. G. Herman in Farm Journal.

Agricultural Teaching.

Teaching agriculture is a subject that is just now receiving serious and much deserved consideration. One who has practiced farming for some years knows what a fascinating pursuit it is, but very often his children fail to see it in that light. Our children nowadays are apt to be so much wiser than their fathers that they naturally take little interest in the humble occupations of a declining generation. Thus many a patrimony of wisdom is lost through being come into too early, and an unnecessary number of square pegs have their corners blunted in the unavailing effort to fit round holes. Parents have to a great extent given over the battle, and the child takes his ideals with his ideas from the schoolteacher. Now, the teacher is often quite the wrong person to be intrusted with a task of this nature. It is with the idea of improving this situation that the effort is being made to introduce instruction in agriculture into the public schools.—Country Gentleman.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Copartnership Dissolution

Whereas, The partnership heretofore existing under the firm name of Gage, Porter & Co., has been dissolved, and

Whereas, Said partnership has transacted business in this State for not less than three years, and

Whereas, The business of said firm continues to be conducted by the undersigned, who were members of said partnership, and two of the partners therein, under the same partnership name, pursuant to the statute in such cases made and provided.

Now therefore, In pursuance of the requirements of an act of the Legislature of the State of New York, entitled "An act in relation to partnership, constituting chapter fifty-one of the general laws," passed May 13, 1897, we, Frank L. Porter and William Gage Bennett, do hereby certify and declare that we are the persons using such partnership name and now dealing and intending to deal under such firm name of Gage, Porter & Co.; that the place of residence of each of us is Fulton, New York, and that the principal place of business of said firm is located in the city of Fulton, N. Y.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas, Default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the 1st day of December, 1902, made and executed by Mabelle Root, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage, with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, New York, on the 3d day of December, 1903, at 3:39 o'clock p. m., in Liber 203 of Mortgages, at page 68, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and,

Whereas, The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of eleven hundred seventy-three dollars and seventy-six cents ($1,173.76), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided, and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property, described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as lots numbers six and seven (6 and 7) of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, being twenty-five (25) feet in width on Second street. Also all that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, being part of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, bounded as follows: Beginning on Second street one hundred and twenty-eight (128) feet southerly from Seneca street, running thence easterly one hundred twenty-one and a half (121½) feet; thence southerly twenty-five (25) feet, thence westerly three and a half (3½) feet; thence southerly twelve (12) feet, thence westerly parallel with Oneida street to Second street; thence northerly along Second street thirty-seven (37) feet to the place of beginning," at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego, New York, on the 12th day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgagor, Robert H. Stowe. Mortgagee, Mrs. C. C. Pettis. Mortgage dated August 14, 1903, and recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the Clerk's office of Oswego County, N. Y., on the 15th day of August, 1903, at 8:25 a. m., in Liber 204 of Mortgages, at page 528. The sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is fifty one dollars and nineteen cents ($51.19), being the whole sum secured by said mortgage. (Said Mortgagee above named, also holds two prior mortgages upon the same premises, on which is unpaid the sum of $400, together with interest on $150, from February 14, 1903, and on $250, from March 18, 1903.)

The mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, and State of New York, known and described as Lot No. five (5) of block five hundred and four (504), according to the map of the village of Fulton on file in Oswego County Clerk's office. Default having been made in the payment of the sum secured to be paid by said mortgage, and no action having been brought to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof; therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained, recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said mortgaged property at public auction, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, N. Y., on the 2d day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said sale will be made subject to the lien of the above mentioned prior mortgages.

Dated, January 6, 1904.

Cheap Shelter For Sheep.

A cheap shelter will do for sheep in winter. An open shed facing the south and east on a high piece of ground to let the water run away from the building is the best. This is an ideal place to winter sheep. A tight board fence as a windbreak is better than a barn cellar or basement. A shed made of spruce boughs would answer the purpose well, but room enough must be provided. Sheep know very little. They should always have at least twice as much room as they would need if they were more intelligent. We need no feed racks. The clean snow is an ideal place to feed a sheep hay. Move the well shaken hay a little farther out each feed, and at every storm begin back at the shed, and always feed on clean snow. If you have a few roots, feed them whole. If you do not confine the sheep in a yard, and you should not, you need not bother about water. If they can always have clean snow, they will eat that and thrive, but without clean snow they suffer for want of water quicker than any other animal, says a New England Homestead correspondent.

A Good All Around Tomato.

Of all tomatoes grown, both for private or market use, I know of none that can excel the Dwarf Champion for earliness or productiveness. It is an exceedingly attractive fruit and of exceptionally fine flavor and a good one in a wet or dry season, says George Standen in American Gardening. The seed can be sown in flats about three inches deep in a light, not overrich, soil. I usually make drills with the forefinger about two inches apart, covering lightly and firmly with a piece of board or brick and placing in a temperature of 60 degrees at night and water with a fine rose water can. As soon as the seedlings have made their true leaves pot off into three inch pots in a compost of two-thirds loam and one-third well decayed manure, watering carefully and shading from the sun's rays till they have taken hold of the new soil, as they are liable to damp off if overwatered at this time. As soon as they have filled these with roots pot again into six inch pots, which is the final shift, using the same compost and potting rather firm, keeping them on the dry side at all times to promote strong, hard growth.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

NAPOLEON'S FIASCO.

CENTENARY OF THE FIRST CONSUL'S PROJECTED INVASION OF ENGLAND.

How the Fun Makers of a Century Ago Treated Friend and Foe—Queer Conceits of the Cartoonists—The Famous Flotilla.

Our British cousins are just now celebrating in a humorous way the centenary of the intended invasion of their tight little isle by Napoleon I. in 1804. The celebration, if such it may be called, consists mainly in the republication of the numerous caricatures and cartoons of the great Corsican, his army and fleet, which appeared in the public prints of that time.

While the British cartoons of 1803-04 would lead one to think that Napoleon was held in contempt and as a fit subject for laughter and scoffing, the invasion planned was serious enough, and there is no doubt that the preparations for it caused much alarm in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

In the rural districts of England the enthusiasm was prodigious, and country yokels were drilled with axes and pitchforks (a fact that did not escape the cartoonists, who made the most of it), and old guns which had not seen the light for years were furbished up pending the arrival of supplies of arms, for which subscriptions poured into the hands of local treasurers.

There was fear that some fine morning the tramp of the Frenchmen might be heard, and to guard against surprises beacons with which to flash the call to arms were established on every headland and hilltop. False alarms were not uncommon, and many an amusing tale is told of yeomen, swelling with patriotism, marching forth to meet a foe that never came.

So great was the excitement that the whole country became an armed camp. Citizens strode about with muskets on their shoulders, professors and students paraded on college campuses, and side arms were worn by judges and members of the bar.

In France, where the lust for conquest was rampant, the enthusiasm was intense. Veterans of many campaigns and conscripts from workshop and farm were gathered in the great camp at and near Boulogne to the number of 140,000. But to ferry the army across the channel was the difficulty. Once landed in England, Napoleon might have entered London, but that strip of water proved an insuperable obstacle.

In every port of France and Holland the building of transports was pushed. These were of various sizes, from vessels carrying thirty-eight sailors and 130 soldiers to small boats intended to hold five sailors and from fifty to sixty soldiers. Napoleon said that 2,000 of these craft would be required, but that number was never reached, although a great flotilla was gathered. So numerous were the vessels that it had been necessary to enlarge and deepen many of the French harbors to accommodate them. Then it was discovered that it would be impossible to get all of the boats to sea on one tide. Half of the great army would be forced to wait outside in their unstable boats for twelve hours before it could be joined by the other half. This was altogether too perilous an undertaking, and the projected invasion came to naught.

But all this gave the British cartoonists their opportunity, and they made the most of it. One of them pictured the army crossing the channel on a great raft. Another pictured Napoleon entering London seated on a horse, with his face to the tail and escorted by the Honorable Artillery company. John Bull and the pitchfork armed yeomanry also excited the humor of the artists, for they were impartial with their favors and struck friend as well as foe.

Napoleon's proposed invasion of England is now but a memory, and if it served no other purpose than to stir up the wits it certainly added to the gayety of nations in that respect. England and France are now good friends and can afford to laugh together at the war which never took place.

NOTES ON HOTBEDS.

What Can Be Grown In the Hotbed. An Early Start Desirable.

The question as to what can be grown in a hotbed often arises. Very much depends upon the kind of plants grown and how closely the space is occupied. For purposes of comparison a 5½ by 12 foot hotbed was used, and the kinds of plants were onions for transplanting, tomato, lettuce, radish, beets, cabbage, cauliflower, cucumber and melon. With the hotbed must also be included a cold frame of the same size. The bed was sown April 1 as follows: One sash of onions, two of tomatoes and one of lettuce, cabbage, cauliflower and radish. The onion seed of course was sown very late, which was bad practice, and the plants occupied the space until too late for further use. All seeds were sown four inches apart in drills. The tomatoes were transplanted when the second set of leaves appeared and simply occupied the same space as when standing in the drills.

May 3-4 300 plants were potted and removed to the cold frame, and the remainder were left in the bed until sold or otherwise disposed of. The potted plants were all used at home, and by an accident 150 of these were destroyed after planting in the open ground. These were replaced from the hotbed, and the remainder, mostly sold by the dozen, brought $7.50. A portion of the cold frame by filling and banking with manure was used for hotbed, into which the cabbage, cauliflower and lettuce were transferred from time to time. Of the cabbage and cauliflower plants 200 were planted out and the rest sold for 80 cents.

The first radishes were ready for use April 17, and thirty-two bunches were grown at 62 cents. These were followed by beets for transplanting. As the lettuce and cabbage plants were transferred to the second bed the space was used for cucumber and melon plants started in berry boxes. Forty-six in all were thus put in and later were transferred to the cold frame. Of the beets, sufficient were grown to set 200 feet of drill and onion plants enough to set 30 by 40 feet of space. The lettuce sold during the month of May amounted to $3.50. Considerable was also planted in the open ground of which no account is taken. These results are not to be taken as the maximum or minimum, but rather a medium of what may be accomplished with the hotbed and cold frame.

An earlier start would very likely have added considerable to the amount grown. There comes a time when plants will no longer thrive well in the hotbed, but will do much better in the open ground. So, generally speaking, there is much to be gained by an early start. For the kitchen garden, where only a bed or two will be found practical, then of course the time of starting must be arranged to accommodate the greatest variety of plants. One kind will require more time than some other, and holding plants in the beds after they are ready to go out for soil and weather conditions to become favorable is poor practice. Onions, for instance, for best results should have gone in four to six weeks earlier than April 1, as also lettuce and early cabbage. For extra early the tomatoes should have been started at least by March 15, and two crops of radishes might easily have been grown.—J. E. Morse in Rural New Yorker.

Don't forget the old man with the fish on his back.

For nearly thirty years he has been traveling around the world, and is still traveling, bringing health and comfort wherever he goes.

To the consumptive he brings the strength and flesh he so much needs.

To all weak and sickly children he gives rich and strengthening food.

To thin and pale persons he gives new firm flesh and rich red blood.

Children who first saw the old man with the fish are now grown up and have children of their own.

He stands for Scott's Emulsion of pure cod liver oil—a delightful food and a natural tonic for children, for old folks and for all who need flesh and strength.

AX HANDLES.

Heart or Sap Wood—Curved or Straight—Hanging the Ax.

When buying an ax handle always select one that is made entirely from the sap wood or the heart wood, but never one that is made partly of each, for it will split along the line of union. Handles made from sap wood are more elastic and better for chopping, and a man will not tire or get sore so quickly when using one, says an Orange Judd Farmer correspondent.

I prefer those made from the heart wood for splitting, although they are not so durable. The proper length and curve of the handle depend upon the habit and method of chopping of the user. With a long handle a man will strike a much harder blow, but with a short handle he will strike oftener, so there is practically no difference in the work accomplished.

The curve, too, depends upon the habit of the user. A curved handle has no advantage over the one that is perfectly straight. Most people prefer the curved because they are accustomed to its use. As a rule, the straight handle is more durable. The size of the handle depends upon the muscular development of the user. If it is too small it will cramp the fingers, and if too large it will lame the hands and wrists.

If one will examine the end of a piece of wood he will see that it is made of layers, each layer representing the growth of one year. Wood splits much more easily along these lines than across them; hence when selecting an ax handle always choose one in which the layers are parallel with the line of force, as shown in Fig. 1. If they are at right angles, as in Fig. 2, a few days' use will cause the handle to split along the dotted lines shown. The difference in quality in this respect is so marked that many dealers sort their handles and make the price of one about double that of the other.

In hanging an ax considerable attention should be paid to the kind of work which is to be done. For small wood hang an ax pointing in, as shown in Fig. 3. For very large trees hang it squarely across or at right angles to the handle, and for splitting, especially block wood, hang it out according to Fig. 4. This gives one a chance to strike a heavy blow squarely across the block, using the whole bit of the ax, and without making a tiresome bend of the back with every blow. The relative position of the blade and handle may be changed by inserting a small wedge in the eye of the ax, either above or below the handle, as occasion may require.

Relief in One Minute.

One Minute Cough Cure gives relief in one minute, because it kills the microbe which tickles the mucous membrane, causing the cough, and at the same time clears the phlegm, draws out the inflammation and heals and soothes the affected parts. One Minute Cough Cure strengthens the lungs, wards off pneumonia and is a harmless and never failing cure in all curable cases of Coughs, Colds and Croup. One Minute Cough Cure is pleasant to take, harmless and good alike for young and old. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Marketing Ducks.

In nine weeks ducklings should weigh four and a half pounds each and are ready for market. They should be marketed before the pinfeathers begin to grow, which is likely to occur after the ninth week. Ducks are best killed by cutting into the base of the brain at the roof of the mouth. Before killing the feet of the birds should be caught in a loop, with head hanging downward. Immediately after being killed the picking (dry) should be done. Care should be taken to prevent injury of any kind to the carcass.

Another Case of Rheumatism Cured by Chamberlain's Pain Balm.

The efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the relief of rheumatism is being demonstrated daily. Parker Triplett, of Grigsby, Va., says that Chamberlain's Pain Balm gave him permanent relief from rheumatism in the back when everything else failed, and he would not be without it. For sale by H. FARM·FIELD AND GARDEN

FOR THE HANDY MECHANIC.

A Simple Contrivance For Lifting Heavy Weights.

The illustration from Orange Judd Farmer shows what the writer calls his "little Samson," a contrivance for lifting heavy weights. It is described as follows; by studying the figures carefully any handy man can make the woodwork, while the iron parts can be left with the blacksmith:

No. 1 should be just six feet high. The planks for the sidepieces are 2 by 8. The blocks at the ends are 3 by 3 by 8 and firmly secured by four three-eighths bolts eight inches long. Now comes the important part. The two rows of holes as shown must be exact. Lay off the planks with two straight lines just four inches apart. Now lay the square on the plank so that the small blade will cross the two long lines and mark the entire length in one and one-half inch spaces, or just the width of the square blade. Now provide yourself with a one and one-eighth inch bit and bore straight through at every other junction of the sectional lines. This being finished, we will start on the other line and bore on the cross lines we skipped before, thus leaving the holes at an angle, as shown in the cut. There should be twenty holes in each row. The next will be two steel pins, C, measuring twelve inches long and one inch in diameter. They should be slightly pointed at one end and flattened at the other, as shown in No. 3.

For No. 2 the main iron should be five-eighths of an inch thick and four inches wide and twenty-four inches long, four inches wide from the point and extending back eight inches, where it should be made just three inches wide. On the lower edge at B are shown two pin saddles, which should be just four and a half inches from center to center. The upper hole for the clevis pin is one and three-fourths inches back of the front saddle. The clevis is made of three-quarter inch and the pin of one-half inch best iron. The clevis is nine inches long. The main hook is twenty-one inches long and is made of steel half an inch thick by one and a half inches wide, and the point should be liberally re-enforced.

We are now ready for the lever. This is made of 3 by 3 stuff and is seven feet long. Measure off two feet and commence tapering and rounding the remaining five feet, leaving the small end two inches in diameter. Now cut a mortise in the square end five-eighths of an inch wide and back sixteen inches. Around the square end place a snug fitting collar, A, made of iron ¼ by 1 inch. Now drive the large iron in the mortise and bolt it, as shown in No. 2. In No. 1, C shows the pins properly set for work. Our machine is now finished. All of the wood used in it should be of the toughest kind procurable. Mine is made of rock elm. The machine works equally well in pulling stumps.

miliar with the ground. Commercial and manufacturing enterprises were of vast importance to all, but the public schools were of vital importance to the community, and it should be the effort of all to make them factors of usefulness in the city.

THE CHURCHES AS A FACTOR.

Mr. Sawtelle spoke on the relation of the church to the welfare of the community. He frankly stated that he felt glad of the opportunity of meeting on such an occasion the men who stood for the material and commercial interests of the city, and that he felt the honor accorded to the church in the recognition given by the business organizations represented at the dinner, and not only the honor of recognition but the added honor of the recognition of her part in the work of creating and sustaining the strength of the city.

The speaker went on to more particularly characterize the function of the church, and to differentiate her work from that of the more distinctively commercial forces that combine to lend efficiency and character to the city's life. The field of the church was the field of morals and religion, and in her activities the church sustained a vital relation to every agency upon which the welfare of the municipality is dependent.

In conclusion the speaker compared the forces that had been instrumental in the making of world history, and showed how largely Christian thought and Christian sentiment had moulded and made public opinion and had been insistent upon the principles of righteousness. Every city, every nation owes a debt to the church. The church has kept keen the civic conscience, the church has steadied men in the time of pressure and crisis, the church has given to the city a noble body of men. She has sent from her house of prayer a host of men who are today the best friends of city and state.

B. C. BROWN'S TRIAL.

Jury Failed to Agree and Were Discharged—New Trial.

[Herkimer Democrat, Feb. 13.]

The jury in the Bert C. Brown arson case failed to agree and were discharged by Judge Devendorf, Wednesday forenoon, after having deliberated for 17 hours. A new trial of the case is set down for Wednesday of next week, court to convene at 10 o'clock. The most interest of any case in this county in years had already been awakened and in the coming trial even more will be shown. The contest of this case by both sides was most strenuous, but the coming fight is expected to make this fade into insignificance.

Marcus Rasbach of Herkimer, foreman of the jury, when they were called into court, said "We have not agreed and we will never be nearer the solution of the case than we are at the present time."

District Attorney Ward following the discharge of the jury moved again the trial of Brown on the same indictment. Defendant's counsel, A. M. Mills and H. A. DeCoster, labored hard for a long postponment, finally asking for at least a month. Judge Devendorf said, "I shall move the trial right away if the district attorney so desires." MARRIED.

Mr. William J. Graves and Miss Carrie Agnes Flynn were united in marriage in Syracuse on Jan. 23. They will make their home in Detroit, Mich.

On Sunday evening, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Fred Burden, 208 Hannibal street, Miss Eva May Lamphere was united in marriage to Mr. Emery G. Corbett, by the Rev. John Richards.

Miss Kathleen T. Bough and Mr. George W. Stoughtenger were united in marriage, Feb. 11, by the Rev. John Richards, at the home of Mr. Charles House, Fourth and Rochester streets.

DIED.

Editor A. P. Bradt this morning received word that his father, David H. Bradt of Hannibal, aged 93, was dead.

John Spratt, aged 84, died at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Arthur Bidwell in West Second street on Saturday evening. The funeral was held from his late home this morning. Interment will be made at Plainville.

George Hall, aged 69, died at his home in Seward street on Wednesday morning. The funeral services were held on Saturday afternoon. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah, Catherine, wife of Mr. Paul Deschamps, aged 73, died at her home in Oswego on Saturday. The funeral was held from her late home on Monday morning at 9 o'clock, and from St. Louis's church at 9:30 o'clock.

Maria Harrison, aged 73, passed to rest at her home in Second street on Thursday evening, after several years of semi-invalidism, although she was only confined to her bed for a few days after the death of her daughter Jennie, ten days ago. The funeral services were held from her late home on Sunday afternoon, a large concourse of friends who esteemed her for her many beautiful traits of character, attending. The Rev.'s W. L Sawtelle and James Vincent officiated. The deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. J. Boomer, and three sons, Messrs. William, John and Charles.

The death of William Waugh, which occurred on Friday evening at his home in this city, removes an old and esteemed resident; one who had borne his share of "the burden and heat of the day," and who might be called one of the pioneers in Fulton's prosperity and growth, as he had been actively identified with her commercial, moral and political life for fifty years. The deceased was born in the town of Jedborough, Scotland, on Jan. 9, 1831. He came to America with his parents when he was four years of age and resided in Rochester until 1854, when he removed to this city, where he has resided continuously ever since. While residing in Rochester, Mr. Waugh learned the paper makers trade and with his brother Edward started the first paper mill in this vicinity. In 1872 he erected a paper mill on the west side of the river on the site of the Schenck chain factory, and afterward erected the building now occupied by the Granby Paper Company, to whom he sold out five years ago. The deceased had not been actively engaged in business since, although he was intensely interested in all that pertained to Fulton's business life. He was a staunch temperance advocate and was actively identified with the Sons of Temperance when a lodge was instituted here. He was not a member of any church or secret society. In politics he was an uncompromising Republican and had served his party wisely and well. He was three times elected president of the village of Fulton and served for five years as trustee. For several years he was a member of the Board of Directors of the First National bank. During the Civil war he was president of the home guards of Fulton.

The death of Mr. Waugh which followed a long illness, during which he sustained two strokes of paralysis, makes the first break in a family of eight children, the youngest of whom, Mr James Waugh, is 57 years of age. The deceased is survived by his widow, two sons, Messrs. E. A., of Albany and Willard of Old Mexico; three brothers, Messrs. Edward, John and James of this city; four sisters, Mrs. Ella Wolever and Mrs. Hannah Fish of this city; Mrs. Mary Warner of Rochester and Mrs. Peter Smith of Amsterdam. The funeral services were held from the late home on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the Rev. John Richards officiating. An appropriate vocal solo was rendered by Miss Franc LaLonde at the rites. The bearers were the Messrs. Guy, Percy, Harry, Ralph, Bruce and Don Waugh. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah.

A bill has been introduced by Assemblyman Whitney, amending the game law so as to add a new section to be known as section 73a, which provides that nets may be used from May 1st to December 1st in the waters and bays of Lake Ontario in the towns of Sandy Creek and Richland, Oswego county, except the waters within half a mile, either way from the mouth of the Salmon river, and except within one-half mile, either way from the mouth of the outlet of Big Sandy Pond; provided that a net shall not be sat or used until a license therefor has been granted by the State Forest, Fish and Game Commission. The license fee will be one dollar and a single license may be for five nets.

"Tip-up" Fishing Legal

Assemblyman T. D. Lewis informs the Times that it is legal to fish in Lake Neahtawanta with "tip-ups," under section 59 of the game laws.

MAYORALTY CONTEST

M. A. Thompson Seeks His Certificate of Election---Arguments For and Against the Proposition Before Justice Rogers.

The case of the People ex rel. Marvin A. Thomson vs. William M. Hinsdale, city clerk of Fulton, came before Justice Watson M. Rogers for adjudication at Utica last Saturday. The action was brought through Attorney Giles S. Piper, of the firm of Piper, Rice & Wilson. The city's interests were taken care of by Attorneys W. S. Hillick and F. G. Spencer.

The action was instituted to compel City Clerk Hinsdale to file the certificate of election and oath of office of Marvin A. Thomson as mayor of the city of Fulton. City Clerk Hinsdale was instructed to await a decision of the courts before complying with the request, as he had been advised that Mr. Thomson was not eligible because his name did not appear on the last assessment roll of the city, and the charter expressly stipulates that it must so appear. Therefore, when the certificate and oath were applied for Jan. 14, Clerk Hinsdale refused to deliver.

Attorney Piper contended that the clause in the charter was unconstitutional. "If the Legislature can say that the mayor of Fulton must own real estate, it can also say that he must own $100,000 worth," Mr. Piper said. "How much better does it make a man," continued Mr. Piper, "if his wife owns real estate? The city charter states that a mayor or his wife must own real estate. A man is no more efficient if his wife does own property. Mayor Thomson is the owner of large interests in Fulton. He is one of three partners, owning an undivided interest upon which he pays taxes. The State Legislature has no [illegible] that the mayor of Fulton [illegible] that he cannot be mayor unless he owns real estate. This special provision is applied to but a few cities of the State. Its intention was to secure responsible men, but it has worked out very foolishly."

City Attorney W. S. Hillick argued the case for the city, stating that the legislative intent of the measure was to safeguard the interests of the city. He said: "The office of mayor of the city of Fulton is a creation of the State Legislature, and the Legislature can limit that office. The provision making the ownership of real estate necessary in order to be mayor is entirely unconstitutional. Not only must the mayor own real property, but he must be assessed. These two qualifications are inseparable. If this motion is granted certain officials will refuse to leave the office, and the city will be thrown into a bad muddle."

Attorney F. G. Spencer stated that Mayor Foster, who is at present holding office, is the only legally-elected mayor. If Mr. Thomson is granted his certificate he will go on and organize the city officials," Mr. Spencer said. "He will name the twenty odd offices in his power and we will have two city governments residing side by side. That is the chaos that would result. The reason that the Legislature made it compulsory for the mayor of Fulton to own real estate was to have a man who appreciated the feelings of the taxpayer and recognize them in making up the regular tax budget."

Justice Rogers gave the attorneys three days in which to submit briefs.

Attorney W. S. Hillick also appeared in two ex-parti applications, which were granted: Joseph McGowan of Syracuse was appointed referee in the action of Everett A. Gladman vs. Geo. J. Gladman. One of the parties to the action resides in this city and the controversy arose over a note and an account. The other case was the discontinuance of the injunction restraining the Common Council of this city from selling a franchise for a street railroad.

Kindly Take Notice that Ely's Liquid Cream Balm is of great benefit to those sufferers from nasal catarrh who cannot inhale freely through the nose, but must treat themselves by spraying. Liquid Cream Balm differs in form, but not medicinally from the Cream Balm that has stood for years at the head of remedies for catarrh. It may be used in any nasal atomizer. MR. BROWN'S SECOND TRIAL.

But Little New Evidence Presented By the Prosecution Thus Far.

The second trial of Bert C. Brown was begun at Herkimer last Wednesday and has been continued with the exception of Monday, which was a legal holiday. The evidence of guilt thus far has not been any more convincing than was submitted on the first trial, when the jury disagreed. The testimony and witnesses have been practically the same.

The case was commenced on Thursday by District Attorney Ward, who dwelt at some length upon the technicalities thrown around the defendants in criminal actions, saying it was almost impossible to get a conviction.

Attorneys H. A. DeCoster and A. M. Mills represent the defendant.

Broom Factory.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Kap-top Broom Company' held on Thursday afternoon, the following officers were selected: President, Louis W. Emerick; vice-president. T. H. Marvin; secretary, W. H. Pollard; treasurer, Almon Bristol. Mr. Bristol will also be business manager. Mr. Elmer Taylor will be superintendent of the factory, which will be located in the Bristol carriage shop now being remodelled and placed in order for the new industry. Mr. Taylor will spend several weeks in the parent factory in Brooklyn, studying methods and means, before commencing work here. Machinery and broom corn are already enroute to this place, and it will not be many weeks before another industry and undoubtedly a paying one, will be added to Fulton's list. It is thought that about two dozen men and women will be employed in the factory and several salesmen will be engaged. The capital stock of the company is $100,000 with shares at $100 each.

Friday evening Messrs. Davis and Cox were opponents, and Dr. L. F. Joy and R. L. McCully played against each other, with the result that Mr. Davis scored 50 to Mr. Cox's 46 in the first game, Dr. Joy won from Mr. McCully by 50 to 45. The high runs were made by Messrs. Davis and McCully, each running 7 in their respective games. Last evening the cues were held by Messrs. W. C. Burns, Thomas Van Delinder, M. A. Blodgett and E. A. Putnam. In the first game Mr. Burns defeated Mr. Van Delinder 50 to 29. High run, Mr. Burns, 8. The second game was won by Mr. Blodgett, winning from Mr. Putnam by the score of 50 to 39. High runs, 5 for each. The next games will be played on Friday evening.

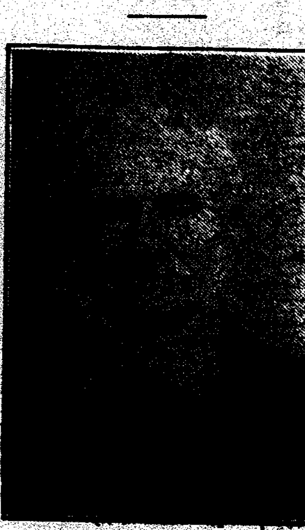
DIED.



DAVID H. BRADT.

Last week the Times briefly announced the death of David H. Bradt, the oldest resident of Hannibal, if not of Oswego county. The death occurred at his home in Hannibal on Wednesday morning. The deceased was in his 94th year, and had been well and hearty up to within a short time before his death. He was esteemed by all who knew him for his uprightness of character and honesty of purpose. Mr. Bradt had been a resident of Hannibal since 1863, and had served as justice of the peace for two terms. He was a successful market gardner and was the originator of the famous "Hiram" raspberry, which is unequalled. The deceased is survived by two sons, Editor A. P. Bradt of the Observer, and Mr. W. I. Bradt of Hannibal. The funeral was held from his late home on Friday, the Rev. James Vincent officiating. Interment in the Hannibal Cemetery.

Mary T., wife of Mr. Almon T. Wilcox, died at her home two miles south of West Fulton on Tuesday.

Catherine Buttimer, aged 22, died at her home in Syracuse last Friday, of peritonitis. Her remains were brought to this city for interment in St. Mary's [illegible]

Mary N. Brooks, aged 79, died on Saturday at the home of her son, Mr. Arthur C. Brooks. The funeral was held from her late home on Monday afternoon.

Alzina Hannibal, aged 80, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cornelious Goodrowe, on Thursday after a long illness. The funeral was held on Saturday.

Susan B. Mitchell, aged 72, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Bisuett in Fifth street on Monday. The funeral will be held from her late home on Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Interment will be in Mt. Adnah.

Samuel Bakeman, aged 67, died at the home of Mr. Charles Gates near Ingalls Crossing on Friday. The body was removed to N. R. Cole's undertaking rooms on Monday and were later placed in Mt. Adnah, receiving vault.

In the death of Henry H. Highriter at his home on Rochester street, last Saturday, Fulton has lost another esteemed resident. The deceased was 83 years of age and had been in feeble health for several years. He is survived by a widow, who is ill; two sons—Henry A. of Chicago and Frederick B. of this city. The funeral was held from his late home on Tuesday afternoon, the Revs. John Richards and S T. Dibble officiating. The bearers were Messrs. M. V. Connell, J. M Hewitt, S. B. Whitaker and Eber Hubbard. Interment in Mount Adnah.

Roy McDonnell, aged 19, died at his home in Watertown on Monday of last week, after an illness of four weeks with typhoid fever. The body was brought to this city for interment after being snow bound on the railroad for three days. The deceased was formerly employed in the Hunter arms factory and was respected by all who knew him. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Ellen McDonnell of Watertown, and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. John B. Mussy, Miss Margaret, Bertha and Pauline McDonnell of Watertown; Frank and Fred McDonnell of this city, Mrs. William Foster of Oswego and Mrs. John T. Burns of Denver, Col."

Grace May Candee, sister of Messrs. Cleveland and Norman Harding of this city, died at her home in Volney on Monday, leaving three small children, the youngest not yet two months old. The deceased had been in failing health ever since the death of her husband in November, and after the birth of her baby she steadily failed until the end came. She was a young woman and her death is particularly sad. The sympathy of all go out to the poor little orphans and the bereaved relatives. The funeral will be held Thursday at 2 o'clock at her late home. Her remains will be placed in the receiving vault in Mt. Adnah cemetery until Spring, when burial will be made in Volney.

No Rapid Transit Extension.

At the February meeting of the directors of the Rapid Transit Company held in Syracuse recently, General Manager Connette is reported to have announced that there will be no extensions to the company's lines this year. It this plan is carried out it means that the matter of connecting Oswego and Syracuse by trolley will not be realized this year.

Railroad Tax.

County Treasurer Moore announces that the total amount of taxes paid by the three railroad companies running into Oswego, for State and County taxes was $32,781.54. Of this amount the New York Central Railroad Company paid $18,019.25, the Ontario & Western, $7,985.18 and the D. L. & W. $6,827.11.

Trolley Election.

The Syracuse and Ontario Railway Company has filed in the Oswego County Clerk's office a certificate of election of the following directors; Charles M. Warner, Arthur R. Peck, Edward Joy, Edward M. Trump, W. B. Rockwell, H. Bartels, Jr., C. Blaine Warner, W. Judson Smith and William R. Johnson.

Good News for West Side Residents

Chinese Neutrality

On Feb. 19 the following answer was received from the Russian government:

"The imperial government shares completely the desire to insure tranquility of China; is ready to adhere to an understanding with other powers for the purpose of safeguarding the neutrality of that empire on the following conditions:

"Firstly, China must herself strictly observe all the clauses of neutrality.

"Secondly, the Japanese government must loyally observe the engagements entered into with the powers, as well as the principles generally recognized by the law of nations.

"Thirdly, that it is well understood that neutralization in no case can be extended to Manchuria, the territory of which by the force of events, will serve as the field of military operations."

On the same day the state department sent the following telegram to the governments of Russia and Japan communicating its purport to the other powers interested:

"The answer of the Russian government is viewed as responsive to the proposal made by the United States as well as by the other powers, and this government will have pleasure in communicating it forthwith to the governments of China and Japan, each of which has already informed us of its adherence to the principles set forth in our circular proposal"

Beecher and Emerson.

One day Mr. Beecher was dining beside Emerson and said, "Mr. Emerson, when you are eating this fine beef, can you tell by the flavor what kind of grass the ox ate?"

"Why, no, of course not!"

SCHOOL NOTES

The report from the January Regents has been given out; 742 students tried the examinations and 492 passed. This is an improvement over last January.

A portion of Falley Seminary has been leased by the Board of Education for the purpose of relieving the congested condition of the High school, and complying with the law. It has not been decided which grades will be transferred to the Seminary.

The High school basket ball team went to Walton on Monday evening and played the High school team of that place with the result that the visitors were defeated by a score of 10 to 14, after a splendidly contested game.

At the last meeting of the Alpha Kappa fraternity an interesting debate was enjoyed on the subject, "Resolved, That the railroads of this country should be controlled by the government." Mr. Willis Morin lead the affirmative and Mr. Reagan the negative sides. The arguments were well sustained and the affirmative side won. A reading by Mr. Dennison was a pleasing feature of the program. The fraternity paper was read at the conclusion of the program by Mr. Dunham.

Common Council Proceedings

A meeting of the Common Council was held last evening, when the Finance Committee accepted the annual reports of the Commissioner of Charities, the Fire and Police Commissioners and the City Clerk.

The payment of the Bradshaw judgment was authorized, as was also some old village bills.

The Building Inspection Committee was given further time and an adjournment was taken until next Tuesday evening.

New Shoe Firm

Messrs. Myron A. Stranahan and Ralph F. Van Buren, under the firm name of Stranahan & Van Buren, will take possession of the shoe store on Oneida street now occupied by E L Lamb & Co., on March 1. They will place on their shelves an entirely new line of Spring foot-wear, and as they are most popular young men with a large circle of acquaintances, they will undoubtedly receive a large patronage. The formal opening of the store will occur on Saturday, March 5.

Woman's Exchange.

A new branch has been added to the many lines already established at the Woman's Exchange, 161 South Second street. Orders will be taken for rolls, choice cakes and bakestuffs for family consumption, or for parties. Favors for teas, card parties, etc., can be ordered and satisfaction is guaranteed. At present in the Exchange can be found articles for infant's wear, and orders will be taken for articles to be made according to the taste of the person ordering. Many choice things for Easter gift-giving already on exhibition. Do not purchase elsewhere until you have inspected these articles.

Dramatic Club to Again Entertain.

The play given in the Volney Grange Hall last week by the Dramatic Club was such a signal success that it will be repeated, by request, at the same place this Friday evening, Feb. 26. Two new numbers will be added and a good time is assured. It is hoped the hall will be again filled, as the purpose is to secure sufficient means to build new sheds for the better protection of the horses, and it is a laudable one. Tickets, 10 cents.

Surrogate's Court.

The inventory in the estate of the late Albert Warren has been filed and shows that Mr. Warren left personal property to the amount of $23,264.07, and real estate worth $2,200. The transfer tax on the estate amounts to $254.64.

The will of the late Laura A. Newman, who died at Hannibal, July 9th, 1903, has been filed for probate. Letters were issued to George Arthur Newman, of Syracuse. The petition shows that Mrs. Newman left real estate to the amount of $3,000, and her will leaves the entire property to her husband during his life time, when it is to be divided among her children.

Estate of Edward B. Currie, letters issued to Hiram W. Salisbury.

The last will and testament of the late Frank M. Baker has been filed for probate. Mr. Baker died at Denver, Col., on December 4. His estate, valued at $1,000 real, is bequeathed to his widow.

When You Have a Cold.

The first action when you have a cold should be to relieve the lungs. This is best accomplished by the free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This Remedy liquefies the tough mucous and causes its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs, produces a free expectoration, and opens the secretions. A complete cure soon follows. This remedy will cure a severe cold in less time than any other treatment and it leaves the system in a n... al and healthy condition. It counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. For sale by H.C. The American Boy for February.

The American Boy for February with its title page showing boys snowballing, its skating story, "The Honor of the School," its "How to Hunt Muskrats," and its first chapter of a biography of Washington, is a model February number for a boy's paper. Other timely features are an illustrated article entitled "Get ready for the Flowers," written by Dr Hugo Erichsen, a short biographical sketch of Lieutenant-General Adna R. Chaffee, and a description of "Tarbucket night," Connecticut's pet name for Washington's birthday, further chapters of Kirk Monroe's famous story, "The Blue Dragon," the editor's "Three Yankee Boys in Ireland," "The Drawing Room Magician," and "How to Become Strong" appear in this number. Other stories which serve to make the paper one of the most interesting that has yet appeared are "The Life of Blackbird the Omaha," an Indian story; "Spike Hennessey," a dog story; "A Crack Military Company," telling of the Mountain Springs Rifles; "A boy's voice and how to preserve and train it," "Teaching boys and girls how to use both right and left hands," "Quakers try to solve the Doukhobor problem, Uncle Sam's young men in King Menelik's court," "A Winter Enterprise," "A Prairie Adventure." "On the Little Sweet Water." "Through the ice on a duck hunt." The first half of a two-part article on "How to make tackle for trout and bass fishing," by J. Harrington Keene, will attract the boys' attention. All the regular departments are well represented, viz.: "The prize contests," "The Order of the American boy," "Stamps, coins and curios," "The boy photographer," "Boys at home and school," "Boy money makers and money savers" and The American Boy Lyceum, and a splendid puzzle department. $1.00 per year. Deceptions of Wild Birds.

Falcons, hawks—the largest species—can compress their features and look very slim if they think it necessary to do so. As to the owls, they can hump up into any position they think most suitable. It is useless to look for these self preserving traits in any of the family kept in zoological collections, for the birds are so accustomed to see large numbers of people passing and repassing or standing in front of them that they treat the whole matter with perfect indifference. They know that at a certain time their food will be brought them and that they are otherwise perfectly safe. Then the raptores in a wild state have a bloom on their plumage like the bloom on a bunch of grapes which is not often seen when in captivity.

Perfect Confidence.

Where there used to be a feeling of uneasiness and worry in the household when a child showed symptoms of croup, there is now perfect confidence. This is owing to the uniform success of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the treatment of that disease. Mrs. M. I. Basford, of Poolesville, Md., in speaking of her experience in the use of that remedy says: "I have a world of confidence in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for I have used it with perfect success. My child Garland is subject to severe attacks of croup and it always gives him prompt relief." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

THE MIKADO'S ARMY

ONE OF THE MOST PERFECT MILITARY MACHINES IN THE WORLD.

Officered by Skilled Captains, and Every Private a Patriot—Nerve of the Japanese Soldier—The Wealth of the Nation.

The Japanese army, universally acknowledged to be one of the most complete pieces of military machinery in existence, is hardly less renowned than is the superb navy. The war department, under the supervision of Count Masatake Terauchi, is amply equipped with leaders of proved ability, men who have won their way to the top by trial on the field of battle.

One of the foremost of Japan's war captains is Count Iwao Oyama, Terauchi's chief of staff, who was formerly minister of war. General Kodama, assistant chief of staff, who has been appointed commander in the field, is a noted fighter. He distinguished himself in the late war with China and was at one time governor of Formosa. Other conspicuous military leaders are Major General Nadzu, Major General Fukushima and Field Marshal Yamagata, not to mention General Katsura, the present prime minister of the empire.

Whether all these will take the field is problematical, but it is certain Generals Nadzu and Fukushima will have important commands. Count Oyama, it is thought, will remain in the war office, where Field Marshal Yamagata's advice will be in demand.

The Japanese soldier is probably the most patriotic fighter in the world today. Faithfulness to duty is one of his chief characteristics. Indeed to the Japanese mind there is no glory to be compared to dying for one's country. His nerve never deserts him. At the siege of Port Arthur in 1894 one of the Japs managed to get on top of a wall and then, not hesitating, dropped down on the other side among the enemy and drew the bars of a gate, which he opened to his comrades, who had been sure they would never see him again.

During the same war a young officer who had distinguished himself in Korea by bravery in battle was given important dispatches to take home as a mark of special favor. So chagrined was he at the prospect of being absent while fighting was going on that he committed hara kari. He was quite unable to appreciate the honor his emperor had conferred upon him. His idea was that fighting was the only thing. Bearing dispatches seemed only work for coolies.

Forecasters of the probable outcome of the war between Japan and Russia have frequently affirmed, while admitting Japan's military strength, that her resources would not stand the strain of a prolonged war. In view of the real facts of the case this does not seem to be a good estimate. The Japanese people will lay down every dollar of their savings in their country's cause.

Nor is Japan's wealth solely sentimental. Relatively she may be said to be one of the richest countries of the world, surpassing every other except France in the rigid economies of life and in the proportion of savings to the earnings of the people. It is only in the aggregate of her wealth that she is distanced by the nations of the west.

Japan's army is a homogeneous machine. Its quartermaster and commissary departments are said by experts to be simply perfection, and the whole army moves like clockwork, so nicely is it adjusted. Four hundred thousand such soldiers in such an organization can give even gigantic Russia a fight to be remembered.

And Japan has prepared for war not only with cannon and ammunition, but with information. Some Englishmen in Vladivostok had a Japanese "boy" for many months. Last year, much to their surprise, they met him in Tokyo in the uniform of a Japanese officer. And there are many such. As peddlers and barbers they have swarmed in Manchuria for several years.

General Count Oyama, chief of staff, is a nobleman of the second class. He is tall and stout and a fine specimen of the Japanese soldier. His military career has been brilliant, and he has seen much active service. He commanded the army that put down the rebellion of 1876, and for this he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant general. Later he was appointed minister of war, and in 1884, while holding that office, he visited New York.

General Oyama's wife, formerly Miss Stematz Yamakawa, was educated at Vassar. She came to this country in 1872 and spent eleven years here.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

The Difficulties Faced by the Russians

A War of Magnificent Distances. How the Czar's Fighting Men Are Handicapped

THE present struggle between Russian and Jap, like that between Boer and Briton, is a war of magnificent distances. There is another resemblance, for it is also a war between giant and pygmy, between David and Goliath. Every one knows that the British Goliath, contrary to the Scriptural ending expected by Oom Paul Kruger, overwhelmed the Boer David, but at this writing no one can foretell how the present apparently unequal contest will end.

The magnificent distances in the present war, as in the South African struggle, are serious stumbling blocks in the path of the greater nation's success, for Russia's vast superiority over Japan numerically is overcome in no small measure by the appalling length of her lines of communications. She is a very tall giant, and she is drawn out so thin that strength is turned to weakness. Her Baltic fleet, to re-enforce the Russian squadron at Port Arthur, China, must steam a distance equal to half around the world. This formidable voyage of 12,000 or 15,000 miles from the Baltic to the Yellow sea is one of the magnificent distances of the campaign. Another is the 1,500 miles of sea that stretch between Vladivostok, Russia's harbor in Siberia, and Port Arthur, her new base in Manchuria, the important port she and other powers compelled Japan to surrender after it had been captured from China.

Still another of the magnificent distances is the journey by rail between St. Petersburg, the Russian capital, and Port Arthur. Her Transsiberian railway, covering nearly 4,000 miles, and its southern branch, the Chinese Eastern railway, running through Manchuria to Dalny, Port Arthur and Vladivostok, a distance of about 1,500 miles, are both single track roads, and the task of transporting soldiers, munitions of war and food supplies many thousands of miles over such roads and through desolate icebound wastes is one to strain to the utmost the strength of the Russian Goliath. According to Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, who passed through Manchuria and Siberia not long ago, these railroads are well built, the snows are not as severe as along our Northern Pacific in winter, and the country is not very rough or mountainous.

"The Transsiberian railroad, in my judgment, is capable of moving about 5,000 men a day," General Miles said recently. "But this would not include supplies for them. The road could be used five days in a week for transporting soldiers and two days in moving supplies for them. The ration of the Russian soldiers looks very much like a loaf of very dark rye bread. They eat very little meat and apparently do well on the food they receive. There is plenty of rice about Port Arthur, and they could live on that, as the Japanese soldiers do, pending the arrival of other supplies. The formation of the country about Port Arthur is very much like that of our New England coast, and the climate is similar. The snowfall is not sufficient to block trains. On my trip across the Siberian railroad I saw no snowplows or snowsheds along the railroad line until we were close to Moscow."

But even General Miles' roseate view of the situation does not change the fact that transporting an army 5,000 miles and keeping it from starving to death are very serious propositions for Russia to solve.

A weakness not mentioned by General Miles is the vast number of men required to guard these thousands of miles of railroad through Manchuria and Siberia. Hostilities had barely begun before an important bridge on the Manchurian line was blown up by the Japs, and that they will cut the railroad many times during the war is to be expected. The Manchurian line above Dalny and Port Arthur runs along the shore of the Yellow sea for miles and is thus open to Japanese attack by strong landing parties, while passing trains may even be shelled by Japanese ships stationed miles from land.

It is also said that many Japanese disguised as Chinamen are at work along the lines in Manchuria and Siberia and that they have secretly mined the roadbed and the bridges at many points.

The Russians thoroughly appreciate the difficulty of guarding a single line of railway of such great length; indeed, their military position bears a striking resemblance to that of the British in South Africa, where Field Marshal Roberts and General Kitchener had to keep an enormous number of troops on watch duty along the railroad from Cape Town to Johannesburg. The Siberian and Manchurian lines are very lightly laid—a weak point, which the Russians recognize—and the chief danger is of a breakdown under the pressure of the enormous military traffic.

For months past soldiers and military stores have been sent from Russia to the far east in such numbers that the ordinary traffic of the Siberian railway has been entirely suspended, a state of things which the officials endeavor to explain by stating that the permanent way on the Manchurian section has been seriously damaged by heavy rains and that many of the bridges have collapsed. Yet the Manchurian section is considered to be the best laid part of the Siberian railway, the bridges in particular being substantial works.

Of Port Arthur itself Lord Ronaldshay, who recently returned to England from the far east, says: "It is not necessary to be a military expert to recognize that Port Arthur is practically impregnable. The chief danger is of its being starved out and cut off by a breach in the lines of communication. The only way in which Port Arthur could be taken would be by landing troops north of Dalny and establishing across the peninsula a cordon in the rear while simultaneously blockading the place from sea.

"While I was in Manchuria it was quite evident that every preparation was being made for war. I was told on good authority that so far back as August last there were 200,000 Russian troops in Manchuria, and immediately ahead of me another six train loads of soldiers had passed over the railways. As I traveled along the line I found that at most of the stations there were trains crowded with troops, and in many cases the soldiers were living in the trains owing to insufficient barrack accommodations."

That Russia already has a vast army in Manchuria is beyond question, but whether it is any better prepared for war than her unfortunate navy remains to be seen. Not long ago there was a report that because of poor food and quarters and inadequate medical supplies her soldiers in Manchuria were "dying like flies," but she has a war strength of about 5,000,000 men to draw upon, and there will be plenty of new men to take their places.

Vladivostok, one of Russia's two important Pacific ports, is icebound during part of the winter and will be of little use to her in a winter campaign despite the efforts of the great ice breaking steamers she utilizes in attempting to keep the harbor open. Then, too, the short route for the 1,500 mile trip from Vladivostok to Port Arthur is through Korea strait, a narrow passage only about 100 miles wide between Korea and Japan, and, as this strait is dominated by Japan, it will be of little use to the czar's fighting men.

In the struggle Japan is not hampered by long lines of communications. It is but a few hours' sail across Korea strait from Japan to Korea; the distance from Nagasaki, Japan's great naval base, to Port Arthur is only 585 miles; from Nagasaki to Fusan and Masampho, at the southern terminus of the railroad she is building from Fusan to Seoul, Korea's capital, is only 200 miles, and from Nagasaki to Chemulpo is 300 miles. In short, the entire theater of war is at Japan's very door, and, situated as she is on well guarded islands, she seems to be fairly safe from the danger of invasion. Napoleon found the narrow British channel all too wide to permit of a successful invasion of England a century ago, and Russia faces a similar situation.

Not So Gleeful.

"Well," answered the youth with longish hair, "that's what we call it, but no one seems very joyous when we sing."—Washington Star.

A FAMOUS FIRE FIGHTER.

Chief Croker of New York, Who Has Been Reinstated In Office.

Edward F. Croker, who was removed from the office of chief of the New York fire department more than a year ago and has just been reinstated by the courts, is one of the best known fire fighters in the country and was unanimously chosen president of the International Association of Fire Engineers in 1902.

Fire Chief Croker, who is a nephew of Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany Hall, received his appointment as a private in the New York fire department in June, 1884. Six weeks later he was made an assistant foreman and in a little more than two years was advanced to the post of foreman. In July, 1893, he became chief of battalion, in 1898 deputy chief, and the following year, at the age of thirty-six, he was appointed chief of the greatest fire department in the world.

Although a relative of the Tammany leader, the young fire chief's rapid advance was due to merit alone, his promotion having been won by hard work. His record in the department was excellent, and as a fire fighter he was brave, cool and resourceful. In the winter of 1887 he saved a woman from a third story window by taking her down to the street by means of a scaling ladder when it seemed almost impossible that either could escape. He made a similar rescue in 1898, taking a man from a fourth story window on a scaling ladder at the imminent risk of his own life. He has been burned and injured a number of times while in the performance of his duty. Fire Chief Croker is a born fire fighter and has original ideas as to methods. He gives his orders personally to the companies in their positions, going from one to another and ascertaining just what execution each stream is doing and what volume of fire is to be contended against at each point.

He comes by his fire fighting proclivities by inheritance, as his great-great-grandfather, Thomas Hamilton, was chief of the New York fire department in 1811 and left an excellent record. At the meeting of the International Association of Fire Engineers in 1902, which chose Mr. Croker president, no other candidate was mentioned, and his election was made the occasion for a great demonstration in the convention.

CHINA SILK TEA GOWN.

Design For Stylish Garment Suitable For Summer Wear.

We are becoming so English in our ideas and habits nowadays that "teaing" at 5 o'clock has become quite an American social custom.

The charming tea gown illustrated is of pink china silk trimmed with large diamonds of tucked silk outlined with broad lace insertion. The deep flounce, tucked at the top, is finished with a full flounce of lace at the bottom.

The square collar and short sleeves are also trimmed with deep flounces of the lace.

Dainty summer negligees, which make life during the hot weather livable, carried out after this design in lawn or dimity, but less elaborately trimmed, would be comfortable and pretty.

FARM & GARDEN

A WAGON BED.

Useful For Carrying Stock and In Other Farm Work.

Some of his neighbors built a wagon for carrying sheep and hogs which proved so convenient that a correspondent gives its dimensions and plan in New England Homestead: The frame for the bed is 14 feet long and 3 feet 8 inches wide. The sidepieces are of 7 by 2 inch stuff and the end pieces of WAGON BED.

6 by 2 inch, allowing an inch difference for tongue and groove flooring. There should be four crosspieces to secure the bottom of the bed. Take an old buggy tire and have straps made with a hole in each end. Five of these should be bolted on each side and two on each end, as shown in cut. Standards which are to slip into these are made of 1½ by 2 inch stuff 40 inches long.

For slats get poplar four inches wide by three-quarters inch thick. Bolt these to the standards four inches apart. The top railing is made extra strong by putting on an extra strip which has a quarter inch groove. A tenon should be cut in the top of each upright to fit into this. The corners at the top should be fixed with ordinary strap door fastenings bent around the corner, fastened at one end and with a staple over which to slip the other. These can be held in place by small wooden wedges to fit the staple. By means of this strap fastener at the corner the sides and ends can be quickly unfastened and taken off, and the bottom can then be removed with ease. The wagon will carry twenty sheep or hogs at a load. I have also found it most useful in farm work. Taking off the sides, I have a good bed for holding fodder, tobacco and other things. Aside from your own labor it is very inexpensive.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

Some Things They Are Accomplishing—The Independent Institute.

The demand for farmers' institutes is genuine when local communities are willing to pay all expenses in case the state is unable to grant their requests, says Alva Agee in National Stockman. In the first week of January I attended two such meetings in Indiana while on my way to Minnesota. The first one was at Carthage, and it has not been my privilege to be present at a more enthusiastic meeting anywhere this season. There is a sufficient number of the Friends at Carthage to remind one constantly of towns in Chester county, Pa. Evidences of prosperity are on every hand. The last few years have been exceptionally profitable ones in the corn belt, and the farmers are very glad that they are on earth.

At this institute we had Mr. S. F. McMahan and Mrs. Virginia Meredith, two veteran institute instructors of the state. Mr. McMahan probably knows as much about corn as is known, and that means a great deal. It has been a revelation to me to learn how thoroughly these breeders of corn have studied and developed this grain. They are after an ear of corn that is so formed that it contains a high percentage of grain that is rich in protein, high in vitality and very prolific. That means deep, wedge shaped, thick grains, with big germs, all placed on a cob that holds its thickness to the tip and that is covered with grain to the very tip. There are states farther east whose corn growers would be pleased and profited by the information Mr. McMahan has about our great American cereal.

Mrs. Meredith is a farmer and a breeder of Shorthorn cattle whose reputation extends over many states. She has been successful because she has ability and a love for her work. From her example we do not infer that women should or should not turn to farm management for a livelihood. All depends upon the individual. We do learn, however, that if an individual has ability and natural inclination that person may win in practical farming, whether man or woman.

The other independent institute was at Pittsboro, Ind., in the corn belt, where hogs have been adding to the wealth of the people. Many ladies attended the meeting, and the institute committee arranged early in the season to secure Mrs. J. W. Bates, one of the well known Indiana workers, to discuss topics of special interest to housekeepers. The interest of the people in all subjects on the programme was of the sort that should cause all speakers to do their best work.

American Oriental Trade.

A consignment of 400 tons of mess beef, the first shipment of an order for 2,000 tons to go to the Russian army in Manchuria, has left San Francisco. In addition to this an order has been placed for 4,000,000 pounds of American flour. The latter is to be shipped to supply depots of the Japanese army. In a talk before the Minnesota state agricultural convention at Minneapolis President J. J. Hill of the Great Northern railroad dwelt upon the importance of American farmers holding the oriental trade already built up. The railroads are doing their part, he declared, by making equitable rates westward Flour can be shipped 30 cents cheaper from the northwest to the Pacific than to New York.—Exchange.

GROWING ONIONS.

The New Commercial Method—Sowing In Hotbeds and Transplanting.

Onions have proved an extremely profitable crop in many sections. Following is advice from the Kansas experiment station on the manner of growing them:

The best soil is a rich, sandy loam, as free as possible from weeds. A well cultivated field of sandy loam that has been well manured with stable manure for several years will grow good onions. Onions should never be put in a soil that is foul or that has been too recently fertilised with barnyard manure unless the manure has been well rotted. Ground that is intended for onions this year should be plowed very early in the spring and disked later. The ground should be well cultivated just before the onions are put on the land.

There are two methods of sowing seed. The old way was to sow in drills in the field as you would peas or other garden crops. After this the fight with the weeds was sure to disgust the cultivator of onions. In the end we had sacrificed many of the plants in trying to kill the weeds and of course had a very poor stand for onions. During the past few years the cultivators of onions for commercial purposes have been growing their onions in hotbeds and then planting them out in the field. Some of the advantages of this method are: (a) The crop matures earlier; the seeds may be sown in the hotbeds in February; (b) the onion transplants with as much ease as any of the garden plants; (c) it materially increases the yield, because of the more even stand and because of the choice of the better seedlings for the row, where, if we allowed them to grow in drills, the stronger ones are liable to come up too near together to allow them to grow, and many of the best plants are destroyed, while the weaker ones grow up where we want the stronger ones; (d) it does away with the task of weeding, thus making the production cheaper. By actual experimentation it has been found that the cost of maturing the crop when transplanted is somewhat less than when the seeds are sown in drills in the field.

The temperature of the hotbeds should be below 80 degrees when the seeds are planted. When the seedlings are of a size to set out, which will be in about six weeks, the ground should be thoroughly cultivated, so as to kill all the weeds that may be starting. The ground should then be laid off in rows eighteen to twenty inches apart. Onions will stand a great deal of crowding, and some growers put the rows as close as twelve inches and the plants three inches apart in the rows.

HE BELIEVES IN MAINE.

The Price of Land and Water Very High In California.

Evidence of the many advantages possessed by New England farmers is afforded by the experience of Mr. S. Warren Fuller of Kennebec county, Me. Speaking to an editorial representative of the New England Homestead, who recently visited him at his farm, Mr. Fuller said that after a trip across the continent he had concluded that he could best serve his own interests by continuing farming in Maine.

Mr. Fuller stated that he went to California with the idea of buying a farm if the conditions proved suitable. On reaching California he made a very careful inquiry, the results of which convinced him that he could do better by remaining in Maine. The price of land and water in California is very high. Land well set with orange or lemon trees in bearing cannot be bought for less than $500 per acre. Land within one mile of the city by trolley is worth $1,000 per acre and sometimes more. Many people only own a quarter acre lot.

The large number of Chinese vegetable gardeners make it impossible for Americans to raise vegetables for a living, as they cannot live on the small returns the Chinese gardeners do. Mr. Fuller found that there are two classes of farms. On one little but grain is raised, and the farmers do not patronize the irrigation companies. Last year these farmers raised the first good crop in many years. The other class of farms is where the farmers procure water, often long distances, from irrigation companies, for which they have to pay greater or less amounts. The cost of water in a dry season comes very high.

Where land naturally has more or less water it is so valuable small farmers cannot afford to buy it. The custom seems to be for farmers to make a specialty of one or two crops, and the result is that when bad years come they suffer seriously. Many of the growers appeared to Mr. Fuller to be on the verge of bankruptcy.

How to Use Nitrate of Soda.

Here is what some of the advocates of nitrate of soda advise: A handful of nitrate, or about four ounces, scattered evenly over eight square yards of ground, or, say, at the rate of 150 pounds per acre, is a moderate application and may in many cases be increased with advantage. For facility of distribution the nitrate may be mixed with an equal quantity of fine dry earth.

Agricultural Notes.

It is claimed that rye yields more nitrogen to the soil than does clover or any of its kind except the lupin.

In transplanting from the hotbed into flats use rich soil in the latter to push the plants along.

Plowing sandy soil compared with merely disking proved profitable in tests with oats in Ohio. The use of nine to ten pecks of seed per acre gave better results than the use of a smaller quantity.

IN spite of cynics and pessimists the President believes that we can start digging the Panama Canal within six months.

UNION veterans in all parts of the country have cordially thanked the President for giving good appointments to General John C. Black and "Corporal" Tanner of the G. A. R.

THE Chicago Coliseum, where the Republican National convention will be held, June 21, will seat 10,000 people. Some 230 desks for newspaper men will be grouped in a semi-circle around the platform.

RICHARD P. HOBSON, who is running for Congress in Alabama, on the strength of trying to choke Santiago harbor with a collier, has challenged Congressman Bankhead to meet him on the vociferous hustings. Vociferosity is not Bankhead's forte, and he declines.

BOTH parties in Congress eagerly applaud the magnimity and honesty of Representative Shaforth (Dem.) of Colorado for peremptorily resigning his seat because on careful inspection of the returns he had concluded there was dishonesty by which he had unconsciously profited.

IT is a habit of Americans to look upon China as irredeemably backward. But the old Empress goes tooting round in her automobile, illuminating her parlors and streets with electric light, calling up her ministers with a "Hello!" at the telephone, and sending her grandchildren out through the [sa]cred city on bicycles. However, her dreams must be disturbed by a knowledge of the fact that Japan is trying to seize Corea, Russia to hold Manchuria, England to benevolently assimilate Thibet, France to annex Kwangsi and the Yunnan, and Germany to make Shantung her own.

THE action of Secretary Hay in trying to protect the territorial integrity of China and to limit the area of hostilities in the East, has met with the approval of all governments. It was a brilliant diplomatic stroke, startling in its directness and sincerity of purpose to the nations interested, but wise in the extreme. Secretary Hay has won the admiration of the world by his skilful diplomacy and those who have been schooled in the art do not hesitate to accord him a full measure of praise.

PETITIONS are being received by Congress from several States, praying for the establishment of a parcels-post—an arrangement by which the post-office can carry packages up to a hundred pounds, instead of merely four pounds. In this respect the United States is far behind other civilized nations. A large package of a hundred pounds can be sent from London not only through England, Scotland and Ireland, but half way round the globe for about half what it costs to send a four-pound parcel fifty miles in this country. The same is true of Germany.

SENATOR HOPKINS' judgment is that the recognition of the republic of Panama and the negotiation of the treaty were matters exclusively for the President and outside the jurisdiction of the Senate. He said there had been fifty-eight rebellions in Panama in fifty years. He regarded President Roosevelt as one of the greatest men who had ever occupied the White House, and predicted that in another generation Democratic Senators, in denouncing Republican presidents, would [class] Roosevelt with Grant, Lincoln [and] Washington.

CORRESPONDENCE.

ABOUT PROPOSED CHARTER AMENDMENTS.

EDITOR TIMES—I notice our honorable member, Mr. Lewis (at the request of a few city office-holders) is having the city charter amended in order to increase the pay of the police each $5 a month, and the local papers seem to think the amount of increase so small and the police so greatly overworked that no taxpayer will object. Now the proper way to find out just what the taxpayers think of the scheme is to give them a chance to express themselves by a vote on the question. Call a meeting or an election at the City Hall (for taxpayers only) to vote on the question. If a majority vote in favor of the raise, then it should be satisfactory to all, and if the charter is to be changed in this particular, I would say change it so as to enable the Board of Aldermen and Mayor to increase or diminish the pay of any employe of the city, as they think proper, at any time.

But it seems to me there is just as much reason and as good excuse for increasing the pay of other employes as the police. The police knew when they took the job just what pay they were to receive, and they all seemed anxious for the position, and I judge none of them would willingly give it up even if the price were not increased. Neither would they, if they could, sell out their chance to another man for a nice bonus, because they know enough "to keep a good thing when they have it." If salaries are to be raised why not begin with the Mayor and Aldermen, who are supposed to be our best and wisest business men; whose time is money to them—and they have spent some money for cigars, etc., to get elected. They must dress fairly well to appear in public meetings and on public occasions, especially at the parades of the G. A. R. and the firemen's annual. All these things cost more or less, and we cannot expect to retain the services of such men as have favored and served us for the past two years for any length of time; they cannot afford it; it is asking too much to expect it. Such men as Ex-Alderman Taylor, who served on the Board for two years, and was one of the most active members, declined a renomination last Fall, as he did not feel able to spend the time for the pay he received, and no doubt we have lost the services of other good men for the same reason.

Our court stenographer—a young lady—I am told receives but $3 a day (or session of the court). I think her pay should be increased with that of police, as none of them could do as well if they sat up all night in a warm office.

I am in favor of letting the people have something to say about changes to be made, especially the schemes to raise taxes.

The whole city business, from the start, has been run by a few cheap politicians and law students, who pay but little or no taxes, and the people are not allowed to vote on any question, even the adoption of the charter. It an opportunity had been given them to vote on the question of a change from a village to a city, I judge they would have voted no by a round majority.

TAXPAYER.

[In giving space to the foregoing it must not be understood that the Times endorses the sentiments contained therein. Assemblyman Lewis was petitioned by a large number of taxpayers to pursue the course he did in reference to an increase of pay for the policemen.—ED.]

GRANT'S SYMPATHY.

Tribute of a Southern Woman to the General's Kindly Nature.

The sympathetic side of General Grant's nature, as every one knows, was very strong. A few days after the surrender of Vicksburg a southern lady hurried to his quarters to ask for information about her husband, of whose safety she had heard conflicting reports. The general replied that he could not give her the information she desired, but that he would send an orderly at once to find out the facts for her. When the man returned with the news that her husband was safe the southern woman's eyes filled with tears of gratitude, while tears of sympathy showed on the cheeks of General Grant. On another occasion—it was years after—at a banquet in Vicksburg given him when he was making a tour of the southern states one was heard expressing her gratitude to him for past kindnesses. As he replied to her two tears rolled slowly down his cheeks.

For little children and old people General Grant showed special sympathy. Many who were small foes in those days remembered his way of drawing them to him and impressing a kiss on cheek or brow.

One old lady who afflicted her friends by her propensity for smoking was often the recipient of a good cigar from him. The gift was fully appreciated, as the general's stock was always of the best. When he was ill in Washington she sent him some wild flowers "from the hills of Vicksburg," for which a letter of thanks was promptly returned. Subsequently, when she visited Washington, she was [illegible] received by the president, who, to her delight, presented her with some more of his good cigars.—Helen Gray in Leslie's Weekly.

SOLAR HEAT WAVES.

The Sun and the Hot Stove Pour Out the Same Kind of Energy.

So far as I know no reasons at all for doubting the high temperature of the central body of the solar system have ever been found. There are in general three distinct ways in which heat can be transferred from one body to another—conduction, convection and radiation. The first two are dependent upon the presence of matter. The latter will take place across a perfect vacuum.

We may receive heat from a stove by all three methods. If we place our hands upon it we receive heat by conduction; if we hold them above it they are warmed by convection, the heat being brought to them by the rising current of hot air; if now we stand in front of the stove we still feel its warmth, the sensation in this case being produced by the heat waves which it emits. These waves are similar to the electric waves used in wireless telegraphy, differing from them only in their length. They bear the same relation to them as the ripples on a mill pond bear to the Atlantic rollers. With the instruments at our disposal at the present time we can measure the length of these waves as accurately as we can measure the length of a table with a footrule, and we can prove that they will pass through a vacuum, a plate of glass or a tank full of liquid air without losing their ability to warm our hands. We find, however, that if we pass this radiant heat through certain substances—water vapor, for instance—its intensity is diminished owing to the fact that some of the waves have been absorbed. It is possible to determine the exact length of the waves of heat which have been removed by absorption in the vapor, and if we test the radiation which comes to us from the sun we find that waves of this same length are absent, the water vapor in the earth's atmosphere having refused to transmit them. This fact, taken alone, is pretty good evidence that the sun and the hot stove are pouring out the same kind of energy.—R. W. Wood in Harper's Weekly.

CHINESE PROVERBS.

A vain woman is to be feared, for she will sacrifice all for her pride.

A woman without children has not yet the most precious of her jewels.

A haughty woman stumbles, for she cannot see what may be in her way.

A woman desirous of being seen by men is not trustworthy. Fear her glance.

Respect always a silent woman. Great is the wisdom of the woman that holdeth her tongue.

Trust not the woman that thinketh more of herself than another. Mercy will not dwell in her heart.

A mother not spoken well of by her children is an enemy of the state. She should not live within the kingdom's wall.

A woman that respects herself is more beautiful than a single star; more beautiful than many stars at night.

The Tables Turned.

A story is told of a high Indian officer who was in the habit of soundly thrashing his servants when they displeased him. One day he ordered his khansamah to go to a summer house in the compound and wait for him there, presently turning up with a heavy horsewhip. He then addressed the offender:

"Now, you scoundrel, I've got you in a place where no one can hear, and I'll just thrash you within an inch of your life!"

The servant, though a man of powerful physique, squirmed, native-like. "Sah, you sure no one can hear?"

"Yes, you scoundrel; I've brought you here on purpose!"

"Then, sah, I think I thrash you!" And he did it so thoroughly that his master was not visible for a week.

The Humorous Suabians.

"Next to the Americans," said Max Nordau, "I think that the Suabians are the most humorous people in the world. A Suabian if he has nothing funny to say keeps silent. Stupidity is unknown among this race.

"One night in Suabia in my early youth I called on a Suabian maiden. She was very pretty. Perhaps I stayed longer than I should. Suddenly, at any rate, the young girl's mother called in a loud voice from upstairs:

"'Gretchen! Gretchen!'

"'Yes, mother,' Gretchen answered.

"'Gretchen, it is very cold here. Will you ask that young man to shut the front door from the outside?'"

An Unselfish Husband.

Conjurer (pointing to his cabinet)—Ladies and gentlemen, I now call your attention to the great illusion of the evening. I will ask any lady in the audience to step on the stage and enter the cabinet. I will then close the door. When I open it again, the lady will have disappeared, leaving no trace. Husband (to his wife)—Matilda, my love, do oblige the gentleman and walk up.—London Telegraph.

Always Had It.

"Has your husband a birthmark or anything of that kind by which he may be identified?" asked the detective.

The deserted wife reflected a moment.

"Yes, sir," she said. "He has a sort of hangdog look on his face, and it was born with him, I guess."—Chicago Tribune.

WAY TO SAVE DOCTOR'S BILLS

Physicians Give Free Advice by Which Parents May Profit

It was an association of gentlemen, professionally physicians and chemists, all of whom were born in the drug trade, so to speak, and who have been connected with it all their lives, who first gave to the world Castoria, which as every one knows is a pleasant and effective remedy for the ailments of infants and children. It has always been recognized as a meritorious preparation, and its research has been the greatest popularity ever enjoyed by any remedy ever put upon the market; attained, not by flamboyant advertising or appeals to ignorance or vulgar prejudice, but by inherent merit. All physicians recommend it, and many, very many, prescribe it.

Many parents call in the family physician. Many other parents take advantage of what the physician told them when he was first called in consulation. All good family physicians say: "Give the children Castoria." Healthy parents know this remedy of old, for they took it themselves as children. It was more than thirty years ago that Castoria made a place for itself in the household. It bore the signature of Charles H. Fletcher then, as it does to-day. The signature is its guarantee, which is accepted in thousands of homes where there are children.

Much is printed nowadays about big families. Dr. William I. McCann, of Omaha, Neb., is the father of one of these much-read-about families. Here is what he says:

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Charles H. Fletcher has received hundreds of letters from prominent physicians who have the same esteem for Castoria that Dr. McCann has. Not only do these physicians say they use Castoria in their own families but they prescribe it for their patients. First of all it is a vegetable preparation which assimilates the food and regulates the stomach and bowels. After eating comes sleeping, and Castoria looks out for that too. It allays feverishness and prevents loss of sleep, and [illegible]

Medical journals are reluctant to discuss proprietary medicines. Hall's Journal of Health, however, says: "Our duty is to expose danger and record the means for advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health by regulating the system, not by stupefying it, and our readers are entitled to the information."

Mr. Charles Buskey of West First street was attacked with hemorrhage of the heart while engaged at his duties in the woolen mill on Friday afternoon, and fell face downward upon a loom. The machinery was in operation, and before it could be stopped his face was badly cut and bruised, although no bones were broken. He was removed to his home and Dr. Huffman called to attend him. He is seriously ill as the result of the heart trouble and the shock.

Eliphalet Guile, who is slightly deranged as a result of ill health and over-work, and while in this condition struck his wife on Tuesday, severely bruising and cutting her, was sentenced to sixty days in the Oswego jail to recuperate. Drs. Lake and Gladman examined him but could find nothing to warrant them in committing him to the insane asylum, although they believed that he should be separated from his family until he recovered. Mrs. Guile is under the care of a physician as the result of her injuries. Commissioner of Charities Green is caring for her and her three children.

The newsboys banquet in Grace Chapel on Monday evening was an enjoyable event in their history. The boys serve the patrons of the different daily papers faithfully, and it is the pleasure of the residents to donate toward this festive occasion each year. The Rev. Samuel Green who was the originator and promoter of the plan is certainly to be complimented upon the success of the entertainment, as it means work in plenty to arrange all the details for a dinner at which so many are fed. Nothing was left undone to provide pleasure and plenty for the boys.

On Monday, Feb. 15, a jolly party gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Marin on Seneca street, to celebrate the christening of their infant son, Henry Isadore. The Revs. Albert and Perlemen of Syracuse were present. Among the out of town guests in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Swartz, Mrs. Fried, Mr. Bloom, and Mr. Roseniott of Syracuse, Mr. H. Waldhorn of Watertown. Among the Fulton guests present were Dr. Cusack, Mr. H. Rosenbloom, Mr. and Mrs. S. Waldhorn, Mr. Kaplan, Mr. Altman, Mrs. Grom and Mr. Emile Waldhorn. A sumptuous dinner was served by Mrs. Waldhorn. The baby received many valuable gifts.

Mr. John Atwater was pleasantly surprised at his home on Friday evening by a number of his friends.

The friends of Mrs. Emily Pooler, who fell on an icy sidewalk several weeks ago and fractured her hip, will be pleased to learn that she is recovering a rapidly as could be expected.

The year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. George Whalen sustained a fractured elbow joint on Friday as the result of being lifted from the floor by its hands by a member of the family. Dr. A. L. Hall was called to attend the little sufferer.

The Universalist ladies are holding a sewing society and business meeting this (Wednesday) afternoon at the home of Mrs. John W. Pratt, 177 South First street. Matters of interest to every member of the Ladies' Aid Society will receive attention.

A number of Mr. George Currier's friends surprised him at his home on Wednesday evening. A pleasant evening was spent with whist and refreshments. Prizes were won by Miss Eva McCormack and Mr. Thomas Vandelinder.

On Thursday afternoon, from 3 to 5 o'clock, there will be a joint session of the W. H. M. and the W. F. M. societies of the First M. E. and State Street churches, for the observance of the day of humiliation and prayer. An interesting program has been prepared and all the members and friends of the societies are expected to be present.

Mr. Ezra Cole of Utica street was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Syracuse, on Monday to undergo an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Cole is an employe of the Hunter Arms Company and Mr. Thomas Hunter has taken an active interest in the case, making the burden of the expense at the hospital as light as possible.

Mr. A. Bristol has purchased a large interest in the Schubert Bros. Gear Company of Oneida and has been elected treasurer of that corporation. Very many improvements will be made in the plant this Spring. A new factory building, 140 feet long and four-stories high will be constructed of brick, and it is proposed to increase the number of employes from sixty-five men to over one hundred. After this year the principal manufacturing for the Fulton, Syracuse and Auburn carriage repositories will be done at Oneida; the purpose of the consolidation being to cheapen the cost of manufacture. This does not mean that the quality will depreciate in any way, but rather that the excellent reputation enjoyed by the Fulton Buggy Company's vehicles will be maintained and the purchaser benefited. The carriage repository of A. Bristol & Son will, we are pleased to state, remain in Fulton.

The Syracuse Musical Association membership has been increased from 300 to 700 members, who each agree to pay annual dues of $10, thus insuring funds with which to carry on the festival of music in the Spring without a deficit, as has been the case during the past three years. The residents of this vicinity are commencing to more thoroughly appreciate the splendid opportunity presented them each year by these music lovers of Syracuse, to hear for a small cost some of the best soloists of the day, as well as a splendidly trained chorus of three hundred voices. Larger crowds than ever from here will attend the several concerts at the coming Spring festival.

Miss M. A. Wilde, whose parlor lecture on "Ceramics" was thoroughly enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience last June at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Grant, has written a book, entitled, "Descriptive notes for china lovers." The work takes up the history, classification, marks, etc., in a very interesting manner, and yet in such a condensed form as to make it invaluable as a reference book to those who wish to keep in close touch with the Ceramic art. Copies of the book may be procured of Mrs. J. H. Woodin, 311 Rochester street, or of Mrs. A. H. Grant, 169 South Fourth street. Price, 50 cents.

JAPAN'S JACK TARS.

THEY CHALLENGE THE WORLD FOR DARING AND SKILL.

Russians No Match For the Seamen of the Mikado—Two Famous Fighters Who Directed the Battle of Port Arthur—Japan's Naval Strength.

The brilliancy and dash with which the Japanese opened the war in the far east have won the admiration of the civilized world and have added greatly to their reputation, already established, as fighters of cool nerve and quick action.

Japan's naval armament consists of seven battleships, eight armored cruisers, which to all intents and purposes are battleships, and a large fleet of protected and unprotected cruisers, destroyers and torpedo boats, all splendidly officered and manned. The torpedo attack on the czar's fleet at Port Arthur is without parallel in naval warfare, and its dire results to the Russians speak well for the skill with which it was planned and carried into effect.

Vice Admiral Togo, who was in command of the Japanese in the opening engagement of the present war, is an officer of wide experience and possesses the confidence of his subordinates as well as that of his government. He has the reputation of being a man of great energy and decision and a determined fighter.

In the war with China, 1894-95, Admiral Togo also struck the first blow on the sea. He was then a captain, commanding the Naniwa, rated a second class cruiser, but in reality a converted vessel, with little armor and a battery that would now be counted too heavy for her. The Naniwa was attacked off the Korean coast in July, 1894, by the Chinese cruiser Tsi Yuan, but beat her off with great damage to the Chinese ship.

A few days later the Naniwa fell in with the British steamship Kowshing, chartered as a transport by the Chinese and carrying stores and troops to

REAR ADMIRAL KAMIMURA.

Korea. Captain Togo fired blank shots as a signal for the Kowshing to stop. The captain of the Kowshing obeyed, but when he was ordered by Togo to follow the Naniwa the Chinese officers on board compelled him to disobey. Neither would they permit the British officers to leave the ship. To board her would have been a very dangerous undertaking for the Japanese crew. She was thereupon torpedoed and sunk.

Admiral Togo played a part in the battle of the Yalu river which brought him fame and glory. His ship fought in Admiral Tsuboi's light squadron and received a shell in one of her coal bunkers, suffering, however, but little loss or damage. The fire of this squadron was deadly to the weak Chinese ships and was responsible for the destruction of the Chih Yuen and King Yuen.

All through the battle the Japanese gunnery appears to have been very good, and Admiral Togo's ship was one of those that most distinguished themselves.

Admiral Togo was one of the popular heroes of Japan before the recent victory. "The fighting admiral" was Count Togo's nickname when he was called last October to succeed Vice Admiral Tsuboi as commander of the navy. He is a young man to hold such high rank and is one of many native Christians who have risen to high position.

Rear Admiral Kamimura, Togo's second in command at Port Arthur, commanded the Akitsushima at the battle of the Yalu and gave a fine account of himself in that fight. He is respected as a thoroughly practical officer and an able organizer. After the Chinese war he was sent as a captain to England to take command of the battleship Asahi upon her completion on the Clyde, but his orders were changed, and he was detailed, with the rank of rear admiral, to remain and supervise the construction of other vessels of war. He was recalled to Japan three years ago.

Rear Admiral Kamimura is said to bear a marked resemblance to Rear Admiral "Fighting Bob" Evans.

Rear Admiral S. Uriu, whose squadron sunk the Russian ships Variag and Korietz off Chemulpo harbor recently, learned the rudiments of naval warfare in America and was graduated fourteenth in his class [illegible] from Annapolis in [illegible] mated at Vassar, and [illegible] American friends. He [illegible] Naniwakan during the [illegible] and behaved with cr[illegible] the battle of the Yalu river.

FARM AND GARDEN

PLANT PROTECTORS.

Devices For Shielding Early Plants From Frost, Winds and Bugs.

Get your plant protectors ready, for there will be little time to do so later on. T. Greiner gives designs and descriptions in Farm and Fireside for some useful homemade devices for protecting early plants from frost and cold winds and from bugs.

First is the simple box frame, a box without top or bottom, say a foot square and four to six inches high. A square piece of cloth or netting may be tacked over the top. A similar device is made of stiff paper, with a piece of cheesecloth sewed or pasted right over a square opening cut into the top, the sides being held down by pieces of wire bent in double pin shape. For another device a piece of netting may be tacked in two end boards, each end board being provided with a small sharpened stake (nailed on the outside), which when pushed into the ground will hold the end boards in place, with the cloth stretched tightly between them over the plants. Even a large piece of cloth or netting and a few sticks will do the business. We can take some pieces of willow twigs or other pliable wood and stick a couple of them crosswise into the ground in the form of a bow over the top of plants or a single plant and place the piece of cloth over this frame, holding the edges down by banking a little soil up over them or we may simply push one or more little sticks slantingly into the ground and over the plant or plants and cover with netting, or the netting may be simply placed directly over the plants in loose folds. Cheesecloth may be considered preferable to ordinary mosquito netting. The latter is rather coarse and would not prove an effective barrier to thrips and other small insects that might do damage. All these devices are simple and perhaps as effective as any more elaborate or more costly ones.

EGGPLANT.

Its Successful Cultivation—Packing For Market—Good Varieties.

For the successful cultivation of eggplant continual perseverance and eternal vigilance are necessary from the time the seed is sown until the fruit is ready for market, nearly six months. Seed is sown on March 1 in hotbeds or hothouse in rows three inches apart, not too deep, as a quick start is necessary on account of the tenderness of the plant. Before sowing the bed is watered, well worked up and warmed. After the seed is sown the rows are covered with sand to insure quick germination and prevent dampening.

After the plants are up large enough to handle they are transplanted under glass into five inch pots or six inch sods. About June 1 the plants are ready to be set out after having been well aired and toughened to withstand any cool weather that may follow. Land that has been well manured is then marked off in rows four feet each way, a hole is dug at each cross line for sod with plant to set in and ground well pressed around the plant and watered. The field is then well cultivated both ways between the rows with horse cultivators, after which the plants are well hoed to keep the ground loose and kill the weeds.

The fruit should be ready for market by Aug. 15, provided the bugs and weather have not discouraged them too much. The eggs are then cut and packed in small crates holding from thirty to thirty-six, according to size. The best strain I have as yet grown is Purple Perfection, thornless, an improved strain of New York and New Jersey Purple. The last two seasons eggplant culture has not been a howling success on account of the wet and cold weather interfering with the plants to a great extent, concludes an Illinois writer in American Agriculturist.

The Interest In Fertilizers.

We have never before had so many questions about fertilizers. They come from all over the country, a large proportion from the west. We can easily remember the time when he who talked of using fertilizers west of the Mississippi was regarded as a wild man. Last year in the state of Missouri alone nearly $2,000,000 worth of fertilizers were used by farmers in addition to their supplies of stable manure. In states farther east the use of chemicals is becoming general. This is one thing in which the west can learn of the east. There are eastern farms which were producing good crops when the west was a howling wilderness. With the aid of chemicals, properly used, these farms are now producing more than they ever did, says Rural New Yorker.

GRASS AND ALFALFA.

Growing Together In Unity and Making Fine Cattle.

At the Pittsboro (Ind.) institute we had Mr. J. N. Shirley of Boone county to talk about alfalfa. He owns a hundred acre farm, fifty of which are in alfalfa and fifty in blue grass, and his business is the growing of cattle. Excepting a little grain to calves in their first year the feed is blue grass and alfalfa in the summer and alfalfa hay in the winter. Mr. Shirley says he does not like to plow, and he sees no use of doing so. He has a herd of Herefords and produces fancy cattle without any particular labor except that of making hay and feeding it. The scheme was so novel to me for an eastern state and the memory of criticism of myself for reporting examples of success difficult of acceptance by the uncircumcised and nonelect was so recent that I made inquiry of Mr. Shirley's neighbors and others who know his farm, and they say that this farm is run just as it is represented.

According to my notes of Mr. Shirley's talk the story runs as follows: Eight years ago he sowed one and a half acres in the spring where his wheat had failed. It was rich black soil, and twenty pounds of seed per acre were used. The next year he sowed more land, part of it clay soil, on which the alfalfa did equally well. One year he seeded eighteen acres at the last working of the corn, sowing the seed ahead of the cultivator and covering it two inches deep. It was a showery fall, and a good stand was got on all except two and a half acres. He has sown any time from April to August with good results. There are now fifty acres on the farm, and some of the blue grass on the other fifty acres will be plowed up and seeded to alfalfa. No effort will be made to kill the blue grass out by cultivation of a crop, but he expects it to come in with the alfalfa, occupying the surface with its roots while the alfalfa uses the soil down below the surface. Some grass and alfalfa are now growing together, dwelling together in unity and making choice pasture.

While Mr. Shirley is keeping his cattle on blue grass and alfalfa and some mixture of alfalfa and timothy and is growing fine Herefords for breeding and for the block without grain after the first year, it does not follow that alfalfa without grain will give satisfactory results to others. It will to some, probably; not to all. His blue grass is heavy, and that is a great feed. Lots of the credit is due to the grass. But we should see that alfalfa is less difficult to grow than some have supposed and that if we can produce the five to seven tons per acre that Mr. Shirley gets—or the half of it—we have a cheap and wonderfully rich feed. Alfalfa is to be grown far more extensively in the states east of the Mississippi than it now is. The experiments in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and other states prove its adaptability to a wide area of soils.—Alva Agee in National Stockman.

Desirable Fowls on Small Places.

The Polish are a class of poultry very much liked by fanciers and breeders who have small places and can give them the proper attention, says American Agriculturist in presenting the accompanying cut. They are probably the handsomest class of poultry, their large topknots and brilliant coloring making them very attractive. The White Crested Black are solid black in color except the topknot, which is pure white. The fowls are medium in size and lay beautiful white eggs.

WHITE CRESTED BLACK POLISH COCK.

Hastening the Rhubarb.

Give the rhubarb plants in the garden a heavy dressing of fine old compost. If you wish a few early stalks place kegs or boxes over some of the plants and heap over them some horse manure.

Agricultural News and Notes.

Speaking of materials used in adulterating feed, Professor Carlyle of Wisconsin says weed seeds are often ground and introduced into the bran. They may possess feeding value, but the bran should not be called pure bran.

According to American Agriculturist, potato holdings are not heavy, fully three-fourths of the crop having found its way to market.

The New York Agricultural Experimenters' league at its first annual meeting at Cornell university elected Dr. I. P. Roberts honorary president, H. B. Winters president and J. L. Gilmour, Ithaca, secretary-treasurer.

As a cultivated plant the dandelion is assuming a place of some importance in farm gardens, and in the New England market gardens it is grown extensively, yielding large returns per acre, says American Cultivator.

The gypsy moth pest is exciting renewed anxiety in Massachusetts.

Copartnership Dissolution

Whereas, The partnership heretofore existing under the firm name of Gage, Porter & Co., has been dissolved, and

Whereas, Said partnership has transacted business in this State for not less than three years, and

Whereas, The business of said firm continues to be conducted by the undersigned, who were members of said partnership, and two of the partners therein, under the same partnership name, pursuant to the statute in such cases made and provided.

Now therefore, In pursuance of the requirements of an act of the Legislature of the State of New York, entitled "An act in relation to partnership, constituting chapter fifty-one of the general laws" passed May 12, 1897, we, Frank L. Porter and William Gage Bennett, do hereby certify and declare that we are the persons using such partnership name and now dealing and intending to deal under such firm name of Gage, Porter & Co.; that the place of residence of each of us is Fulton, New York, and that the principal place of business of said firm is located in the city of Fulton, N. Y.

Dated Feb 10, 1904.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas, Default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the 1st day of December, 1902, made and executed by Mabelle Root, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage, with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, New York, on the 3d day of December, 1903, at 3:39 o'clock p. m., in Liber 203 of Mortgages, at page 88, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and,

Whereas, The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of eleven hundred seventy-three dollars and seventy-six cents ($1,173.76), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property, described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as lots numbers six and seven (6 and 7) of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, being twenty-five (25) feet in width on Second street. Also all that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, being part of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, bounded as follows: Beginning on Second street one hundred and twenty-eight (128) feet southerly from Seneca street, running thence easterly one hundred twenty-one and a half (121½) feet; thence southerly twenty-five (25) feet; thence westerly three and a half (3½) feet; thence southerly twelve (12) feet, thence westerly parallel with Oneida street to Second street; thence northerly along Second street thirty-seven (37) feet to the place of beginning," at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego, New York, on the 12th day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgagor, Robert H. Stowe. Mortgagee, Mrs. C. C. Pettis. Mortgage dated August 14, 1903, and recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the Clerk's office of Oswego County, N. Y., on the 15th day of August, 1903, at 8:25 a. m., in Liber 204 of Mortgages, at page 528. The sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is fifty one dollars and nineteen cents ($51.19), being the whole sum secured by said mortgage. (Said Mortgagee above named, also holds two prior mortgages upon the same premises, on which is unpaid the sum of $400, together with interest on $150, from February 14, 1903, and on $250, from March 18, 1903.)

The mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, and State of New York, known and described as Lot No. five (5) of block five hundred and four (504), according to the map of the village of Fulton on file in Oswego County Clerk's office. Default having been made in the payment of the sum secured to be paid by said mortgage, and no action having been brought to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof; therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained, recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said mortgaged property at public auction, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, N. Y., on the 2d day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said sale will be made subject to the lien of the above mentioned prior mortgages.

Dated, January 6, 1904.

Malay Superstition.

Malays have very much the same ideas of bad and good luck signs as prevail in other countries. If one trips on the steps of his house or knocks his head against the lintel when starting for a journey he delays a day, if possible, for the accident portends death. Fearful ill luck will attend a native who starts on a journey in the rain, for the rain signifies tears. As a swarm of bees settling on or near a house in England brings good luck, so the result is the very opposite in Malay districts. A bird flying into a Malay house decidedly benefits the occupier, for, if caught, smeared with oil and commanded to fly away with all the ill luck and misfortunes of the house, all will be well.

In Singapore we see Malay cottages around us, here and there, yet few know the superstitions prevailing with regard to the building of these habitations. For instance, if the steps in front are by an unlucky chance placed exactly under the center rafters it will mean quarrels and fighting under the roof. A visitor to one of these dwellings must never lean against the steps when talking. That would entail a funeral from the house. This weird notion arises from the fact that coffins are handed to men at the bottom of the steps.—London Times.

A Joke He Liked.

In the strain and excitement of trading on Wall street the brokers, says Mr. E. C. Stedman in the Century Magazine, often relapse into wild merriment and play boyish pranks. On one occasion an old Indian with a young brave, a boy and two squaws entered the gallery. At once the "floor" put forth every effort to break down their stolidity. A war whoop had no effect. A war dance did not arouse even a smile.

At last a baldheaded man was thrust into a ring of young fellows, his hands held behind him, a knife drawn around his pate, and the mummery of a futile attempt to detach his scalp was enacted.

This was at last too much for the dignity of the aborigines. The boy broke into a broad laugh, in which the squaws joined; the young warrior grinned in spite of himself, and at last the semblance of grim humor overspread the face of the ruthless old chief, who may have been the perpetrator of as many atrocities as Geronimo.

The Coster's Curl.

Many east London barbers, who have been journeymen in many west end establishments, declare that young costermongers and barmen, with the peculiar rolling curl that protrudes from under the cap or bowler, are far more particular about their hair than the sons of the aristocracy in general. This same curl, standing forth from a surface of hair that seems to have been flatironed, is not achieved without much trouble. Scores of these young dandies of the east subscribe to a "toilet club" and have weekly attention given to their distinguishing curl in a manner that might be expected of a patrician beau.

Women at Shooting Parties.

Lady "stalkers" are numerous in Scotland, and three or four peeresses have placed quite a large number of splendid "heads" to their credit. The woman who can shoot well and understands the rules regulating sport is always welcome among the members of a shooting party in the covert, and at a moderate range befitting her twenty bore she can be relied upon to bring down the birds as neatly and dexterously as her male neighbors.—Scottish Field.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

and relieves the stomach of all nervous strain and the heart of all pressure.

FARM AND GARDEN

A HANDY PLANT FRAME.

Easily Made and With a Convenient Device In the Way of a Cover.

There are a great many people who take an interest in gardening whose incomes and positions do not admit of their having a greenhouse. A number of gardening enthusiasts thus placed do, however, possess a garden sash or two, and there are others still who would and could possess them were it not for the tedious work during cold weather of covering and uncovering the sash lights, shoveling snow and other disagreeable things. The illustration herewith presented depicts a handy, simple and inexpensive device. We take an ordinary garden frame of four lights, the average proportion being 6 by 12 feet, each sash being six feet long by three feet wide. At the back the frame ordinarily stands three feet high and eighteen inches high in front. Around this ordinary frame we have to make an outer frame of rough planking, leaving a space between the two of eighteen inches, which has to be filled in afterward with fresh leaves, stable manure or litter, preferably stable manure and leaves mixed.

Hinged to the back of the outer frame, as shown in the illustration, we have a permanent cover for the top. This is also made of rough planking, is nine feet long, three or six feet wide, as desired, and six or nine inches thick. As will be seen from the illustration, this is merely a frame packed full of salt hay.

At the back of the outer frame and nine or ten inches away from it is firmly placed an upright post 6 by 6 inches and rising nine feet above the top of the outer frame. On the top of this post a pulley is fixed; a wire is run from the front of the outer covering over the top of the pulley and attached to a weight at the back. This weight can be of any rough material so long as it counteracts or balances the weight of the covering. It is merely to aid in raising and lowering the covers in the same way as window sashes are raised. This is very much superior to mats or litter, which many people still use, and the danger of breaking glass is done away with. Moreover, on a bright day when the covers are raised—being at the back or north side of the frame—they act as a shelter, and air can be much more safely admitted.

With such a frame and covering the season for growing lettuce in frames can be greatly extended. Parsley and violets can be kept nicely all winter, and work can be resumed much earlier in spring. In the illustration one guide post and wire are shown for the raising and lowering of two covers. This simplifies the illustrations, but if it is desired one can be used for each sash, and in such cases the covers could be made stronger.—James T. Scott in American Gardening.

Young People Turn to Manual Arts.

It has been decided to open an agricultural department in the Mount Hermon school, founded at Northfield by the evangelist, Dwight L. Moody. The various courses of instruction planned will be under very competent direction, and the new department is expected to become most important to the school work. This is the first industrial course established in the school, which is not an institution of technical instruction, and serves to show the growing interest in technical and industrial education that is manifesting itself throughout the country. Young men and women are turning more and more to the manual arts as a means of livelihood, and they are bringing to them the enthusiasm heretofore directed in circumscribed channels. They demand an equipment which shall make their work a science as sure as mathematics and insure positive results, and to meet these demands the schools and colleges are opening departments where such studies may be carried on.—New Idea Magazine.

Cabbage Plants.

Sow seed of Jersey Wakefield in flats filled with light, loamy soil the last of February. Sow thinly, cover lightly and place the boxes in a gentle hotbed or any warm, sunny situation. When the plants are strong transplant them into flats one and a half inches apart each way. As growth begins gradually expose them to the open air on all favorable days. Late in March remove to a cold frame and harden off before setting them in the open ground.—Bailey.

A Plan For a Good Farm Garden.

Should the ground slope to the west, plow or throw the land up into sharp ridges, the tops of which should be four feet apart. The ridges should run from east to west, the object being to have the south side exposed to the full rays of the sun very early in the spring. For an extra early crop of potatoes, peas, beans, etc., take a spade and throw out the dirt on the south half of the ridges and cover the things planted with the richest dark colored soil that may be at hand. The north half of the ridge should remain undisturbed so as to shelter the young plants on the south side, and in case the nights are very cold or there is real danger from an unexpected frost the plants can be easily and quickly covered with large sheets of daily or weekly newspapers and the plants thus be effectually protected. Whenever the mercury in the thermometer falls as low as 34 degrees the plants should be covered immediately.

After the plants are well established and two or three inches in height scatter enough nitrate of soda along each side of the plants to give the soil a grayish appearance and work it into the surface soil, being very careful, however, not to use too much nitrate and to keep it from coming in contact with the stem or roots of the plants.

As originally outlined in Farm and Fireside, this plan was for the fall, when the soil if of clay and not underdrained received a heavy coating of well rotted barnyard manure which was plowed or spaded to thoroughly intermix it with the soil and was afterward ridged, as shown.

Sir Roger de Coverley.

Ralph Thoresby, writing in 1717 of the family of Calverley of Colverley, Yorkshire, says: "Roger was a person of renowned hospitality, since at this time the obsolete tune of 'Roger a Calverley' is referred to him. He was a knight and lived in the time of Richard I." This passage carries the date of the origin of the tune back to about 1190. The Spectator in a description of Sir Roger, now called "de Coverley," says, "His great-grandfather was the inventor of the famous country dance which is called after him."

A Matter of Doubt.

A minister in a certain city said: "My brethren, the collection will now be taken for my expenses for a trip, for I am going away for my health. The more I receive the longer I can stay." The largest collection ever made in that church was taken. And now the question under discussion is whether the size of the collection was a compliment to the preacher or much the reverse.

Maxims For All Purposes.

"Remember, my son," said the prudent man, "that a penny saved is a penny earned."

"That's so," replied the reckless youth. "The trouble with me is that I am always getting hold of the wrong proverb. I was thinking, 'Nothing venture, nothing have.'"—Washington Star.

Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Quickness Is Relative.

The careful American observer soon finds that the standard of quickness is to be determined in England, as everywhere else, by the point of view. People who go slowly on new ground may turn out to be quick enough when wholly at home with any particular line of thought.

How odious and complicated, for instance, seems to an American observer the computation of pounds, shillings and pence! It seems strange that any nation should consent for a day to employ anything but a decimal currency. Yet with what lightning rapidity does a London bookkeeper make his computations! What a life of tedious formality seems that of an English house servant! Yet there was no slowness of intellect in that footman in an earl's family who, when his young lord fell over the banisters and the next of kin called to ask if the elder boy was hurt, answered promptly, "Killed, my lord!" thus accomplishing in an instant the transfer of the title appertaining to an earl's eldest son and heir only.—Thomas Wentworth Higginson in Atlantic.

A Precious Manuscript.

There is now in St. Petersburg the oldest known MS. of the New Testament in Greek, saved from destruction by the merest chance many years ago. Crossing the hall of a convent at the foot of Mount Sinai, Constantine Tischendorf saw a basketful of parchment leaves on their way to be burned. Two baskets had already gone, he was told, and all that he could secure for himself was a small bundle of odd leaves. But the monks, now interested in the "waste paper," saved the rest from the fire, and nine years after, on a return visit to the convent, Tischendorf found that the stewart had, wrapped in a red cloth, "a bulky kind of volume," which proved to be the whole of the New Testament, with parts hitherto unknown, and parts of the Old, which had long been sought. He begged the volume for the czar, and today it lies, well preserved in spite of its 1,500 years of age, among the treasures of the Russian capital.—London Mail.

Testing a Horse's Eyes.

The unsuspecting farmer is often "bit" by the professional horse trader in having a horse with defective sight palmed off on him. The trader makes a John L. pass at the horse's eye with his fist, and the force of the air causes the horse to bat or blink his eyes, though he may be totally blind in one eye and weak in the other.

If the farmer will blindfold one of the animal's eyes and make gentle passes at five and ten feet from it, he can tell how strong the animal's sight is in that eye. Then blind the examined eye and go through the same process with the other.

This little hint may save you getting the "small end" of a swap.

Hours and Luck.

As strong as the superstition of Friday is that concerning certain hours in European and oriental countries.

In Paris the superstition is so prevalent that an enterprising business is that of selling cards on which are printed the hours that should be avoided.

The famous Gambetta consulted a reader of cards as to the auspicious day for embarking on any important enterprise.

President Carnot was skeptical of such things, and he chose an unlucky hour for his journey to Lyons, where he was assassinated.—American Queen.

Relief In One Minute.

One Minute Cough Cure gives relief in one minute, because it kills the microbe which tickles the mucous membrane, causing the cough, and at the same time clears the phlegm, draws out the inflammation and heals and soothes the affected parts. Pepys' Pronunciation.

A correspondent (an American, we presume) writes to ask how to pronounce the name of the excellent diarist we occasionally quote. "Do you," he asks, "call Pepys 'Peppis' or 'Peepies' or 'Chumley' or what?" Even among contemporary London talkers there is disagreement, but the question should be settled by one Mr. James Carcasse, whom Pepys kindly took in his boat to view the great fire and who returned the compliment by a somewhat virulent set of verses in his volume "Lucida Intervalla."

Get thee behind me, then, dumb devil, be gone,
The Lord hath Ephthatha said to my tongue.
Him I must praise who open'd hath my lips,
Sent me from navy to the ark by Pepys.

The rhythm is dreadful, but the rhyme is conclusive, and the man who rowed in the same boat with the diarist called him "Pipps."—London Chronicle.

[An accepted American dictionary authority also gives Peps as the correct pronunciation of his name.—Ed.]

They Hunger For Praise.

"Praise is sweet," remarked a certain toiler, "yet is seems to be against the rule of many business houses. Perhaps they fear you'll demand a raise if they compliment your work. Why, even a man friend of mine, who is engaged in window decoration, says he wants to be told if his work is satisfactory. He dreams of it all night when it doesn't give him a nightmare, and he works at it all day. He longs to be told when it is effective, but he has to be content with the fact that, as he puts it, he'd be fired if it were not satisfactory. As for me, I design these doll dresses and other dainty things and also arrange them for display. I long for praise when I feel that my labors have been crowned with success. But, alas, my firm also pursues the clam policy—perhaps it is the best policy—in spite of the fact that I'd work the skin off my fingers to try to exceed my best work if only that were praised."—Philadelphia Record.

Sensitive Horses.

The horse does not like a nervous, fidgety, fussy or irritable man. He is too nervous and irritable himself. "Why is it," one teamster was heard to ask another, "that Phin's horses are always gaunt? Phin feeds them well." "Yes," was the reply, "but he's like a wasp around a horse." A well known owner of race horses, not at all a sentimental person, recently made an order forbidding his employees to talk in loud tones or to swear in the stable. "I have never yet seen a good mannered horse," he says, "that was being sworn at all the time. It hurts the feelings of a sensitive horse, and I'll keep my word good to discharge any man in my employ if I catch him swearing within the hearing of any horse in this stable."—Country Life In America.

Wedded In a Bunch.

According to an old Breton custom, all the marriages of the year take place on one day. After the legal wedding has been performed the couples take their stand in a row behind the high altar of the church, and behind them sit their fathers and mothers, and so do their cousins and their uncles and their aunts, all arrayed in their brightest colored raiment and the whitest and stiffest of coiffes. The scene in the church is picturesque beyond description. They go through the ceremony in unison. The moral support it must give to the timidest bridegroom!

Three In Chinese.

Religious superstition asserts itself in Chinese architecture, and the universal sacredness of the numerals three and nine is shown in the arrangement of temple doors. There is a triple gateway to each of the halls of the imperial palace, and the same order prevails at the Ming tombs. The Temple of Heaven has a triple roof, a triple marble staircase, and all its mystic symbolism points either to three or its multiples.

ALEXIEFF AT HARBIN.

Headquarters Established 500 Miles North of Port Arthur.

FOUR TORPEDO BOATS CAPTURED

Japanese Said to Have Used Russian Signals—Report From Tokio That Vice Admiral Togo Has Again Attacked Port Arthur — Blizzards on Trans-Siberian Railroad.

Yin Kow, Feb. 23.—Viceroy Alexieff and his full staff have just arrived at Harbin, where headquarters has been established.

Tokio, Feb. 23.—It is reported here that Vice Admiral Togo has again attacked Port Arthur. It is impossible to confirm the statement, but the navy department says it has had no news from Togo today. It is considered very probable that the Vice Admiral has made another attack on the Russians as he is engaged in blockading Port Arthur.

London, Feb. 23.—The Nagasaki correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, under date of Feb. 22, reports that the Japanese squadron has captured four Russian torpedo boats at Port Arthur by means of using Russian signals.

This dispatch appears to confirm reports from various quarters of a fresh attack on Port Arthur by the Japanese.

The report reached Nagasaki from Chefoo and it adds that the Russian crews of the four torpedo boats have been transferred.

No other news of this attack has been received in London, but the Chefoo correspondent of the Morning Post in a dispatch dated yesterday says the statement is current that the Japanese torpedo boat destroyers, in the attack on Port Arthur of Feb. 14, sunk or damaged two Russian battleships in addition to the torpedo boat already reported. It is possible, therefore, that the report of the Telegraph's Nagasaki correspondent also refers to the earlier attack.

A correspondent cables that Port Arthur is now strictly a naval stronghold and the forts are being manned by naval gunners. Only 20 foreigners are now in Port Arthur, and they are traders disposing of their merchandise. Some of them are under suspicion and there is likelihood of their being arrested. There are many complaints of unwarranted arrests, unexplained expulsion and defamation of character by the Port Arthur police.

The report that large bodies of Cossacks and other troops are occupying New Chwang and Hsin Hing Tin are unfounded.

A Daily Mail dispatch from Hong Kong says a British squadron is concentrating there, and that a corresponding French concentration of warships is occurring at Saigan, Indo-China; this is supposedly a result of the Anglo-French understanding.

According to the Nagasaki correspondent of the Daily Telegraph the American squadron, the vessels of which are variously reported at Chefoo and Shanghai, is going to demonstrate at the mouth of the Yalu river.

TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILROAD.

German Military Paper Belittles Its Capacity For Transporting Troops.

Berlin, Feb. 23.—The Militar Wochenblatt, the organ of the German general staff, has published an article discussing Russia's prospects of reinforcing her army in East Asia.

The paper takes a pessimistic view of the capacity of the Trans-Siberian railroad and especially of the section crossing Lake Baikal, where it says the difficulties to be overcome are enormous.

The limited capacity of the line is said to be a much more serious matter than the threatened damage to it by natives. The paper estimates the present troop-moving capacity of the railroad from Russia's experience last summer in moving two brigades to Tschita, east of Lake Baikal, which was only accomplished at the rate of 8½ miles an hour. At this rate it would take 36 days to convey 25,000 men from the Ural mountains to Mukden or Vladivostock.

The paper assumes the present strength of the Russian army in Eastern Asia to be 158,761 men and upon the foregoing estimate of time required to move troops, it declares it will take until April 20 for Russia to raise the strength of her East Asiatic army to 233,000 men.

The Military Wochenblatt is of the opinion that the first thing for Japan to do to compel Russia to abandon Manchuria is to concentrate her forces against Harbin.

Crops, Gizzards and Stomachs.

Insects are oddly constructed atoms of animated nature, as a rule, and it depends altogether on the species as to internal makeup. In bees the crop is called the honey bag. Insects with mandibles usually have a modified form of the "gizzard" so typical in the common barnyard fowl. In some cases this miniature "gizzard" is a perfect wonder shop, its inner surface being provided with "pads" covered with "horns" and "bristles" in great profusion. The grasshopper's "gizzard" is lined with innumerable rows of teeth, very minute, of course, but well developed, true teeth, nevertheless. The same may be said of crickets and other insects of that ilk.

Bribed Chinese Officials.

London, Feb. 23.—A Tokio correspondent of Reuter's Telegram company says he learns from a reliable source that the Russian minister to China, Paul Lessar, has successfully bribed Chinese officials with the result that the instructions given the Russian gunboat Mandjur to leave Shanghai were cancelled.

The Japanese government considers this to be a breach of Chinese neutrality and is taking steps in the matter.

Another British Boat Fired On.

Wei Hei Wei, Feb. 23.—The British steamer Ching Ping belonging to the Chinese Engineering and Mining company of Shanghai has arrived here from Port Dalny and reported that she also was fired upon by the Russians and was hit seven times around her water line. A Russian pilot boat that was coming out of Port Dalny to pilot the Ching Ping was blown up by a mine.

Difficulty of Transporting Troops.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 23. — Heavy snows and blizzards over the Siberian railroad, especially east of Baikal, are largely increasing the difficulties of transporting troops, besides better enabling Chinese brigands to operate. Japanese agents are reported north of Vladivostock, inciting the brigands to action.

Army Attaches at Tokio.

Washington, Feb. 23.—United States Minister Griscom cables as follows from Tokio: It has been suggested by the war office at Tokio that our army officers to accompany Japanese army had better go to Tokio where they will be sent out with the various armies at different times."

SENATOR HANNA'S SUCCESSOR.

Will Be Elected in Joint Session on March 2.

Columbus, O., Feb. 23. — Seperate ballots will probably be taken in the house and senate at noon, March 1, for the election of a successor to Senator Hanna and a joint session will be held March 2 to declare the result. This is provided in a joint resolution introduced and adopted in the senate last night. The resolution did not reach the house before adjournment, but its ratification is regarded as certain.

General Dick is expected in Columbus Wednesday.

A petition was circulated in the house pledging the signers to vote for General Dick for senator. The purpose of the petition was to do away with a caucus. Forty-eight names appeared on the petition when it reached the Cuyahoga delegation, which refused to sign until a conference had been held. Only 59 votes are necessary to nominate in joint caucus.

THE LIGHT BRIGADE.

A Russian View of the Ride Into the Jaws of Death.

That the charge of the Light brigade seemed to onlookers a piece of magnificent folly is evident from all reminiscences of that day. First came the attack of the heavy brigade upon 3,000 Russian cavalry. Then later in the day the attempt to recapture seven guns taken from the Turks by the Russians in their first advance upon the redoubts led to the charge of the Light brigade.

"When we saw the English coming at us," says a Russian soldier, "there was but one thought. 'What fools!' we said. We never dreamed they would charge.

Ivan Ivanovitch, a Russian survivor of the day, says in his "Recollections:" "We were so sorry for them. They were fine soldiers and had such fine horses. But the charge—it was the maddest thing ever done. We could not understand it. I had been in the charge of the heavy brigade in the morning and was wounded. We had all unsaddled and were tired. Suddenly there was a cry, 'The English are coming!'

"Our colonel was angry and ordered the men to give no quarter.

"I was lying down, with my wound bandaged, when I saw them coming. We thought they were drunk from the way they held their lances. Instead of carrying them under their armpits they waved them in the air. Of course they were easier to guard against like that.

"Those men were mad and never seemed to think of the tremendous numbers against them nor of the fearful slaughter that had taken place in their ranks during that desperate ride. Then they neared us and dashed in among us, shouting, cheering and cursing. I never saw anything like it. They were irresistible, and our men were quite demoralized."

LOCOMOTIVE BLEW UP.

Three Men Killed and Two Fatally Injured.

ALL WERE RAILROAD EMPLOYES

The Boiler Was Blown a Distance of 40 Yards—Wheels and Running Gear Remained on the Track—Happened at Ehrenfeld, Pa. — Cause of Explosion Unknown.

Johnstown, Pa., Feb. 23.—The blowing up of a Pennsylvania railroad locomotive at Ehrenfeld, 10 miles east of this city, last night, caused the death of three men and the probable fatal injury of two others. All were railroad employes. The dead:

Harry Tyson, engineer of Derry.

John Gontz, conductor of Derry.

George Bickner, track walker of Summerhill.

Injured: Robert Wenwick of Derry fireman, one leg blown off; Elmer Furl of Derry, brakeman.

The boiler was blown a distance of 50 yards, the wheels and running gear remaining on the track. The engine was steaming freely. It will probably never be known what caused the explosion.

VESSEL ABANDONED.

Crew Brought to New York—Two of the Rescuers Drowned.

New York, Feb. 23.—Two men were lost by the steamer York Castle which arrived from Delagoa Bay, in an attempt to give aid on Feb. 21 to the American schooner Willie L. Newton, about 200 miles southeast of Sandy Hook.

The Newton had lost her rudder head. The York Castle tried to launch a life boat in charge of Chief Officer Alexander Turner with four men. The falls became jammed and the five men were thrown into the sea. Three of them were rescued.

The two men lost were Chief Officer Turner and Carpenter Gray. Both belonged to Sunderland, Eng. Seeing that the schooner made no effort to launch her boats the York Castle proceeded.

The British steamer Micmac, which arrived from Huelva, brought into port seven shipwrecked seamen, the captain and crew of the schooner Willie L. Newton, which they abandoned at sea. The Micmac sighted the distressed schooner after the steamer York Castle abandoned the attempt to rescue the crew.

Sunday afternoon a life boat was launched from the Micmac and after considerable difficulty succeeded in transferring all hands from the wreck. Captain Norwood of the Newton said the vessel had heavy southwest gales with a huge cross sea and the rudder head was twisted off. The schooner fell off in the trough of the sea and the leaks gained so rapidly that the vessel became waterlogged and unmanageable.

LOCATING RADIUM.

Work to Aid Miners Undertaken at University of Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Work to aid miners in locating radium in America has begun in the Ryerson Physical laboratory at the University of Chicago, under the direction of Professor Robert A. Millikan, Ph. D.

A theory to the effect that there is growth in the life of matter in the physical world has been made a special study by Professor Millikan. He says:

"Studies on radiation have suggested the question whether there is any natural process which does among the atoms what the life process does among the molecules, namely, which takes the simpler forms and builds them up again into more complex form.

"The fact that radium now exists on the earth, taken with the fact that the life of radium is short in comparison with the ages that the earth has been in existence, certainly seems to point to an affirmative answer.

His Accounts Are Short.

Seymour, Ind., Feb. 23.—Cyrus E. McCrady, cashier of the First National bank and treasurer of the Co-Operative Building and Loan association, has admitted his accounts are short with the two institutions. The amount is estimated to be $14,000 with the bank and $13,000 with the building and loan association. McCrady's property, valued at from $15,000 to $18,000, has been turned over to a trustee for his creditors. Both institutions are secured by bonds.

Baltimore Newspapers Re-Established.

Baltimore, Feb. 23.—The Baltimore News, whose office and plant were completely destroyed in the great fire of Feb. 7, is being published in Baltimore from its own plant today. Its 12 issues since the fire were printed by the Washington Post. It has established in the old McShane foundry a complete plant. The American will use the News plant temporarily. The Sun is being printed in Washington and the Herald in Philadelphia, until they can get new plants set up in Baltimore, which they are doing with all possible expedition.

GARDENS OF THE ALCAZAR.

One of Their Greatest Charms Is the Apparent Lack of Cultivation.

The garden of the Alcazar is one garden composed of several, each opening into the other by steps descending from a terrace or through arches in marble or living green.

All the gardens are surrounded with wonderful hedges of myrtle, juniper or box. If the gardens of the Alcazar should be stripped of all but their hedges, palm trees and magnolias, they would still be most wonderful. In some places walls about eight feet in height separate the gardens, and against these walls are trained orange and peach trees, with a tangle of jasmine and roses climbing among them as they will. In fact, the flowers grow in such careless and natural profusion and there is seemingly so little cultivation that one might almost think the hoe of a gardener had not visited the place for a hundred years. This very carelessness was one of the greatest charms of the place and added to the effect of age that clung to everything. Modern gardeners would stand aghast at such apparent neglect.

I recognized that the very lack of modern care was artistic and suitable and yet wondered, if the place were mine, whether I could forbear the use of shears, trowel and hoe. The hedges were trimmed. These, with some orange trees growing in a solid mass of green along some fifty feet of palace wall and reaching to the very roof, alone bore signs of the gardener's shears.

The flower beds were of intricate shapes, filled with a tangled mass of flowers and always surrounded with box. And such box! My heart sank within me when I thought of the box in my garden at home, where not even a hundred mild winters and a hundred rainy summers could give growth like the smallest of that at the Alcazar.

The bouquet that is considered in Seville as a model of beauty and elegance was to our eyes a most hideous thing. In shape like a pyramid, about fourteen inches high, it was formed by fastening a magnolia bud to the top of a smooth, round stick and then winding flowers tightly around the stick, each succeeding row becoming larger, so that at the bottom the bouquet was probably two feet around. It was a frequent sight to see two men carrying a pole between them with from six to a dozen of these bouquets swinging, heads down, from the pole.—Scribner's.

Puzzled His Tutors.

Lord Avebury, better known as Sir John Lubbock, was a naturalist even as a schoolboy at Eton. In his day there, however, the instructors cared for nothing except the classics and were ignorant of natural science. In his autobiography Lord Avebury says: "At that time Eton boys, especially if they were quick at writing verses and learning by heart, had much more leisure than they have now. I devoted a good deal of mine to natural history and geology in spite of the remonstrances of my tutor, who thought that it might have been better occupied on the classics. On one occasion we were given 'The Bee' as a subject for a theme. I took some pains with it, and my tutor sent for me and asked me confidentially whether it was all true. From what he said I inferred that they rather suspected I was quizzing them and doubted whether to commend or to flog me."

Cats Fond of Olives.

"I have often wondered if all cats like olives," remarked a woman who is very fond of the feline tribe. "All mine do, and I have six. Olives are usually an acquired taste with the human race, but cats seem to take to them naturally—at least mine do. An olive will set any one of them into paroxysms of joy. They will leave milk or fish or any other article of food for it, purring and rolling over it much as though it might have the intoxicating effect of catnip before they finally eat it. I have often tried olives on other cats in the houses of friends and have found them equally appreciative, only they prefer their olives cut up into pieces."—Philadelphia Record.

CITY'S FINANCIAL CONDITION

It unfortunately happens that when men reach a little pinnacle of political preferment they too often try to exaggerate, by every artifice of misrepresentation, the members of the opposition. A case in point is the persistent insinuation from the leaders of the Democratic party in this city that the members of the administrative boards, who are Republican, are banded together to defraud the taxpayers of their rights and money. All sorts of dire and dreadful legal proceedings, the engaging of expert accountants, etc., are hinted at, when as a matter of fact all that is required is to go over the reports from the several departments in a methodical manner by men who have sufficient mental acumen to understand them, in order to ascertain the truth. There is no mystery about it.

The following is a recapitulation of the receipts and disbursements of the several funds, and any taxpayer who may be so inclined can verify the items if he will take the pains to go to the City Hall and ask to see the statements from the several departments. These are methodically arranged in compact form, are accessible and easily understood:

"Resolved, That the City Chamberlain be and he is authorized and empowered, without further resolution or order on the part of the Council, to pay, when the same becomes due and payable, the amounts raised by the 1903 tax levy for the purpose of paying principal and interest on all bonded indebtedness with the payment of which or any portion of which the city is charged, the city's share of the debts of the towns of Volney and Granby, interest on 1902 loans, and the amounts of judgments against the city and interest thereon."

THOSE "CHURCH-GOING" BELLS.

EDITOR TIMES—A certain item in my mind prompts me to send a few lines to the paper published by the Oswego River. Following the progress of events, as recorded in your trustworthy sheet, I was astonished at the passage by your city legislature of an ordinance interdicting the ringing of church bells. That a mayor's veto prevented the consummation of the proposition was no credit to those who would have thus broken a custom almost as old as Christianity. Cut out the "church-going bell" and you eliminate one of the most precious memories that cling to our early day. Who can forget, even if he would, "The Evening Bells" of Tom Moore, "How many a tale their music tells!" and Father Prout with his "Bells of Shandon which sound so grand on the waters of the River Lee!" In the very heart of this city of a hundred and thirty thousand people, is a French Catholic church and three times a day, Sundays, more often, its loud-mouthed bell vociferates the advent of 6 o'clock a. m. and p. m., as well as 12 m. No one appears to find the music distasteful, least of all harmful.

Whenever it is my good fortune to spend Sunday in the home of my boyhood, I never fail to try to catch the sound of the bell as it rings in the belfry of the little Episcopal Church on First street.

Nothing in the Twentieth Century so recalls the days of forty years ago as the cheerful ringing of that brazen mentor and, in a breath, I am transported to those Sundays in the Sixties when with my schoolmates, so many of them now in another world, I used to repair to that house of prayer for vespers as conducted by Dr. Bishop who, though not a prelate in fact, was one in name and worthy in every respect of all honor. To think that any man in his alleged senses should contemplate an ending of such music! Rather let us hope that while man worships his Maker "Those tuneful bells will still ring on."

When your sapient councilmen again attempt to disrupt the settled habits and practices of more than a thousand years, I wonder if they will not go still further and, entering the realm of literature, mark for distruction "The Bells" of Poe; for fire bells, funeral bells and wedding bells would have to go with the church bell, and the delightful little sleigh bells would next fall under the ban. I wonder if the dinner bell is equally obnoxious to such would-be reformers? I fancy that the breakfast bell plays no part in the household economy of such folks, for they probably sleep over the hour when it is usually rung. School and factory bells must be alike disagreeable and very likely, to be consistent, the maker of the motion would prefer being run over on Second street to being warned by an engine bell.

They were not particularly large bells that in my boyhood summoned the Fulton people to worship, but they were tuneful. The Methodist, the Presbyterian and the smaller Episcopal called us from the walks of business to the quiet hour beneath the church roof, and I question much whether any one ever thought the sound distasteful. It was a sight to impress itself on a boy's mind when George Salmon, with all the dignity of George Washington, walked into the old edifice of the Presbyterians, as it stood on First street. I can see Charles Case, the elder; Dewitt Gardner and many others following with equal regularity. The Bacons, Whittakers, Howells and Falleys gathered with the same promptness at the old Methodist structure. While at the Episcopal service we expected to see Willis Nelson, Sands Kenyon, Highriter, the hatter, and others.

No, no! The Fulton that built and ran her big flouring mills, that has become a center of the paper-making industry, that maintains some of the largest cloth manufactories in the world, is clearly not ready to celebrate the second year of her cityhood by taking a step backward, so far indeed that the veriest agnostic would stand aghast at the thought.

Let us thank the Mayor but not his Council. A. S. R.

Book Agent Held.

A man registering as C. H. Porter, Buffalo, was arrested in the Commercial hotel on Wednesday afternoon for public intoxication. He had been soliciting subscriptions for the Ladies Home Journel, Munseys Magazine, Saturday Evening Post, &c. He offered one of the magazines and four popular books all for $1. Mr. F. S. Luce, manager of the Postal Telegraph office in this city, subscribed, and then wired the International Book Syndicate which Porter said he represented, inquiring about their local agent. He received word that the firm and also the address given on the receipts were unknown in New York city. It was though best to hold the man and he was accordingly arrested and sentenced to 30 days in Oswego jail by Judge Wilson, pending an investigation.

The Ladies Home Journal has offered a reward of $50 for the arrest of a man who has been doing identically the same line of work as this Porter, but the man does not answer the description as he has no scars on his face. Porters companion was permitted to leave town.

Early Morning Fire.

On Friday morning about 5:30 o'clock an alarm from box 59 called the fire department to the William Knowlton grocery store in the Worden building on Academy street, to extinguish a fire which had started in an unknown manner in the cellar of the grocery store and had found it's way through the coal chute into the stock and paint room of A. E. Worden. Mr. Worden had a number of paintings, several pieces of scenery and a quantity of stock on hand and the loss comes very heavy upon him. The grocery stock in the cellar was damaged and the stock in the store was slightly damaged by smoke. Mr. Worden's loss is total.

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB.

Eastern Question and Matters Pertaining to the United States Discussed.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather on Monday evening, there was a good attendance of members at the regular meeting of the Current Events Club, held at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. John Richards.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous session and their adoption, the name of Prof. Fairgrieve was presented for membership, and was referred to the Executive Committee.

Mr. Redhead, a member of the committee selected to secure the co-operation of some of the other literary clubs with a view of securing a prominent lecturer at the close of the season, asked for and obtained further time.

The Rev. A. H. Grant and Mr. F. D. Van Wagenen had charge of the program for the evening

Mr. Grant stated that Mr. Van Wagenen and he had mutually agreed to divide the program so that matters of foreign interest would fall to his share, while Mr. Van Wagenen would handle those of national or local concern.

Mr. Grant, as a prelude, and with the aid of a map, explained the progress attained by the belligerents in the far East. The typography of Korea and Manchuria—the seat of war—with the relative distances and the moral and intellectual development of the natives residing in that section, were fully and intelligibly explained.

Mr. Grant asked the Rev. W. L. Sawtelle to say something in defence of the Russian side of the contention, and Mr. Sawtelle, while deprecating the autocratic form of government, gave historic incidents where the rulers of Russia rose superior to their environments, liberated the serfs and gave their subjects a modicum of liberty. He admired many of the Russian characteristics and their signal acts of bravery, especially at the recent naval battle of Chemulpo, where two Russian warships faced a superior number of Japanese vessels and unhesitatingly went forth to sure defeat.

The Rev. Nelson Reynolds defended the Japanese characteristics, stating that they possessed elements that made them formidable adversaries. The abolishment of the feudal system and the adoption of a constitution under the present Mikado, made them a progressive nation; their imitative qualities and eagerness to learn and to apply their information was commendable, while their initiative, powers of physical endurance and stubborness of character made them a foe to be dreaded. They had illimitable conceit and were perhaps over-confident of success, but as a nation they had no vices.

Mr. E. R. Redhead explained in detail the reasons for the friendship which existed between Great Britain and Japan. It was a case of self-interest, with the primal object in view of opposition to the territorial aggrandisement of Russia.

An excellent description of a modern battleship was given by Mr. Louis W. Emerick. Every detail was most interestingly set forth.

Mr. C. W. Tippy mentioned the proposed new legislation regarding local option; also, the measure introduced in Congress governing the peremptory sale of Indian reservation lands.

Mr. J. H. Howe commented on the recent disastrous fire in Rochester and the lessons taught concerning fire-proof buildings.

City Judge Wilson gave a resume of the trial of Caleb Powers for the [illegible]der of Governor Goebel of Kent[illegible] A matter which has aroused in[illegible] throughout the country.

F. E. Bacon's Success.

The Syracuse Chamber of Commerce is earnestly searching the membership for a fitting successor to Mr. Frank E Bacon for president. Mr. Bacon reluctantly accepted re-election last year but positively refused to serve another year, having filled the responsible position with credit to himself and for the advancement of Syracuse's commercial life for five years. He now feels that personal business demands more of his attention and that a successor must be selected. His associates find it extremely difficult to find a man who possesses the ability to carry on the work so splendidly commenced by Mr. Bacon. An officer of the Chamber is reported to have said: "The president of the Chamber of Commerce should have great qualities for organization. He must not only be a hard worker himself, but he must be able to set other men to work. Mr. Bacon has been a splendid organizer. His committees have done effective work. It will be quite a problem to get a man to fill his place, if Mr. Bacon still feels as he did last year, that he ought to devote more of his time to private business."

Colds Cause Pneumonia.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Sold by H. C. Geisler.

In Honor of St. Louis Exposition.

A suggestion made by Charles Wells Wood of Syracuse to David R. Francis, president of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, in a letter written on February 12th, has been favorably acted upon. The United States flags all over the country will be hoisted on May 1st next in honor of the opening of the World's fair. Mr. Wood suggested this plan to David R. Francis and he has acted upon it. He has issued a request that all flags be raised on that day in honor of the opening of the Exposition.

Mr. Wood's idea, as suggested to President Francis was that the proper authorities in all the towns and cities of the United States be requested to cause a general display of the Stars and Stripes on the opening day of the exposition on the public buildings and elsewhere. Mr. Wood's letter was promptly turned over to the committee on ceremonies of the exposition, and to-day he received word that the suggestion had been adopted by the committee and would be carried out.

Mr. Wood is secretary of the Syracuse chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution and a member of the Loyal Legion.

Do You Want Strength?

If you want to increase your strength you must add to and not take from the physical. In other words, the food that you eat must be digested, assimilated and appropriated by the nerves, blood and tissues, before being expelled from the intestines. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure adds to the physical. It gives strength to and builds up strength in the human system. It is pleasant to the taste and palatable, and the only combination of digestants that will digest the food and enable the system to appropriate all of its health and strength-giving qualities. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

The First Riding Lesson.

The pupil of a good riding master is usually disappointed at not being allowed to do more in the first lesson. He expects to mount the horse at once, start off with a trot and wind up with a canter. He is a little annoyed upon finding that the first lesson consists almost wholly of oral instruction and a great part of it on foot at that. If the master is conscientious he will not permit the anxiety to be off and doing to interfere with a proper understanding of the A B C of the art. Should the beginner apply at one of the big riding academies in New York for instruction the first lesson will begin with the leading by a groom of a horse, bridled and saddled, into the center of the ring. The riding master and the pupil take their stand close by, and the former begins to explain painstakingly the various parts of the saddle and bridle and their purposes. Before anything further is attempted the pupil must be able to answer simple questions in regard to the pommel and the cantle, the curb and the snaffle, and to know the uses of the two bits.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Age of Mother Earth.

An eminent scientist's estimate of the age of the world is "not so great as 40,000,000 years, possibly as little as 20,000,000 years, probably 30,000,000 years." As not even the greatest scientists have been able to find out within 10,000,000 or 15,000,000 years how old Mother Earth is, it must be confessed that she keeps the secret of her age quite as well as do her charming daughters. The scientists may at last come to the conclusion that, like the others, she is "only as old as she looks."—Baltimore Sun.

Pedicuring an Elephant.

The tools for trimming elephants' feet are a carpenter's drawknife and a rasp for the soles and a horseshoer's knife and sandpaper for the toe nails. The operator places a beer keg or a strong box behind one huge hind foot, lightly prods the thick ankle with his elephant hook and commands the beast to "Hold up!" Up comes the mighty foot, slowly and heavily, but obediently as the velvety paw of a kitten. The foot is rested on the box or the keg, where it remains while the expert works on it much as a horseshoer pares the hoof of a horse. Great slivers of the horny sole are sliced off until it is cut nearly to proper thickness, when the rasp is used to smooth off. Similarly the toe nails are treated with the knife and the sandpaper, while the big patient stands with swinging trunk and an occasional wag of an ear, too full of satisfaction for utterance. When the turn of the forefoot comes, the great beast is made to lie down on its side and the hoofs are propped up and treated.—McClure's.

A Bird That Is Feared.

The elster (Pica candata) is a bird that is respected and feared throughout south Germany. It belongs to the raven tribe and is about the size of a dove, with black and white feathers and long, pointed tail. It builds its nest in orchards, and its life is sacred. If it is seen three times in succession on the same house top in a place remote from its home it is believed to be a sure sign of death in that house. If it flies and gives its peculiar cry the sick person is sure to die, but if it does not scream the patient may recover. It is better for the sick person if the bird does not come near. No one could be hired to bother these birds for fear they might seek revenge, and if by chance one of them should die it is a sign of bad luck to the owner of the property where it is found. The bird is a valuable insect destroyer and in this way probably more than compensates for the fear it occasions among the farmers.

Animals Become Insane.

Insanity in the human subject is supposed by some to have no analogue in the lower animals. Yet many cases, according to Dr. Sneilson, will lead to the permanent loss of self control. Cattle driven from the country through a crowded town will often work themselves into a frenzy. Horses have gone mad on the battlefield. At Balaklava an Arabian horse turned on its attendant, threw him down and, kneeling on him, attacked him like an infuriated dog. An instance is related of a docile horse suddenly going mad on a hot day. Everything that came in its way it seized in its teeth and shook as a terrier does a rat. A scientist of authority even goes so far as to prove by what appears to be incontestable evidence that cats, dogs and monkeys have been observed to have delusions very similar to those of insane people.—London Globe.

Dividing the Sexes.

While worshiping in a little chapel-of-ease a few miles from Ruthin, on the Wrexham road, the sexes are so strictly divided that they cannot even see one another. The building forms a right angle, in one arm of which the men sit and the women in the other. It was built and endowed by a misogynist of the Stuart period who objected to having his devotions distracted by the sight of the hated sex and, sympathizing with male posterity, stipulated expressly for this division in his deed of endowment.—London Standard.

The Cuban Workman.

The Cuban workman is a kind husband and a fond father of a family usually of patriarchal size. He lives simply. At the bedega he buys his tasajo (jerked beef), rice, vegetables and cheap wine, and very savory are the stews his meek little wife prepares at the one hearty meal of the day, about 5:30 p. m. The Cuban eats but twice daily. He is underfed and overstimulated. He has coffee at 7 a. m., a light breakfast at 11 a. m and eats his chief meal at twilight.—Southern Workman.

Rapid Typewriting.

An official stenographer, Deming, at Albany, years ago reported court proceedings on a typewriter at the rate of 150 and 170 words a minute. He eliminated the vowels, using consonants only, with a dot to separate words. His typewriter was incased in glass to deaden the noise. The paper was run into the machine from a roll. Lawyers could read the notes.

Happiness.

"I am sometimes accused," writes Sir John Lubbock, "of being too optimistic. But I have never ignored nor denied the troubles and sorrows of life. I have never said that men are happy, but only that they might be; that if they are not so the fault is generally their own; that most of us throw away more happiness than we enjoy."

Too Deserving.

A young village maiden had obtained the modesty prize. "I suppose then, my child," said a Parisian lady addressing her, "you are the most modest girl in the parish?"

"There is not the slightest doubt about that, ma'am, and it's a downright shame I didn't get all the other prizes!"—Paris Journal.

A Hard Proposition.

One of the hardest things for a man to do when he has come home late from the club and tried to go to bed without taking off his collar is to explain to his wife he heard it was a good cure for sore throat.—New York Press.

The man that makes character makes foes.—Young.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

NOTABLE MEN OF THE EASTERN WAR

The Mikado's Council of Veterans — Vice Admiral Makaroff, Who Will Command the Czar's Port Arthur Fleet

ONE of the most interesting personalities in the struggle now going on between Russia and Japan is Vice Admiral Makaroff, the ice breaker specialist of the Russian navy, who recently left St. Petersburg to take the place of Vice Admiral Stark in command of the czar's fleet at Port Arthur.

Vice Admiral Makaroff is in the prime of life, being in his fifty-sixth year. He is tall, broad shouldered and well developed physically. He has a massive head, and his face is well covered with a long, heavy beard. He first visited this country in 1863, when he was still in the training service. He came again in 1896, when he devoted his time to the study of such ice breakers as could be found here. But the plans did not suit him, and he adopted a design of his own, from which his first ice breaker, the Ermak, was constructed.

This great ship was built to break up the ice of the Baltic so as to give ships access to Russian ports and rivers at times when they are usually closed by ice. In March, 1898, the Ermak, fresh from the shipyards where it was built, entered the frozen port of Cronstadt with comparative ease and then, going to Revel, liberated thirty-three vessels of a value of $7,500,000 so that they were able to go on their way with cargoes.

In 1899 the Ermak was subjected to still severer tests. She went to Spitzbergen about the close of the season of navigation, pushed into the polar ice and made a journey through the pack ice. She traveled in the pack about 230 miles. Her powerful machinery drove her bow far up on ice that was fourteen feet thick. Invariably the great weight of the vessel broke the ice, and the Ermak went on its way at an average speed of three to four knots an hour. Such work as this made ice breaking in the Baltic, where the ice is not likely to exceed five feet in thickness, mere child's play. It was Vice Admiral Makaroff's plan to steam around the north end of Nova Zembla and break his way through the ice of the Kara sea to the Yenisei. It was found, however, that the ice of the Kara sea was too heavy to be broken by the Ermak.

Vice Admiral Makaroff's career in the navy of the czar has been notable. In the war between Russia and Turkey in 1876-77 he commanded the Grand

MARQUIS ITO, JAPAN'S GREATEST STATESMAN.

Duke Constantine. For brilliant service with torpedoes he received the decoration of the Order of St. George.

In 1890 Makaroff was made rear admiral and chief of ordnance. The latter appointment was very important because of recent improvements in quick firing guns and smokeless powder. In 1894 he succeeded Rear Admiral Avelan in command of the Mediterranean squadron. When the Chino-Japanese war broke out in 1895, he took his squadron to the Pacific ocean to join the one already there. The Russian government then decided to unite the two under the commander in charge before the war, and Admiral Makaroff was called home to take command of the Baltic squadron. Later he was promoted to the rank of vice admiral, and for some time he has been in command of the naval station at Cronstadt, near St. Petersburg.

One of the peculiar institutions of Japan which have been much in evidence during the past few months is the board of elder statesmen, or genro, which assists the mikado in formulating the policy of the empire. This body was formed some years ago and consisted of those men who had served their country well in the early history of the new Japan.

This council is convoked by the mikado at critical times, and its members advise the mikado. No additions are made to the original council, and in time it will be extinct. The genro now consists of Marquis Ito, Marquis Yamagata, Count Inouye and Count Matsugata, all that are left of a once numerous body.

Marquis Hirobumi Ito is one of the world's prominent characters and the foremost of Japan's statesmen and warriors. He was born in the province of Chosu in 1840 and came into the political arena just when his country needed a progressive man.

He was educated at the Japanese schools and early became a student of statecraft. At the age of twenty-four he represented his government in negotiations by which Japan was made to pay a large indemnity for the murder of foreigners because of an uprising in which Count Inouye, a lifelong friend and political fellow, took part.

Soon after this Ito and Inouye ran away from Japan, working their way to England before the mast. They remained a year in England, noting the things of progress in which the west eclipsed Japan. They returned and began to preach that Japan could no longer exist if she did not open her eyes and embrace civilization. The seed fell on good soil, and Japan began to spring forward.

Ito came to the United States in 1868 to study its coinage system. He made another visit in 1872 with the Iwakura embassy, which sought the revision of a treaty. As undersecretary of the department of public works in 1874 he built the first railroad in Japan.

An imperial edict in 1881 promised the people a constitution, and a committee under the direction of Ito worked ten years preparing the document, much of which is based on American and European models. In anticipation of the promulgation of the constitution the mikado made Ito his premier in 1886, and Count Inouye was appointed minister of foreign affairs. They had collisions with the lower house of the diet, which led to their resignation, but they came back into power in 1892. It was this Ito ministry which foresaw the war with China and hoarded up a great sum for the Japanese war chest. Ito had much to do with the direction of the war, and it was he who negotiated the treaty of peace with Li Hung Chang. As a reward the mikado raised him to the rank of marquis. He must not be confounded with Vice Admiral Yuko Ito, the hero of the Yalu river sea fight in the war with China and who is now an active officer in the navy. It was in this battle that Rear Admiral Uriu, who commanded the squadron that sunk the Russian ships Variag and Korietz at Chemulpo, got his first taste of war.

Field Marshal Marquis Yamagata, who is not only the first soldier in rank, but easily the first in the esteem of the Japanese people, is a veteran of many wars and the greatest military authority in the empire. He was one of that band of patriots who assisted the emperor to the restored throne and naturally enjoys the mikado's confidence. He is getting on in years, being sixty-six, but is still unimpaired mentally and physically. He made a tour of this country in 1896.

Count Matsugata has twice been premier of Japan and served for fourteen years as finance minister. He is one of the greatest financiers Japan ever produced and while minister established the gold standard in Japan. Count Matsugata, who is sixty-eight years old, visited the United States in 1902.

SHAFROTH OF DENVER.

Why He Gave Up His Seat in the United States Congress.

John F. Shafroth of the First district of Colorado, who voluntarily relinquished his seat as a member of the house of representatives because, as he stated, he was convinced that he was illegally elected, established a record in that body. He is the first member to give up his seat, acknowledging that his election had been obtained by fraud.

A case resembling that of Mr. Shafroth's was that of Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson, who relinquished a seat in the house to a contestant in order that the bill to make General Grant a full general on the retired list might be passed. The matter was pending on the last day of congress.

JOHN F. SHAFROTH.

Samuel J. Randall brought in a bill in behalf of General Grant, but the Democrats, who were in the majority, insisted that there should be a vote on the contest against Wilson. The Republicans were filibustering against such a vote being taken, but Mr. Wilson arose and stated that he did not want to stand in the way of the Grant bill and asked that the contestant be seated. This was done about two hours before congress expired, March 4, 1885. The Grant bill was then unanimously passed.

Mr. Shafroth was serving his fifth term in congress. He is a native of Fayette, Mo., and is fifty years old. He was educated in the University of Michigan, studied law and practiced his profession in his native town until 1879, when he removed to Denver. He was elected city attorney of Denver in 1887 and re-elected two years later. Mr. Shafroth was sent to the Fifty-fourth congress as a Republican upon a free silver platform and three times was re-elected upon fusion tickets of silver parties. He was re-elected to the Fifty-eighth congress as a Democrat, receiving a plurality of 2,792 votes over R. W. Bonynge, who has now been seated in his place. Mr. Shafroth was exonerated from all blame in connection with the election frauds.

RUSSIA'S HOLY SEA.

LAKE BAIKAL AS AN OBSTACLE TO THE CZAR'S SUCCESS.

It Cuts the Transsiberian Railway In Two Parts—How It Is Crossed In Summer and In Winter—Miles of Ice a Serious Barrier.

An interesting phase of the war in the far east, both to military men and the public generally, is the enormous task that confronts Russia in maintaining the integrity of her line of communication across the continent of Asia and Lake Baikal. The conduct of military operations, with only a single track of railroad to connect the seat of war with the main base of supplies thousands of miles away, is unprecedented in warfare, and it is not impossible that the road will prove insufficient when the pinch comes.

It is at Lake Baikal, the holy sea, that the Russians are at present experiencing the greatest trouble. This great body of water, situated about 3,500 miles from Moscow and 1,500 from Vladivostok, is one of the largest fresh water lakes in the world, being exceeded in size only by the three largest American lakes and Victoria Nyanza. It is 390 miles long and from 20 to 50 wide and is situated in southern Siberia on the line of the Transsiberian road, which it breaks. A line is being built around the south shore of the lake; but, as the distance is several hundred miles and the lake is surrounded by mountains, this probably will not be completed until the Russo-Japanese war has passed into history.

The gap in the road caused by the lake is thirty-seven miles wide, and in summer this is overcome by the use of huge ferryboats which transport entire trains across it. From November to April, however, the lake is frozen to a depth of four to nine feet, and traffic is carried on over the ice. Rails are laid across the frozen surface, and trains are hauled over by engines. The ice is frequently broken by crevasses, which often delay traffic for days, until the crevasses are frozen sufficiently solid to bear the weight of a train.

For some unexplained reason it appears that the rails have not yet been laid across the ice, as a recent dispatch says that a detachment of troops was frozen to death while crossing the lake. The soldiers are transported on the Transsiberian railroad in box cars fitted with bunks, and it is probable that in the hurry to dispatch them to Manchuria many have been marched across the ice. The battalion reported to have been frozen was doubtless overwhelmed by one of the blizzards for which the lake is noted.

During the late fall and early spring one of the huge ice breakers built by Vice Admiral Makaroff is used to smash a channel across the lake for the railway transports. This ice breaker is a mammoth steamer nearly 400 feet long, which runs its great bow upon the ice and breaks it down. By means of a clever hydraulic device many tons of water ballast are shifted in a few moments from stern to stem, adding to the weight of the ice crushing bow.

An English engineer who recently passed over the Transsiberian road says that it was poorly constructed from the start. Instead of being a well built, safe and serviceable track the greater part of it is a dangerous makeshift. The rails are light, and the ties are too far apart to bear heavy traffic. The rails are only twenty feet long and usually rest on three ties. In laying the ties the workmen simply cut down the trees as they went along, splitting the logs and laying the rounded side up. The rails are insecurely spiked to the ties, and the fishplates at the joints are inadequately riveted.

Any attempt to convey a large body of troops over the road in a hurry, says this authority, would be an impossibility. In the first place, the trains cannot consist of more than four or five cars because of the character of the track, and for the same reason a speed of more than twenty miles an hour is not attainable.

Besides these drawbacks to transportation it is said that in the section gangs of Chinese coolies along the road were many disguised Japanese and that they have distributed explosives along the road, ready to be set off at the proper time.

A good sized ship will carry from 500 to 600 car loads. Imagine, then, a string of several hundred cars standing empty at the eastern terminus of the Transsiberian railroad and then making their way back over thousands of miles for more supplies on a single track road. It is a journey of weeks to get to the Pacific and weeks to get back. Meanwhile Japan with a couple of ships can put the same amount of supplies where she needs them in two days.

RUSSIAN CAVALRY LEADER.

Prince Louis Napoleon, Who Will Fight For the Czar.

Prince Louis Napoleon, who is to take command of the Russian cavalry in Manchuria, has for some time been at the head of a cavalry division in the Caucasus and is a trained soldier who spent his youth in study, much after the fashion of the first Napoleon. He is the second son of the late Prince Jerome and Princess Clotilde, sister of the late King Humbert of Italy.

Prince Louis is at the present time probably the strongest of the pretend-ers to the throne of France, although it is not likely that he will ever make any attempt to gain it. When Prince Jerome died he designated his second son in his will as heir to the wealth and the throne of the Bonapartes. The will had no political effect, however.

Prince Louis was born at the Chateau Meudon in 1864 and, electing the military profession, served in the French army until the passing of the law of 1886 by which his father, Prince Jerome, and his brother, Prince Victor, were expelled from French territory. Prince Louis was not affected by the expulsion law, but he preferred to follow his father into exile. Desiring to pursue his military ambitions, he obtained a commission in the Italian army, but three years later, when war between France and Italy seemed almost inevitable, he offered his services to Russia.

Alexander III. made him lieutenant colonel of a dragoon regiment. Since then Prince Louis has remained in the Russian service, becoming by all accounts an exceedingly capable cavalry officer. When Nicholas II. came to the throne the prince was received with every mark of favor and was soon raised to the rank of major general.

Prince Louis possesses most of the principal orders of Europe, including that of St. Andrew of Russia, but as a patriotic Frenchman he declines to wear any of them so long as the French government refuses to acknowledge the validity of the grant of the grand cross of the Legion of Honor made to him as a child by his uncle, Napoleon III., prior to the latter's loss of his throne.

Columbia university and received the degree of M. D. in 1892. The next year she took a course in gynecology at Johns Hopkins hospital and then began the practice of medicine at Washington.

When the Spanish war broke out she offered her services to the government and was appointed assistant surgeon in the United States volunteers, becoming the only woman officer in the army of Uncle Sam.

Dr. McGee is a member of the Society of Mayflower Descendants and of the Daughters of the American Revolution. In the latter society she has been a leader and is regarded as a very clever and forcible speaker in debate.

AN UNHAPPY RU[illegible]

EASTERN WAR HAS BROUGHT WO[illegible] TO THE EMPEROR OF KOREA.

His Country Overrun by Japanese Troops—Strange Monarch of a Queer Land—Korean Customs—How the Portrait of Yi Hiung Was Painted.

Just at present Korea, the Land of the Morning Calm, is in anything but the placid state its name would indicate. Its territory is being overrun by a horde of Japanese troops, many of its harbors and cities have been seized by Japanese warships, its emperor is practically a prisoner in the hands of the mikado's fighting men, and in fact the country is a sort of territorial bone over which the Russian bear and the Japanese lion are quarreling without a word of apology to the bone or even a "By your leave, sir." Not an enviable condition, to be sure, but such is the fate in these strenuous times of a nation that has no backbone and is unable to defend itself.

Of late many pictures of the emperor of Korea have been printed, and most of them have not been authentic. The accompanying picture, which is from a recent photograph, is said to be a very good likeness of Yi Hiung, Li Hi, Li hsi, Ti Houi or whatever his name may be, for different authorities give him different names.

The uncertain named ruler was not born an heir to the throne. His uncle, his predecessor, died in 1864 without issue, and he was selected by the queen dowager to succeed at the age of twelve years. During his minority his father, Tai Wen Kun, was regent. The present king is described by one who has seen him as a little man, stout and somewhat unhealthy looking. He smiles amiably and constantly, but does not look very clever.

His court is truly oriental in many respects, and he has several hundred wives. According to report, however, there was a period of many years during which he might as well not have had them so far as enjoying their society was concerned. During that time he was a henpecked man indeed, being under the thumb of wife No. 1, the queen. A few years ago reports came thickly from Seoul that she had been murdered by a band of conspirators who had the sympathy of the Japanese government, their object being to remove him from the dominion of a power which was antagonistic. It was never proved that Japan had anything to do with this attack. The king escaped from the palace and received shelter in the Russian legation.

Until 1897 the ruler of Korea was only a king, acknowledging the suzerainty of the emperor of China. Taking advantage of the opportunity provided by the outcome of the Chinese-Japanese war, he in that year declared himself an emperor.

It is said that the emperor does not even know the streets of his capital. He thinks he does. Five times a year he makes a progress through the chief street, a wide thoroughfare, which is carefully prepared for the event and therefore presents a fair appearance when he traverses it. On these occasions the emperor rides in a chair carried by a host of bearers. He himself is adorned beyond the lilies of the field in magnificence.

Owing to the fear of revolutions the emperor sleeps in the daytime and turns the night, when revolutions in Korea are sprung, into day. The New York Tribune tells a story of one occasion when he was trying a new bed and did not sleep in it for a funny reason. He thought he would like to have on the palace grounds a house built and furnished like a European house. One was duly built, and the bed was completed with pillows, bolster and linen sheets, all of which were unknown to Koreans. One cold day he undressed and popped in between the sheets. No sooner was he in than he sprang out again, with a yell, and fled from the house, never to enter it again. Koreans usually go to bed fully disrobed. When the bare skin of the royal personage touched the cold sheets he received a shock which he never forgot.

An official painting of the ruler of Korea is hung in the throne room of the royal palace at Seoul. It was painted in 1903 by a French artist, De Neziere. In order to satisfy Korean ideas of art he was obliged to show the sun and moon both shedding light on the emperor at the same time.

THE Japanese seem to be able to take considerable military exercise notwithstanding their diet is confined to rice, greens and fish.

INDIANA is ambitious to furnish all the vice-presidents that are needed. The Republican friends of Fairbanks declare that his is a name to conjure with and the Democrats have cast Mr. Miers to sustain the role of Barkis. Both parties assume that the head of the ticket will be a New Yorker.

IN another column will be found an accurate statement of the financial condition of the city, which should be carefully scrutinized by every taxpayer. It is an exceedingly creditable showing. There is nothing to conceal, and the figures can be verified by any one who will take the pains to visit the City Hall and compare the receipts and disbursements of the several funds. An effort has been made, solely for political reasons, to create a suspicion that there was something to conceal from the taxpayers in the administration of the city's affairs. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The closest scrutiny is desired by those who have had to administer the affairs of the city during the past two years, and the carping critics are included in this invitation.

THE amendments to the City Charter, introduced by the Hon. T. D. Lewis, have passed both branches of the Legislature and now await favorable action by the electors of this city before they can be returned to Governor Odell for his acceptance and signature. A public hearing will be given on the measure next Saturday evening in the City Hall. Mr. Lewis fathered the proposed amendment on the petition of the members of the present administration and a large number of taxpayers, regardless of party affiliation, and it is hoped they will become a law. The members of the police force have earned the confidence of all classes in this community by the faithful discharge of their duties. It is important that they should be retained, and we believe no right-minded taxpayer will be reluctant to pay them fair wages for the services they perform.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

WHEREAS, The Legislature of the State of New York has passed the act hereinafter set forth, amending the charter of the City of Fulton relating to the compensation of certain city officers, and a certified copy of such bill having been transmitted to the Mayor of the City of Fulton;

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a public hearing in the City of Fulton concerning the said act will be given before the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Fulton, at the Council Chambers in the City Hall, in the said city, at 7.30 p. m., on the 5th day of March, A. D., 1904; and at that time any person so desiring will be heard concerning said act.

Said bill is entitled, "An act to amend the charter of the City of Fulton relating to the compensation of city officers," and reads as follows, the portion amended being underlined, to-wit:

STATE OF NEW YORK.

No. 420. Int. 394.

IN ASSEMBLY,

February 4, 1904.

Introduced by Mr. Lewis—read once and referred to the Committee on Affairs of Cities.

AN ACT

To amend the Charter of the City of Fulton, relating to the compensation of city officers.

The People of the State of New York represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section twelve of chapter sixty-three of the laws of nineteen hundred and two, entitled "An act to incorporate the City of Fulton," is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 12. Compensation of City Officers—The Mayor, Aldermen, Fire and Police Commissioners, members of the City Board of Health, the Board of Education and Board of Public Works, shall receive no compensation for their services. The annual salary of the City Judge shall be eight hundred dollars; the annual salary of the City Chamberlain shall be ten hundred dollars; the annual salary of the City Clerk shall be seven hundred and twenty dollars; the annual salary of the Commissioner of Charities shall be three hundred and fifty dollars; the annual salary of the City Physician shall be three hundred and fifty dollars; the annual salary of each of the City Assessors shall be one hundred and twenty-five dollars; the City Attorney shall receive an annual salary of three hundred dollars, and in addition thereto may charge and receive, in litigated cases only, such sums as are allowed by law to be taxed as costs in an action; the Superintendent of Public Works shall receive such compensation as shall be determined by the Board of Public Works, not exceeding an annual salary of fifteen hundred dollars; the City Engineer shall receive such compensation for his services as shall be determined by the Board of Public Works; the Chief of Police shall receive a monthly salary of sixty-five dollars; the patrolmen, other than special policemen, a monthly salary of forty-five dollars during the first year of service as patrolmen and a monthly salary of fifty dollars during the second year of service and thereafter; provided, however, that the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners of said city may provide by a resolution unanimously adopted that after two years of service the patrolmen shall receive a monthly salary of fifty-five dollars; the Commissioners of Deeds shall receive the compensation now provided by law to be received by them; the Inspectors of Election, Poll Clerks and Ballot Clerks shall receive two dollars per day for each day occupied in discharging their duties under the election law. No officer of the city shall be entitled to receive from the city any compensation for his services other than provided by this act.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

[Signed], J. A. FOSTER,
Mayor of the City of Fulton.

Andrew Carnegie's Munificent Gift.

The members of the First M. E. church are rejoicing in the fact that Mr. Andrew Carnegie has contributed $1,500 toward the new pipe organ fund. The money will be available as soon as a like amount is subscribed by the congregation. It is expected that the organ will cost between $4,000 and $4,5000.

Republican Conventions.

The First District Republican convention will be held in Oswego on April 1. The Second District convention will be held in Pulaski, March 31. The caucuses to elect delegates to these conventions will be held during the week of March 21. The exact date of the Congressional convention to elect delegates to the national convention has not been fixed, but it will be about April 6. The delegates to the national convention from this county will probably be State Commissioner of Excise P. J. Cullin and Hon. Elon R. Brown.

HUMANE SOCIETY.

THE ANNUAL MEETING AND ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The annual meeting of the Humane Societies was held at the home of the Secretary on Friday evening of last week, at which time the following officers were elected: Society for prevention of cruelty to children: President, Mr. Thomas Hunter; Vice Presidents, Mr. Arthur Gilbert and Mrs. A. Youmans; Secretary, Mrs. Edna Moore; Treasurer, Mrs. Janet Sears; Superintendent, Mr. Samuel Green; Collector, Mrs. M. H. Brando; Assistant Collectors, Mrs. Mary Butler, Mrs. C. H. David; Attorneys, Messrs, Piper, Rice & Wilson; Physicians, Drs. Harriette Doane, H. L. Lake, E. A. Gladman; Executive Committee, Messrs. A. Gilbert, A. Rice, John Hunter; Board of Directors, Thomas Hunter, Mrs. G. C. Webb, Mrs. Edna Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gilbert, John Hunter, G. S. Piper, Arvin Rice, Samuel Green; Clothing and Visiting Committee, Mrs. Sears, Mrs. A. Gilbert, Mrs. G. C. Webb, Mrs. A. Youmans.

The Officers, Executive Committee and Board of Directors for the S. P. C. A. are the same with the exception that Mrs. George Chauncey was elected Vice President, Mr. R. B. Hunter a member of the Executive Committe and Dr. Nodyne the Physician.

In looking over the record for 1903, we find that only six meetings were held with an average attendance of seven. We would gladly present a more encouraging report of greater interest in the work, for then much more might have been accomplished. The meetings have been held at the homes of Mrs. Brando, Mr. Arthur Gilbert, Mr. C. H. David and Mr. Samuel Green. In the early part of the year an agent was appointed for the Animal Society, but he was unable to serve in the capacity, and thus the work in this branch has suffered, although some cases have been looked after. Letters were sent to Senators Platt and Depew protesting against a bill which would make legal the confining of live stock in cars forty hours without food or water, while in transit. One boy was placed in Rochester Industrial School where he would receive instruction helpful to good conduct, instead of being confined in jail. In two instances mother's were given the care of their children in such a manner that they could protect them from drunken fathers. The attention of the police has been called to the condition of affairs at various times and places, which has resulted in a betterment of the same. The year's record shows that sixty three cases have been investigated by the Superintendent of the Children's Society, in most of which suffering has been relieved, the erring punished or warned against a repetition of the wrong.

It is not possible to give an adequate idea of the work done by the Society, in a brief annual report, and especially the great amount done by Mr. Green. We most earnestly appeal to the citizens of the community to help in the work of the Humane Society.

Miss Clapp will accompany the party, and she may be addressed at No. 1230 Locust street, Philadelphia, Pa., for further information.

Bishop McDonald, of Brooklyn, at a regular conference of Catholic clergy held on Thursday last at St. John's Seminary, called attention to a mandate from Pope Pius X. requiring the removal of all female singers in the choirs of the various churches and the substitution of boy choirs. The Pope holds that the presence of women as singers in the choirs is clearly inadmissible according to the strict rubrics of the church. Figured music was also declared to be better out of the mass, the plain chant or Gregorian music alone to be used.

Pulaski Democrat: Our people were highly entertained on Monday evening, by the Empire Entertainment Company, who gave a program of music and impersonations which is seldom equalled. Mr. and Mrs. Newton of Fulton, the former master of the trombone and cornet, and the latter a superior soprano and violin soloist, were delightful in their work. Mr. Jones has wonderful skill in giving his selections as impersonator and monologist. Miss Jewell, as piano accompanist, completes the company for the highest class of entertainments.

MAKING CLAY PIPES.

A BUSINESS ABOUT WHICH MOST PEOPLE KNOW VERY LITTLE.

The Process of Manufacture Is Not So Simple as Might Be Imagined From the Low Price of the Finished Product—How They Are Made.

Among the little things seen in daily life about which most people know very little is the common, ordinary clay pipe. In almost every cigar shop window, in the mouth of every third laborer met and even in the nursery this snow white little instrument of comfort and amusement may be seen, yet few know, for instance, that most of the clay pipes sold in this city of domestic make are manufactured in New Jersey. Woodbridge is the name of the queer little town given over to this odd manufacture, and a trip through one of the factories of that settlement, to follow the pipe from the time it is dug as clay to the time it appears ready for the market, is interesting.

Looking at the chunks and lumps of clay as they are transported from the banks to the factories, one would hardly believe that the snowy, cheap little article could have been manufactured from material so different in color. The color of this clay before it is burned is dark gray, like cement; nor is the process of manufacturing one of these pipes as simple as might be imagined from the absurdly low price. As the clay comes into the factory it is divided finely and put to soak in water for ten to twelve hours. This soaking is to divide the clay to its smallest possible particles so that in the ensuing process it will not cake or lump and will work smoothly and evenly. This attained, the clay is put into a "pug" mill, where it is stirred by machinery until it gets stiffer and stiffer, finally becoming as stiff as dough. In this state the clay is roughly molded into lumps and distributed among the pipemakers, who begin the first step in the life of the humble creation.

Grasping a small chunk of clay in each hand, the artist begins work to fashion roughly two pipes at the same time. Rolling the clay between a table and his palms, he quickly produces two carrot shaped and pointed rolls that bear little or no resemblance to the article when it shall be finished. With incredible speed the fashioning of these rolls continues, for ahead of the expert is the problem of manufacturing something like seventy-five gross of pipes within the week. Then the rolls are put away to dry somewhat, and for ten or twelve hours they stiffen so that once shaped they will not fall readily to pieces. After that the clay is ready for molding.

The ordinary mold consists of two pieces of iron hinged on the side and opening like a sewing box. Most of the little factories have numerous molds, from the common, unadorned sort that comes in two pieces and is intended for the ordinary plain pipe to all sorts of elaborate patterns that come in six or eight pieces and are made of brass and intended to fashion pipes in imitation of wooden models that happen to be in vogue. The pipemaker grasps one of the shapeless rolls, tilts the fat end upward, which at once gives the suggestion of a pipe, and runs a wire through the pointed end, out of which the stem is to be pressed.

This roughly fashioned clay is then put into the mold, which is jammed shut, while at the same time a plunger is pressed to enter the mold and to press out the clay so as to form the bowl. With a dull knife the clay pressed out at the side of the mold is shaved off with a single lightning stroke by the expert, and then once more there must be a drying process, this time in a room heated to about 85 degrees, where, as before, the pipe is kept for twelve hours. Except that the pipe is of its original gray color and soft and supplied with the "burs" where the molded ends are joined, it is now practically finished.

Then comes the process of shaving off the burs. At this stage the pipe still retains considerable dampness, so that the clay may be cut smoothly, while at the same time a wire is again drawn through the stem, so as to insure proper draft. All is now ready for the pipe in its final state except that it needs to be burned. For this purpose it is put into a cylindrical vessel twelve inches high and as much in diameter. This is known as a "sagger." Set one against the other, the pipes are adjusted solidly in the sagger, which will hold something like a gross of pipes properly packed. If the pipes consist of the more fancy designs—that is, merely pipe bowls that are to be provided with mouthpieces of wood or rubber—the saggers will hold as many as two gross of pipes. Nine of these saggers filled with pipes are known as a stand, and a medium sized kiln will hold twenty-one stands and will burn them all at the same time. For five hours the heat in the kiln is kept at a moderate temperature. After that it is allowed to run up until at the end of twelve or fourteen hours it is driven to a white heat, which gives the pipes their spotless white finish.—New York Times.

The Farm.

Every farmer should own his farm. If he cannot own a large one, let him own what he can and gradually increase the size. Land ownership conduces to happiness, contentment and restfulness. One of the greatest hindrances to the prosperity of the tenant is that he is compelled to move frequently and therefore cannot accumulate.—Maxwell's Talisman.

Be wiser than other people if you can, but do not tell them so.—Chesterfield.

LOVE OF FIGHTING.

It Seems to Be Inborn in the Average Human Being.

We are all fond of fighting—that is, we all love to look at a fight, and some of us like to be in a fight. But we all love to see one. There are some super-æsthetic and hyper refined humans of both sexes who think they do not like to see a fight. Some of them actually believe they are sincere. But deep down in the average man and woman the love of fight exists. It is ingrained; it is congenital; it is in the human baby. When he screams, squalls and kicks if his will is thwarted, he is fighting.

So with the same baby when, grown up into a boy, he pulls his little sister's hair. It is partly, perhaps, the love of fighting and partly, perhaps, the love of giving pain, for cruelty also seems to be part of the makeup of the human animal. After little brother has finished pulling little sister's hair and she has dried her eyes she soothes her wounded feelings by pulling off flies' wings or legs or pinching the cat's tail under a rocking chair. Of the higher flights of juvenile cruelty to which her brother rises when he ties two cats together by their tails over a clothesline, where they fight till nothing is left but their tail tips—of these familiar facts we will not speak.

When brother goes to school and then to college, whether it be to the English "public" school or to the American "public" school, resembling each other only in name; to the academy, to the preparatory school, to the university, he speedily becomes past master in cruelty. In most of these institutions he must fight. Hazing exists in every college in the country. Even the United States government cannot stamp it out at West Point and Annapolis. In both these institutions fist fights under prize ring rules are of almost daily occurrence. They are masterful battles, and they have not a little to do with making stout hearted, stalwart fighters of our army and navy officers. To those who object to these battles the unanswerable reply is that the boys are there to learn to fight and that the way to learn to fight is to fight.—San Francisco Argonaut.

The "Czar" Went to Bed.

A foreign nobleman who, if report speaks true, is somewhat henpecked invited some men a night or two ago to play cards in his house. The meeting was a convivial one, and all went "merry as a marriage bell." It grew late, and fears were expressed by the party that they were trespassing upon the kindness of the mistress of the house, who, by the way, was not present.

"Not at all, gentlemen; not at all. Play as long as you please. I am czar here," said the master of the mansion.

"Yes, gentlemen, play as long as you please," said a silvery voice, and all rose immediately as the baroness stood before them. "But as it is after 1 o'clock the czar is going to bed." He went.

Wanted a Sure Thing.

An English professor of mineralogy tells a good story about a certain big English commercial magnate. He says that the great merchant in question came to him to consult about the instruction of the hopeful son and heir who was some day to run the vast business interests from which "the pater" had made his wealth.

"But mind you," said he, "I don't want him to learn about strata or dips or faults or upheavals or denudations, an' I don't want him to fill his mind with fossils or stuff about crystals. What I want him to learn is how to find gold and silver and copper in paying quantities, sir—in paying quantities."

A Bishop's Rebuke.

Bishop Dudley of Kentucky could administer a rebuke delicately, but on occasions he took care to see that the point was plain. One of the wealthiest members of his church as well as one of the closest told him he was going abroad.

"I have never been on the ocean," he said to the bishop, "and I would like to know something that will keep me from getting seasick."

"You might swallow a nickel," responded the bishop. "You'll never give that up."

His Unenviable Plight.

"So Smithers finds himself between the devil and the deep sea, does he?"

"Well, it amounts to the same thing. He's between an empty furnace and an unpaid coal bill."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

The Story of Toledo Cathedral.

The cathedral of Toledo is perhaps the finest architectural glory that Spain can boast. The site was occupied by at least three churches before the erection of the present building, the first one, according to popular legend, having been erected during the lifetime of the Virgin Mary and visited by her. Of this church we know nothing. The second was pulled down in 1032. The third was finished in 1085 and was occupied by the Moors for many years as a mosque. Afterward it was the cathedral of Spain, until in the early part of the thirteenth century Alfonso IX. had it pulled down and the present one erected in its stead. It is 404 feet long and 204 feet wide, is built from material quarried in the neighborhood and is of the purest Gothic. It was designed by Pedro Perez Diaz, who supervised its erection for nearly fifty years and consecrated his life to it. During the five centuries after his death more than 150 architects were employed upon it, and for 266 years the work was uninterrupted.—St. James Gazette.

Through Women's Eyes.

As a finely dressed woman entered the "L" train every other woman in the car eyed her clothes closely. "There," said a man to his wife, who was making a close inventory of the new arrival's dress, "that is what I don't like about women. They display such interest in other women's clothes. You see it everywhere—in parlors, at receptions and balls and in public conveyances. You never see men acting that way. I am inclined to believe this is owing to men's finer judgment as to what is proper. They know that to take note of another's dress is the height of bad manners, and they abstain from doing it."

"It is very nice of you, of course, to praise your own sex so," said his wife, "but your explanation is utterly wrong. The reason women notice one another's clothes is that every woman is practically a dressmaker, and when she sees a dress she views it with the interest of a professional."—New York Press.

Confederate Coinage.

It is a matter of history that the entire coinage of the Confederate states consisted of four half dollar pieces. The obverse side had a goddess of liberty (same as United States coins) in an arc of thirteen stars, in her right hand a shield of conventional design with "Liberty" thereon and below the date, 1861. On the reverse side was an American shield beneath a Liberty cap, the union containing seven stars—representing the seven seceding states—the whole surrounded by a wreath; at the left cotton in bloom, at the right sugar cane. The legend was "Confederate States of America." In the exergue, "Half Dol." The borders were milled and the edge was serrated.—New York Tribune.

Old Time Grave Robbers.

Under the laws of Draco, the most severe code ever drawn up, all grave robbers were put to death without trial. The old Athenian laws put a slave to death for disturbing a body after interment, but in the case of a freeman a "confiscation of a moiety of his possessions" was the penalty. Constantine decreed that a woman might obtain a divorce if she could prove that her husband had disturbed the remains of the dead. At one time (in the time of the seventh and eighth Henrys) the English law held that "it is deemed unlawful to open a grave for a second person, except for a husband or wife."

Vegetables of Liberia.

The most common vegetables of Liberia are the sweet potato, cassada, yam and tania. The cassada is a root varying in size from three to eight inches in length and from three to eight inches in circumference. When it is cooked it tastes very much like a fresh chestnut. This root is the vegetable most extensively cultivated by the natives and forms, with the rice, their chief diet. The fecula of the cassada is made from tapioca.

Stage Manners.

Stage managers still consider it necessary to keep the actors bustling about the stage in a meaningless, unnatural and distracting manner. In life I do not speak three or four sentences to my friend at one side of the room and then with him elaborately cross the room before I continue my discourse. Why should I do so on the stage?—London Academy.

Man the Slave.

It has taken ages of repression to bring the husband and father to his present condition of abject slavery to the wife and mother. He is the victim of a process that began in the garden of Eden and gives no promise of ending until he is called to the reward that awaits the humble on the other and brighter shore.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Putting Words In Her Mouth.

"I declare," said Bella sweetly, "your thoughts run exactly in unison with mine, Augustus. I had those very words in my mouth."

"Yes, and I saw him put 'em there, too," said little Tommy, who had seen the kissing going on.

An Investigator.

"Yes, our boy has shown a remarkable talent for music. He wants to get at the very source of it, as it were."

"What proof have you of this?"

"Why, he knocked in the heads of three drums in as many days."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Expects to Return.

"So she has started on a life journey into matrimony, has she?"

"Well, I guess it is only an excursion trip."—Brooklyn Life.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas, Default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the 1st day of December, 1902, made and executed by Mabelle Root, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage, with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, New York, on the 3d day of December, 1903, at 3:39 o'clock p. m., in Liber 203 of Mortgages, at page 68, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and,

Whereas, The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of eleven hundred seventy-three dollars and seventy-six cents ($1,173.76), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided, and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property, described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as lots numbers six and seven (6 and 7) of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, being twenty-five (25) feet in width on Second street. Also all that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, being part of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, bounded as follows: Beginning on Second street one hundred and twenty-eight (128) feet southerly from Seneca street, running thence easterly one hundred twenty-one and a half (121½) feet; thence southerly twenty-five (25) feet, thence westerly three and a half (3½) feet; thence southerly twelve (12) feet, thence westerly parallel with Oneida street to Second street; thence northerly along Second street thirty-seven (37) feet to the place of beginning," at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego, New York, on the 12th day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated December 16, 1903.

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgagor, Robert H. Stowe. Mortgagee, Mrs. C. C. Pettis. Mortgage dated August 14, 1903, and recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the Clerk's office of Oswego County, N. Y., on the 15th day of August, 1903, at 8:25 a. m., in Liber 204 of Mortgages, at page 528. The sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is fifty one dollars and nineteen cents ($51.19), being the whole sum secured by said mortgage. (Said Mortgagee above named, also holds two prior mortgages upon the same premises, on which is unpaid the sum of $400, together with interest on $150, from February 14, 1903, and on $250, from March 18, 1903.)

The mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, and State of New York, known and described as Lot No. five (5) of block five hundred and four (504), according to the map of the village of Fulton on file in Oswego County Clerk's office. Default having been made in the payment of the sum secured to be paid by said mortgage, and no action having been brought to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof; therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained, recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said mortgaged property at public auction, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, N. Y., on the 2d day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said sale will be made subject to the lien of the above mentioned prior mortgages.

Dated, January 6, 1904.

CAL-CURA SOLVENT

Dissolves and swiftly removes stone and gravel (red and white) from the Kidneys and Bladder, thus relieving the pain of Kidney Colic and avoiding the use of the surgeon's knife. Calcura Solvent prevents the formation of uric acid in the Blood and corrects those conditions of the Stomach which produce Gout poisoning and Rheumatism. Calcura Solvent is A NEW MEDICINE. It expels gall stones, gives health to the liver, and cures bilious colic and constipation. Dr. David Kennedy said of it, "Calcura Solvent is the outcome of my long experience as a Physician and Surgeon and I consider it the greatest achievement of my life." Women Sold by Auction.

An auction of unmarried ladies used to take place annually in Babylon. In every district they assembled on a certain day of every year all the virgins of marriageable age. The most remarkable was first put up, and the man who bid the largest sum of money gained possession of her. The second in personal appearance followed, and the bidders gratified themselves with handsome wives according to the depth of their purses. But, alas, it seems that there were in Babylon some ladies for whom no money was likely to be offered, yet these also were disposed of, so provident were the Babylonians. When all the beautiful virgins were sold, the crier ordered the most deformed to stand up, and after he had openly demanded who would marry her with a small sum she was at length adjudged to the man who would be satisfied with the least, and in this manner the money arising from the sale of the handsome served as a portion to those who were either of disagreeable looks or that had any other imperfection. This custom prevailed about 500 years before Christ.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Spencer and Beecher.

Herbert Spencer visited America in 1882 and on that occasion a banquet was given in New York in his honor. Henry Ward Beecher was one of the after dinner speakers.

"I am asked," said Mr. Beecher, "how I reconcile Spencer with theology. I don't.

"A man who has a baldheaded deacon watching everything he does or a gold spectacled lawyer—not a fat one" (looking at Mr. Bristow), "but a long, lean, lank one" (looking at Mr. Evarts) —"can't afford to talk Spencerism from the pulpit.

"It is to be borne in mind that when a man is driving a team of fractious horses that are just all he can manage anyhow he is not in a state of mind to discuss questions with his wife by his side, who is undertaking to bring up delicate domestic matters."

It had been said that Mr. Spencer had no sense of humor, but he joined heartily in the merriment which Mr. Beecher's speech provoked.

Pitt's Fondness For Port.

The ruin of Pitt's health was attributed to his physicians, who made him take port in large quantities in his youth, so that he could not do without it later. Lord Grenville has seen him swallow a bottle of port in tumblerfuls before going to the house. His hands shook so much that when he helped himself to salt he was obliged to support the right hand with the left. Stothard, the painter, happened to be one evening at an inn on the Kept road when Pitt and Dundas put up there on their way to Walmer. Next morning the waiter said to Stothard: "How much wine do you suppose they drank last night? Seven bottles, sir!"—Rogers' "Table Talk."

The Way They Do In Iceland.

Icelanders never think of "locking up" at night, and yet only two cases of thieving have occurred in many years. One was a poor man with a broken arm, who stole several sheep to save his family from starving. The punishment meted out to him was that food was provided for his family, he was placed under medical care and was given him when his arm had healed. The other case was of a foreigner who stole seventeen sheep. The law demanded that he restore the value of the thefts and then leave the country or be executed. Naturally he left.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

Countries as Presents.

Cleopatra received Egypt as a present from Julius Cæsar. Lucullus, Sulla and Pompey each gave away half a dozen kingdoms. Antony gave the little kingdom of Judæa to Herod. One of the excellent stories of the past is that the Emperor Constantine gave Rome and all Italy to Pope Sylvester who cured him of leprosy. King John called Lackland, being excommunicated by Pope Innocent III., gave to that pope and his successors the kingdom of Ireland and England. The deed reads, "Not constrained with fear, but with my full consent and the advice of my barons, for the remission of my sins against God and the church, I resign England and Ireland to God, St. Peter, St. Paul and our lord the Pope Innocent, and to his successors in the apostolic chair." Julius II. gave the estates of King Louis XII. to the Emperor Maximilian. Sixtus V., Gregory XIV. and Clement VIII. were ready to make a present of France to whomsoever Philip II. would have chosen for the husband of his daughter Clara Eugenia. Alexander VI. presented the East and West Indies to Spain and Portugal, which was like giving almost all the earth.

The Birch.

Old writers in mentioning birch trees seldom failed to say solemnly that they were useful to grow branches with which to give boys thrashings. Turner regards the supply of "flexible, pendent branches" for purposes of punishment as the chief merit of the tree. Coles also based his estimate of the birch chiefly on its use in the supply of rods as instruments of punishment, for he writes: "The civil uses whereunto the birch serveth are many, as for the punishment of children, both at home and at school; for it hath an admirable influence upon them to quiet them when they are out of order, and therefore some call it makepeace." In ancient Rome the fasces of the lictors, with which they cleared the way for magistrates, were formed with rods of birch, and their influence was sufficient to insure a rapid dispersion of men assembled where they would impede the passage of the administrators of the law. From that time to within a comparatively recent period the birchen rod was regarded as one of the most important deterrents of juvenile depravity.

A Japanese Mimic.

A jolly little story is told by a contributor to an English paper about a curious faculty the Japanese have of imitating animals. "I remember some years ago," she says, "being at a Christmas juvenile party when a nephew of the mikado was present. The young prince got himself up by means of a muff, a sable mantle and a boa for a tail to look like some extraordinary feline and then crawled into the room where the Felis domestica was enjoying the hearth rug before the fire. There was something so sinuous and lifelike in his movements that the wretched grimalkin almost flew up the chimney with terror."

The Retort Disdainful.

Ellen Terry, the famous English actress, in the kindness of her heart once took a girl out of the poorhouse to train as a servant. But she was altogether hopeless and was continually breaking plates, dishes and everything she laid hands on, until Miss Terry thought that in time she might break her, so she dismissed her. But, not wishing the girl to come to any harm, when she was going away she asked her what she was going to do for a living. "Oh," she said disdainfully, "if the wust come to the wust, I can go on the stage."

The Color Violet.

It is said that of all colors violet is the one most stimulating to the eye coats and that the electric light, and more especially that given out by the large lamps used in many public places, is rich in violet rays. It is claimed violet dresses and draperies are responsible for many eye "cases" and for not a few of the skin troubles about which the dermatologist is frequently consulted.

Look Up.

The troubles of people are unnecessarily multiplied by the fact that they are forever looking down instead of up, which is only another way of saying that they live on a low plane instead of on a high one; that they breathe the miasmatic airs of the swamps instead of the pure ozone of the hills, and so miss the real meaning of the true happiness of life.

What He Wanted.

"A tall bride is the best looking, don't you think?"

"Well," replied the titled Englishman who had caught on to a little American slang, "so far as I am personally concerned I certainly am not looking for one who is 'short.'"—Chicago Post.

The Lightning Changes We Make.

Great is the human makeup, and great are its chameleonlike qualities in the way of expressing feeling. Writers from time immemorial have taught us what to expect from the different colors that flit across our countenances, and, of course, writers are never wrong. Here are some of the lightning chromatic changes that we all have grown to recognize, and there are several counties yet to be heard from:

A man turns green with envy, yellow with hatred, purple with rage, scarlet with anger, white from fear, pink from excitement, saffron from sickness, black from torture, red from heat and blue from cold.

Sometimes, too, he is "cold as steel," "hot as blazes," "cool as a cucumber," "a warm proposition," "hard as brass," "soft as mush," "smooth as a board," "a rough customer" and "a slick article." Then again he is "good as wheat," "sound as a rock," "strong as an ox," "weak as a cat," "slippery as an eel," "sly as a fox," "mean as a snake," "poor as a mouse," "hungry as a wolf," and "dry as a fish."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Physical Culture.

It is a mistake to think that excessive physical exercise is beneficial. The opposite is the fact. As some one has said, "Man is not constructed to be a running and leaping animal, like a deer or cat." To emphasize bodily development above the mental development is a step toward resumption of the life of the savage and lower animals. Physical culture is a desirable thing; but, as in everything else, the extremes are to be avoided. A person may have too little bodily exercise and may also have far too much or violent exercise. One who is walking a considerable part of the day would need but little else as exercise except, perhaps, calisthenics for the arms, back and chest and on retiring or rising. And the same advice is applicable to a woman who does her own housework. But one confined over a desk or typewriter should make a conscientious habit of walking, bicycling and calisthenics every day for an hour or thereabouts.—Cincinnati Tribune.

Wanted Bread; Had Courage.

One day, riding along the road, General Gordon came upon a regimental prayer meeting, which was very impressive. The men were kneeling or standing with bowed heads about the chaplain, who was praying in a voice of wonderful compass.

The general checked his horse and removed his hat and waited for the end of the prayer. The chaplain asked the Lord to give the men of Lee's army supreme courage to meet the great crisis that had come upon them, fortitude to bear new privations and troubles, strength to fight against the pursuing enemy. Just then a tall private rose from his knees and shouted to the chaplain: "Pray for bread, chaplain; pray for bread! We have courage to spare but to fight we must have something to eat. Pray for bread!" This broke up the prayer meeting.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Playing a Trick on McCullough.

Will McConnell and John McCullough were playing "Virginius," and McConnell was doing Icilius. When he had to go up to John and shake hands with him he put a hard boiled egg into his palm and left it there, and McCullough, being in the center of the stage and alone, could not get rid of it. He discharged Will, as usual, that night, but he never stayed discharged, and he was taken on again when they found him on board the train on the way to the next stand.

How She Felt.

"I hope," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that you didn't feel that you were de trop when you called the other day and found Mrs. Beezum present."

"Oh, no," replied her hostess. "That was just the back of my waist that I kept feeling. One of the hooks was loose, and somehow I couldn't help bein' kind of nervous about it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

An Irish Gem.

An Irish journal had this gem in answer to a correspondent: "We decline to acknowledge the receipt of your post card."

Huxley on Men.

Professor Huxley once wrote to Mrs. W. K. Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman of Dennison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says. "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, at which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." SAVAGE ATHLETICS.

Rough Training of the Natives of the Canary Islands.

In this age of athletics one might think that no people ever showed so much interest in feats of muscular might and skill as those who have perfected football, but modern games and even the games of the Greeks at Olympia may have been more than matched by the sports of peoples who are now held in little esteem. A writer on the Canary islands gives an account of their athletic training which makes even the college giants of today seem weak and effeminate.

The Canary islands were subjected by Spain about the time Columbus discovered America. The conquest was due solely to the superiority of European weapons and not to better skill and prowess. The native soldiers were trained athletes, developed under a system which held athletic sports an important business, like military drill.

Spanish chronicles have left us accounts of the sports of the islanders. From babyhood they were trained to be brisk in self defense. As soon as they could toddle the children were pelted with mud balls that they might learn how to protect themselves. When they were boys stones and wooden darts were substituted for the bits of clay.

In this rough school they acquired the rudiments of warfare which enabled them during their wars with the Spaniards to catch in their hands the arrows shot from their enemies' crossbows.

After the conquest of the Canaries a native of the islands was seen at Seville who for a shilling let a man throw at him as many stones as he pleased from a distance of eight paces. Without moving his left foot he avoided every stone.

Another native used to defy any one to hurl an orange at him with so great rapidity that he could not catch it. Three men tried this, each with a dozen oranges, and the islander caught every orange. As a further test he hit his antagonists with each of the oranges.

NOT TRUE TO THE POLE.

The Variations In the Pointing of the Compass.

We commonly say that the pole of the needle points toward the north. The poets tell us how the needle is true to the pole. Every reader, however, is now familiar with the general fact of a variation of the compass. On our eastern seaboard and all the way across the Atlantic the north pointing of the compass varies so far to the west that a ship going to Europe and making no allowance for this deviation would find herself making more nearly for the North cape than for her destination. The "declination," as it is termed in scientific language, varies from one region of the earth to another. In some places it is toward the west, in others toward the east.

The pointing of the needle in various regions of the world is shown by means of magnetic maps. Such maps are published by the United States coast survey, whose experts make a careful study of the magnetic force all over the country. It is found that there is a line running nearly north and south through the middle states along which there is no variation of the compass. To the east of it the variation is west, to the west of it east. The most rapid changes in the pointing of the needle are toward the northeast and northwest regions. When we travel to the northeastern boundary of Maine, the westerly variation has risen to 20 degrees. Toward the northwest the easterly variation continually increases until in the northern part of the state of Washington it amounts to 23 degrees.—Simon Newcomb in Harper's.

Proper Treatment of Pneumonia.

Pneumonia is to dangerous a disease for anyone to attempt to doctor himself, although he may have the proper remedies at hand. A physician should always be called. It should be borne in mind, however, that pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of the grip, and by the proper treatment of these diseases a threatened attack of pneumonia may be warded off. There is no question whatever about this, as during the thirty years and more that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used, we have yet to learn of a single case of a cold or attack of the grip having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used. It is also used by physicians in the treatment of pneumonia with the best results. Dr. W. J. Smith, of Sanders, Ala., who is also a Druggist, says of it: "I have been selling Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and prescribing it in my practice for the past six years. I use it in cases of pneumonia and have always gotten the best results." Sold by H. C. Giesler.

DIED.

Nellie E., aged 32, wife of Daniel Mehegan, Jr., died at her home in West Fifth street on Monday after a long illness with consumption. A husband, three daughters and a son survive to mourn her loss. The funeral was held from the Catholic Church this morning

Edith D., aged 39, wife of Mr. Frederick R. Nelson, died at her home on Harrison street on Wednesday, after a long illness. The deceased was very well known in this city, where she conducted a dancing class in Church's hall for several years. She is survived by her husband, one son and one daughter. The funeral was held from her late home on Sunday afternoon, the Rev. Dr. James Vincent officiating. The Daughters of Pocahontas, of which order the deceased was a member, taking charge of the funeral. Interment in Mt. Adnah Cemetery.

It is with feelings of infinite sadness that we chronicle the death of Herbert Raymond, only son of Mr. William Stowe, which occurred at his home on Cayuga street at 4.30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. The deceased was taken ill two weeks ago and Dr. C. J. Bacon was called. He pronounced the disease typhoid fever with serious complications, and gave very little hope for recovery. A trained nurse from Syracuse was called and a battle against the grim destroyer was waged unceasingly by doctor, patient, family and nurse. The fever crisis was passed on Friday night, but the sufferer was so prostrated as to aggravate the complications, and on Saturday Dr. Bacon called Dr. Elsner of Syracuse in consultation. He agreed with Dr. Bacon that the case was hopeless, but the unequal battle continued to be waged. On Tuesday afternoon, just as a gleam of hope was given, the summons came and the patient entered into rest. The deceased was born in this city about eighteen years ago and has always made it his home. He possessed a mind of unusual fineness, mature beyond his years, and a most promising future seemed before him. He graduated from the High School in the class of 1902, having completed the classical course while in his sixteenth year, and he was to have entered Syracuse University in the Fall. Socially he was a universal favorite; his pure happy nature winning many friends. He had been employed in Mr. Phillips' drug store since his graduation. His father and four sisters—Miss Anna Stowe of this city, Mrs. H. C. Sheldon and Miss Gertrude Stowe of Syracuse and Mrs. H. R. Abbott of Oswego—are left to mourn the loss of a beloved son and brother. Mrs. Abbott is seriously ill in Oswego and does not know of her brother's illness or death. The sympathy of this entire community goes out to the stricken family. The funeral services will be held from the late home on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. John Richards officiating.

Early on Monday morning the startling announcement was made that Eugene Sullivan, proprietor of the Hotel Fulton, had been found dead in bed. The deceased, who was 62 years old, retired on Sunday night in his accustomed health, but unsuspected heart trouble caused death while he slept. Mr Sullivan was a public-spirited citizen and enjoyed the respect of all who knew him. He is survived by two children—Miss Anna Sullivan of this city, and Mr. R. E. Sullivan of Brooklyn; also one brother, Mr. Timothy Sullivan of this city. The deceased was a charter member of St. Joseph's Council, Knights of Columbus. He was also a charter member of Fulton Lodge No. 830, B. P. O. Elks which has adopted appropriate memorial resolutions. Both societies will attend the funeral services in a body. These will be held in the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Friday morning at 9.30 o'clock.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

At a special meeting of Fulton Lodge No. 830, B. P. O. Elks, held Feb. 2[illegible], 1904, Brothers F. M. Cornell, F. G. Spencer, Amos Youmans, H. J. Fanning and L. A. Richardson were appointed to draft a memorial on the death of Brother Eugene Sullivan. The committee made the following report:

For the first time in the history of Fulton Lodge No. 830, B. O. E ks, death has entered its ranks and removed one of its members, Eugene Sullivan.

Joining as a charter member, Brother Sullivan was always actively interested in the welfare of our lodge and proved himself a faithful adherent to its cardinal principles.

His every impulse sprung from heart filled with charity and a mind keen with the sense of justice.

In him fidelity had no better exponent and brotherly love no truer champion.

Let us write his name on the table of love and memory and extend to the fatherless ones our heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of supreme affliction.

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning for thirty days; that a copy of the foregoing memorial be spread upon the records of the lodge and a certified copy be presented to the family of our departed brother.

A. O. U. W. CONVENTION.

Grand Master Workman Thorn Makes an Argument For Biennial Sessions.

Rochester, March 2.—The 31st annual convention of the Ancient Order of United Workmen of New York state opened here yesterday, Grand Master Workman Perry M. Thorn presiding. Candidates for places in the grand lodge are very numerous. Mayor Cutler welcomed the convention to the city, after which the reports of the grand lodge officers were received.

Grand Master Workman Thorn in his report said: "I am of the firm belief that our laws should be so amended that we hold biennial sessions of the grand lodge. The expense of annual sessions would be done away with and that amount of money would not be required to be taken from the brethren, and their burden thus be made lighter.

"Under our present laws and customs a man you elect to serve you as grand master workman has scarcely become familiar with the duties of the office and the needs of the order when he must step down and out, and another comes in and follows the same course. I cannot conceive this practice to be for the best interest of the order. Biennial sessions would do away with this practice and give your officers two-year terms, and in that way the order would be benefited."

The report of Grand Recorder A. C. Harwick showed that during the year seven new lodges were organized. The total number of lodges at the end of the year was 433. Members in good standing at the close of 1902, 32,744; initiated during 1903, full rate members, 336; half rate members, 1,879; total number initiated, 2,215. Members in good standing at the close of 1903, 18,367 full rate and 6,480 half rate, a total of 24,847.

The report of Grand Receiver Victor R. Blehdon showed receipts in the beneficiary fund for the year of $1,029,510.55 with a balance on hand at the beginning of the year of $55,685.54. The disbursements for the year were $1,052,900.

Simultaneous with the main convention the Degree of Honor of the A. O. U. W., an auxiliary society for women, held its annual meeting. Mrs. William B. Moynihan is the retiring grand chief of honor. If the custom is followed she will be sent as a representative to the supreme lodge meeting. Mrs. Ida Topham, it is thought, will be re-elected grand receiver.

FOR PURE WINES.

Organization of Eastern Manufacturers to Compete With California.

New York, March 2.—A meeting of representatives of the American Wine company and firms east of the Rocky mountains was held here to form a permanent organization. A committee was appointed to prepare a measure to be introduced in congress to prohibit the manufacture of so-called "sugar wines." A resolution was passed pledging every member present to make and sell only pure wines and to have them properly labeled.

The new organization is to be known as the American Wine Growers' association. President elect, Edwin R. Emerson, Washingtonville; first vice president, F. N. Randall, Ripley, N. Y.; several second vice presidents, including D. Bauder and Henry Frey, Hammondsport, N. Y.; George E. Hickman, Brocton, N. Y.; treasurer, James Neel, Urbana, N. Y.; secretary L. E. Vance, New York. One of the objects of the association is to meet the competition of California wines.

Lost Their Lives Saving Others.

New York, March 2.—In saving a 4-year-old child from being run over by a heavy express wagon Frank Carlin, an umbrella mender, was probably fatally injured. He threw the girl out of harm's way but was himself run over, receiving serious internal injuries and fractured ribs.

James Mallen, a brakeman on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, was killed in a successful endeavor to save the life of a deaf and dumb woman. His threw her from in front of an approaching train but slipped and was himself run over and killed.

Favored Bostwick Mortgage Bills

Albany, March 2.—The Bostwick mortgage tax bills, one providing for mortgage tax exemption and a recording tax after July 1, the other for an "optional security tax," were favored before the joint committee on taxation and retrenchment by Assemblyman Bostwick, Lawson Purdy of the New York Tax Reform association, Frank White of Albany and others. All argued substantially on the same ground, that while mortgages ought to be exempt altogether this legislation involved a step in the right direction.

REPLY OF JAPANESE.

Mr. Takahira Gives Out Statement Prepared at Tokio.

REPLIES TO TREACHERY CHARGE

Says Russian Government Never Desired Peace and Was Preparing For War While Protracting Negotiations—Japan Gave Sufficient Notice. Historical Precedents.

Washington, March 2.—An authorized statement received from his government was given out by the Japanese minister.

It says in part:

"The Russian government has charged Japan with having treacherously obtained a victory by a sudden attack upon Russia, who was bent upon maintaining peace. It is further asserted in these communiques that since a rupture of diplomatic relations can never be looked upon as the opening of hostilities and since Japan did not issue a declaration of war until the eleventh of February she was guilty of a flagrant breach of the principles of international law, in making, as early as the 8th of February, most unwarrantable attacks upon Russian men of war and merchant vessels.

"The answer to these charges may be found in the action of Russia herself. That her government never entertained any sincere desire for peace can be clearly seen from its own conduct. Throughout the whole course of the negotiations Russia persistently refused to meet the proposals made by Japan in a moderate and conciliatory spirit.

"By delays that could not be construed as otherwise than wanton and unnecessary she put off the settlement of the questions at issue, while at the same time busily extending her naval and military preparations. Her warlike preparations in the Far East since last April, when she failed to carry out her treaty engagement to evacuate Manchuria, are in full confirmation of these statements.

"During that time the increase made in her naval strength in the Far East was 19 vessels with a total tonnage of 82,415. In addition to these vessels the Russian government have sent torpedo destroyers in sections by rail to Port Arthur, where the work of putting them together has been hastened and seven of them have already been completed. Furthermore, two vessels of the volunteer fleet were armed at Vladivostock and hoisted the Russian naval ensign.

"The Russian government also ordered to the Far East one battleship, three cruisers, seven destroyers and four torpedo boats, of a total tonnage of about 3[illegible] which would have joined the [illegible] squadron in the Far East had not circumstances subsequently compelled Russia to recall them.

"Since June 29 last, when on the pretext of trial transportation on the Siberian railway the Russian government sent to China two infantry brigades, two artillery battalions and a large force of cavalry, troops have been constantly sent by military train from Russia to the Far East until at the beginning of February the total augmented strength of the Russian forces was over 40,000. At the same time plans were being made for sending, if necessary, over 200,000 men more.

"On the 6th of February Japan announced to Russia her determination to terminate the pending negotiations and to take such independent action as she might deem best to defend her position, menaced by Russia, and to protect her established rights and legitimate interests. At the same time the government of Japan informed the Russian government that as its moderate and unselfish proposals in the interest of a firm and lasting peace in the Far East had not received the consideration which was their due, Japan had resolved to sever her diplomatic relations with Russia, which for the reason named had ceased to possess value, and to withdraw her legation.

"The term 'independent action' naturally included the opening of hostilities. It is the almost unanimous opinion of international jurists that a declaration of war is not an indispensable prerequisite to the opening of hostilities. Indeed it has been the common practice in recent wars to declare war after hostilities have been begun. Japan's action, therefore is not open to the least criticism in this regard.

"From the standpoint of international law it must be acknowledged that the charge made against her does not come with good grace from Russia, inasmuch as there are not only many historical instances of Russia herself resorting to hostilities without declaring war, but one case, that of her invasion of Finland in 1808, when she began war before there had ever been a rupture of diplomatic relations."

A Bit of Good Advice In Time.

An Antoinette Sterling story relates to "The Lost Chord," which she made famous. The song did not appeal to her when the manuscript was sent to her by Sullivan. But Sir Joseph Barnby spent an evening at her house at that time, and in a casual way she remarked: "By the way, Arthur Sullivan has sent me a manuscript of a new song, which he has asked me to sing. You might look at it. Personally, I don't think much of it and am going to return it." Barnby tried it over there and then, and before he had gone half through it he stopped and said: "'Going to return it,' did you say? It is wonderful—an inspiration. Certainly, tell him you will sing it. It is bound to 'make' both you and him." Mme. Sterling always thanked the fates for bringing Barnby to her house that night.—London Chronicle.

WRIT OF MANDAMUS REFUSED

Justice Rogers, in the Case of Marvin A. Thomson vs. City Clerk Hinsdale, Determines That Relief Can Only Be Obtained Through Quo Warranto Proceedings.

The following important document was received by City Attorney W. S. Hillick from Justice Watson M. Rogers on Monday. It will be seen that Justice Rogers refuses to grant a mandamus, believing that the proper remedy lies in quo warranto proceedings. The matter of Mr. Thomson's eligibilty under the charter is still in abeyance. No decision has yet been reached by Giles S. Piper, Esq., as to the next course to pursue in Mr. Thomson's interest. The question might naturally arise could the relief now sought for (providing a favorable decision under quo warranto proceedings be obtained) benefit the contestant, Mr. Thomson.

SUPREME COURT—ONEIDA SPECIAL TERM, FEB. 16, 1904.

The People on the relation of Marvin A. Thomson vs. William M. Hinsdale, clerk, etc., of the City of Fulton.

Application for pre-emptory writ of mandamus to compel the defendant to file plaintiff's acceptance and oath of office as Mayor of the City of Fulton, and to issue him a certificate of election.

Giles S. Piper for the Relator.

William S. Hillick and Frederick G. Spencer for the Defendant.

Justice Rogers reviews the case as follows:

The petition shows that the relator is 52 years of age, a citizen of the United States, a resident elector of the city of Fulton, and has been such since its incorporation, Feb. 26, 1902; that for several years prior to the incorporation of said city he was a resident of the village of Oswego Falls, in the town of Granby, which village became a part of the city upon its incorporation; that he is the owner of a farm in said town of Granby, not, however, within the limits of said city, and was prior to June 15, 1903, the owner of an undivided one-third of certain real estate situate in said village of Oswego Falls, and since its incorporation in the city of Fulton, upon which he has paid taxes annually, that in the year 1902 said last mentioned real estate was assessed upon the assessment roll of the city of Fulton in the name of the copartnership of which he was a member, and that he had paid one-third of the taxes thereon to the city chamberlain of said city; that in May, 1903, a stock corporation was formed with a capital stock of $30,000, and he became the owner of $10,000 thereof; that said last mentioned real estate was conveyed by him and his associates, June 16, 1903, to said stock corporation, and said real estate was assessed to said corporation on the assessment roll of 1903; that except as above stated, neither the relator or his wife was owner of or assessed for real estate within said city on and prior to the annual election, Nov. 3, 1903; that at said election the relator was a candidate, voted for and received a majority of votes cast for mayor of said city, and the Common Council thereof, Dec. 8, 1903, acting as a Board of Canvassers, determined that he received such majority and was duly elected.

On Jan. 14, 1904, he presented a notice of his acceptance and oath of office as mayor to the defendant as city clerk and requested him to file the same, which the defendant refused to do. He also at the same time requested the defendant to deliver to him a certificate of his election as mayor, which was likewise refused.

The charter of the city of Fulton provides: "No person shall be elected or appointed to the office of mayor or member of the Board of Public Works, Board of Fire and Police Commissioners or Board of Education, unless he or his wife shall be the owner of real estate, assessed to him or her on the last assessment roll of the city previous to his election or appointment."

The defendant, in answer to the petition, filed the affidavit of one James A. Foster, stating that he (Foster) is the sole, legally elected, duly qualified and acting mayor of the city of Fulton, and has been for two years last past; that he claims to be the only person legally entitled to the office of mayor of said city; that he is recognized as such by the citizens of said city and the officers of the various departments thereof, and that he is the only person performing acts and filling the office of mayor; that he presides as mayor at the meetings of the Common Council of said city, etc.

The claim of the relator is: 1. That the assessment roll for 1903 was incomplete on the day of the election and therefore that the assessment roll of 1902 is the one to be considered "the last assessment roll" for the purpose of determining his qualification within the meaning of the charter, and (2), that the statute prescribing a property qualification is unconstitutional and attempts legally to restrict his right to hold office.

The defendant contests both propositions and asserts that the relator's remedy is by writ of quo warranto and not mandamus.

The relator's counsel has made a learned and persuasive argument in support of his contention; but as I conclude the questions thus presented ought not to be determined here, because mandamus is not the remedy by which title to office can be determined, and quo warranto is, I express no opinion thereon. That quo warranto is the remedy, to me seems clear both upon principle and authority. * *

Whether the relator is eligible is a question fairly open to debate. As to it, candid lawyers and judges might differ. In any event there is a bona fide controversy which must be tried out and a conclusion reached one way or the other.

If he is not eligible, the defendant ought not to be compelled to accept and file the oath.

The relator has not, in my opinion, such clear, legal title to the office as entitles him to mandamus the city clerk and compel the receipt and filing of the official oath.

Justice Rogers cites innumerable cases and the opinions of many learned jurists in defense of his position, and concludes as follows:

As already intimated, the relator (Thomson) should be relegated to his remedy by writ of quo warranto, where all the parties interested may be heard (code civil procedure, § 1954), and a complete determination had.

The application for a peremptory writ of mandamus is denied; but, under the circumstances, the order will be without costs.

FULTON FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Oswego Commissioners Thank Fulton Boys for Efficient Services Rendered.

The following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners of the City of Oswego, regarding the efficient services rendered by the Fulton Fire Department during the recent disastrous conflagration that visited our neighboring city, resulting in the destruction of the Oswego starch factory plant.

Whereas, At a recent fire at the plant of the Oswego starch factory, the conflagration became so extensive as to suggest calling upon neighboring cities for aid, and

Whereas, In response to a request for aid upon the city of Fulton, the Fulton Fire Department most generously as to the numbers of their firemen and also as to apparatus, came to the aid of our firemen, thus aiding most substantially in subduing this fire and preventing its spreading to and destroying further property; be it

Resolved, That the thanks of the city of Oswego, through this department, are especially due and are hereby tendered to the firemen of Fulton who so promptly came to the aid of our local firemen, and by their in every way most efficient assistance contributed to the extinguishment of this fire, thus minimizing the destruction of property at the plant and preventing loss to adjoining property;

Resolved, That the clerk be directed to transmit to the Fire and Police Department of the city of Fulton, and also to the Chief Engineer of the Fulton Fire Department, a copy of the foregoing resolutions.

The adoption of the above resolutions are certified to by Fred M. Bishop, clerk of the Oswego Fire and Police Board.

A. Z. Wolever, Fire and Police Commissioner.

Mr. George G. Chauncey has resigned as member of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, and Mayor Foster appointed Mr. A. Z. Wolever to succeed him. Mr. Wolever has accepted the proferred honor, has qualified and is prepared to discharge the duties of the office. Mr. Chauncey has made an excellent official and it is to be regretted that he can no longer continue a member of so important a Board, but the fact is, Mr. Chauncey stated to a Times representative yesterday, he had not the time to devote to the department what he considered commensurate with the duties he was expected to perform, and rather than neglect them he preferred to resign. "No," Mr. Chauncey stated in reply to a further inquiry, "there's no politics in it."

Asked if after his experience as president of the Board he could suggest any changes in the manner or method of conducting the affairs of the department, he replied. "I can recommend that the charter be amended, allowing the commissioners to appoint not less than three nor more than eight paid men, and to strike out the clause relating to 'part call men,' as the volunteer department has signified its willingness to respond to all alarms. If this does not work successfully we are then in line for a paid department."

Mr. Wolever is pre-eminently qualified to discharge the duties of the office to which he has been assigned, and Mayor Foster is most fortunate in being able to secure his services.

Mr. Calvin Dines has also forwarded his resignation to Mayor Foster, the reason alleged being that he was also too busy to devote proper time and attention to his duties as commissioner. Mr. Dines' resignation has not yet been accepted.

CHARTER AMENDMENT

Common Council Approve the Measure—Other Business Transacted.

Mayor Foster and the members of the Common Council met last Saturday evening in the City Hall for the purpose of giving a public hearing concerning "An act to amend the charter of the City of Fulton relating to the compensation of city officers." The measure had been introduced by the Hon. T. D. Lewis on the petition of the members of the present administration and a large number of taxpayers. Mr. Lewis had successfully carried the amendment through both branches of the Legislature, but before receiving the Governor's signature it was necessary, according to our charter, to give a public hearing on the matter.

The bill provided for an increase of $5 a month to the chief of police and also to the patrolmen after the first year's service, and provided further that by resolution unanimously adopted by the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners that after two years of service the patrolmen shall receive a monthly salary of $55.

In addition to Mayor Foster the members of the Council present were Aldermen Brown, Brennan, Dilts, Bogardus and Prince.

An opportunity was given by Mayor Foster to any one present who might desire to be heard on the matter, but there was no response.

The following resolution was presented by Alderman Brown, and adopted:

Whereas, An act to amend the charter of the City of Fulton relating to the compensation of city officers—a copy of which is hereto annexed—has been duly passed by the Legislature of the State of New York and referred to this Board for acceptance, and

Whereas, Due notice of this meeting has been given; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the said amendment be and the same is hereby accepted by the Common Council of the City of Fulton.

Mr. Thomas Hunter, as president of the Board of Public Works, asked that the Common Council authorize Assemblyman T. D. Lewis to ask for an amendment to the city charter empowering the Common Council to borrow $3,000 in anticipation of the tax levy, for the purpose of paying the city's one-third share of the expense of building new sidewalks. A similar amendment had been introduced last year, Mr. Hunter explained, but owing to the lack of time it failed to become a law. Many applications for new sidewalks had been received, and the necessity for such walks was great, but a lack of funds was a serious drawback.

The following resolution was introduced by Alderman Dilts and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we, the Common Council, approve the proposed amendment to the charter of the City of Fulton, authorizing the Common Council to borrow money in anticipation of the tax levy for the purpose of paying the city's one third share of the expense of building new sidewalks and the other changes included in this amendment, and that we request the Hon. T. D. Lewis to introduce the measure and to secure its enactment into a law.

Alderman Bogardus asked that the Commissioner of Charities be authorized to have a telephone installed at his home provided the city was entitled to the free use of four 'phones. The Committee on Offices was instructed to take charge of the matter.

On motion of Alderman Bogardus the Common Council authorized the payment of $20 from the General City Fund toward the expenses of the Farmers' Institute, and the clerk was instructed to draw an order in favor of V. W. Shattuck for the amount.

The Syracuse Post-Standard.

The Post-Standard, which is one of the most welcome of our exchanges, appeared on Saturday with pleasing announcement that it had recently installed a Hoe perfecting press with a product of 24,000 sixteen-page papers per hour. It has also enlarged its offices and increased its equipment until now it has one of the best equipped plants in the State. The paper itself is clean, honest and strong. It fearlessly champions any cause which it proves worthy, and editorially the paper is all that is desirable. It shuns all that savors of yellow journalism and gives the best news service. It is a paper which any man can enjoy reading and may with safety take into his family, as its tone is always high. The TIMES extends congratulations to the management of the paper under whom it has reached its present degree of perfection, and trusts that its zone of influence may never grow less. The Sunday Post-Standard will be increased from a 16-page to a 32-page edition, commencing with Sunday, March 13. The price will be 5 cents for the double number.

Serious Fire in Oswego.

Saturday night the Lake Shore hotel in which was situated the New York Central station in Oswego, was totally destroyed by fire. The loss is over $100,000. The firemen were handicapped by insufficient water and by the disabling of two of their steamers, but they made a good fight and saved several residences in close proximity to the fire, as well as several business blocks nearby. The burned building was built about 50 years ago and was used as a hotel until about two years ago. The Central management had planned to tear down a portion of the building in the Spring and lay it out in lawns. It is now expected that the N. Y. C., and D. L. & W., R. R., companies will erect a union depot on the site of the building burned. No definite plans are made as yet.

Meeting of Stockholders of the Volney Paper Company.

Oswego County Banks Closed.

The Farmers' Exchange Bank of Cleveland, Oswego County, suspended business on Wednesday morning, as also did the Parish bank, which is controlled by the same people. The liabilites and assets are unknown as yet. The banks were private concerns conducted under the firm name of Potter & Marsden. It is understood that L. P. Marsden had the largest interest in the banks. L. B. Niles was manager of the Parish bank and he as well as Supervisor Marsden of Constantia, who was cashier of the Cleveland bank, have been confined to their beds by illness.

The Exchange bank of Cleveland was organized by George Potter and Linus P. Marsden of Cleveland, twenty-one years ago. Banking stations were established at Dolgeville, Oswego Falls and Parish, but after several years the stations at the two former places were discontinued because of the lack of business, but the Parish station was continued and run in connection with the Cleveland bank.

It is variously estimated that the bank will only be able to pay a small percentage on the dollar, but as a matter of fact nothing definite is known or can be known until Lawyer H. C. Coville of Syracuse, the assignee, concludes his investigation. The depositors in the two banks are farmers, small merchants or retired business men and the loss, if large, will fall heavily upon them.

No charges of dishonesty are brought against any of the bank officials or employes.

Men Who Build Nests.

In the bushmen of Australia we find perhaps the lowest order of men that is known. They are so primitive that they do not know enough to build eve the simplest forms of huts for shelter. The nearest they can approach to it is to gather a lot of twigs and grass and taking them into a thicket or jungle, build a nest for a home. The nest is usually built large enough for the family, and if the latter be very numerous then the nests are of a very large size. Sometimes the foliage above will form a natural covering, but there is never any attempt at constructing a protection from the rain and storms.

How Japanese Harvest Wheat.

The Japanese have a queer way of harvesting their wheat. Instead of ruthlessly cutting it down with a scythe or reaper they pull up much of it by hand and clip off the roots with shears, for they wish to keep the beautiful long, golden straws from getting bruised or broken. With the Japs, who do everything neatly and allow nothing to go to waste, the straws are almost as valuable as the grain. They first flatten the straws, and then, after being softened, they are woven, either whole or split, into matting, baskets, hats and many other articles.

A Winning Gait.

Mrs. Plimton—Henry, are you going to take your horse to the races? Mr. Plimton—To the races? What for? That horse can't race. "I don't see why. He is quite a pretty horse." "Ha, ha! Why, Pamelia, you couldn't make Selim do more than canter around the track." "Well (triumphantly), I often see in the papers where horses win in a canter."—Kansas City Journal.

Nasal Ctaarrh quickly yields to treatment by Ely's Cream Balm, which is agreeably aromatic. It is received through the nostrils, cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. A remedy for Nasal Catarrh which is drying or exciting to the diseased membrane should not be used. Cream Balm is recognized as a specific. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail. A cold in the head immediately disappears when Cream Balm is used. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Warmly Praised by Mrs. Chaffee.

When Dr. David Kennedy said he regarded Cal-cura Solvent, his new medicine for the Kidneys, Liver and Blood, as the crowning achievement of his life, he made no mistake, as hundreds who have used it testify. Here is one letter from Mrs. A. F. Chaffee of Rutland, Vt., short and to the point:

"Dear Sirs:

I have never taken any medicine that did me so much good as Dr. Kennedy's latest medicine, Cal-cura Solvent. I can work hard all day and can do more work than I could even thirty years ago. I am [illegible] years of age and never felt better in my life." All druggists, $1.00.

Farewell Reception.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Sackett, near Volney Centre occurred a farewell reception, on Friday, Feb. 26, 3 to 8 p. m., in honor of the families of Mr. H. L. Crane, Mr. John Baldwin, and Mr. Truman Grant, who are about to remove from Volney. It was held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Bristol Hill church, to which the three families belonged. The weather was auspicious, and altogether nearly one hundred friends and neighbors gathered to say farewell to those going from their midst and to bid them God-speed. The early hours were spent in pleasant social intercourse. Later a choice collation was served, after which the following program was carried out under the direction of Mr. J. H. Mace as toastmaster:

Selection............Volney Male Quartet
"The Past"..................Mr. H. L. Crane
"The Present".......Dr. Robert Simpson
Song, "May we meet again"..............
....Mixed Quartet
Prayer.................................Rev. C. J. Taft
Singing, "God be with you till we meet again."

The event proved a most enjoyable one, the only saddening feature being the thought of parting with friends. The large number present was conclusive evidence of the high esteem in which the community held the three families.

"Didn't you cook macaroni at your last place?"

"Cook it? We used them things to light the gas with!"

Colds Cause Pneumonia.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Sold by H. C. Geisler.

The annual report of President Truesdale, of the Lackawanna railroad, for the year ending December 31, last, shows that the earnings were the largest in the history of the company, due largely to the increased coal tonnage. The total increase in the earnings over the previous year was $7,782,199.

A Unique Tennessee County.

"The county of Franklin, in my state," said a Tennessee man, "has the unique distinction of being the only county that ever undertook to secede from the state to which it belonged. A great many people have doubtless forgotten that the people of Tennessee voted twice on the proposition to secede from the Union. At the first election in February there was an enormous majority—about 100,000—against disunion. A few months later, when the attack on Fort Sumter stirred the passions of men, another vote was had, and the earlier verdict was reversed by about the same decisive figures.

"But in Franklin county, where state rights and secession claimed the allegiance of the entire population, there was such intense disgust over the result of the first election that, led by the Hon. Pete Turney, afterward supreme court judge and twice governor, the citizens held a mass meeting and solemnly passed an ordinance of secession from Tennessee. Of course, when the state reconsidered in June, Franklin county was mollified and renewed its allegiance."—Washington Post.

Do You Want Strength?

If you want to increase your strength you must add to and not take from the physical. In other words, the food that you eat must be digested, assimilated and appropriated by the nerves, blood and tissues, before being expelled from the intestines. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure adds to the physical. It gives strength to and builds up strength in the human system. It is pleasant to the taste and palatable, and the only combination of digestants that will digest the food and enable the system to appropriate all of its health and strength-giving qualities. Did He Get Off?

The famous Liddell, who, with Scott, compiled Liddell and Scott's lexicon, was dean of Christchurch college, Oxford. It was whispered in regard to the lexicon that Liddell provided the money and Scott the brains. A young undergraduate was haled before the dean for some misdemeanor. "I hear, Mr. ——, that you have a pretty wit for impromptu verse," said the dean. "If you will write one on the lexicon I will let you off." The young man thought a moment and then said:

"There's a Lexicon written by Liddell and Scott;
Some of it's good, and some of it's not.
The part that is good was written by Scott,
The part that was written by Liddell is rot."

The Silk Spinning Oyster.

A mollusk that might take an important place in textile industries if it existed in sufficient numbers is found in warm seas, especially on the coast of Sicily. It is the pinna, a genus of wing shelled bivalves, of which one species attains a length of two feet. To attach itself to the rocks it spins a cable of strong filaments, called collectively the byssus. These threads are wonderfully strong, silken in texture and have been woven into various delicate fabrics. A pair of gloves from this material may be seen in the British museum, and fine mummy cloths made from it by the ancients are still preserved.

OHIO'S NEW SENATOR.

General Charles Dick, Who Succeeds the Late Mark Hanna.

General Charles Dick, the successor of the late Mark Hanna as United States senator from Ohio, is known as a great political organizer and, although only forty-six years old, has made his way to the front by ability, energy and perseverance.

While General Dick's life has been a busy one, it has not been devoted to money getting, and he is the first man of moderate means to represent Ohio in the senate since the days of Allen G. Thurman. Fifteen years ago Mr. Dick was the proprietor of a small flour and feed store in his home city of Akron. While he did not prosper in business, his time was not wasted, for he supplemented his common school education by studying law and history at home.

He was admitted to the bar in 1894 and soon thereafter entered actively into local politics. He was elected county auditor and served two terms, in the course of which he became a power in the Republican politics of his section of the state. His organization work soon attracted Hanna's attention, and in 1897 he was made secretary of the Republican state executive committee and in 1902 became its chairman, which position he now holds.

It is said that General Dick can quote the exact election returns in any county or city of the state for the past dozen years, and the perfection of the organization he has developed is shown by the wonderful accuracy of his ante-election estimates. He always guesses the results within a few thousands—sometimes within a few hundreds.

In 1896 General Dick served as secretary of the national Republican committee and was closely associated with Mr. Hanna in the preliminary canvass for the nomination of McKinley in 1896 and in the subsequent campaign. He has been a member of congress since 1898 and is a major general in the Ohio national guard.

In personal appearance General Dick is rather striking, being tall and somewhat spare. He is even tempered, kindly, warm hearted and a pleasant man to meet. He is a strong partisan and has a genius for organization and for work. Toward the end of hot campaigns in Ohio he has been known to go for days without sleep. He has an infinite capacity for details, and his friends say that if he devotes the same energy to the work of the senate that he has given to politics he will make his mark as one of the most useful members of the upper house of congress.

Famous Military Leaders

Noted Russian and Japanese Generals Who Command the Opposing Armies

THAT Russia is fully awake to the formidability of Japan as an opponent on land, if she ever had any doubts on the subject, is shown by the appointment of General A. N. Kuropatkin, the foremost soldier of the empire, to the chief command of the army in the far east. Already the pick of the generals of the Russian army are at the seat of war or under orders to go, and General Kuropatkin will be accompanied to the front by the Grand Dukes Michael Nikolaievitch, Boris, Cyril and Nicholas.

GENERAL A. N. KUROPATKIN.

Among the famous Russian generals now in command of troops in or near Manchuria are Lieutenant General A. Stoessel, Lieutenant General Linevitch and General Cierpitsky, all men who have won promotion and honor on the field of battle and who have over and over again proved that they possess all the qualities which go to make successful military leaders. Some one has said that Manchuria, like South Africa, will prove the graveyard of many military reputations. Perhaps, but time alone can verify or disprove this.

With the possible exception of General Dragomirof, ex-governor of Kiev and late member of the council of state, General Kuropatkin is the most popular man in the Russian army. As a bluff soldier who has fought his way up from the bottom to be minister of war he is the ideal of the enlisted man.

General Kuropatkin has been minister of war since 1897. He is a man with a remarkable military record, having fought in the Pamirs, in Turkestan, in Africa and in the war with Turkey, distinguishing himself especially at Plevna, where he was chief of staff under the renowned Skobeleff. General Kuropatkin entered the Turkish war a lieutenant and came out a colonel, and from that time his advancement has been rapid. He engineered the usurpation of Finland and has been prominent in promoting the Transsiberian railway. He is credited with being a master of the science of war, and his history of the Balkan campaign is considered to be a military classic. Kuropatkin comes of a noble family and is fifty-five years old.

Grand Duke Cyril Vladimirovitch, who, with his brother Boris, is going to the far east to fight the Japanese, is a son of the Grand Duke Vladimir, uncle of the czar. The Grand Duke Cyril was born in 1876, is a captain of the Fifty-second regiment of infantry and wears the order of the Black Eagle. The Grand Duke Boris, his brother, is a lieutenant in the hussars and is considered a daredevil soldier.

The Grand Duke Nicholas is forty-seven years of age and is considered the foremost cavalry expert in the Russian army. He is tall and fair, with a pleasant face, and as the occupant of the responsible post of inspector general of cavalry he will be able to advise General Kuropatkin.

Another sprig of royalty who may fight for the czar is Don Jaime, only son of Don Carlos, pretender to the Spanish throne. Don Jaime is carried on the reserve list as captain of the Russian regiment of the Grodno hussars of the guard, and at the time of the Boxer insurrection in China he distinguished himself while on the staff of the Russian commander. It is said that Don Jaime will join the cavalry under Prince Louis Napoleon in Manchuria.

Senator Beveridge, in his book "The Russian Advance," has this to say of General Cierpitsky, whom he calls the Kitchener of Russia: "This commander in 1901 suppressed brigandage in Manchuria and was in the field in person at the head of his troops. Three thousand robbers were killed in less than six weeks, 2,000 were captured and the rest scattered and hunted like beasts into the caves and fastnesses of the concealing mountains."

Japan, too, has many able and experienced generals who have proved their skill and efficiency on many occasions, and they have fought over the very ground where they must now meet the Russians. First of these in order of service is Field Marshal Yamagata. When the war started with China in 1894 Yamagata was given command of the first army that invaded Manchuria. His health failed, however, and the emperor, fearful of losing the services of his ablest officer, called him back to Tokyo to act as his chief military adviser. After the war Yamagata was made marquis and the new military rank of field marshal was established, to which he was promoted. Several officers in the army and navy were raised to the rank of field marshal and organized into a supreme council of war. Of this Yamagata was made chief, a position he still holds.

If there is any one to divide honors with Yamagata, it is Field Marshal Oyama, who is associated with him in the council of war. Oyama has steadily risen in the military organization of Japan. In the war with China he had command of the second army of invasion and conducted the campaign which resulted in the capture of the two great Chinese strongholds, Port Arthur and Weihaiwei.

After Yamagata and Oyama the most conspicuous military man in Japan is General Nodzu, who succeeded Yamagata in the command of the first army of invasion in the war with China. For his conduct in this war General Nodzu was decorated, made a count and honored in various ways. Later, when the army of Japan was divided into three grand military divisions, General Nodzu was given command of the eastern division. He was very conspicuous in the relief of Peking during the Boxer troubles.

Next in order comes General Katsura, the present prime minister of the empire. He is a man of great ability and a thoroughly trained soldier. Other notable generals of the mikado's army are Sakuma, who commands the middle division; Kurogi, who commands the western grand military division, and Oku, who commands the Tokyo army of defense.

These share with Nodzu and Katsura the rank of full general. They all commanded divisions during the war with China. Lieutenant General Kodama is a warrior of proved ability, as is Major General Fukushima, who is an authority on Manchuria. Besides these, there is a group of officers who were major generals during the war with China and proved their skill on many fields. Among them are Lieutenant Generals Nogi, Yamaguchi and Terauchi, who is now secretary of war.

A NOTED MUSICIAN.

Dr. Richard Strauss, Who Is Now Touring This Country.

Dr. Richard Strauss, the noted German composer, who, with his wife, is visiting America for the first time, is the conductor of the orchestra at the Berlin Opera House and one of the commanding figures in the musical world of today.

Herr Strauss is not related in any way to the famous Strauss family of waltz composers. His music is of a very different order. Its striking originality has attracted a great deal of attention and has stirred up much criticism among musicians.

The composer is now forty years of age. He received his first musical lessons at the age of four from his mother and at six composed his first selection, a polka.

The year 1880, when Strauss was only sixteen, witnessed the first performance in public of any of his compositions, three songs. The following year his symphony in D major was produced. Since then Strauss has steadily pursued his way till his compositions number about 400, nearly all of which are published.

Herr Strauss makes sketches of his compositions while walking in the woods and fields in the little village of Markworstein in the Bavarian Alps, where he has a villa and spends his vacations. Mme. Pauline Strauss, wife of the composer, was formerly on the operatic stage, and in 1894 she sang with great success at Baireuth. Since her marriage, however, she has given up opera and devotes herself to the singing of her husband's songs, as an authentic interpreter of which she has won success.

A MINNESOTA FUNMAKER.

J. Adam Bede, Who Has Won Fame as the Humorist of Congress.

J. Adam Bede, who recently sprang into fame as the new humorist of congress, is a quaint product of American life and has had a most picturesque career. He was born on a farm in Lorain county, O., in 1856, learned the printer's trade and then started out to make his fortune. He traveled over the west and south, finally landing in Washington, where he worked as a reporter.

This life did not suit him, however, so he migrated to the northwest and established a newspaper in Duluth. Later he removed to Tower and started Bede's Budget, filling it with his own humorous philosophizings.

When Mr. Cleveland was elected the second time Bede put in a petition for the United States marshalship of Minnesota. It was written on a sheet of birch bark, and he concluded by saying that if the president did not choose him for the office he was still able to paddle his own canoe.

Bede evidently had little idea of getting the job and was probably as much surprised as the older politicians of the state when he was ordered to qualify preparatory to the issue of his commission.

J. ADAM BEDE.

In 1896 Mr. Bede went into the Republican party on the financial issue and in 1902 was elected to the Fifty-eighth congress from the Duluth district of Minnesota. The new funmaker is a solemn visaged, sharp featured, clean shaven man of small stature, and his appearance and manner accentuate the humor of his speech. Here is a story he told at a recent dinner in New York:

"A couple of Irishmen were sitting up at a wake, and one asked, 'What did Mike die of?' 'Gangrene,' said the other. 'Let us be thankful for the color,' sighed his friend."

Consecrating Church Bells.

The custom of consecrating church bells was once common to nearly all denominations, but it is now confined principally to the Roman Catholics. The old form was to wash the bell with holy water, anoint it with oil and mark it with the sign of the cross, and to some extent this form is still used. At the time of the reformation in England the prejudice against Roman Catholic ceremonies was so strong that instead of being blessed new bells were occasionally turned up and filled with punch, which then was drunk by the participants in the occasion.—London Chronicle.

The Admirable Crichton.

To speak of any one as an "Admirable Crichton" is to credit him with being very learned and accomplished, since such a person lived in the sixteenth century. His name was James Crichton, and he lived in Scotland from 1560 to 1583. At the age of seventeen years he was the reputed master of twelve languages and had been given the degree of master of arts when but fourteen because of his great learning. In addition to his accomplishments as a scholar he was poet, musician, sculptor, artist, actor, reconteur, a good horseman and an expert fencer.

A Statesman's Queer Ambition.

The great Lord Grey had an ambition far above politics. He had passed the reform bill, but that did not satisfy his soul. There was talk of Taglioni, and Grey said quite earnestly, "What would I give to dance as well as she!" The statesman who had been prime minister and had left an indelible mark on the history of his country was envious of an opera dancer!—London Chronicle.

Cruel.

"But, papa," wailed the young woman, "you can have no idea how he loves me. He is willing to die for me this very minute."

"Well," said the old man, scratching his head thoughtfully. "I don't know that I have any objection to that. I was afraid he wanted to marry you."

How They Interpreted It.

We are taught not to be anxious for the future, as the future will come in time.

We are taught in the sermon on the mount not to think of the future, because the evil we do in one day is sufficient.—Answers of London School Children.

An Emotional Trunk.

Landlady—I'll have to request you to pay in advance, Mr. Smith. Smith—Why, isn't my trunk good for a week's board? Landlady—No. It looks like an old fashioned emotional trunk. Smith—Emotional? Landlady—Yes; one that is easily moved!

What Confirmed the Suspicion.

Mary (angrily)—I think you are the biggest fool in town, John. John (mildly)—Well, Mary, mother used to tell me that when I was a boy, but I never thought she was right about it until I married you.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

HOBSON claims that his patent on "corking harbors" has been infringed by the officers of the Japanese navy.

A SERVICE pension bill is being pushed strongly in Congress. It would provide pensions of $12 a month and cost $20,000,000 a year. The Grand Army is vigorously behind it.

A CONSPIRACY has been discovered having for its object the sale of the Rosebud lands in South Dakota aggregating 416,000 acres, at $2 or $3 an acre, when they are worth $7 to $10 an acre. The President promises to prevent the robbery if he can.

THERE seems to be a growing sentiment in the United States for the restoration of the whipping-post for wife-beating and other offenses which free board in a public institution does not seem to abolish. Some State might try it in the interest of collective civilization.

THERE is property to the amount of $283,996,848 free from taxation in the city of Washington—more religious property than all the school houses. A crusade has begun for the taxation of churches. Dr. Easton, Presbyterian, says "We shall rejoice in being permitted to follow the example of our Lord, who paid his taxes like a gentleman."

AN action has been brought by the Republic of Columbia against the French Panama Canal Company, enjoining it from transferring the property to the United States Government. This is probably another effort to obtain "graft." The commercial nations of the world are anxious that the canal be completed in the least possible time, and President Roosevelt is desirous of beginning work at once.

AN effort is being made by the Democratic party to magnify the alleged contentions between Senator Platt and Governor Odell as to the leadership in this State. The fact remains that both are working in harmony and have a perfect understanding regarding their duties and obligations to the Republican party. There will be no division in the ranks, as all are anxious for the success of the ticket and the prosperity of the party which has deservedly won public confidence and has given the people the vivifying energy of good government.

THE United States postal department has grown from seventy-five postoffices in Franklin's time to 76,000, and from 300 employes to 250,000. It is the greatest organization of the kind in the world, and while the per centage of fraud is averaging small, there has been no hesitation on the part of the Republican administration to punish the guilty. The conviction of the postoffice thieves has made Gen. Bristow one of the most popular men in the Republican party.

Republican State Convention.

To the Republican Electors of the State of New York:

The Republican Electors of the State of New York and all other electors without regard to past political affiliations who believe in the principles of the Republican party and endorse its policies, are hereby requested to send delegates to the State Convention to be held at Carnegie Hall, New York City, on Tuesday, the twelfth day of April, 1904, at twelve o'clock, noon, to elect four delegates at large and four alternates at large to the National Convention to be held at Chicago, June 24, 1904, and also to nominate Presidential Electors and to elect a State Committee and transact such other business as may properly come before the Convention.

Each Assembly district in the State will be entitled to representation in accordance with the basis established by the State Convention of 1885. A schedule of representation is hereunto annexed showing the number of delegates to which the several Assembly districts are entitled.

MARRIED.

Mr. Norman Pallen of this city and Miss Carrie Myers of Syracuse, were united in marriage at the home of the bride on Saturday. They will make their future home in this city where a reception was tendered them on Tuesday evening.

DIED.

Elsonn, one of the twin babies of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Austin, died at their home in North Hubbard street on Saturday. The funeral was held from the house on Tuesday and interment was made at Sales Corners.

Charles H. VanAntwerp of this city died in the County Home in Mexico on Thursday with dropsy. He was only taken to Mexico last week as there was no one here to care for him. He has a daughter in school in Syracuse. The remains were brought to Fulton for interment.

Mary M. Jones, aged 82, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. G. Morse at Volney Centre on Friday. The funeral services were held from the late home on Tuesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, the Rev. W. G. Bassett officiating. The body will be placed in Mt. Adnah vault.

Mary A. Markley, aged 68, passed to rest at the home of her sister, Miss Alice Schenck, on Monday afternoon, after a long period of suffering patiently borne. The immediate cause of her death was abscess of the lung. The deceased was the wife of the Hon. Henry A. Markley who was at one time Mayor of the city of Cedar Falls, Iowa, and who was very prominent in that city's growth. He and his only son are at present in Old Mexico looking after important properties which they own. Mrs. Markley came to visit her sister, Miss Schenck, last September and was unable to return to her home. She is survived by her husband, one son, two sisters, Mrs. Levi Brackett of Hannibal and Miss Alice Schenck of this city; and two brothers, Messrs. Martin Schenck of Meridan, Conn., and Marcus Schenck of Springfield, Mass. The funeral services will be held from the late home, No. 308 Worth street, on Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, the Rev. John Richards officiating. The remains will be taken on the 2:45 p. m. train to Cedar Falls, Iowa, for interment.

The funeral of the late Eugene Sullivan which was held from the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Friday morning was the largest funeral ever held from that church. The deceased was widely known and friends from many nearby cities attended. The floral offerings were most elaborate, the Knights of Columbus and the Elks sending magnificent pieces. A large delegation from both societies attended the services. High mass was celebrated by Rev. Fathers Kearney of Fulton and Hopkins and Lindsman from Oswego. A quartette composed of Messrs. Mc Farland, Timothy, Kraus and Murphy sang "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Lead Kindly Light," and Miss Franc LaLonde rendered an approprate vocal selection during the ceremony.

The funeral of H. Raymond Stowe which was held from his late home on Friday afternoon, was one of the saddest. His youth and the many reasons why it seemed pitiful that he should have been called away, appealed strongly to the hearts of all who knew him. His class of 1902, F. H. S., has lost one other member, Sylvester Stiles, and the surviving members attended in a body, as did the class of 1904.

The active pallbearers were Messrs. Jay Hollingsworth, Morris Dunham, Robert Reagan, Willis Morrin, James Robinson and Floyd Marvin. The honorary pallbearers were the Misses Ethel Patterson, Ethel Bonner, Florence Skeel, Helen and Agnes Brown, Jennie and Hazel Guile, Hazel Gardner, Fannie Draper, and Ruby Barrus. The floral tributes were innumerable, the beautiful casket being covered and the walls banked with the fragrant messengers of sympathy. Among those on the casket was a cluster of five dozen American Beauty roses tied with an immense bow of gray ribbon. Crimson and gray were the class colors—from the class of 1902. The body was placed in Mount Adnah vault and in the Spring it will be buried beside the mother who was laid to rest three years ago.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

The following resolutions were adopted by the First M. E. Church:

Whereas, The Great and Supreme Ruler of the Universe has in His infinite wisdom removed from among us one of our most esteemed and promising young men, Raymond Stowe; therefore,

Resolved, That the sudden removal of such a life from our midst leaves a vacancy and a shadow that will be deeply realized by all members and friends of this organization.

Resolved, That with deep sympathy for the bereaved relatives of the deceased, we express our hope that even so great a loss to us all may be overruled for good by Him who doeth all things well;

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of this Society, a copy printed in the local papers, and a copy forwarded to the bereaved family.

REV. JOHN RICHARDS,
MRS. A. H. DUNHAM,
ELSIE G. GUILE,
Committee.

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father, who doeth all things well, has seen fit to remove from our midst our beloved friend, H. Raymond Stowe; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of our classmate the First M. E. Sunday School has lost a true and loyal member and our class a faithful scholar, whose place was never vacant, therefore

Resolved, That we extend to the family of our deceased friend our sincere sympathy, in this their hour of sorrow, therefore

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family, and a copy sent to the local papers.

W. MAURICE DUNHAM,
BERT L. MOONEY,
JAMES N. ROBINSON,
Committee.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Inasmuch as the class of 1902, Fulton High School, has in the death of Raymond Stowe, lost one of its ablest and best beloved members; be it

Resolved, That the sympathy of every member of the class of 1902 be extended to the grief stricken father and sisters.

That such members of the class as can attend the funeral in a body.

That these resolutions be printed in the city papers, and that a copy be sent to the family.

MOLLIE CAVANAUGH,

"THE TIGER'S TAIL."

ROCKY SPIT WHICH GUARDS THE HARBOR OF PORT ARTHUR.

How the Russian Stronghold in Manchuria Is Fortified—Miles of Guns Line the Entrance—Capacity of the Inner Harbor.

In the news reports from the seat of war in the far east frequent mention has been made of the "Tiger's Tail," which perhaps has mystified many who are not familiar with the geographical features of the great Russian stronghold in Manchuria, Port Arthur, in which the Russian fleet has been blockaded by the Japanese.

Port Arthur harbor is formed by an oval inlet of the sea about two miles long from east to west and a mile from north to south. It is surrounded by hills, and its sole entrance on the southern side is by a narrow channel, guarded at the southwestern end by a couple of dangerous reefs. It is well protected from storms by a narrow spit of rocky land known as the "Tiger's Tail," which runs diagonally across its northern extremity.

The high bluffs on each side of the narrow entrance are strongly fortified, the Golden hill forts on the eastern shore having the greatest elevation. The main fort on Golden hill is 410 feet above sea level, and it is flanked on either side by two smaller forts, that nearest the channel being 270 feet above the water, while its companion to the east is 110 higher. On the west side of the channel is a large fortification with an elevation of 118 feet, while along the shore is a string of smaller fortifications reaching up to the "Tiger's Tail." These close to the shore command the sea.

Near the tip of the tail is another big fort, the guns of which have a straight sweep down the channel to the entrance of the harbor. On the north side of the harbor is another string of fortifications, while the whole eastern shore above Golden hill bristles with guns.

In one of the forts on the west bank is a relic of the Chinese war of 1894-95. It is a gun with a perforated shield. The hole was made by a Japanese gun during the siege which resulted in the fall of Port Arthur, until then considered impregnable.

The approach to the harbor and basin is very narrow. The width of the entrance from Pinnacle rock on the west to the opposite shore is barely 350 yards, while the three fathom channel at its narrowest is not more than 500 feet wide. Within the heads it widens out somewhat, and between the end of the "Tiger's Tail" and the entrance to the basin there is a width of 430 yards. Even this makes it a difficult task for any vessel over 300 feet in length to enter or leave either the harbor or basin. This was shown just before the outbreak of the war, when the Russian fleet was mobilized and taken from the inner harbor into the roads. The operation took the greater part of three days.

RUSSIAN TORPEDO BOAT AND HISTORIC GUN AT PORT ARTHUR.

The basin or east port was excavated primarily by the Chinese, as was also the dry dock cut in its northern side. It has an average depth of twenty-one feet and can accommodate nearly a dozen large vessels. The western end is devoted exclusively to torpedo craft, though a dock for these small boats is being built on the eastern side.

The dry dock, repaired and enlarged by the Russians, is 452 feet over all, 370 feet over blocks, 90 feet wide at the entrance and has a depth on the sill at high water in ordinary springtides of 32 feet. On the "Tiger's Tail" are placed seven Canet 5.5-inch quick firers in an open battery at an elevation of not more than ten feet above the water level.

Ships moored in the inner harbor can lie in perfect safety, and it is doubtful if the dock yard could be damaged by high angle fire. The works and arsenal lie so closely under the Kwangchin hill that any projectiles so directed would probably range far into the town at the back.

Port Arthur, or Lushunk'ow, was formerly only a small fishing village until it was selected by Li Hung Chang, under advice of German engineers, for a naval station to defend Peiho and Peking. In 1894, however, it was captured by the Japanese, and the treaty of Simonoseki provided for its cession to Japan, with the whole southern coast of Manchuria from the Liau river to the Yalu, but Russia, France and Germany intervened and induced Japan to relinquish the territory for the sum of 30,000,000 taels.

"Kith" and "Kin."

"Kith and kin" has become a phrase vaguely applied to express relationship, but "kith" has nothing to do with kinship. "Kith" means "kent folk." It comes from "ken," which is the same as our word "can"—to know. When one can do a thing, one knows how to do it. Evidently our ancestors believed that knowledge is power. The old word for known was "kyth," as the old word for unknown was "unkyth," or "uncouth. "Uncouth"—strange, unfamiliar, unusual, unknown—has preserved much of its early meaning in Scotland. Burns uses "uncos" in the sense of news. The "unco guid" are the strangely, marvelously good. "Kith," then, meant "kent folk," people with whom one was familiar. The "kent folk" are the folk we love, and love and familiarity developed out of the word "kith" the curious vocable "kyththle," which in course of time underwent considerable phonetic and orthographic changes, but which is still recognizable in the word "cuddle."—Good Words.

A Vegetable Clock.

One of the most curious plants known is the clock plant, which is a native of Borneo, and even in that country it is said to be rare. The plant derives its name from its peculiar habits, which are known to but few who have not studied the plant from a scientific standpoint. The plant has leaves of two sizes, one of which acts in the capacity of a minute hand, which keeps moving until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and the other keeps going until morning. The larger leaves act as the hour hands. Starting in a position when all the leaves lie close to the stem, with the points hanging down, they rise gradually until they turn toward the top, and then they drop to their former position. It takes the smaller leaves about one minute to go through this performance and the longer leaves just about an hour.

A Chapel In a Coal Mine.

One of the most remarkable places of worship in the world is the miners' chapel in Myndd Menigdd colliery, Swansea, Wales, where for more than fifty years the workers have each morning assembled for worship. This sanctuary is situated close to the bottom of the shaft. The only light is that obtained from a solitary Davy safety lamp hung over the pulpit from the ceiling, and the oldest miner in the colliery is generally chosen to officiate. It is the custom in some other places for coal miners to gather together mealtimes for prayer meeting and the like, but it is said that this is the only instance where a special apartment is fitted out in a coal mine as a chapel.

How "Abide With Me" Was Written.

At the age of fifty-four Lyte found himself doomed to die of consumption, and in sorrow at having to leave his task unfinished he prayed that at the least it might be granted to him to write something which would live to the glory of God when he was dead. Then on the last evening he ever spent at Brixham, after preaching his farewell sermon, he took pen and as the sun was setting over the ships that lay in the harbor "Abide With Me" was written. Next morning he started for the Riviera and there died a month later.—London Telegraph.

Torture In Colombia.

It is a common thing for a Colombian boy of twelve to fourteen to be thrashed to death with cowhide whips for "deserting" from the army—that is to say, running back home after he had been forcibly enlisted. It is generally common for a mere child to be hung up by the thumbs until he dies because he will not—or cannot—say where his father is hidden. Women have been crucified because they have refused to betray their husbands, and others have been treated infinitely worse.—World's Work.

Didn't Know How to Play.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Tomkins, "I have done you a great injustice."

"In what way?"

"I suspected you without reason. I asked several of your friends that you go out with of evenings whether you knew how to play poker, and every one of them thought a minute and said you didn't."—Washington Star.

The Envious One.

The envious person is in pain upon all occasions which ought to give him pleasure. The relish of his life is lost, and the objects which administer the highest satisfaction to those who are exempt from this passion give the quickest pangs to persons who are subject to it. All the perfections of their fellow creatures are odious.

Chinese Terms of Endearment.

In China a wife is never spoken of by her husband in a plain and straightforward way. Such playful terms as "my thorn in the ribs" and "my dull companion" are more usual, but leave something to be desired on the score of elegance. "The mean one of the inner room" has a distinct flavor of masculine selfishness about it.

Not Always Safe.

Newitt—Well, there's one thing about the weather—it's always a safe topic of conversation. Borroughs—I thought it was today when I met Lendham, but when I started to speak of it he said, "Yes; it's unsettled, and that reminds me of that account of yours."

Two of a Kind.

New Girl (timidly)—I s'pose you are a fine cook, mum? Young Mistress—Bless me, no! I don't know anything about it. New Girl (relieved)—Then we'll get on famously, mum. I don't either.—New Yorker.

If a man makes me keep my distance, the comfort is he keeps his at the same time.—Swift.

CANAL COMMISSION.

WHY REAR ADMIRAL WALKER WAS CHOSEN AS ITS HEAD.

He Has Made an Exhaustive Study of the Isthmian Waterway Routes. His Long and Brilliant Career In the United States Navy.

Rear Admiral John G. Walker, United States navy, retired, who is to head the new Panama canal commission which has been appointed by the president to supervise the construction of the waterway, has given much study to the isthmian canal problem and is probably more familiar with the subject than any other man in America.

He was appointed chairman of the isthmian canal commission in 1897 by President McKinley and made a report favoring the Nicaragua route. When congress, in 1899, authorized another commission President McKinley again appointed Rear Admiral Walker chairman, and a second time he reported in favor of the Nicaragua route. Then came the offer of the French company to sell all its work, holdings and rights for $40,000,000, which resulted in the passage of the Spooner act providing for a further report from the same commission under changed conditions. Rear Admiral Walker then submitted a report in favor of the Panama route. He believed that Uncle Sam would get about $200,000,000 worth of work for one-fifth of that sum.

In his naval career Admiral Walker got an early baptism of fire under the fighting admirals of the old school, and up to the time of his retirement in 1897 he was regarded as the best tactician and drill master with modern steel ships. He is of Scotch-Irish descent and was born in New Hampshire in 1836. On the death of his mother young Walker went to live with his uncle, Governor Grimes of Iowa. He was appointed a midshipman in the United States navy in 1850, and when the civil war broke out Lieutenant Walker showed that he was one of the young officers who could be trusted in positions of danger and importance. While on the gunboat Winona he took part in the memorable passage of Forts Jackson and St. Philip and in the capture of New Orleans. In the reports of the operations around Vicksburg his name was frequently mentioned with honor, and in July, 1862, he was commissioned a lieutenant commander.

His first active command was the old river ironclad Baron De Kalb, and he soon became one of the successful young men whom Admiral Porter gathered around him on the Mississippi river. The De Kalb, with three small gunboats, was sent to dislodge the enemy from Yazoo City, an important depot of supplies for the southern army. A land force of 5,000 men under General Herron co-operated. The Confederates were defeated after a sharp conflict, but during the action the De Kalb tripped across a sunken torpedo and was blown up.

In 1871 he was appointed lighthouse inspector and was the practical head of the lighthouse board for seven years. After a tour of sea duty he was appointed chief of the bureau of navigation in 1881, a position requiring great administrative ability. The personnel of the navy improved greatly under his management. The first ships of the new navy were then projected, and his knowledge and judgment were bent on making them the best in the world. He brought forward the men of the line who planned, invented and built ordnance, improved and tested armor plate and applied electricity to the operation and fighting of warships.

He was promoted commodore in 1889 and in November of that year took command of the new squadron of evolution, composed of the Chicago, Boston, Atlanta and Yorktown. The ships were then the best in the navy and on their visit to European ports were received with great honor.

The new canal commission is composed of seven members. The engineers who will have charge of the work with Rear Admiral Walker are General George W. Davis, U. S. A., retired; William Barclay Parsons, engineer of the New York subway; Colonel Frank Hecker of Detroit, director of transportation in the Spanish-American war; William H. Burr, professor of engineering, Columbia university; C. Ewald Grunsky of San Francisco, a distinguished hydraulic engineer, and Benjamin M. Harrod of New Orleans, an engineer of the Mississippi river commission.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Copartnership Dissolution

Whereas, The partnership heretofore existing under the firm name of Gage, Porter & Co., has been dissolved, and

Whereas, Said partnership has transacted business in this State for not less than three years, and

Whereas, The business of said firm continues to be conducted by the undersigned, who were members of said partnership, and two of the partners therein, under the same partnership name, pursuant to the statute in such cases made and provided.

Now therefore, In pursuance of the requirements of an act of the Legislature of the State of New York, entitled "An act in relation to partnership, constituting chapter fifty-one of the general laws" passed May 13, 1897, we, Frank L. Porter and William Gage Bennett, do hereby certify and declare that we are the persons using such partnership name and now dealing and intending to deal under such firm name of Gage, Porter & Co.; that the place of residence of each of us is Fulton, New York, and that the principal place of business of said firm is located in the city of Fulton, N. Y.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas, Default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the 1st day of December, 1902, made and executed by Mabelle Root, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage, with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, New York, on the 3d day of December, 1903, at 3:39 o'clock p. m., in Liber 203 of Mortgages, at page 68, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and,

Whereas, The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of eleven hundred seventy-three dollars and seventy-six cents ($1,173.76), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon,

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided, and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property, described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as lots numbers six and seven (6 and 7) of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, being twenty-five (25) feet in width on Second street. Also all that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, being part of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, bounded as follows: Beginning on Second street one hundred and twenty-eight (128) feet southerly from Seneca street, running thence easterly one hundred twenty-one and a half (121½) feet; thence southerly twenty-five (25) feet; thence westerly three and a half (3½) feet; thence southerly twelve (12) feet, thence westerly parallel with Oneida street to Second street; thence northerly along Second street thirty-seven (37) feet to the place of beginning," at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego, New York, on the 12th day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgagor, Robert H. Stowe. Mortgagee, Mrs. C. C. Pettis. Mortgage dated August 14, 1903, and recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the Clerk's office of Oswego County, N. Y., on the 15th day of August, 1903, at 8:25 a. m., in Liber 204 of Mortgages, at page 528. The sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is fifty one dollars and nineteen cents ($51.19), being the whole sum secured by said mortgage. (Said Mortgagee above named, also holds two prior mortgages upon the same premises, on which is unpaid the sum of $400, together with interest on $150, from February 14, 1903, and on $250, from March 18, 1903.)

The mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, and State of New York, known and described as Lot No. five (5) of block five hundred and four (504), according to the map of the village of Fulton on file in Oswego County Clerk's office. Default having been made in the payment of the sum secured to be paid by said mortgage, and no action having been brought to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof; therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained, recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said mortgaged property at public auction, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, N. Y., on the 2d day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said sale will be made subject to the lien of the above mentioned prior mortgages.

CAL-CURA SOLVENT

Dissolves and swiftly removes stone and gravel (red and white) from the Kidneys and Bladder, thus relieving the pain of Kidney Colic and avoiding the use of the surgeon's knife. Calcura Solvent prevents the formation of uric acid in the Blood and corrects those conditions of the Stomach which produce Gout poisoning and Rheumatism. Calcura Solvent is a NEW MEDICINE. It expels gall stones, gives health to the liver, and cures bilious colic and constipation. Dr. David Kennedy said of it, "Calcura Solvent is the outcome of my long experience as a Physician and Surgeon and I consider it the greatest achievement of my life." Curiosities of the Senses.

That impressions made on one of the senses may produce similar impressions on another sense is a fact whose observation has come within the experience of many.

An extraordinary instance is described in the Revue Philosophique. The subject was a youth of twenty-six, born of a neuropathic family. He developed epilepsy in his thirteenth year, and the attacks seriously impaired his mental faculties, although his color sense, which had been remarkable since birth, remained uncommonly acute. The human voice had always, it appears, represented colors to him—colors of a prism-like delicacy. Even the cries of animals were colored. In the case of the human voice the most intense color impressions resulted from the sound of the spoken vowels. "A," for example, gave the impression of light green, and other senses were affected as well. The impressions succeeded and were merged into each other. Other vowel sounds produced these peculiar associates—"e" was yellow, "u" dark green, "y" white, "i" black. The printed vowels produced the same impressions, varying in vividness.—Harper's Weekly.

Monkshood.

Among the old herbalists aconite, or monkshood (Aconitum napellus), was held in wholesome terror on account of its poisonous qualities, which are greatly respected even in the present. It is a valued medicine of the pharmacopœia. Great prejudice formerly existed against its use as a medicine internally. Stoerck first prescribed it for rheumatism, and it is now known to be sedative to the heart and respiratory organs and to reduce temperature. It is a great medicine for fevers.

Monkshood is a well known garden perennial, showy and consequential on account of its rank growth. It grows about four feet high, each stalk having a long inflorescence. The flowers are dark blue, the colored sepals generally mistaken for the petals. The upper one is vaulted, and from this the plant gets its common name, the sepal hooding the flower like a monk's cowl. In cultivation there are many varieties of color.

A Story of Carlyle's Judgment.

Among the many good stories told concerning Carlyle this is not the least good: "Carlyle took a friend and a much younger man out walking with him and in his usual way indulged in a monologue, in which, nevertheless, his companion was much interested. Once or twice, however, the friend ventured to put in a word or two of objection in regard to something said by Carlyle. This annoyed Carlyle intensely, and when they reached home he turned upon his companion and addressed to him the following warning: 'Young man, I'd have ye to know that ye've the capacity for being the greatest bore in Europe.' The poor man had hardly spoken a dozen words, but since these had been critical they had made him seem to Carlyle a potential bore of colossal proportions."

Breeding Lions in Captivity.

For years back within the classic precincts of Phœnix park the authorities of the Dublin zoo have been breeding lions at a rate that has been touched by no other menagerie in the world. The climate of Ireland, which is so inimical to poisonous reptiles, seems to benefit the raging lion of the Nubian deserts to such a marvelous extent that he actually thrives better in the open air within smelling distance of the river Liffey than he is accustomed to do in his native Africa. For some mysterious reason these animals flourish and breed in the Dublin zoo.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased. Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

and relieves the stomach of all nervous strain and the heart of all pressure.

The Spanish Wine Tester.

Speaking of the preparation of Spanish wines, an expert said:

"When the grapes are crushed and the juice has been extracted, it is placed in big 160 gallon butts and left to stand. For six years it is not even touched. Then a wine expert goes through the butts, testing them by smell. His nose is the only means used to determine the value and fineness of the wine.

"Now, it is a peculiar fact and one that has never been explained that from the same vintage, secured under the same circumstances, many different grades of wine will be secured. Some of it will be pale, some medium, some dark. Only about one-third of it will be of the best quality. It is the duty of the wine tester, by means of his nose alone, to determine what butts contain the pale wine, etc., and what butts contain the best. He is able to separate the various qualities. Then the wine is bottled, labeled and shipped to foreign consumers."

Delhi and Its History.

Shah Jehan in 1631 built the present city of Delhi, close to the old Delhi, and made it the royal residence. The Mohammedans still call it Shahjehanabad, the "city of the king of the world." Nadir Shah, the Persian usurper, captured it in 1739, massacred thousands of the inhabitants and bore away plunder to the value of nearly $100,000,000, including the famous peacock throne and the great Kohinoor diamond, now in the possession of the British crown.

The British first came into control in 1803, when the Mahrattas were defeated near Delhi by Lord Lake. When the sepoy mutiny broke out in 1857 Shah Mohammed Bahadour, then ninety years old, took command of the city and until the English again triumphed enjoyed the imperial state to which he had long been a stranger.

Origin of the Polka.

The polka is of Bohemian origin. A peasant girl, servant to a citizen in Elbekosteletz, a town three hours distance from Prague, was on a Sunday dancing for her pastime, at the same time accompanying her steps with an air of her own fancy. The schoolmaster and organist, Joseph Nerudа, having observed her movements, composed a suitable air. The dance was performed for the first time in public at Elbekosteletz, then at Prague, where it obtained the name of polka. At Paris it became very popular and finally found its way to London, New York and all the great towns on both sides of the Atlantic.

The Charm Worked Too Well.

A story of witchcraft in east Africa was told at a meeting of the Folklore society by Robert Webb. A man applied to a witch doctor for a powerful charm to kill an enemy. He was given a parcel to bury in the path down which the victim was to walk. To test its efficacy the man buried it just outside the door of the witch doctor's hut. A female slave of the magician was the first to leave the hut and on passing the spot fell dead. The witch doctor sued his client for the value of the dead slave, and the case was tried before the native courts.—London Mail.

Still Obscure.

"Josiah," asked Mrs. Chugwater, holding her finger on the place in the paper where she had been reading, "what does 'eke' mean?"

"It means 'also,' 'in add'tion,' 'likewise,'" responded Mr. Chugwater. "Can't you tell from the other words in the sentence?"

"No, and that doesn't seem to make it any plainer, either," she said, proceeding to read: "'The lower classes of Chinese also, in addition, likewise eke out a miserable existence.' What's the sense of that, I'd like to know?"—Chicago Tribune.

Excusable Ignorance.

The bishop of Brisbane told of one of his bush clergy who on one of his tours up country asked the child of an English squatter what happened on Christmas day or why the day was observed. The child was unable to answer, and its mother hastened to the rescue. She told the clergyman that he really must excuse their ignorance, as no newspapers had come their way for a long time, and they had not heard the latest intelligence.—Church Eclectic.

The Foundation of All Fiction.

For all readers there comes a time when love, and plenty of it, is indispensable. And this is the one taste that lasts. Those penny novels, by the aid of which girls on the way to work give their mind a holiday, reading with pained, anxious expression, coming back to the world with a start when tickets are demanded, have but this one subject.—London Queen.

Only Wanted His Fare.

"I suppose, Jerry," the eminent statesman said, looking through his pocketbook for a new dollar bill, "like a lot of other people nowadays, you would rather have clean money?"

"Oh, that's all right, senator," said the cabman. "I don't care how you made your money."—Chicago Tribune.

Feminine Friendships.

She—Have you ever met my two dearest friends? They are just lovely and so devoted. He—How long have you known them? She—Why, I've known Annette nearly ten days and Margaret almost a week.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Evading Disturbance.

Parker—We've moved again. Barker—You have? Parker—Yes; our children were so noisy that we couldn't stand what the neighbors said about them.—Detroit Free Press.

Omar Khayyam's Translator.

To FitzGerald, careless, disorderly, unconventional, who had for so long followed his own sweet will, punctilious etiquette and fastidious neatness in attire were above all things hateful. He once said to a friend: "I couldn't be bothered with all those whims—dressing for this and dressing for that. I couldn't put up with it."

He and a friend were dining at a hotel, and among the good things set before them was a noble fruit pie. But they had eaten so heartily of the first course that when it came to the pie's turn they were beaten. FitzGerald looked troubled. "Mrs. So-and-so (the hostess), who knows my partiality for fruit," said he, "will take it as a slight if we leave the pie untouched." So without more ado he cut out a good sliced wedge with a fair allowance of fruit and dropped it into his hat, which he covered with his yellow silk handkerchief, and rang the bell for the bill.—Wright's "Life of FitzGerald."

Health Fads on the Brain.

To get all sorts of health fads on the brain is a disease in itself. It is a very prevalent disease too. With a few foolish rules to observe, a whole lot of hygienic quirks to adjust to and a schedule of superstitious sanitary notions diligently followed by day and dreamed of by night, is a malady which begins as a mental derangement and ends in a complete physical fizzle. No room left for a spontaneous life, no place for free, joyous liberty. Not a minute's space for rollicking disregard. Everything fixed, every minute disposed of, introspections without number. Forebodings, misgivings, hovering vaguely about the mind, like flocks of carrion crows. Such a life is not worth living.—Medical Talk.

Victoria Was Exclusive.

When Queen Victoria visited any of her subjects it was by no means a matter of course that people staying in the house should have the privilege of sitting down at table with their august fellow visitor. It was her majesty's custom not only to take with her to the house where she designed to "lie" (as the old phrase was) for a night or two her own bed and bedding, carriages, horses and servants (including occasionally her cook), but also to confine herself at meals to the company of her own suit, sometimes inviting her host and hostess to join her at luncheon or dinner.

The Fickle Fair Ones.

Engagements are entered into far more lightly and broken far more easily than used to be the case, when a betrothal was as serious an affair as marriage. Now it is not unusual for a girl to be engaged once or twice before she is married, and people think none the worse of her. Young girls' ways are beginning to resemble those of nursemaids, who walk out with a man, but not always with a view to matrimony.—Lady Greville in London Graphic.

She Was Not Consulted.

A girl forced by her parents into a disagreeable match with an old man, whom she detested, when the clergyman came to that part of the service where the bride is asked if she consents to take the bridegroom for her husband, said, with great simplicity:

"Oh, dear, no, sir, but you are the first person who has asked my opinion about the matter!"—London Tit-Bits.

Loss of Flesh

When you can't eat breakfast, take Scott's Emulsion. When you can't eat bread and butter, take Scott's Emulsion. When you have been living on a milk diet and want something a little more nourishing, take Scott's Emulsion.

To get fat you must eat fat. Scott's Emulsion is a great fattener, a great strength giver.

Those who have lost flesh want to increase all body tissues, not only fat. Scott's Emulsion increases them all, bone, flesh, blood and nerve.

For invalids, for convalescents, for consumptives, for weak children, for all who need flesh, Scott's Emulsion is a rich and comfortable food, and a natural tonic.

SCOTT & BOWNE, CHEMISTS, 409 Pearl St., N. Y.

A Strange Case.

In the latter part of 1878 a young lady died near Cleveland of a disease that had greatly puzzled the attending physicians, the symptoms being similar to rheumatism of the heart. The postmortem revealed one of the most remarkable facts to the medical profession. A large burdock bur was found securely imbedded in the heart directly against the posterior surface of the aorta. It was completely enveloped with cystic tissue, which had also covered all the large blood vessels leading to and from the heart. There is only one way of accounting for the presence of the bur. It had been breathed into the air passages when the woman was a child.

The Razor Crank.

"A man may be quite rational and reasonable in all ordinary affairs and yet be quite daffy on the subject of razors," said the barber. "I have one customer, for instance, who keeps six razors here—one for every day in the week that a man is supposed to get shaved—and pays me to hone them every week. Some mornings I have to try them all on him before he stops grumbling and even then may have to use one of my own razors. At other times he will order me to use the same razor for a week or two. I can't fool him by changing it either.

"Another customer who comes in only for an occasional shave talked to me for six months about the fine razor he had at home. I told him that as we seemed to have none in the shop to suit him I should be obliged if he would bring it around for me to look at. He did. Well, sir, it was a meat ax. I would as soon think of shaving a man with a carving knife. But I shaved him with it, and he never peeped."—New York Press.

"By and By" and "By the Bye."

Johnson's definition of "by and by," now generally written "by and bye," is "in a short time," corresponding to the French tout à l'heure, and Shakespeare uses it to express the immediate as distinguished from the more remote future:

Now a sensible man, by and by a fool and presently a beast.—Othello.

If we knew how "by" came to be indicative of the present the second "by" might be assumed to signify beyond.

"By the bye" was in Johnson's time used in a different, almost opposite, sense to that in which we now employ it as an equivalent to the French a propos, not as expressive of something apposite, but, on the contrary, as, according to Johnson, "something not the direct and immediate object of regard." In neither case is the employment of "by" in these two familiar expressions accounted for.—Notes and Queries.

The Mohammedan Judgment Day.

The Koran, sura 81, has this to say concerning the general "judgment day," which nearly all religions teach in common: "When the sun shall be folded up, and when the stars shall fall, and when the mountain shall be made to pass away, and when the wild beasts shall be gathered together, and when the seas shall boil, and when souls shall again be joined to their bodies, and when the girl who hath been buried alive shall ask for what crime she was put to death, and when the books shall be laid open, and when the heavens shall be removed, and when hell shall burn fiercely, and when paradise shall be brought near, then shall every soul know what it hath wrought."

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman of Denison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says. "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, at which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

New Year's in Japan.

Most of the people you meet on the Japanese New Year's day are carrying a scrubbed salmon with a piece of paper tied round its waist by a paper string which holds a little gold paper kite. That kite means that the thing is a present and has not to be paid for. Those who are not carrying crushed salmon or taking up the street in giving correct New Year's salutations are playing battledoor and shuttlecock.

A Favorite Remedy for Babies.

Its pleasant taste and prompt cures have made Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a favorite with the mothers of small children. It quickly cures their coughs and colds and prevents any danger of pneumonia or other serious consequences. It not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Very Easy.

"Don't you wish you were as smart as Conan Doyle's detective?"

"My dear sir," replied the modern detective, "if they'd let me plan the crimes in the first place I could discover the facts in ways quite as extraordinary as those of any detective that an author ever put into a book."—Chicago Post.

His Image.

Marked with the indisputable evidence of an encounter with John Barleycorn and a hard fist, he ambled into a drug store for relief. His eyes were half closed; there was a wandering, bleeding laceration across his forehead; his nose was tilted to one side, and a gash in one cheek completed the damage.

The druggist cheerfully replied that he would fix up the caller.

"Wait a minute," said the apothecary as he reached for the gauze, the lint and the antiseptic. The badly marred customer disconsolately sauntered about the shop, but suddenly stopped in front of one of those convex mirrors that do such queer tricks of distortion with their reflected images.

Our friend caught a glimpse of himself out of those disturbed optics. With a yell of terror he tore himself loose from the scene and bolted for the door, scaring the druggist half to death.

"Come back here!" shouted the drug clerk.

"Not much!" almost shrieked the fleeing man. "I just saw myself in your looking glass, and if I don't get to a doctor I'm ruined for life."

And he did not stop for explanations.—San Francisco Call.

"A Bee In Your Bonnet."

Kelly in his "Scotch Proverbs" gives the phrase, "A bee in your bonnet," with a slight addition, "There is a bee in your bonnet case." The earliest reference to it seems to be in Robert Herrick's "Mad Maid's Song:"

Ah! woe is mee! woe, woe is mee,
Alack and well-a-day!
For pity, Sir, find out that Bee
Which bore my love away.
I'le seek him in your bonnet brave,
I'le seek him in your eyes;
Nay, now I think th'ave made his grave
I' the bed of strawberries.

In "Heywood's Duologue," 1546, we find, "Their partes full heavy, their heads be full of bees." The same symbol of confusion occurs in "Ralph Royster Doyster," 1560:

Whoso hath such bees as your master in his head
Hath need to have his spirits with musyke to be fed.

And in "Damon and Pithias," 1571, "But, Wyll, my master hath bees in his head."

Rubaiyat of Indolence.

"It never pays to rustle much," said lazy Ezra Fox, a-sittin' round the corner on an empty cracker box. "I don't believe in stirrin' up a lot o' noise at all, fer often too much energy'll bring about a fall. Now, there's the flea; his energy just gits him scratched to death. The hen thet works too hard for worms is first to lose her breath. The pig thet fights the hardest fer the corn throwed in the sty is first to fatten, first to sell an' first of all to die. The horse thet tries to do it all soon works hisself to bones. The dog thet does the barkin' is the one thet gits the stones. No, sir, this workin' hard ain't right. I don't keer what they say. An hour er two of work's enough—say, ev'ry other day." An' then he tilted 'gainst the wall his empty cracker box an' soon was snorin' reg'lar like old lazy Ezra Fox.—Pilgrim.

The Chinese Diet.

"The food of the Chinese consists principally of rice and fish." That statement has appeared in nearly every school geography or history that has been published since the flood. "It's all folderol and flapdoodle," says a concessionnaire from the interior of the great empire. "The streams were fished out ages ago, and you seldom find fish in the interior. On the coast, yes, much fish is eaten, but the main food of the Chinese is pork and chickens. Mutton and beef are rare. Less rice is eaten than you would imagine, but there is an abundance of palatable vegetables, and you would find no difficulty in making out a good dinner."

Proper Treatment of Pneumonia.

Pneumonia is to dangerous a disease for anyone to attempt to doctor himself, although he may have the proper remedies at hand. A physician should always be called. It should be borne in mind, however, that pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of the grip, and by the proper treatment of these diseases a threatened attack of pneumonia may be warded off. There is no question whatever about this, as during the thirty years and more that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used, we have yet to learn of a single case of a cold or attack of the grip having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used. It is also used by physicians in the treatment of pneumonia with the best results. Dr. W. J. Smith, of Sanders, Ala., who is also a Druggist, says of it: "I have been selling Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and prescribing it in my practice for the past six years. I use it in cases of pneumonia and have always gotten the best results." Sold by H. C. Giesler.

RECULAR MEETING D. A. R.

Chapter Kayendatsyona Offers Prizes to High School Scholars and will Also Aid City Hospital.

A regular meeting of the D. A. R. was held on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George C. Webb. There was a good attendance of members, and at the conclusion of routine business, chocolate and tea were served.

Information has been received that the name given to the chapter is "Kayendatsyona." This was the name of a governess in the family of a Seneca chief, and her signature appears as a witness on the papers which conveys the land from the Indians to the white settlers under Governor Clinton. [illegible] D. A. R. papers to the Public Library.

It was also determined to award two prizes to High School scholars—one for the highest standing in American history and one for the best prize essay on American history.

An entertainment will soon be given for the benefit of the city hospital. This will be in the nature of a "shower," and in order to secure admission a piece of linen, china or utensil of some useful description must be given.

The interesting session was brought to a close by an agreement to hold the next meeting at the home of Miss Helen Osborne, on Monday, April 11.

Valuable Services Appreciated.

Mr. S. Waldhorn is so appreciative of the services rendered by the Fulton Fire Department at the fire which recently caused so much damage to his residence on Erie street that he has forwarded the following letter to the treasurer of the department:

Mr. George H. Wilson,
Treasurer Fulton Fire Department.

Dear Sir: I beg your department will kindly accept the enclosed check for $25 as a slight token of my appreciation of the valuable services rendered by the fire department during the burning of my residence, No. 324 Erie street, Jan. 19.

In conclusion I wish to add that everything was done by the fire department within the range of possibility to save the building and contents.

Respectfully,
S. WALDHORN.

MARRIED.

Mr. Frank Potter and Miss Lillian Cole, both of this city, were united in marriage at the Free Methodist parsonage last Friday evening, the Rev. W. J. Riker officiating.

Ladies' Night at K. of P. Lodge.

On Friday evening the members of Pathfinder Lodge, K. of P., were "at home" to their lady friends in their nicely appointed lodge rooms in the Reynolds block. The store occupied by the Crown Tailoring Company was used as a dressing room for the ladies and it was most conveniently arranged for that purpose. The guests were received by Messrs. N. H. Gilbert, O. P. Davis and George Mason. Palms and potted plants had been pleasingly placed in the reception hall, reading room and assembly room, and music was furnished by Wilson's orchestra for dancing. Prof. Guy F. Taylor, who was to give a short hypnotic seance, was unavoidably detained at home by the illness of his wife, to the regret of the Knights and their friends. The evening was pleasurably spent in social intercourse, games and dancing and at 11 o'clock elaborate refreshments were served. The guests repaired to their homes at a late hour, delighted with the evening's festivities and unanimous in their desire to have "ladies' night" at least an annual event in the history of Pathfinder Lodge.

Disastrous Fire.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Phillips are extending their sympathy in the loss of their home and all its furnishings by fire on Thursday night about 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Phillips was at the "Parsifal" lecture at the time the fire broke out and Mr. Phillips was at home. He thought he detected the smell of burning wood about 10 o'clock and started an investigation with the result that he found the furnace room a seething mass of flames. The fire-alarm box was a considerable distance from the residence and before Mr. Phillips could turn in an alarm and return to the house, the fire had spread throughout the structure and nothing was saved [illegible] furniture and a few articles of clothing. When the firemen reached the scene of the conflagration they were handicapped by the long distance from the fire-plug so that very little service could be rendered. The fire was most spectacular, the entire building being outlined in flames, while the window panes remained intact for a long time. A large number of people including many ladies, went to the fire from this side of the river.

The house was owned by Mrs. Julia Broadwell and Mr. Phillips held a life lease of the property. It was one of the most ancient landmarks in Fulton, having been built over sixty years ago, when it was called "Forest Hall," owing to the fact that it stood on the very edge of a dense forest which has since been cleared away. It was in an excellent state of preservation. Most of the furniture which was in the house was very valuable, having down through many generations of the family of Phillips, and its destruction is deeply regretted. The house and furniture were insured with Whitaker & Lovejoy—$2,000 on house and $1,800 on contents.

County Court.

Wallace Baker, aged 48, who was indicted for burglary in the third degree and petit larceny in entering the store of F. E. Goodjon, in this city, and taking two pairs of shoes valued at $2.48, changed his plea from not guilty to guilty and was sentenced to the State prison at Auburn for not less than one year and four months or more than one year and six months.

Frank Conway, Jr., who was indicted for the same offense, elected to stand trial, but the jury failed to agree. It was equally divided, six being for conviction and six for acquittal.

REGARDING SUNDAY FUNERALS.

Ministers of Denominational Churches and Undertakers Determine to Discontinue the Practice.

The undersigned, who are members of the Pastors' Association of Fulton, N. Y., wishing to discourage Sunday funerals, except in cases of necessity, and desiring to secure the hearty co-operation of all citizens to that end, present the following reasons for this decision:

First—They compel persons to engage in labor upon that day who ought to be allowed the privilege of the day of rest.

Second—They can usually be conducted upon another day than Sunday without any great inconvenience to the persons concerned.

Third—Such funerals, coming upon the Sabbath day, when the pastor's regular services to the church cannot very well be set aside, militate against a pastor's best service to the church he is called to serve.

Fourth—They frequently hinder persons from attending the service for the public worship of God, when such persons would be glad to attend.

Therefore, while we are always glad of the privilege of rendering service to any who may need our ministrations, in view of the above given reasons, we feel that we must decline to conduct any funeral upon the Sabbath day, hereafter, except in the case of necessity.

The foregoing is signed by the Revs. Nelson Reynolds, S. D. Robinson, A. H. Grant, Samuel Green, G. R. Foster, John Richards, S. T. Dibble, James Vincent, W. L. Sawtelle, W. G. Bassett, C. J. Taft, W. W. Dibble. J. N. Fulford and W. J. Riker.

We who are undertakers of the city of Fulton concur in the above action.

Messrs. Earl S. Brown, Edward P. Cole, N. R. Cole and C. T. Lynch.

IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pentelow are Enjoying Delightful Weather and Good Health.

[Oswego Times.]

Torrey A. Ball, clerk of the Surrogate's Court, is in receipt of a letter from William J. Pentelow the regular clerk who is spending the winter at Corona, California. Mr. Pentelow says that he and Mrs. Pentelow are enjoying the delightful climate of that State which just now is like the warm period of June and July in Oswego. He writes that the mountains of snow of which Oswego now boasts have no charms for him and that both he and Mrs. Pentelow are enjoying excellent health.

A few days ago they met and visited with Mrs. Oliver Peck, formerly of this city and now a resident of New York. Corona has experienced but two showers in the four months that Mr. Pentelow has been in California, but nature responded promptly and the trees are now all in bloom. Roses in abundance are everywhere to be seen and the almond and lemon trees are in full blossom and in all their beauty. Mr. Pentelow wrote the letter at 8 o'clock in the evening and so warm was the air that both windows and doors of his home were open. Reading of the storms with which Oswego has been visited has induced him to postpone his return indefinitely

Woman Suffrage Question.

The woman suffrage question had a legislative field day last week at Albany before the Senate judiciary committee in the hearing on Senator Steven's resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution which would give to the Legislature the power to grant to women in the cities, when desired, the right to vote on school officers and to make them elligible for the offices of school trustee or commissioner. The right is now enjoyed by women in the rural districts and villages. The bill was opposed by a large delegation of women from the New York State Anti-Woman Suffrage association.

TO GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES.

They Must Not Take an Active Part in Politics.

Replying to a query regarding the status of government employes in political matters, Postmaster General Payne, in a letter, states:

I enclose herewith copy of the rules governing civil service employes. You will observe that it is not deemed proper for the employes of the government who are within the classified service to take an active part in political matters. This would mean that they should not serve as delegates to any political convention or to act on any political committee.

Mr. Payne all along has drawn a sharp line between those in the classified service and the unclassified service. According to a former order, postmasters or others holding unclassified positions are merely prohibited from using their offices to control political movements. A person in the classified service has a right to vote as he pleases and to express privately his opinions on all political subjects, but he should take no active part in political management or in political campaigns.

Rural Republicans and Home Rule.

It is about time that the people of New York city should understand better than they do that the despised hayseed legislators have done more good than harm to the interests of the great city. As a rule, every bad bit of legislation which has inflicted hardship or suffering on New York city has been fathered by its own legislators and every good bill for the improvement of conditions in New York city has been passed mainly by hayseed votes. A comparison of the character and capacity of the rural legislators with those that New York city sends to Albany would be odious only to the latter.

As Governor Odell has pointed out, New York city now has power to manage its own finances, to grant franchises, and to exact adequate compensation therefor, to control its streets, fix the hours and wages of its employes, and to do what almost every other city of the state is empowered to do. Under the state excise law, the Governor shows that the city of New York receives yearly $4,000,000 more than it did under Tammany's home-rule excise law which it seeks to have re-enacted. Ex-Senator Miller recently called attention to the fact that New York city is the unit and the state of New York the body politic, with constitutional power to create municipalities, and that every privilege the cities of the state, New York included, now enjoy comes under the seal of the state, and that all the people have a right to voice an opinion about the goverment of our cities.

As to the conduct of our elections, Governor Odell says with truth that it is the state's concern to safeguard elections in a great city and to secure an honest count, because upon the vote in New York city the result in the whole state largely depends. If the absurd outcry of Tammany Hall for home rule were complied with, conditions would obtain which prevailed during the time of Bill Tweed, when democratic leaders up the state were asked to withhold the returns on election night until Tweed could figure up how large a majority was needed in this city to overcome the rural Republican majority. Are we to go back to such conditions? We trust not.

Farmers' Institute.

There was no abatement of interest in the Farmers' Institute, held last Friday and Saturday in the Opera House. The attendance was large and the addresses by the talented speakers were both interesting and instructive. Fulton maintains its reputation for having the best institutes in the circuit and the State officials being cognizant of that fact, send their best speakers.

Surrogate's Court.

Letters of administration have been issued to Richard Sullivan, of Brooklyn, on the estate of his brother, the late Eugene Sullivan, who died in this city, Feb. 29 last. The estate consisted of $6,000 real and $1,500 personal property.

Unclaimed Letters.

The following is a list of unclaimed letters remaining uncalled for at the postoffice, Fulton, N. Y., March 14, 1904:

Eugene Elmer, George Barpo, Thomas Haragon, E. O. Hutghing, Rev. Owen Lovejoy, William O. Keller, Charles Kinney, Alfred Mac Adams, Jack Monroe, John L. Southward, Mrs. R. M. Forbes, Mrs. Jessie Goman, Mrs. Almeda Hall, Mrs. Charles Horn, Mrs. Lillie Hide, Mrs George B. Walrath, Mrs. Annie Wilson, Mrs. Jennie Church, Mrs. Hattie C. Reid, Miss Marion Graham.

Persons calling for above will please say "advertised."

RAILROAD COMBINE DECLARED ILLEGAL

Merger of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Violates Anti-Trust Law--Highest Court Decides.

Washington, March 14.—The Supreme Court of the United States has declared the consolidation of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railroad companies to be in violation of the Sherman Anti-trust law. The ruling was a signal victory for Attorney-General Knox, who prosecuted the case in the interest of the United States Government.

Russia Moves Men to the Yalu River.

St. Petersburg, March 15.—On account of the difficulty of housing the vast number of troops poured into Mukden, 14,000 have been sent forward within the last few days toward the Yalu River as reinforcements for the 7,000 troops already at Kasan and Anju, and the stream of soldiers from European Russia is now being held at Harbin.

DIED.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Rich, died at her home in State street on Saturday, after a long illness. The funeral was held from the Free Methodist Church on Monday at 3 p. m., the Rev. John N. Fulford officiating. The body was placed in the vault in Mount Adnah.

Estelle Monta, who has been ill for some time with consumption, died at the home of her parents, on Seventh street, Sunday. Funeral services were held from the First M. E. church this afternoon. Interment in Mount Adnah Cemetery.

Hanna A., aged 60, wife of Mr. Thomas Ingersoll, died at her home in this city on Sunday morning. The funeral services will be held in the Baptist Church on Thursday at 2 p. m., and will be conducted by the Revs. Nelson Reynolds and W. G. Bassett. Interment in Mount Adnah Cemetery.

The remains of Harriet Chant, aged 39, were brought here for interment from Brooklyn last Sunday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Cossey, a sister of the deceased, and Miss Cossey. Funeral services were held in the home of Mrs. William Perry, Worth street, on Sunday afternoon and were conducted by the Rev. John Richards. Interment in Mount Adnah Cemetery.

Brainard Nelson, aged 71, for over 40 years employed in the County Clerk's office, died suddenly at his home in Oswego on Monday. Three weeks ago Mr. Nelson fell and broke his hip but he was apparently recovering from the injury when the summons came. Few men enjoyed the large wide acquaintance and the high esteem that was granted the deceased and the news of his death was received with genuine regret.

Syracuse University Catalodue.

A catalogue of Syracuse University for 1903-4 has just been received at this office. In view of the marvellous progress made by the University in recent years, it is interesting to note that the Academic Department or College proper was opened at Syracuse in 1871 with 41 students. A College of Medicine was added in 1872, a College of Fine Arts—the first in America—in 1873, a College of Law in 1895, and a College of Applied Science in 1901. In these thirty-three years the number of students has increased from 41 to 2,222. The students come from 29 States of the Union and the District of Columbia; also from 14 foreign countries. Syracuse University has more students in the College proper (Liberal Arts) than any other college in the State Note the following comparison, which is made to include also three Universities in other States. These statistics (Liberal Arts) are taken from Science, Vol. XVIII., December, 1903, compiled by Registrar Tombo of Columbia University: Columbia (including Barnard) 891, Cornell 726, Northwestern 792, Pennsylvania 514, Princeton 732, Syracuse 1,005 (942 in table, by our error.)

Sixty-nine colleges and universities of Europe and America are represented in the faculty of Syracuse University, which numbers 189 members. The entire body of Alumni now numbers nearly 3,500, and they are to be found in all parts of the world

The work of the University is so organized that any student properly prepared can pursue with the best equipment and facilities any course of liberal study found in an American College.

Bills Signed by Gov. Odell.

The following bills have been signed by Governor Odell:

Assemblyman T. D. Lewis—Amending the Fulton City Charter, relative to the compensation to city officers.

Senator Hill—Making the salaries of stenographers in Surrogates' Courts in counties in which second class cities are located, not to exceed $1,800 and $2,000 in the city of New York.

OPERA OF PARSIFAL.

Miss H. Clapp Gives an Exceedingly Clever Interpretation of the Great Musical Drama.

The spacious drawing room at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunter was filled on Thursday evening with an audience which had gathered to hear Miss Harriet Clapp give a lecture on "Parsifal," the presentation of which she had witnessed in Wagner's own theatre at Bayreuth.

The talented speaker figuratively transported her audience to the famed little town across the sea and graphically described each scene and act, interspersing the reading with magnificent piano selections from the beautiful drama.

The Schumann Club, under whose auspices Miss Clapp gave the reading, are to be congratulated upon the pleasure their effort gave their friends.

Miss Clapp presented the musical part of the program by way of illustration of the story, and an interesting sketch was given of Wagner's festival theatre in the Bavarian town of Bayreuth, where during alternate Summer seasons certain of his operas are presented with all the skill and perfection art can command. [illegible] tradition of Bayreuth, and it was Wagner's purpose to keep the performance there, but the wishes of the composer were set at variance by the presentation of the opera in New York City this season.

The themes of the other operas were stated succinctly by Miss Clapp, with their bearing upon "Parsifal," but Wagner's last utterance was the culmination of his experience and work. Throughout the opera, redemption is the recurrent theme—redemption from the curses of fate and the ills of life seemed to him insolvable and Wagner as a man was constantly asking the question and as an artist was ever trying to answer it. "Parsifal" was Wagner's last answer. The great musical drama being based upon the legend of the "Holy Grail."

Miss Clapp gave a very clever interpretation on the piano of the musical prelude with theme illustrations.

Act I. was the coming of "Parsifal" and the musical illustrations were "The ride of Kundry," "The advent of the hero," "The lament over the swan," "The mystic march to the temple." Act II. presented the temptation of "Parsifal." The incantation music," "Song of the flower maidens," were the illustration. Act III. was the triumph of "Parsifal." The musical illustrations were "Parsifal in disguise." "Parsifal proclaimed king," "The Good Friday spell," "The passing of the grail."

Wagner's interpretation of the Grail legend was compared by Miss Clapp to Tennyson's. The "rage to suffer for mankind," was the lofty inspiration of "Parsifal," Miss Clapp stated in conclusion.

People Should Know How Mr. Miller Was Cured of Kidney and Bladder Trouble by Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Cal-cura Solvent.

MATTEAWAN, N. Y., Sept. 28, 1901.

Dr. David Kennedy Estate,
Kennedy Row, Rondout, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

I have been troubled with my Kidneys and Bladder for three or four years and doctored with many physicians without obtaining any help.

A few months ago I decided to try Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's latest medicine, and am thankful to say I am now practically cured. You have not asked me for a testimonial but I wish to tell you what Cal-cura Solvent has done for me and hope that others may be so happily relieved. Yours truly,

WILLIAM H. MILLER.

GRANGE NEWS.

A great uproar was created when State Master Gardner escorted the venerable O. H. Kelley of Florida on the stage at the recent session of the Maine State grange and seated him by the side of a fine wax statue of the goddess, Pomona. The old gentleman was a bit dim of eye and mistaking the figure for a handsome young lady he at once arose, bowed and extended his hand in friendly greeting. When the shout of merriment went up he saw the point and turned the joke very gallantly by giving the model an affectionate embrace.

You ask what the grange is doing. It makes a social—intellectual centre for the rural community. It aids the church in fostering good morals and the state in making good citizens. It overcomes the isolation of country life and supplements the work of the public school. It teaches the farmer to transact business in a business way, to defend his interest at the polls and to advocate them before political conventions and state and National Legislatures. It teaches him to have a clear estimate of his just share of the wealth he produces and of the public burdens he should bear and not be content with injustice on either hand. Thus it seeks to make the farmer a prosperous, intelligent, independent conservative citizen.—J. T. Ailman.

Colds Cause Pneumonia.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Sold by H. C. Geisler.

HEAD OF MORMONISM

JOSEPH F. SMITH OF THE LATTER DAY SAINTS.

His Five Wives and His Great Power in Utah—What He Says About Divine Revelations—Polygamy Rejected by Thousands.

Joseph F. Smith, head of the Mormon church, who was recently a witness before the senate committee on privileges and elections in the case of Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, was emphatic in expressing his adhesion to the principle of polygamy and acknowledged that he had five wives.

In the course of his testimony Mr. Smith told the committee that presidents of the Mormon church were subject to "divine revelations." He said that he adhered absolutely to all the teaching of the church in regard to them and that he had been visited with inspirations from God directing him as to details in matters relating to the welfare of the church, though no angels had come to him, as in the case of his uncle, Joseph Smith, Jr., the founder of the sect. He also said that he believed in the revelation commanding polygamy as made known to the first president in a visit from "an angel in black."

Mr. Smith claimed that the founder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints had from time to time received "revelations" and that each succeeding president had inherited his power and had been chosen by twelve apostles who were divinely inspired in making the choice. The principal books of the Mormon faith are the Bible, the "Book of Mormon Doctrine and Covenants" and the "Pearl of Great Price."

According to President Smith, the "Book of Mormon Doctrine and Covenants" was made up chiefly of revelations made by Joseph Smith, Jr., the expositions or declarations made by him and revelations made by Brigham Young. "The Pearl of Great Price" consisted of revelations made by Joseph Smith, Jr., together with his translations of ancient manuscripts.

The members of the Mormon church, according to President Smith, are among the freest, most independent people of all the Christian denominations. They have freedom of speech, freedom of thought and are not all united on every principle of the church. They are entitled to their own conception of right and wrong. Not more than 4 per cent of the entire membership, he said, had contracted plural marriages; all the rest had abstained from entering that state, and many thousands had rejected the principle entirely.

Joseph Fielding Smith was elected president of the Mormon church in succession to Lorenzo Snow in November, 1901. He is not only a stalwart leader in the church, but also one of the ablest men in Utah. He has a vigorous mind and great force of character and is said to be a worthy successor to the brainy men who have held the presidency before him.

The present head of the Mormon church was born in 1838. He was baptized into the church when only twelve years of age, and when he was twenty-nine he was made one of the twelve apostles by President Brigham Young. Thirty-eight years ago he married his first wife, and up to twenty years ago, according to his own admissions, he had married five other women, one of whom had secured a divorce from him. He has forty-five children, eleven of whom have been born to him since polygamy was abolished in 1890 by the church.

In the early fifties Mr. Smith went as a missionary to the Hawaiian Islands, and in 1874 he was sent to England for the purpose of proselyting in that country, work that attracted wide attention at the time.

As president of the church and trustee in trust for all its property, Mr. Smith has almost unlimited power. On the stand he admitted that the church could claim all the property of any member should it see fit. He has supervision in a way over every officer, and while it is generally understood that the president never takes action that is not sanctioned by his two counselors he has the power to displace them and appoint others. This, however, has never been done.

President Smith was a member of the constitutional convention of Utah, and has several times been a member of the legislature. He has large financial and commercial interests.

PALACE OF EDUCATION, WORLD'S FAIR.

Showing a portion of the South Facade. The graceful and imposing colonnade is repeated on all sides.

TO STUDY THE FAIR.

Excellent Opportunities For Public Schools to Attend the Exposition in Bodies—Special Rates to Be Arranged.

The school children living within a reasonable radius of St. Louis will have opportunities in connection with the World's Fair which never before have been offered by any exposition. As this Exposition is to be distinctively educational in all its departments, special attention has been paid by the management to the development of the study idea in connection with the Fair.

The correspondence of the officials shows that the teachers or directors of many public schools in Missouri and other states not greatly distant from the Exposition are desirous of making arrangements to bring their pupils in bodies to the Fair in order that the children may pass a few days in studying the features of the great spectacle for their own intellectual benefit.

Already a number of such trips have been planned, those in charge of each school making arrangements with the railroads for special transportation rates and securing hotel or boarding house accommodations in St. Louis, not too far from the fair grounds, at reduced prices. There is every probability that during the summer vacation, and also in the spring and fall, there will be numerous excursions to St. Louis of school children who will attend the Exposition in charge of their teachers and give particular attention to the features which are best calculated to aid them in mental development.

Teachers as well pupils cannot fail to derive great benefit from a study of the Exposition. In the Palace of Education will be arranged an enormous mass of material collected from the schools of every state and nation, scientifically classified and showing an invaluable comparative exhibit of the work of school children the world over; also there will be a vast amount of material serving to show the best methods of teaching, sanitation of schoolrooms and other things of interest in this connection.

Special facilities are to be provided at the Exposition for the comfort and convenience of such visiting bodies of teachers and pupils. Jefferson Guards or other competent guides will be detailed to pilot the parties through the grounds and buildings, pointing out the objects of greatest interest to the children. From time to time there will be lectures along educational lines.

But the entire Exposition is to be a vast picture of universal industry, and with its many marvelous machines in motion, its factories and mines in operation, and its thorough exposition of the processes of producing finished articles from the raw material, it will furnish object lessons to both teacher and pupil which will be entertaining as well as highly instructive. The child's natural interest in seeing how things work will be one of the greatest aids toward the acquisition of knowledge. It is safe to assert that there will be thousands of children at the World's Fair who will learn more in one day's observation of the great moving panorama than they could imbibe from a whole season's teaching through the medium of text books.

Suppose, for instance, that a teacher desires to give his pupils information as to the products of the various states of the Union. A walk along the Plateau of States, where the state buildings are located, suggests itself. In each of these handsome buildings the children will be able to gain information which might require months to obtain in any other way. Further information may be acquired by visiting the exhibit palaces and studying the displays of the products of the states that will be found therein.

If it is desired that the children learn something about the actual workings of mines, a trip through the great mining gulch on the Exposition Grounds will furnish the information. Here the pupils may see gold, silver, copper, lead and coal mines in operation, all the processes of taking out and reducing the ores being shown.

A considerable knowledge of history and a taste for historical reading may be imparted to the school children by slight effort upon the part of their teachers in visiting the Government building and examining the precious documents to be shown there. Here also the science of civil government may be taught to much better advantage than from text books, for each department of the National Government will have its separate exhibit, showing the workings of the departments, its methods and aims.

To afford the pupils a general idea of the nations of the world it will be necessary merely to make a tour of the foreign government buildings, the teachers taking the pains to describe the habits, industries and arts of the respective peoples represented.

Suggestions as to how to study the Exposition to best advantage will be prepared by competent persons and furnished to those in charge of school children.

WORLD'S FAIR NEWS NOTES

The Department of Justice will show at St. Louis photographs of the large prisons, penitentiaries and workhouses in the United States, with specimens of work done by prisoners.

During his exile on St. Helena Napoleon told his physician, Dr. O'Meara, that the sale of the Louisiana territory to the United States was one act of his life to which he looked back with the greatest pleasure.

Mr. James F. Early has produced a superb model of the Library of Congress which will be the principal feature in the exhibit to be made under Dr. Putnam's direction at St. Louis for the government. Several of the beautiful Corinthian columns in miniature have already been completed. This work when finished promises to sustain Mr. Early's fine reputation as a sculptor and architect.

The exhibit of Alaskan trade and enterprises will be one of the most interesting at the Exposition. The resources of the Klondike—the seal, salmon, cod and halibut fisheries—will be extensively exploited. A family of Alaskan seals will be brought to St. Louis. A unique anthropological exhibit of desirable specimens will be seen. The Alaskan building is a typical Alaskan structure with four giant totem poles on each corner.

The original treaty for the purchase of the Louisiana territory, now in the vaults of the Department of State, is written on six pages of Irish linen paper bound together with a piece of green silk ribbon. The original document will be taken to St. Louis, and the first page, securely protected, will be exhibited.

A model creamery is a leading feature of the dairy section. It is 180 by 20 feet, with walls of glass. Visitors may see every process of buttermaking from the cans of fresh milk to the yellow rolls or other packages.

Japanese Traits.

In no country is William Morris' golden rule, "Have nothing about you but what you know to be useful and believe to be beautiful," so scrupulously followed as in Japan. The politeness of the Japanese—a sign of "equality"—the politeness of this hierarchical east, is in surprising contrast with the aggressive rudeness of our democratic communities. Gentleness and cordiality are the Japanese rule; no scenes of violence. The readiness with which Europeans fly into a passion stupefies the Japanese, appears to them to be a sign of innate coarseness. In his consideration for others a Japanese habitually refrains from making any show of his personal sorrows. Only her vanity has led Europe to fancy that the Japanese regard western civilization as superior to their own and that therefore they are "Europeanizing" themselves purposely. The western diplomatist who described modern Japan as a "bad translation" of Europe merely shared the delusion and conceit of foreigners generally.—F. Challaye in Revue de Paris.

THE IDOL OF JAPAN.

VICE ADMIRAL TOGO, COMMANDER OF THE MIKADO'S FLEET.

How He Established His Reputation as a Determined Fighter—Received His Early Training at the British Naval College.

Vice Admiral Hehatchi Togo, commander in chief of the mikado's war fleets, who won the admiration of the world by his daring torpedo attack on the Russian ships at Port Arthur, is one of the foremost figures of the day. As a fighter he has no superior in the service of his emperor, and he is the idol of his countrymen, who think him the boldest admiral that sails the seas today.

Admiral Togo is now about fifty-five years of age. He is not of princely or noble birth, but is a simple gentleman, one of the samurai of the great Satsuma clan, as so many of his fellow officers are. His senior in rank, Admiral Count Ito (not to be confused with his namesake, Marquis Ito), who was in chief command of the navy during the Chino-Japanese war and is now chief of the naval headquarters staff in Tokyo, is also a Satsuma samurai. Formerly the whole Japanese fleet was officered and manned by the Satsuma in the same way that the Japanese army was drawn from the Choshu clan.

Admiral Togo received a great part of his education at the Naval college, Greenwich, where he went through the regular course of instruction. He thus understands a good deal of the history, training and traditions of the British navy, and he has brought this knowledge to bear on his own with good effect. In 1894 when war broke out between China and Japan he was in command of the Naniwa, a cruiser of 3,650 tons, one of the vessels composing what was then known as the first flying squadron of the Japanese navy. During the war he greatly distinguished himself and earned the reputation of being a first class commander. It was in connection with the episode of the sinking of the troopship Kowshing that his name first came into worldwide prominence.

VICE ADMIRAL TOGO, JAPAN'S GREAT NAVAL LEADER.

In the course of the war Togo saw a great deal of fighting. He was present at the first battle of Phungdo and at the battle of Haiyang; he took part in the bombardment of Tankchow, and saw the destruction at Weihaiwei of all that was left of the Chinese fleet. His ship was repeatedly struck, but received no vital damage. The fame of Togo grew. He was known as a man of resolution and resource, most of all as a hard and determined fighter.

When the war was over he was raised to the rank of rear admiral and promoted to the third command in the Japanese fleet. Prior to his present appointment he was commander in chief at Maizura, a dockyard on the sea of Japan. Maizura is not one of the largest yards in the island empire, but is a suitable port from which troops may be dispatched to Korea owing to its comparative nearness to the peninsula.

In person Togo is a short, somewhat stout man, with full black beard and mustache and a distinctively Japanese appearance. He is not a great talker. Indeed in manner he is rather reserved. Above all, he is a cool, resolute, courageous sailor, quick and alert of perception, but calm and not precipitate in action. He knows his fleet well; knows what it can do to a nicety. He also knows the spirit and temper of his men, freshly stirred at this time to a fever of patriotism. Japan expects much from him and his men and has no fear that they will disappoint her.

It is Togo's destiny to direct the movements of one of the most formidable war machines ever built, for Japan has created in less than ten years as perfect and powerful a war fleet as any of similar size on the globe. At this perilous crisis in her history she has chosen to place the working of this machine in the hands of Admiral Togo, a choice undoubtedly made after due deliberation and after a careful survey of all the possibilities of the situation. The mikado and his advisers knew that in this matter there must be no mistake, and the unanimous approval of the nation, expressed on Togo's appointment to the chief command, shows that he is regarded as the right man in the right place.

Units of Measure.

The editor was taught by his governess that three barleycorns measured one inch, and at the mature age of six years he determined to test the accuracy of this statement. He had no difficulty in finding the barleycorns, but somehow no three grains that he picked up in the chickens' yard agreed with the formula. He never attempted the more scientific test which is thus described: "The length of a pendulum oscillating in a second in vacuo at sea level in the latitude of London is 39.13929 inches, and from the knowledge of this fact the standard of the inch, foot and yard can easily be obtained should the official standards at any time be lost or mislaid." When in 1834 the "standard" measure was destroyed by fire at the house of parliament an attempt was made to restore it by the pendulum test, but pendulums, like barleycorns, were found not to agree.—London Chronicle.

The Young Fool.

There may be no fool like the old fool, but he is given a close rub by the young man who tries to keep step with companions who have three or four times as much spending money as he.—Hartford Post.

Kilkenny castle is one of the oldest inhabited houses in the world, many of the rooms being much as they were 800 years ago.

The Same Girl.

Young Husband—When I used to kiss you, you slapped me. Young Wife—Well, you won't get slapped now unless you forget to kiss me.—Illustrated Bits.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 16, 1904.

JOHN ALEXANDER DOWIE is receiving a "Kentucky" welcome in Australia.

FRANCE will increase her champagne crop this year, having bought 3,000,000 bushels of American apples.

THE civilized nations of Europe are sweeping out and furbishing their cabinets to receive anon rare pieces of old China.

GREAT BRITAIN is hurrying supplies, guns and ships to Victoria, and plans to make the capital of British Columbia a western Gibraltar, with guns that will carry ten miles.

A NEW YORK physician has invented a curious and delicate machine which will distinctly illuminate the internal organs. Perhaps we can find out now what's the matter with Mr. Bryan's liver.

Is that you San Domingo, wailing and making that racket at the gate? Go 'way child! You will have to wait. With the Philippines, Porto Rico, Cuba, Guam, Panama and Hawaii, Uncle Sam's kindergarten is crowded.

THE Mormon president, Joseph F. Smith, tells the Congressional Committee that he has forty-two children, most of them girls. He adds very earnestly that Reed Smoot should not be held responsible for that fact as he does not furnish the Easter bonnets.

THE three Kentucky juries which convicted Caleb Powers as an accessary to the murder of Goebel and sentenced him to death, were wholly composed of Democrats except the last one on which there was one Republican whose wife was informed that he would be assassinated at once if he did not agree to a verdict of guilty. Mexico, Turkey and Abysinnia are pointing the finger of scorn at us.

A MEMBER of the Congressional Committee on Foreign Commerce says that the Panama Canal Company "positively cannot deliver the canal to the United States. If we should pay it the $40,000,000 we should only be buying the right to build the canal and to retain 40 per cent. of the profits after paying all expenses." This accords with Senator Platt's view. But Cromwell, counsel of the Panama Canal Company, says there is no hitch whatever, that everything is lovely, and that the transfer can made before the first of May.

MR. BRYAN is really chivalrous in discussing current events. He says "Mr. Hearst is among those worthy to be mentioned." There is a condescension about this that is delightful and that is no doubt appreciated. The New York Evening Post states in regard to Hearst's candidacy: "It is evident that his unblushing campaign—based, as a Democratic Senator has said, purely upon "cheek and a check book"—is making some headway. Hearst stands today, in fact, as the greatest temptation to the Democratic party to play the fool and break its neck again. Almost any other candidate prominently mentioned would have a chance of election, and could preserve honor even in defeat; but Hearst is enough to sink any cause and damn any party."

Japanese Catechism.

It is stated that the military and naval service of Japan have a catechism which every soldier and sailor in the service of that country is familiar with and cheerfully subscribes to. A Tokio dispatch describes the enthusiasm, almost fanaticism of the Japanese soldiers and sailors, who have been taught this catechism:

"Who is your master?" Answer: "Our Emperor."

"What constitutes a true military spirit?" "Obedience and sacrifice."

"What constitutes the highest courage?" "To march forward in spite of superior force."

"What is a low order of courage?" "Getting excited over trifles and yielding to sentiments of brutality."

"Whence came the blood reddening our flag?" "It was shed by a soldier on the battlefield."

"What remains of this dead soldier?" "Glory."

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. C. J. Bacon is ill at her home in Oneida street.

The Rev. A. H. Grant is in Binghamton.

A son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. David Tallman.

Mr. L. K. Wilber is critically ill with pneumonia.

Miss Sara Perry is enjoying a visit with friends at Caughdenoy.

Mr. William Naracon has returned from St. Louis, Mo.

Several candidates were initiated by the Knights of Columbus at their last meeting.

Milt Crandall of this city will occupy a conspicuous place in the Elks' minstrel show in Oswego to-morrow, Thursday, night.

Mr. Elmer Harper lost the first finger on his left hand while engaged at his duties in the Hunter Gun factory on Saturday. Dr. Gladman dressed the wound.

The High School basket ball team defeated the Oswego High School team on Friday evening in the City Hall by a score of 17 to 13.

The class of 1904, F. H. S., enjoyed a straw ride to the home of Mr. Harry Scudder at Palermo Centre on Friday evening.

Albert Armstrong's picture and monologue presentation of the "Sky Pilot," given at the Opera House last night, was about the most enjoyable of any of the mental, healthful entertainments presented in Fulton this year. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Public Library.

The officers of secretary and treasurer of the Citizen's club have been occupied by one officer, Mr. L. C. Foster, for seven years. Mr. Foster resigned the office of secretary last week and Mr. Charles R. Bennett has been selected to fill the position. Mr. Foster continues as treasurer.

Fears of a freshet is exercising the minds of the manufactures and residents along the river banks. The ice in the river ranges from 20 to 36 inches deep, and should the thinner ice above the dam break up first, much loss of property would ensue. The Board of Public Works is without funds to do the work or a channel through the middle of the river would be blasted with dynamite. It may be done by the manufactures.

Pulaski is rejoicing in the addition of a table and tabourette factory to her list of industries. The new company, which will have its main office in Syracuse, is capitalized at $20,000 and they already have orders for over $10,000 tables. They will commence the manufacture of the articles on a large scale in July. A recently purchased factory is being enlarged and equipped with the necessary machinery and a large force of men will be employed.

The annual church day of the Baptist Church was held last Thursday, when the following officials were selected: Church clerk, L. N. Goman; deaconess, Mrs. C. W. Streeter; treasurer of benevolences, C. W. Streeter. The election of the following Sunday school officers was ratified: H. L. Piatt, superintendent; A. Reed, assistant superintendent, Mrs. F. Evenden, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. C. W. Streeter, superintendent of primary department. An adjournment was taken until to-morrow, Thursday, evening.

Jack Nelligan and Belle Hamilton were arrested while asleep on a pool table in the Frank Wilson pool room on Broadway and First streets, early on Sunday morning. They had effected an entrance through a window. They were conveyed to the City Hall by the officer who found them. Nelligan was locked in a cell while the woman was given a cot elsewhere. Nelligan was sentenced to six months in the Oswego jail by Judge Wilson on Monday but his sentence was suspended, providing he left town. Deputy Sheriff John Young took charge of Nelligan, informing him that Sheriff Cook was anxious to see him in Oswego.

Theater Audiences.

A theater audience is fickle and not infrequently cruel, but it must be won. Augustin Daly had several ways of testing it. One was to station men in his employ at convenient points where they could hear the comments and judge whether the play was making an impression. But a test upon which he depended more was to listen himself at the moment when the curtain went down upon an act. If he saw people turning to one another eagerly and making quick comments he knew that they were being moved, whether for praise or blame. But if the talk began slowly after the curtain fell he was perfectly sure that the play had excited no interest—a worse fate than blame.

It is a favorite way of players to pick out some one person in the audience—one with a sympathetic countenance—and to play to him or her, and to judge by success from the expression seen there. The trouble is that the people in the front rows are often the regulars, who feel little emotion and show less, and who may be still unmoved when the rest of the audience is in ecstasy. If they could know the distress and the woe they cause—well, then they would not be the regulars.—New York Mail.

The Strutting Woodcock.

One evening in November, many years ago, a country friend brought a live cock woodcock to my house in Byron, Ill. A spent shot had made his capture possible; in fact, one could not see that he was hurt in any way after a sharp, scrutinizing search under a powerful light on the kitchen table. All at once the beautiful creature slipped from my hand, and, assuming the air, mien and ways of a turkey gobbler in the mating season, proceeded to strut about on the table in the circle of powerful light. It was one of the strangest, wildest, most beautiful sights the writer ever beheld. After a solid hour's performance the little audience decided that no taxidermical touch should ever desecrate that beautiful feathered form, and the bird was gently slipped into the pocket of an old hunting coat, carried a mile out of town into the country and turned loose in the edge of a hundred acre cornfield, into which he quickly scuttled.—Forest and Stream.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

Sheridan gave almost no promise in childhood of his future brilliancy. His mother pronounced "Richard Brinsley" to be "the dullest and most hopeless of her sons," and he was sent home from Dr. Whyte's academy with the reputation of being an impenetrable dunce, who wrote "think" for "thing." But he must have been able to think a thing or two even in those days, for at twenty-six he had written the "School For Scandal," of which Leigh Hunt observed, "It is a very concentration and crystallization of all that is sparkling, clear and compact in the materials of pure comedy." It should, however, be mentioned that a more judicious of the youthful Sheridan's preceptors, Samuel Parr, one of the masters at Harrow, detected the latent spark of his pupil's genius and aided it by judicious cultivation.

A "Friday" Ship.

A true story is told of a skeptical Massachusetts captain who, way back in the early years of the republic, determined to exhibit the fallacy of the Friday superstition. He contracted on a certain Friday for the building of a ship, and it was arranged that the keel of this vessel was laid on Friday, that she was launched on a Friday, named Friday, commenced loading on a Friday and hauled into the stream on the same day of the week. To add to the possibilities of disaster, a negro cook named Friday was engaged, and, thus fully freighted with the sinister name, the Friday sailed on a Friday, bound to a port in the West Indies. From that day to this no tidings of the ill conditioned craft have been received.

A Beautiful Easter Paper

The Syracuse Sunday Herald on March 27th in Four Parts, 44 Pages

On Sunday, March 27th—don't forget the date—the Syracuse Sunday Herald will issue as its Easter Number the most attractive, newsiest, best illustrated paper ever offered in this territory. The paper will be in four parts, containing forty-four pages, including a color section which has no rival. Without a doubt this Easter Number will be the finest illustrated edition the Sunday Herald ever offered.

The management of the Sunday Herald has spared no expense in securing special feature stories. Many of the best features come late, but the following are examples of those already prepared:

Body snatching case, in a graveyard, at which a Docter was killed. The story told for the first time.

Would-be Heroines for Novels. Ideas women have who aspire to such honors. Told by themselves.

Syracuse couple longest married gives advice to young married folks.

A Beautiful Model's Home Life. This women has posed for sixty designs for the World's Fair.

The first celebration of Easter in Onondaga county. A splendid story.

East Syracuse Widows and Orphans, made such by railroad fatalities. A story of rare human interest.

Heir to a million, a college graduate, Mayor of a city, Member of the Legislature, becomes a noted crook. A story stranger than fiction.

Interesting stories and pictures for the women folk and the children.

Four pages of fun in colors. The children cry for these pictures.

Remember the Syracuse Sunday Herald is the only paper in this territory which offers you the combined service of the Associated Press and the New York Sun. In news from the War in the Far East no other paper can approach this service.

The Syracuse Evening Herald is conceded to be the leading paper in this part of New York State. It has unrivaled facilities for securing news, and fully illustrates news events. It covers the important news in your section. Its market editions are unequaled for completeness and accuracy. The Syracuse Evening Herald will be delivered at your home for ten cents per week.

You can't afford to miss the Easter Number on March 27th. It's the best bargain for a nickel you ever made. ORDER EARLY.

The Walton High school basket ball team will play a return game with the Fulton High school team on Friday evening, March 18, in the City Hall. A rousing reception will be tendered the visitors and a splendid game is anticipated.

The law firm of Cullen & Davis of Oswego has been retained by the Fulton fire department to commence an action to restrain the payment of the 2 per cent. insurance tax to the city of Fulton for the use of the city. They have also been substituted in the place of W. S. Hillick to argue a similar action commenced last year, before the Court of Appeals.

Arrangements are being perfected for the installation of a new steam pump at the pumping station by the Board of Public Works. Superintendent Allen states that the present facilities, owing to the constantly increasing demands for water, are inadequate to maintain sufficient pressure. Whenever new machinery is installed it may be necessary to increase the size of some of the mains in the southern portion of the city in order to equalize matters.

The managers of the Kaptop Broom Company are making excellent progress in installing the necessary machinery, material, etc. at their factory, securing efficient employes and getting ready for manufacturing. Messrs. A. Bristol, the treasurer and manager, and Elmer Taylor, the superintendent, have returned from New York, where they made a close investigation into the manner and method of conducting the business in that city, and they now believe that the Fulton factory will be ready to fill orders for brooms in about two weeks' time.

Hon. T. D. Lewis, acting under a resolution adopted by the Common Council, has introduced in the Assembly an amendment to our City Charter, empowering the Board of Public Works to expend $3,000 for the repairing and building of new sidewalks. Two-thirds of the cost of such sidewalks is borne by the owner of the property and one third by the city. If there is not sufficient money in the improvement fund for this purpose, the deficiency will be reported to the Common Council, which shall borrow the necessary amount and include it in the next tax levy, and the amount so borrowed shall be repaid within one year from the proceeds of such tax.

ARTS OF ALL AGES

They Are Blended by World's Fair Designers So as to Produce Both Variety and Harmony.

Magnificent Picture In Which the Best of the Old Masters Is Seen With the Latest Creations of Modern Art.

THE architecture of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition is majestic in the great ivory white exhibit palaces, historical in the foreign and state buildings, all-world and unique in concession structure.

The palaces are the varied productions of the leading architects of the United States, designed in obedience to a chaste, harmonious scheme. The style adopted is described as "a free treatment of the Renaissance." According to dictionaries, "Renaissance" is the style which succeeded the mediæval and was based upon study and emulation of the forms and ornaments of the classic architecture of Greece and Rome.

One of the architects defines the use of the term "as a carte blanche to the architects to produce a beautiful effect by the use of any architectural device that ever gladdened human eyes, from the pediment and peristyle of the Parthenon to the minaret and dome of the Taj Mahal."

The architect of the Palace of Education surrounded that building with a majestic Corinthian colonnade. Another architect made towers of the pedestals that carry the crowning sculpture of the Palace of Electricity. Another architect designed for the Palace of Varied Industries Spanish steeples and a semicircular colonnade unlike anything ever before done in architecture. The architect used a dome roof and a triumphal arch motif in the Palace of Manufactures. Another architect broke the sky lines of the Palace of Liberal Arts with quadriga crowned entrances reaching as high as five story houses. Other architects introduced into the Palace of Machinery a German feeling, with a forest of towers and a big sloping roof backing a sculpture decked entrance way.

The supervising architect of the United States treasury introduced another element of variety in the United States Government building, taking the form of a big flat dome, an Ionic colonnade and a classic pediment lifted in the air by a caryatid attic. The same architect reproduced in the great Fish pavilion for the government of the United States, line for line, a Roman dwelling house of the Pompelian type.

In the Mines and Metallurgy Palace the Egyptian obelisks furnish the motif for the entrances. The cornice is wiped out entirely by the substitution of an overhanging roof. In the Art Palace an engaged colonnade is employed to decorate a windowless museum facade. Festival Hall is made conspicuous and distinctive with the largest dome on earth. The chief of design of the Exposition adopted the dome roof, three massive entrance arches and a bottle shaped pylon for features of the great Palace of Transportation. This same mind employed plain heavy piers on the Palace of Agriculture and demonstrated the architectural possibilities of the farmhouse gable in the Forestry, Fish and Game building.

The artistic sense finds further pleasing variety in the Tudor Gothic of the dozen permanent red granite buildings which form part of the World's Fair settlement.

Architectural history may be read in the buildings of the states and foreign governments. France reproduces the Grand Trianon at Versailles; Germany, the Imperial castle at Charlottenburg; Great Britain, the Orangery of Kensington palace, at London; Japan, the Castle of Nagoya; China, the palace of Prince Pu Lun. Belgium builds an Antwerp townhall. Mexico has a patio, or inner court, in its buildings. Louisiana reproduces the Cabildo at New Orleans, where the formal transfer of the Louisiana Purchase Territory from France to the United States took place. New Jersey supplies a replica of General Washington's headquarters at Morristown. Connecticut presents the fine Sigourney mansion at Hartford and adds mantels and woodwork from two other Connecticut mansion homes. Virginia's pride is gratified in Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson. Mississippi builds Beauvoir, the home of Jefferson Davis. Most of the other states adopt the style of the big exhibit palaces on their buildings. The transition from the architectural dignity of the Plateau of States to the gayety of the Pike is made by the building of Texas, shaped like a five pointed star, and by the wigwams of giant trees which Washington and Oregon supply.

Color is used sparingly on screen walls and in shaded places in the exhibit palaces. The facades are a uniform ivory white, with color on the roofs, domes and towers. On Concessions street, however, color is used more freely, and the forms of the "art nouveau" abound.

FEATURES OF EDUCATION.

How the Exhibit at St. Louis Will Be Distinctive From That at Any Other Centennial.

By CLAUDE H. WETMORE.

Education finds more recognition in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition than in any previous centennial celebration. It is the keynote of the great enterprise, permeating every display. Moreover, the idea in its abstract has a home of its own, in that for the first time in history the appliances of school life are shown in a building constructed exclusively for this purpose.

At Chicago and at Paris this exhibit was made a department of something else. At St. Louis it is seen alone, housed in a palace which many consider the most perfect architecturally of any on the grounds.

Besides, in the classification of exhibits education leads all others, taking rank over fine arts, manufacture and all the industries.

In remarking these facts visitors have added that it was strange such prominence had not been given to education before, and they are loud in their praise of those who have carried the idea so prominently to the front.

In St. Louis the revealment of process will be carried out in the Palace of Education as well as in the other palaces. Formerly it was deemed sufficient to arrange in booths samples of text books and of apparatus of the laboratory and observatory. Appliances used in the schoolroom were displayed conventionally, and visitors could pass through aisle after aisle and view only the technicalities of the world of instruction. As a result the pedagogue only was interested.

In St. Louis, however, there is to be actual demonstration of the use made of all such appliances, and the multitude will find itself entertained. Thus the model training school will be a creature of life—boys to be seen using the tools of the various trades. Pupils of a school for the blind will demonstrate the methods in vogue where the sense of touch is made to supply that of sight, and those who are deaf and dumb will also be given opportunit to display their method of instruction.

College professors at work in laboratories promise entertainment for the layman, and likewise there will be demonstration of the methods employed in using the modern telescope and taking photographs of the sun, moon and stars.

Supplementing these active exhibits will be others quite as interesting that have been secured from all over the world by means of the camera. Enter one booth and turn the swinging doors of a movable cabinet. You will see picture after picture illustrating school life, the children entering a class room, the pupils at recitation, in a fire drill, during the recess hour—in fact, through all the stages from the hour when they assemble for their studies until time comes for dismissal.

As illustrations of public school life in large cities, New York, St. Louis, Cleveland and other municipalities have planned to make extensive displays, while cities of the old world will bring their systems into comparison.

Higher education is exemplified as never before at a world's fair. All the large colleges of the United States have prepared extensive exhibits which are supplemented by displays from technical institutions.

Both interesting and novel will be the exhibits made by the Agricultural department of the Federal government in the Education building, for which congress made a special appropriation of $100,000. These will be in the nature of experiment stations such as have been established at various places throughout the country for the practical education of those who desire to study the scientific questions of agriculture and horticulture. Here will be demonstrated the best system of fertilizing the soil, of sowing the seeds, of caring for the crops, of harvesting them, and then for handling the same in barns and storehouses. Visitors to the Exposition will be given the opportunity for instruction in the diseases which infest the realm of Flora and the medicines or surgery that must be employed to combat the dangerous inroads.

Located on the Grand basin and commanding a view of the Cascades, the Terrace of States and the Hall of Festivals, the Palace of Education, itself a portion of the main picture, can be reached by either the broad boulevards or by transit over the crystal waters of the Lagoon. Its visitors may reach its doors in roller chairs, on foot or in gondola or electric launch.

In this building, as in the others, especial arrangements have been made for the comfort of the sightseers. Multitudinous windows permit of free currents of air constantly circulating, and withdrawal rooms are at every hand where one can sit down after becoming fatigued from too much exploration.

Agricultural Plans Completed.

Mr. James L. Farmer of Tennessee, chief special agent of the United States Government board, World's Fair, has practically completed the plans for the exhibit of the colleges of agriculture and mechanic arts and experiment stations, of which he has charge. He has secured space in the Educational building for the greater part of the exhibit, which is large and comprehensive and which will be of especial interest to southern planters.

The Fate of the Stingy.

I sometimes wonder what will become of the stingy man in the hereafter. Certainly he can't get into heaven, and if the devil has left the first principles of a gentleman the stingy man will not get the entree in the other place. It is well to be thrifty and frugal, but when thriftiness runs to seed it becomes just plain, mangy, measly stinginess, and a man would much better get the smallpox.—San Francisco Bulletin.

His Effort.

Strutter—What did you think of my impersonation of Hamlet? Foyer—As genuine a piece of realism as ever I saw. Strutter—You flatter me. You surely cannot be in earnest? Foyer—Never more earnest in all my life. The fact that you were trying to act shone forth in your every word and every movement.—Boston Transcript.

Matter of Finance.

"Time is money, they say," remarked the chronic loafer as he bit off a fresh chew of tobacco.

"Well, maybe it is," rejoined the village grocer, "but if it's all the same to you I wish you would spend a little more money here and a little less time."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Secret.

Mr. Thompson—Jones told me a secret today. Mrs. Thompson (anxiously)—What was it? Mr. Thompson—The one I told you last week. Mrs. Thompson—Oh, dear me; that Mrs. Jones is such a tattler! I'll never tell her anything again.—Judge.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas, Default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by a certain mortgage bearing date the 1st day of December, 1902, made and executed by Mabelle Root, mortgagor, to the Fulton Savings Bank, mortgagee, which said mortgage, with the power of sale therein contained, was recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, New York, on the 3d day of December, 1903, at 3:39 o'clock p. m., in Liber 263 of Mortgages, at page 68, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding has been brought or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and,

Whereas, The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of eleven hundred seventy-three dollars and seventy-six cents ($1,173.76), being the whole sum secured to be paid and now remaining unpaid thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the statute in such case, made and provided, and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage recorded as aforesaid, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property, described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as lots numbers six and seven (6 and 7) of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, being twenty-five (25) feet in width on Second street. Also all that tract or parcel of land situate in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego and State of New York, being part of block number twenty-one (21) of the former village of Fulton, bounded as follows: Beginning on Second street one hundred and twenty-eight (128) feet southerly from Seneca street, running thence easterly one hundred twenty-one and a half (121½) feet; thence southerly twenty-five (25) feet; thence westerly three and a half (3½) feet; thence southerly twelve (12) feet, thence westerly parallel with Oneida street to Second street; thence northerly along Second street thirty-seven (37) feet to the place of beginning," at public auction at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the city of Fulton, county of Oswego, New York, on the 12th day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated December 16, 1903.

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgagor, Robert H. Stowe. Mortgagee, Mrs. C. C. Pettis. Mortgage dated August 14, 1903, and recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the Clerk's office of Oswego County, N. Y., on the 15th day of August, 1903, at 8:25 a. m., in Liber 204 of Mortgages, at page 528. The sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is fifty one dollars and nineteen cents ($51.19), being the whole sum secured by said mortgage. (Said Mortgagee above named, also holds two prior mortgages upon the same premises, on which is unpaid the sum of $400, together with interest on $150, from February 14, 1903, and on $250, from March 18, 1903.)

The mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, and State of New York, known and described as Lot No. five (5) of block five hundred and four (504), according to the map of the village of Fulton on file in Oswego County Clerk's office. Default having been made in the payment of the sum secured to be paid by said mortgage, and no action having been brought to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof; therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained, recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said mortgaged property at public auction, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, N. Y., on the 2d day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said sale will be made subject to the lien of the above mentioned prior mortgages.

CAL-CURA SOLVENT

Dr. David Kennedy.

Dissolves and swiftly removes stone and gravel (red and white) from the Kidneys and Bladder, thus relieving the pain of Kidney Colic and avoiding the use of the surgeon's knife. Calcura Solvent prevents the formation of uric acid in the Blood and corrects those conditions of the Stomach which produce Gout poisoning and Rheumatism. Calcura Solvent is A NEW MEDICINE. It expels gall stones, gives health to the liver, and cures bilious colic and constipation. Dr. David Kennedy said of it, "Calcura Solvent is the outcome of my long experience as a Physician and Surgeon and I consider it the greatest achievement of my life." Caution: Only one Dr. Kennedy ever lived in Rondout, Kingston, N. Y. Ask the druggist for

25 STATE STREET, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

COMPLETION PUSHED DESPITE THE WEATHER.

Increased Activity at the World's Fair Assures That Everything Will Be In Readiness by Date of Opening.

February's frosts had no perceptible effect on the growth of the World's Fair at St. Louis. With the opening day not two months distant, the determination of every builder to have his task completed on April 30, the day set for the opening of the Exposition, is apparent on every hand. A greater number of workmen are employed on the grounds now than at any time since the construction began, and the results attained are more noticeable.

All of the great exhibit palaces are finished. On most of them the full quota of sculpture has been installed. Workmen at dizzy heights are busy placing groups of colossal statuary on the Liberal Arts and Electricity Palaces. Soon the final coat of paint will be given, and then the work of the contractors will have been ended. This will not be done until April, so that when the Exposition opens each building will be resplendent in its new coat of old ivory.

Beautiful Festival Hall, the central figure of the Cascade territory and the last of the great Exposition buildings on which work was started, is nearing completion. The framework was finished several days ago, and the ornamental staff is now being applied to the exterior. The dome which surmounts this structure is the largest in the world—200 feet in diameter at the base and reaching skyward 250 feet. The dome is greater than that of St. Peter's, at Rome, or St. Paul's, in London.

Remarkable activity is being displayed in the foreign section. Great Britain is putting the finishing touches on her replica of the beautiful Orangery. French workmen are performing similar tasks on the Grand Trianon, France's beautiful structure. Mexico long since finished her work and is waiting for the Exposition throngs. Germany's reproduction of the kaiser's castle at Charlottenburg can be finished in a few weeks.

Japan did not begin on her replica of the wonderful Castle of Nagoya until midwinter. The ground was full of frost when she started excavations, and Japanese workmen demonstrated their proverbial spirit of progress by loosening the frozen ground with dynamite and installing their foundations. Now scores of busy hands are rapidly completing the superstructure.

Brazil displayed great energy in erecting one of the largest and handsomest structures in the foreign section in a remarkably short time. The cold climate had no effect on the Orientals who are adding the finishing touches to China's beautiful structure, the first ever built at any exposition with the Peking government's authority. The decorations on this structure will prove a revelation.

Sweden's building was shipped in sections, and a week only will be required to raise it when it arrives. Italy, Austria and the remainder of the foreign countries are working with equal energy.

Kentucky dedicated her state building on Feb. 13. Iowa, Missouri, Oklahoma, West Virginia and a score of other states have finished their state buildings. New Hampshire and Vermont have submitted plans, and contractors have assured these tardy states that their buildings will be ready to receive guests on the opening day.

All the main buildings in the forty acre Philippine reservation have been finished, and the Filipino builders are now constructing the villages of bamboo and nipa that will shelter more than a thousand natives during the Exposition. The Philippine buildings were erected at a cost of more than $1,000,000.

The main structure of the United States Government's Indian exhibit is finished and when the sun shines warm only a few days will be required for the Indians to put up their wigwams and tepees and settle themselves in what will be their homes for seven months.

Probably greater activity is being displayed on the Pike, the Concessions street, than in any other quarter. An army of workmen are building structures of amusement and entertainment that will cost more than $5,000,000. Many buildings are already finished.

The Intramural railway was formally opened Jan. 27. Its electric cars will carry visitors to any section of the grounds at a small cost.

A MASTER OF ORATORY.

Rev. Anna H. Shaw, Head of the Woman Suffrage Association.

The new president of the National American Woman Suffrage association, Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, is one of the most gifted orators on the platform today. To a pleasing voice and fine delivery she unites a rare fund of humor, which enables her, as some one has said, "to strike telling blows, but always with a velvet hand."

Rev. Anna H. Shaw was born in England, but at the age of five was brought to this country, her parents settling in Michigan in a region where there was neither school nor library and no reading save that supplied by the walls of a log cabin, which were covered with old copies of a religious paper.
